Senate President's Views

Budget, Race Actions Need Sound Plans

Florida's Legislature, which meets every two years, reassembles next Tuesday in Tallahassee. The eyes of the legislators and the rest of the state will be on three influential men—Speaker of the House Thomas Beasley, Senate President Dewey M. Johnson and Governor LeRoy Collins. How they agree and differ on key issues will affect you. Sen. Johnson explains his views in today's article written especially for The Herald.

TALLAHASSEE — Taxes, segregation and reapportionment are the major problems facing the 1959 legislature convening Tuesday.

I believe we will accomplish much through sound and sensible action in dealing with government spending and race relations.

I am also hopeful that a compromise reapportionment plan can be proposed by constitutional amendment and put before the voters.

In regard to avoiding new taxes, I believe we can eliminate several programs now operated at state expense without curtailing essential public services.

There are some educational benefits offered by the state which I believe adult individuals could pay for themselves.

I think the legislators will go along with reducing adult education expenses to a minimum but they will approve such programs that will enable adult students to earn a livelihood.

I refer to courses which lead to high school diplomas for persons who were not able to complete high school before going to work; manual arts training, typing, shorthand and accounting classes.

Further reductions can be made I believe in the kindergarten and summer enrichment programs.

Tighter Welfare Programs

TIGHTER CONTROL on welfare spending, particularly in the program for aid to illegitimate children, would assist our efforts to hold down the cost of government.

New laws might include forcing both parents—mother and father — to do more on behalf of the child and requiring the mother under oath to disclose the name of the father so he can be held responsible for the child's support.

A majority of the legislators, I believe, realize the taxpayers don't want to be told they are going to have to pay new taxes every two years for additional services many of them personally do not feel are warranted.

As I look at it, while we might cut spending a little too thin and hurt in a few places, I believe that overall we can provide for the absolutely necessary services with low taxes which will be an inducement to new people and new industries.

We won't be a backward state so long as we can live within our existing revenues and provide the essential services.

How Lama Fled Chinese Reds

NEW DELHI, India —(AP)— Under Chinese pursuit the Dalai Lama made a 300-mile trip on foot across Tibet's mighty mountains in order to reach refuge in India, his joyous followers disclosed Friday.

Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru told a wildly applauding Parliament the 23-year-old god-king is in good health and will be given "respectful treatment."

Nehru did not use the word asylum. Informed sources said he considered this an improper term in reference to the only ruler in the world whom his people regard as a god.

The Dalai Lama slipped by night from his summer palace of Norbulinka in Lhasa, the Tibetan capital. The party included his 57-year-old mother, his 14-year-old brother Rimpoche Ngeri, his 26-year-old sister Tsering Domme, four cabinet ministers and two tutors.

They had to slip past the guns of the Chinese Communists as they headed toward some of the wildest country in the world. They took the most direct route to India, about 150 air miles away but more than 300 miles through the valleys and snow-clad passes.

The party crossed the Kyichu River, 25 miles south of Lhasa, and walked on and up through the Che pass, 17,000 feet high. On the other side of the mountain range they passed over the broad Tsangpo River and walked 35 miles to Minden Ming, a rebel stronghold.

All this time the Chinese Communists had spotter planes in the air and parachute troops ready to drop if the fugitives were sighted. The Dalai Lama's party frequently saw the searching planes.

At Minden Ming the Dalai Lama picked up a strong escort of fierce Khampa warriors, who have led the revolt and who have been fighting the Chinese Communists in Tibet for three years. They moved up through the mountains to the rebel stronghold around Lake Trigu and walked south to the Indian border.

Nehru Wednesday night received a secret message from Shillong. The message said an emissary of the Dalai Lama had arrived at Towang to ask for political asylum.

Instructions had gone out previously to India's border checkposts to permit entry, however, and the Dalai Lama actually had already crossed.

Tibetan exiles declared the Dalai Lama still is the ruler of Tibet, making clear he will

Ike Talks Today on U.S. Policy

To Spur Fight On Dictators

GETTYSBURG, Pa. —(UPI) — President Eisenhower Friday flew to Gettysburg, Pa., where today he will deliver a major foreign policy speech he hopes will make clear to Americans "the international facts of today's life."

The President, who will speak at a Gettysburg College convocation, plans to emphasize the need for grater individual and collective understanding to maintain freedom's fight against Communist dictatorship.

White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty gave newsmen a brief preview of the President's planned speech before the chief executive flew to Gettysburg by helicopter.

He said Eisenhower believes the American people "need to understand our nation's position and role in strengthening the world's free nations which, with us, see our concepts of freedom and human dignity threatened by atheistic dictatorshop."

This indicated the President might take the occasion to put in a new plug for his four-billion-dollar foreign aid program, which is faced with a tough battle in the Democratic-steered Congress.

Argentine Capital Hit By Riots

BUENOS AIRES —(UPI)— Serious rioting broke out in downtown Buenos Aires late Friday as thousands of Peronist and Communist workers demonstrated against the government's austerity and labor control policies.

Massed mounted and foot police fired barrages of tear gas bombs against the demonstrators, who gathered before the congressional building in violation of a police ban.

The demonstrators burned three private cars and overturned several others. They also overturned a police truck six blocks from the Congress Plaza.

Police ordered out nearly 2,000 men around the plaza to keep order along with 5 assault cars, two armored cars and firefighting units.

A Neptune tank spraying colored water was also active. The water was used to facilitate the identification of rioters engaging in criminal activity. At least two persons were hurt by bursting tear gas bombs.

Thousands of Peronist and Communist workers walked out on a six-hour strike intended to permit workers to mass before the labor ministry and the Congressional building.

Frisco Barred To Soviet Ballet

San Francisco is one of the American cities where Soviet citizens are not permitted to travel. For several years this country has restricted certain areas to Russians in retaliation to Russian travel restrictions on Americans.

New Move to End Dispute

Canada Proposes U.N. Man Berlin Routes

Channel 7 Award Is Reopened

WASHINGTON — (UPI) — The Federal Communications Commission Friday reopened the Miami television Channel 7 contest to determine whether any improper influences figured in the award to Biscayne Television Corp.

This is the fourth case the commission has reopened on the basis of charges aired last year before the House influence investigating subcommittee that backstage approaches were made to former FCC Commissioner Richard A. Mack and other commission members while applications for TV awards were pending.

Mack resigned under fire after hearings which involved influence charges against him in the Miami Channel 10 contest. He is scheduled to go on trial with his long-time friend, Thurman A. Whiteside of Miami, Tuesday.

The commission moved Friday on its own motion to reopen the Channel 7 case. The FCC twice voted to grant the channel to Biscayne, which is owned by former NBC President Niles Trammel and principal stockholders of The Miami Herald and The Miami Daily News.

The FCC initially voted to award the channel to Biscayne, for operation of station WCKT at Miami, on Jan. 18, 1956.

Three losing applicants in the four-way contest appealed to courts. After the case was returned to the FCC, the commission on June 21, 1957, reaffirmed the grant to Biscayne by a 4-2 vote.

Those voting in favor of Bixcayne were former FCC Commissioner George C. McConnaughey, John C. Doerfer, Robert E. Lee and Mack.

Commissioners Rosel H Hyde and Robert T. Bartley dissented. Commissioner T. A. M. Craven abstained.

The losing contestants in the fight were East Coast Television Corp., South Florida Television Corp., and Sunbeam Television Corp.

The commission said it would hold hearings to determine whether any member of the FCC should have disqualified himself from voting in the contest.

The commission said it would consider holding the hearings outside of Washington. The commission set no date for the hearings nor did it name a presiding officer.

Death Car Is Found In Tampa

By TOM LOWNES
Herald Staff Writer

The bloodstained Meslener murder car was found in Tampa Friday — 40 days after it disappeared in Miami.

While Dade detectives flew to Tampa to comb the car for clues, a second sensational aspect of the baffling, brutal murder came to light in Miami:

Frank Meslener, 19320 NW Seventh Ct., husband of the pretty murder victim, disclosed that the clothes his wife was wearing when she was found dead on a Miami River canal bank in Medley were not her own.

Mrs. Meslener

Strangely, however, the clothes on the body did bear a striking resemblance to those that Mary Meslener wore to work on the fatal day — Feb. 23. But they differed in color and detail, Meslener said.

Mary Meslener was shot once through the head sometime during the dark hours of Feb. 23 after she left work at National Air Lines' airport office.

Her body was found in Medley two days later but her red plastic wallet turned up in the locker of a Miami-based airman the day before the body was found. The airman was cleared by lie-detector tests.

Metro homicide detectives, working in Tampa, were close-mouthed as to what either of the case's new clues would prove.

Full contents of the murder car are still to be divulged, but this much is known:

Floods Drive 2,000 Out of Their Homes

By United Press International

Spring floods, fed by April showers and melting snowbanks, kept more than 2,000 persons homeless in New England and the Midwest Friday.

The floods followed a week-long weather siege of tornadoes in the South, dense fog in the East, and heavy rains in the North. Together, the vile weather combination claimed 20 lives.

Parts of Illinois, Wisconsin and Iowa had been living with their floods for more than a week. A total of 1,700 persons were homeless in the industrial Rockford, Ill., area and 80 families had been driven from their lodgings in Wisconsin.

In contrast, the New England floods swirled up with little warning in Vermont and New Hampshire. They were expected to spread rapidly through the six-state New England region.

The New England floods were choked by ice floes so big they snapped a 65-foot metal radio transmitter tower like a matchstick on the Sugar River near Claremont, N. H.

Cold Front Moving Toward N. Florida

A cold front was sweeping southeastward from Texas toward North Florida with cloudiness and rain Friday, but forecasters predicted good weather for at least most of today in the southern part of the state.

"It's hard to tell right now whether the front will keep coming or slow down before it gets to Central and South Florida," Miami Forecaster Phil Ackerman said.

But the front shouldn't really bring much of a temperature drop, even if it gets to South Florida, Ackerman said.

The forecast for today was increasing cloudiness and possible rain in the northern part of the state starting this morning. Sunny skies were predicted for South Florida — with possible increasing cloudiness if the cold front keeps coming.

Ackerman said there was no indication of a squall line traveling with the new weather front, like the one which spawned deadly tornadoes in Central Florida on Thursday.

3 Points Presented To NATO

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Canada proposed Friday that the Atlantic Pact allies consider inviting the U.N. to man the access routes between West Berlin and Free Germany.

Canadian Defense Minister George Pearkes put forward the suggestion in discussing new moves to end the East-West dispute with Russia over the future of Berlin.

The plan would require Russian acceptance.

Other delegates at the 15-nation Atlantic Pact Council meeting gave no immediate reaction to the Canadian plan. Pearkes emphasized he proposed a U.N. approach only to reinforce present Allied rights in West Berlin.

He suggested the U.N. might consider a three-point formula as the basis for an agreement with Russia:

1—Verification by the U.N. that the West and the Soviets are living up to the terms of any new agreement.

2—A Soviet pledge binding Russia as well as "its associates" to allow full freedom of access to West Berlin and acceptance of what Pearkes called "a U.N. presence on the lines of communication."

3—A firm understanding that U.N. responsibility for West Berlin would reinforce or back up the present American-British-French right to be there as conquerors of Nazi Germany.

Pearkes did not spell out whether he meant troops or observers to constitute the "United Nations presence" he advocated on the 110-mile route between West Berlin and West Germany.

The Canadian delegate joined foreign ministers from eight other Atlantic Pact nations in urging the Western Big Three nations to adopt a firm negotiating policy in dealing with the Soviets.

The foreign ministers pledged solid backing for a tough Western negotiating policy in East-West talks due to begin in Geneva May 11.

Their unanimous views, expressed during the second day of top-level NATO meetings, coincided with mounting signs the American, British and French governments — the Big Three — would heed the advice.

The Big Three foreign policy chiefs, prodded by West Germany, were reported to have hedged on the concessions they were thinking of offering the Russians.

"The liberty of Berlin is the liberty of Europe — if Berlin falls, who will be next?" asked West Germany's Foreign Minister Heinrich von Brentano as discussion of the Berlin crisis ended.

As the conference in the Inter-Departmental auditorium reached the midway point, authoritative officials reported these signs of a tougher Big Three negotiating policy toward the Soviets:

1. Britain has agreed to link

Radiation Grows; U.S. Probes Rate

WASHINGTON — (UPI) — Stratospheric fallout from Russia's radioactivity dirty atomic tests in the Arctic last October is now hitting the U.S. with growing intensity.

This was disclosed Friday after preliminary study of new fallout monitoring data by Dr. Willard F. Libby, scientist member of the Atomic Energy Commission.

Ike to Get Special Report

WASHINGTON — (AP) — President Eisenhower has ordered a study of how the government can best evaluate the effect of radioactive fallout on health.

The White House announced Friday that the study already is well under way. The Atomic Energy Commission, the Department of Welfare and the Budget Bureau are carrying it out.

James C. Hagerty, presidential press secretary, said the three agencies expect to report to Eisenhower in a few weeks.

It is too early to say whether the Soviet fallout will push the Strontium-90 content of any U. S. foods above maximum permissible levels. Libby doubts that it will.

The new information, accumulating with every April shower, tends to support fast fallout theories recently advanced for big nuclear explosions in the polar regions.

Libby hopes to have facts which will settle this issue by May 4 when the Congressional Atomic Energy Committee opens hearings on radioactive fallout.

The new data, from AEC rain sampling and Navy air filtering stations, suggest that U. S. cities in the latitude of Minneapolis, say, are getting the heaviest dose of Soviet fallout.

Fallout comes in three categories:

1—Local, deposited in minutes or hours in the immediate vicinity of the explosion. This is the dreaded scourge of nuclear war.

2—Tropospheric, distributed worldwide in a month or less in latitudes corresponding to those of the blast site. This is a hazard only less immediate than that of local fallout.

3—Stratospheric, worldwide in distribution and consisting of radioactive particles pushed into atmospheric regions above 40,000 feet where they drift for a long time before coming down. Only the longer-lived radioactivities are a menace in this category.

The U.S. has tried—with new manufacturing and testing techniques — to clear up its weapons tests. But the latest fallout information proves decisively that Russian weapons have become dirtier and dirtier.

Informed sources said, however, India will recognize the Dalai Lama only as a spiritual leader of the Buddhists and he will be forbidden to form any government in exile in India. This is to avoid offending Red China.

The Chinese Communist embassy declined to comment on the Dalai Lama's request for refuge in India. Peiping Radio had pictured the Lama as forced by anti-Communist rebels to flee to India.

Reliable Tibetan exile sources in India's frontier town of Kalimpong said the Dalai Lama is heading for Shillong, capital of India's easternmost province of Asam, for a few days rest.

They reported he is being escorted by Indian army and political officers and expects to reach Shillong Sunday. They expect him to come to New Delhi for talks later. The Dalai Lama brought a party of 80 with him from Tibet, crossing into India near Towang Tuesday night.

Tibetan sources in Kalimpong said the Dalai Lama began his hazardous flight the night of March 17, shortly before a revolt erupted against Red rule.

'Racket King' Convicted in Drug Case

Found guilty with Genovese were 14 of 15 defendants in the three month-long trial. The jury of six men and six women reached a verdict after 12 hours of actual deliberation. The jury received the case Thursday night.

Among others convicted were Vincent L. (The Chin) Gigante, who was acquitted last May of the attempted murder of Frank Costello, the former underworld king.

Genovese, 61, a swarthy man of sinister repute in underworld circles, has been described as a king of the rackets.

He and the other defendants were accused of operating a huge narcotics ring that brought drugs from Europe, Cuba, Puerto Rico and Mexico into this country.

Meslener Death Car Is Found in Tampa blue Nash Rambler, still bore its original license plate but its clear plastic seat covers had been slashed off the front seat.

In Tampa, Police Inspector Neal Brown said he was notified of the find early Friday and immediately informed Dade police.

The car was found, he said, by A. W. Bowman, a 33-year-old Ryder Rental Truck Co. employe in a parking lot on the fringe of Tampa's downtown section.

Bowman told police he first noticed the car in the lot "about a week ago," but thought nothing of it at first.

In Miami, Meslener said he was "delighted to hear that the car has been found," but added that he couldn't understand how it could have been driven for more than a month without somebody spotting it.

Of the black umbrella, Meslener said neither his wife nor any member of the family had ever owned such an umbrella.

Meslener said he was "positive" that the dress found on his wife's body was not her own.

"The dress she wore to work was brown but the one she was found in was grey. And the collar, the pockets and the waist were different," said Meslener.

"Also," said Meslener, "her own sweater was black with black buttons — the one she wore when she was found was blue-black with navy blue buttons.

"I first thought of it about two weeks ago — while we were in New York for the funeral. I remembered then that they had never showed us the clothes Mary was wearing.

"When they finally did show us the clothes, we could tell right away they weren't the same. Besides everything else, they were badly worn under the arms and too big."

"But the detectives are sure the clothes she was waring when she was found are the ones she was wearing when she was shot. The only thing I can figure is she must have been taken somewhere before the murder," said Meslener.

Castro To Seek U.S. Aid

He'll Also Ask Old Sugar Quotas

By R. HART PHILLIPS
The New York Times Service

HAVANA — Premier Fidel Castro said Friday that he would demand that the U.S. restore Cuba's former sugar quota and would seek financial aid from the U.S. or Canada on his trip to Washington later this month.

He spoke in a televised interview.

Castro said that restoration of the quota would permit Cuba to sell a million more tons of sugar to the U.S.

He also said Felipe Pazos, president of the National Bank of Cuba, Regino Botti, minister of economy, and Rufo Lopez Fresquet, minister of the treasury, would accompany him to Washington and concentrate their efforts on obtaining financial aid from the U.S. or Canada.

Castro is going to Washington April 17 to address the American Society of Newspaper Editors.

Castro said Cuba must increase her sugar exports and reduce imports because of the nation's lack of financial reserves. He accused the regime of former Dictator Fulgencio Batista of having stolen the reserves. He said Cuba was left with about seventy million dollars, compared with the five hundred million dollars in reserves that the island had when Batista seized power on March 10, 1952.

One of the first steps of the new revolutionary government when it assumed power last January was to establish controls on exchange and imports.

Castro also attacked Jose Figueros, former president of Costa Rica and one of the outstanding revolutionary figures of Latin America as "a bad friend, a bad democrat and a bad revolutionist."

The young Cuban revolutionary leader criticized Figueros for having said recently that all of Latin America should be on the side of the U.S. in case of war between that country and the Soviet Union.

"Instead of giving us advice, he should have furnished us arms when we were fighting," Castro said. Figueros did send some arms, Castro added, but he described the aid as "very small."

At the time of Figueros' remark, Castro angrily declared that Cuba would be neutral in any war between the U.S. and the Soviet Union.

Castro declared Friday that Figueros' revolution in Costa Rica was not a revolution, since it had not touched any "created interest" and had not broken up any big estates.

Castro also was incensed over Figueros' reported statement that Castro was working too hard and too long and took pills to stay awake.

"I take only pills of idealism and the pills of revolutionary spirit," Castro said emphatically.

During a four-hour telecast he charged that American wire services did not quote him correctly and that Time magazine, The Miami Herald and other newspapers were waging a "campaign of lies" against his regime.

Johnson's Cautious

JOHNSON

TAXES — Avoid them by eliminating some programs.

WELFARE — "Tighter control" on spending.

SEGREGATION — After every other remedy is exhausted, let voters decide whether schools should be closed rather than integrate.

CONSTITUTIONAL REVISION — "A certain amount" but "I want to retain old, basic 'safety valves' of our present constitution."

Senate President's View

'Legislative Action Needs Sound Plans'

some provisions of the Alabama law and considering such other grounds as would come within recent U.S. Supreme Court decisions.

Some form of parent-option plan is in order. What worries me is that it does not apply until integration is ordered.

A better plan may be offered which would provide for scholarship in tuition granted to any student, white or colored, who enters a private non-sectarian school. The payment would be made from the general revenue fund as distinguished from school funds.

Whenever a child is withdrawn from public school in the county, the county's minimum foundation grant from the state would be reduced by the same amount the state is contributing to the child to attend a private school. The actual expense from tax dollars would be exactly the same.

After every other remedy is exhausted, I think there ought to be a provision to permit qualified voters of a school district to determine whether schools should be closed rather than integrated.

It should call for the closing of all schools in the district both white and colored, not just an isolated school.

The legislature must keep in mind that we are fighting for the rights of the better class colored citizens as well as white.

* * *

Keep 'Check and Balances'

REAPPORTIONMENT — My experience from the "give and take" attitude finally reached in 1957 indicates that such an atmosphere again can result in reaching a solution that will be worth letting the people decide for themselves by submitting a constitutional amendment.

We will never reach now, or 50 years from now, a perfect solution that is going to meet 100 per cent approval in the extra-large counties and the exceedingly small counties.

The "check and balance" in the Federal Congress dates back to 1787 and Florida early adopted a similar check and balance in the two houses of our Legislature. The states in the U.S. Senate have the same amount of representation and House is based on population.

I don't recommend that we go quite that far.

With minimum limitations of one representative to a county, I think apportionment in the House should be based strictly on population. In the Senate I believe a number of factors should be considered that will effectively carry out the theory of check and balance.

While the present formula may not be quite equitable and fair, it would definitely be unfair to the smaller counties to determine complete control in both houses by population. If we would adopt the same formula for representation in both Houses then we would no longer need both houses.

In order to give relief to some congested areas, additional senatorial districts seem to be the answer.

Some Revisions Likely

CONSTITUTIONAL REVISION — I believe the legislature will draft a certain amount. Personally I want to retain old basic "safety valves" of our present constitution.

National Summary

High pressure along the Eastern slopes of the Rockies presented a pattern of dry weather from much of the Mississippi Valley to the Pacific coast and sunny mild weather was featured over the Southeast. A vigorous low pressure disturbance over Lake Huron accounted for showers across the Northern Appalachians.

At noon 70 degree temperatures extended from the Gulf coast into the Carolinas and 60's accompanied warming southerly breezes into portions of the Ohio Valley and mid-Atlantic states. In the wake of low pressure off the North Atlantic coast northwesterly winds prevailed along the New England coast but sunshine pushed temperatures into the 50's.

A cold front trailing southward from Lake Huron extended southwestward into Texas. Brisk northwesterly winds pressed cold air southward over most of the midsection of the country with temperatures in the 40's in the northern plains while 80's appeared in southern Texas.

A pattern of fair to partly cloudy skies over the far West found late morning temperatures in the 40's and 50's in the Northern Pacific states while portions of the warm southwest were pushing toward the 90 degree mark.

British Remain Optimistic

By DREW MIDDLETON
The New York Times Service

LONDON—The British government apparently is undismayed by reports of differences among NATO allies in Washington and of tendencies there to complicate and delay negotiations with the Soviet Union.

MIDDLETON

The view is that although there are obvious divergencies among the U.S., British French and German policies for meeting the Soviet challenge on Berlin and Germany, these have been inflated out of proportion.

As an example, one responsible source cited reports of violent opposition by the West German government to recognition of the Communist regime in East Germany.

While the unification of Germany remains the ultimate objective of all allies, this source indicated the British believe that Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's government may be prepared to support temporary measures of recognition for the East German regime.

Similarly the British government still believes the West should attempt to negotiate a new "title" to its position in West Berlin when the foreign ministers and heads of government meet.

This attitude stresses the general British desire for negotiation. Spokesmen agree that at the moment this desire is stronger here than in Bonn, Paris or Washington.

They remain confident however that Prime Minister Harold Macmillan's arguments will prevail. He believes that Western democratic leaders must do everything possible to avoid war, including negotiations with leaders of the Soviet Union.

Macmillan frequently cites World War I as a conflict that burst upon the world without any effort by European statesmen to meet and negotiate a settlement that might have prevented it.

These views were made known in an atmosphere somewhat strained by newspaper reports of widening differences in Washington.

One report was that in the absence of Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, the Defense Department was pushing successfully for a showdown with the Soviet Union rather than negotiation.

This is the prime reason, reports indicated, why no coordination Western approach to the Soviet Union has yet been achieved and why it will be necessary to have another meeting of foreign ministers in Paris later this month.

Nikita Gives Dag Ride In Boat--And All's Well

'Success' Tag Hung On Talks

Reds Willing To Negotiate

By MILT FREUDENHEIM
Miami Herald-Chicago News Wire

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y.—Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold's visit with Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev was a friendly success climaxed by a private trip in a rowboat.

Hammarskjold flew from Moscow to Khrushchev's vacation home in the Black Sea resort of Sochi for a lengthy combination "professional" and "social" visit with the Soviet premier.

Russian leaders have favored distinguished visitors with rowboat diplomacy before, notably at an outing near Moscow for British and American Air Force officials and a group of ambassadors. That time Deputy Premier Anastas I. Mikoyan landed in the lake by mistake.

The Khrushchev-Hammarskjold boating reportedly was brief and short on communication. The Soviet premier speaks only Russian, and Hammarskjold does not speak Russian. There was no interpreter aboard.

But Hammarskjold's talks with Khrushchev on dry land were "interesting" on both professional and "simply human" levels, the U.N. official has disclosed.

In a series of reports to French, British and American foreign ministers he is saying he found the Russians willing "to negotiate in the most serious sense of the word, that is to say, not in order to mark time but in order to get somewhere."

Hammarskjold hailed as "a very valuable and encouraging element" what he called "the will to negotiate."

He told newsmen all the big powers have come to "the recognition of negotiations as not only necessary but vital, and with a priority beyond all other possible approaches to world problems."

But he warned that "we have bought the hopeful signs at the price of an increased danger .. both the promises and the risks are likely to be bigger than they have been in recen times."

At summit meetings of East-West heads of governments, Hammarskjold raised the "likelihood or possibility" that Khrushchev, President Eisenhower and other summit officials will negotiate the suspension of nuclear tests now under study in Geneva.

"I do not believe that we shall see the Geneva (nuclear) talks break down easily or light-heartedly," Hammarskjold said, raising the "possibility that they will still be going on when the top-level negotiations come into full swing."

On other subjects, Hammarskjold said:

Tibet — His only information is from press reports. "A member nation can discuss such an issue within the U.N." but there are "two complications," since Communist China is not a U.N. member, and the Tibet revolt might be claimed to be internal.

Suez Canal — He is "personally in touch with Cairo" regarding seizures of Israel cargoes. ". . . I hope that we shall get around this corner."

Nasser threat to Israel — The text he has seen refers to "decisive action if attacked by Israel," meaning U.A.R. President Gamal Abdel Nasser said he was asking Iraq "if it was willing to act in a defensive alliance, and that is not a novelty."

U.N. aid to Asia — He sees "a very happy future" for Southeast Asia if the U.N. can "screen off" cold war "winds" and "justify their hopes of reasonable economic assistance."

Fidel Uses Gringo Trick For 300 Bass

Charles Alexander, Orlando, Fla., was with Carter. In Kelly's party were C. T. Anderson, R. G. Anderson, Netum A. Steed, Fred Kidwell, and Dr. J. B. Nail, Jr., all of Wichita Falls.

LONDON — (UPI) — Moscow Radio said Friday President Eisenhower "expressed some ideas that must be welcomed" in his speech Thursday to the NATO Council in Washington. But it made it clear Moscow still does not like NATO.

The remarks were delivered by a commentator in an English-language broadcast beamed at North America.

Referring to the parts of the Eisenhower speech it approved, the broadcast said. "For instance, he said the door would be held open for East-West talks. He said there must now be a concrete, realistic solution of the problems of disarmament, European security and Germany."

"Such statements are satisfying," the broadcast said.

Then the commentator began on the parts of the speech he did not like.

"The President spoke much about NATO's great services in preserving Western civilization, asserting that it was set up as an instrument to preserve a just peace and avoid war, as a bastion of Western defense against possible aggression," Moscow said.

"But no matter what the West says about the defensive and peaceful nature of the grouping, its 10-year history tells better than any words how all its activities aim at pursuing power politics and racing for arms."

British Papers Rap U.S. Brass

LONDON — (AP) — Official circles Friday denied British newspaper suggestions that Prime Minister Harold Macmillan's government is concerned and angry over recent statements by top U.S. generals.

A government source said perhaps the timing of the statements — with the foreign ministers' conference approaching — was unfortunate but "there is no feeling of anger as far as the government is concerned."

Alongside an editorial, the pro-Laborite paper carried a photograph of U.S. Gen. Lauris Norstad, NATO's top commander, labeled: "A threat to the hopes of world peace."

The editorial said there is a new menace to world peace — "the loud-mouthed American generals."

Ousted Reds Leave Mexico

MEXICO CITY — (AP) — Two Soviet diplomats, accused of aiding Mexican labor leaders in an Easter holiday railway strike, left by plane for Toronto Friday. They had been ordered out of the country by the Mexican government.

The two are Capt. Nicolai V. Remisov, a naval-military attache, and Nicolai M. Aksenov, second secretary in the Soviet embassy here.

A Soviet embassy spokesman denounced the Mexican action as unfriendly, and denied the charges brought against the two men.

The Mexican government accused them of giving economic aid and advice to Demetrio Vallejo, leader of the railway workers, and his lieutenants. Vallejo and more than 100 of his followers are under arrest pending filing of formal charges.

Informed sources charged there was a Communist plot to upset the country with a series of strikes in key industries.

Ex-Dictator Deprived Of Rights

Colombia Rules Rojas Can't Vote

BOGOTA, Colombia —(UPI) — The Colombian Senate sentenced former Dictator-President Gustavo Rojas Pinilla to the permanent loss of his political rights.

He was convicted of abuse of power, violating the constitution and undignified conduct in office, including personal enrichment.

The sentence meant that Rojas Pinilla no longer would be entitled to vote or be elected to public office; would be deprived of military rank — he was an army general — and never would be permitted again to be a member of the armed forces.

Rojas Pinilla also was deprived of the pensions to which he was entitled as a former president and as a former army officer. His pensions amounted to about $1,000 a month.

The sentence is irrevocable, since it cannot be appealed to any court or authority in Colombia.

The sentence followed a trial which began before the Senate Jan. 22. The verdict convicting Rojas Pinilla was returned two weeks ago.

Rojas Pinilla seized power by an army coup June 13, 1953. He was overthrown by a national civic movement May 10, 1957.

Evidence presented against Rojas Pinilla during the Senate trial will go now to the Supreme Court which will decide whether to try him on criminal charges punishable by imprisonment.

The Senate, sitting as a "court of conscience," tried him on moral charges, subject to moral penalties.

'Mobility' Called Must For Army

FORT BRAGG, N. C. — (AP) — Gen. Bruce C. Clarke warned here Friday that future Army units "must be combat-ready for the enemy's best or they are not ready at all."

Speaking to ranking Army and civilian industrial leaders attending a symposium on mobility and communications, Gen. Clarke said the "built-in mobility" of Russian armies has presented a stiff challenge to the training and equipping of American ground forces.

Gen. Clarke, commander of the U. S. Army Continental Army Command at Fort Monroe, Va., said "to live on the same battlefield with these (Russian) forces, we must have at least the same degree of mobility. To be able to win the ground battle, we must have a superior mobility.

"Never again will the pace of battle permit the gradual seasoning of units under fire," he said.

Peace Priests Resented

Catholic School Shakeup Is Revealed in Hungary

BUDAPEST —(AP)— The Central Roman Catholic Seminary's staff here has undergone a shakeup. Apparently it resulted from student resistance to "peace priests" who cooperate with Hungary's Communists authorities.

The shakeup, following a series of mass expulsions of students, was announced in the current issue of Katolikus Szo (Catholic Word), the organ of the peace priest movement. Some of the peace priests are members of Hungary's Communist-dominated Parliament.

The publication said Dr. Imre Papp has been removed as spiritual leader of the seminary, replaced by Ferenc Kiraly. The prefect, Gyoergy Liptay, has been replaced by Dr. Janos Pfeiffer.

The announcement made no mention of student trouble, but informed sources said 60 students were expelled recently. The student body normally numbers about 90.

The expellees, these sources said, had expressed sympathy for 14 fellow students dismissed earlier this year. Apparently they refused to back down on protests against the original expulsions, and thus were accused of defying their church superiors.

Neither government nor church sources have commented officially on these reports.

The original 14 expellees were told they could reenter the seminary after a year if they "changed their incorrect behavior."

But the statement did not define just what this incorrect behavior was.

The students are reported to have refused to take part in a meeting attended by peace priests, some of whom have been ex-communicated by the Vatican.

Dancers Get Tax Break

LONDON —(AP)— Britain's dance teachers have won a two-year stocking and shoe battle with the income tax man.

From now on they can claim an annual tax allowance of up to 75 pounds ($210) for these tools of their trade.

Ballerinas and chorus girls are being allowed the same deduction as a rehearsal allowance.

It's been terrible," wailed Ballerina Orrena Elder, "when we are rehearsing ballet, we're lucky if point shoes last two days. And, they cost a pound a pair."

But the loudest hurrahs over the new ruling came from the girls who do the can-can, that high-kicking, leg-showing French dance.

"The can-can," said Pat Patterson, "can break a girl. It's terrible on stockings. I dance it six times a day."

"My long black stockings last only a week," complained Yvette Davies, "and they cost three pounds. The trouble with the can-can is—the higher your kick, the greater the wear."

See Better

Just Shed Inhibitions

LOS ANGELES—(AP)—People who are near-sighted may need psychotherapy instead of glasses. That's the way a UCLA psychologist sees it.

Dr. Jack Fox said in a report that a study he conducted suggests that near-sightedness is a psychosomatic disorder—one induced by mental and emotional disturbances.

Eighty persons were used in the study. Forty were near-sighted and 40 had normal vision. Fox said he found the 40 near-sighted subjects were more inhibited than the others and tended to repress anxiety and take recourse in bodily complaints and symptoms.

Ship Runs Aground, 2 Drown

By the Associated Press

WELLFLEET, Mass. — Two men drowned, a third was missing and four other fishermen swam ashore safely through 20-foot waves early Friday after the Boston fishing vessel Paul Mino went aground on a sandbar during a heavy rainstorm.

In These U.S.

The bodies of the cook, Charles Piazzi, 25, and Crewman Joseph Panto, both of Boston, were recovered. Missing was the skipper of the 83-foot craft, Angelo Marino, 42, of Everett.

The accident occurred on the ocean side of Cape Cod.

The survivors were listed as Michael J. Ciarametaro, 42; Frank Ciarametaro, 29, (no relation) and John Norris, 39, all of Gloucester, and James Clements, 45, of Somerville.

Clements was suffering from shock. The others were reported in good condition.

Schoolman Fired For Fatal Blaze

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. — L. R. Gaines was discharged as superintendent of the Arkansas Negro Boys Industrial School as a result of a fire in a locked dormitory which killed 21 teenage youths March 5.

The school's board of directors said Gaines was dismissed for negligence in not having an adult with keys on duty in the building. Forty-eight boys escaped from the flaming dormitory by kicking their way through heavy metal window screens.

Ex-Gridder On Probation

ATLANTA — A former University of Georgia football star, Porter O. Payne, is on two years probation for evading federal income taxes.

The Atlanta insurance man was fined $500 and placed on probation by U. S. District Judge Boyd Sloan. Payne pleaded no contest to charges of failing to report income totaling almost $24,000 in 1954 and 1955.

Payne was an All-Southeastern Conference guard with Georgia and was captain of the 1949 Bulldogs.

An Article Of Florida's Faith

Urban Renewal Is Our Hope

FOR SEVERAL weeks The Herald has been bringing to its readers the appalling story of slums and blighted areas in Miami and other Florida cities.

We call this "Florida's Shame" and that it is.

Urban blight is with us as surely as the sun shines. Here and elsewhere, thousands of people are crowded into hovels that demean them as human beings and disfigure their communities.

Slums breed disease, crime and ignorance.

They are costly in terms of policing, fire fighting and prevention, social welfare, education and decaying tax resources.

Sixty-seven per cent of Florida today is urban, but some of its urbanity is frayed and fading. Here are the slums.

This is a government program, oriented toward private enterprise, that permits cities or their agencies to acquire blighted areas, resettle their occupants, and make the land available for redevelopment.

Hundreds of cities are participating through a federal aid program. However, Florida is enjoined from taking part because of prevailing statutes and unfavorable court decision.

When the Legislature meets next week the Florida League of Municipalities will ask the law-givers to adopt a joint resolution calling for a Constitutional amendment on "Clearance or Rehabilitation of Slum or Blighted Areas."

The text of the suggested amendment accompanies this editorial. Though couched in the legalisms of statutory language, its meaning is clear. It can help to rid Florida of the shame of urban blight.

The Herald strongly urges the adoption of this amendment or a similar amendment and its subsequent approval by the voters.

Of course, slum owners will oppose it with all the vigor and obstinacy they have demonstrated over the years.

But if Florida has a civic conscience and a purpose to grow in beauty and in health, it cannot let selfish argument prevail. Urban Renewal should be an article of hope and faith in Florida's future.

The Legislature may provide by law that any municipality, or any other public corporate body now or hereafter established, may undertake and carry out projects for the clearance and redevelopment or rehabilitation of slum or blighted areas, including the acquisition of property, which may include all property in an area which area is predominantly slum or blighted, the rehabilitation or clearance of such property and its preparation for re-use, and the sale or other disposition of any property acquired, to public bodies for public uses, or to others for residential, commercial, industrial or other uses. Any such activities shall constitute governmental functions undertaken for public purposes, and the powers of taxation and eminent domain may be exercised, public funds expended, and public credit extended in furtherance thereof.

In A Position To Serve

FLORIDA'S Sen. George Smathers, as true a friend of the Latin American countries as there is in Congress, will soon be in a position to give point to his oft-expressed good will.

The Senate Commerce Committee will undertake a searching study of our declining world trade. Senator Smathers, as a ranking Democratic member, is expected to head the Latin American subcommittee.

In that spot Florida's junior senator will try to discover why U.S. trade with Latin America, our best customer after Europe, is plunging downward at a time when our neighbors are most hungry for American goods.

Nearly every country to the south is embarked on some kind of program to raise living standards. To South and Central Americans, as to North Americans, a better life is visualized in terms of American automobiles, refrigerators, washing machines and goods of all kinds.

YET in the first eight months of 1958 these countries cut their U.S. purchases by 10 per cent. It was an alarming drop. And it is continuing.

The reasons are not hard to find. Most of our neighbors are plagued with inflation and unemployment. They lack the purchasing power to satisfy the needs of the people.

The stake of the United States is more than economic. Never in history have there been so many democratic regimes in office in Latin America. In Mexico, Chile, Venezuela, Colombia, Argentina and Brazil there are leaders who place public welfare ahead of personal power. But some of them are sore beset. Political signs are favorable for freedom if only the economic roadblocks can be hurdled. American aid is needed for that.

Senator Smathers understands this well. His knowledge of Latin American people and needs is intimate and broad. That is why his assignment to head the Commerce subcommittee would be a happy one. He would be able to serve in practice the closer hemispheric relations he so often preaches.

As We LOOK To Them

NATIONWIDE interest in Florida is getting somewhat like perpetual motion. You might call it self-winding.

Makers of books, movies, magazines, radio and television shows have sensed people's curiosity about our state. So they are giving Florida a big play. This, in turn, should whet the interest of persons who otherwise might not have given the subject much thought.

The latest instance is the April 14 edition of Look magazine. Its cover and 22 inside pages are filled with words and pictures about Florida.

The main article, by Fletcher Knebel, glitters with success stories. In hand-carved language, Mr. Knebel tells of Florida's growth at the rate of 200,000 a year, its industry, military bases, real estate developments, tax structure, recreational attractions, problems of taxation and integration.

Our favorite quote in the spread is the remark of an Ocala banker: "The best way to make money on the land is to grow Yankees on it."

To put it another way, the more people know about Florida, the more eager they'll be to live here.

Learning By Doing

NEARLY 1,000 Miami young people couldn't do what they wanted to do this school year — join a Junior Achievement "company." The main reason is simple enough: there just aren't enough of these little model businesses to go around.

Next year, perhaps, or soon after, there will be more. Junior Achievement is finding firm roots in Miami. It's an organization that brings high school youth together in units of 15 or so to establish and operate miniature business firms.

J. A. companies are set up just like any senior business, with management, manufacturing and sales departments. Stock is sold at 50 cents a share, wages are paid, dividends (if any—usually, there are) distributed, and at the end of the school year the firms are liquidated. In most instances they manufacture jewelry, toys or small household articles.

Junior Achievement is an educational program in business enterprise that complements public schooling. In the United States nearly 60,000 youngsters participate each year in 3,600 companies they operate through the sponsorship and counseling of senior businesses. Miami has 19 J.A. companies, 15 counseling firms, 350 teen-age "businessmen" (and women), and 70 advisers. It would like to have more, though first of all it must establish a broad base of support.

We trust that the current appeal of Junior Achievement hereabouts to thoughtful businessmen will not fall on deaf ears.

Not A Curtain, But A Rouser

A MUDDLED horse racing picture could be brought into a bit sharper focus today at Gulfstream Park. It is the picture of this year's crop of three-year-olds, the Derby group pointing to the prestige-laden big ones in Kentucky, Maryland and New York which Florida winners have won before.

Two of the year's tops, each of which has beaten the other, go in the $100,000 Florida Derby that is having its eighth running at the trim race course in Hallandale.

It is a tribute to Jimmy Donn, Horace Wade and their visionary associates that this race in April, when our season is supposed to be on the wane, has caught on so quickly.

The big pair today will be James D. Norris' Easy Spur, which will supply Florida rooting interest, and Bayard Sharp's handsome Troilus, winner of the Flamingo at Hialeah. Which will it be? Or could Brookmeade's Sword Dancer come through?

This isn't the curtain for Florida's racing season. The Gulfstream meeting continues through April 22. But this is the big one at Gulfstream and a big springboard toward three-year-old supremacy. And it is under the Florida sun.

Editorial Background – Something New On Highways

A Thin White Strip To Save Your Life

By JEANNE BELLAMY
Herald Editorial Writer

Bellamy

Motorists like them, especially at night, in rain or fog. By keeping an eye on the white edge of the pavement to the right a driver can avoid twin dangers: (1) running off the road, and (2) a head-on collision due to hugging the center line.

"It's excellent, particularly at night," said J. I. Jackson of the Dade County Citizens Safety Council.

Mr. Jackson concedes it's also expensive. That is confirmed by the State Road Department.

"THE COST of the road-edging program is estimated at about $120 per mile," according to Charles W. Chalker of the SRD.

He related that work started last July on "painting a continuous four-inch strip of white paint along both outside edges of about 3,000 miles of blacktop highways. The paint is reflectorized to show up better in the light of a vehicle's headlights.

"Painting of the highway edges was done only on 24-foot highways. This is considered a long range program and if it proves as satisfactory from a safety viewpoint as engineers hope, it is likely that highways of other widths will be white-lined along the edges."

"We do not, at this time, have any statistics showing that this painting of the road edges has cut down the number of accidents."

BUT THE State Department of Public Safety has figures showing that 209 persons were killed last year in accidents due to running off the roadway in rural areas. That was a drop from 1957, when the death toll from this cause was 232.

Declines were recorded, too, in the number of accidents and injuries in this particular kind of traffic mishap. The 1957 totals were 7,173 accidents and 3,921 injuries. Last year, there were 6,907 such accidents and 3,601 injuries.

SIMILAR marking of the outside edges of pavements has been tried elsewhere, especially in the West.

In Mexico, whitewashed stones are placed along road edges, according to Loyal Compton of the American Automobile Association. He traced the origin of the familiar center line on modern highways to an incident which occurred more than 400 years ago on the old cobblestone road between Mexico City and Cuernavaca.

Two oxcarts collided there. A Spanish soldier settled the dispute over which driver was at fault by pacing off the distance from the collision spot to the sides of the pavement. One oxcart had taken more than its half of the road.

MAYBE 400 years from now, motorists will recall that Florida and a few other states pioneered in striping the outer edges of roads.

Meantime, statistics for the highways with the new markings should quickly show whether the addition is worth its cost.

Clear Court Jurisdictions

Editor The Herald: Your editorial, "You Can Be Tried Twice," was excellently done and points up what should be to Americans a shocking situation, even though the vast majority of us do not anticipate putting ourselves in a position where we might be tried even once for anything.

As a layman, the Bartkus case strikes me as being one where a man was tried for the same crime by two separate governments. Technically he was not put in jeopardy twice by the federal court.

It seems to me the answer to this is to make it clear just which agency has trial authority in a given case. Where a suspect is tried in a case involving a federal court, should not this take precedence over a state court?

The issue is not so much one stemming from civil rights as from the old bugaboo of state rights. The U.S. has the most closely integrated federation of political entities ever devised. The trick is to maintain a balance between a too-strong federal authority and a too-presumptuous state one.

Federal law enforcement has reduced many kinds of crime because it eliminates the haven of safety created by crossing state lines. In general, I think a federal trial for a clearly defined crime against the U.S. government should be sufficient.

In Bartkus' case, maybe he should have still a third, or rubber, trial. Best two out of three sort of thing.

Metro Obstructed By Commissioners

Editor The Herald: Allow me to express extreme concern that a person of Harry Toulmin's training, proven experience and value to Dade County should find it necessary to resign because of our County Commissioners' obstruction to administrative improvements begun with such promise and out of such need after Metro became a reality.

As I worked for the Charter it was my clear understanding that the County Commissioners held a policy-making function and not an administrative one.

This latter direction they have taken will not only negate progress already made, but will absolutely prevent future employment of well-qualified people.

Three times, voters have expressed themselves on Metropolitan government. It is hard to understand how our elected representatives can so misinterpret this mandate.

Showing Path For Legislature

Editor The Herald: Please accept our sincere appreciation for John D. Pennekamp's recent column, "Terms Intangible Tax Destructive." We feel that this editorial is an extremely valuable and lucid presentation of most of the arguments which had been advanced for restoration of the old intangible rates.

As long as our state's great newspapers will fairly present both sides of any given issue, we can be sure that our state Legislature will sooner or later come up with the proper solution.

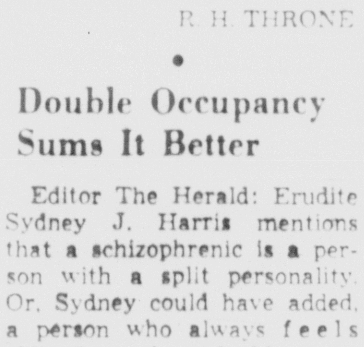
Anyway, Harry Talked Straight

Editor The Herald: Your reader, Ira Baer, is outspoken in his dislike for the outspoken Harry S. Truman.

Personally, I like a man to be outspoken, even when I differ with him. And at least one can always understand what Truman says.



I KNOW WHAT YOU MEAN, HARRY!

It is considered sacrilege today to utter any criticism aimed at the Presidency, so I'll just whisper: I wish this President were more outspoken and that I could understand what he says.

Launches Campaign To Save Barracuda

By JOHN PENNEKAMP

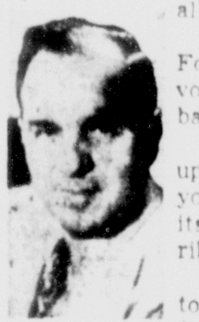
THIS JARRED ME when I heard it: An effort is to be made to save the barracuda.

The tiger of the sea has so bad a reputation that it just never occurred to me that anybody would give him even temperate concern.

But, why not?

As Capt. E. John Long of the International Oceanographic Foundation points out:

"Anytime you disturb the balance of nature you're heading for trouble."



Pennekamp

To which Herb Alley, the Tavernier sportsman and conservationist adds:

"Barracuda certainly are getting scarcer and smaller."

He is heading up the save the barracuda movement.

He'd like the Legislature to declare the barracuda a game fish and to launch a movement to induce sports fishermen who catch them and don't want them, to return them to the sea.

DESTRUCTION of barracuda by fishermen has almost approached a hate campaign.

He's got bad, irregularly inclined teeth, which he uses with energetic snappings of his head until he dies. On the deck of a boat he's a menace.

His value as an eating fish is debated; some contend his flesh is excellent, others that it often is poisonous.

He doesn't smell good, especially when he's taken on some size and weight. Then his odor begins to fill the atmosphere almost as soon as he is taken out of the water.

His nasty disposition of itself contributes to his demise. Few are hardy enough to take him aboard a boat without first gaffing him, thus inflicting a fatal wound.

And, he dislikes seeing you take any other fish aboard about as much as himself. So, he has ruined many a fisherman's hooked prize by biting it off just short of the hook before it could be landed.

★ ★ ★

TIME WAS, as Alley points out, when ocean fishermen, and those fishing near deep piling, could almost certainly rely on some fun with a barracuda if all else failed.

Any boat trolling around Fowey Rock lighthouse, a favorite foraging area for the barracuda, could pick one up.

If you looked down from the upper reaches of the lighthouse you could see them lying at its base, fanned out like the ribs of an umbrella.

No more, however. They seem to have been pretty thoroughly fished out, and those that are occasionally caught fail to approach the 50 and 60 pounders of a few years ago.

★ ★ ★

ALLEY, who has made some study of the barracuda's habits, believes that as they grow large they also choose a "home" area which they dominate and defend against challengers.

This, too, he believes has something to do with their breeding habits.

Barracuda is a triple threat fighter, he continues.

"Its strike frequently causes the fisherman to think he is snagged on a log or on the bottom.

"Then follow runs, jumps and dives. By the time you've brought him in you have had your hands full. We should make sure he survives for the thrills and fun he provides."

That involves the business of unhooking him and returning him to the water.

Only fisherman I ever knew who did that smoothly and evenly was Jack DeWeese, when he was superintendent of Fort Jefferson in the Dry Tortugas. Jack, now at Fort Caroline near Jacksonville, could hold a barracuda up by the leader wire while he slid his other hand up its silvery belly to grasp it at the gills.

Then he'd remove the hook and toss the fish back. I watched him do it many times, but I was never tempted to try to do it myself.

Four Years For 'Lost Cause'

The Hero In Gray With Heart Of Gold

Editor The Herald: Your editorial on the last Confederate veteran is a pulse-quickening piece of writing.

Only Henry W. Grady, the South's greatest editor and its most eloquent orator, has written more movingly of "the hero in gray with a heart of gold" who fought four cruel years for the "Lost Cause."

Seventy-three years ago, Grady said:

". . . Will you bear with me while I tell you of another army that sought its home at the close of the late war — an army that marched home in defeat and not in victory — in pathos and not in splendor, but in glory that equaled yours, and to hearts as loving as ever welcomed heroes home.

"LET ME picture to you the footsore Confederate soldier, as buttoning up in his faded gray jacket the parole which was to bear testimony to his children of his fidelity and faith, he turned his face southward from Appomatox in April, 1865.

"Think of him as ragged, half-starved, heavy-hearted, enfeebled by want and wounds, having fought to exhaustion . . .

"What does he find — let me ask you who went to your homes eager to find, in the welcome you had justly earned, full payment for four years' sacrifice — what does he find when, having followed the battle-stained cross against overwhelming odds, dreading death not half so much as surrender, he reaches the home he left so prosperous and beautiful?

"HE FINDS his house in ruins, his farm devastated, his slaves free, his stock killed, his barns empty, his trade destroyed, his money worthless, his social system, feudal in its magnificence, swept away; his people without law or legal status; his comrades slain, and the burdens of others heavy on his shoulders.

"Crushed by defeat, his very traditions are gone . . .

"What does he do — this hero in gray with a heart of gold? Surely God, who had stripped him of his prosperity, inspired him in his adversity. As ruin was never before so overwhelming, never was restoration swifter.

★ ★ ★

"THE SOLDIER stepped from the trenches into the furrow; horses that had charged Federal guns marched before the plow, and fields that ran red with human blood in April were green with the harvest in June; women reared in luxury cut up their dresses and made breeches for their husbands, and, with a patience and heroism that fit women always as a garment, gave their hands to work. There was little bitterness in all this."

Food Prices Go Up But Who Gets Bite?

By DON OBERDORFER
Of Our Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Fewer and fewer of the dollars you pay for food are going to the nation's farmers. More and more of them are going to wholesalers, truckers, supermarket clerks and owners — in short, middlemen.

It has just been pointed out anew by the Agriculture Department in a report to the congressmen who shovel out the money to operate the federal farm programs.

The retail cost of an average city family's yearly "market basket" of food was $34 higher in the last quarter of last year than it was during the same period a year before.

The farmer actually received $2 less for the food items which went into the basket. The middlemen pocketed $36 more for their work with the food after it left the farmer's hands, however.

Who pocketed this money which contributed to rising costs of this typical "market basket"?

The Agriculture Department hasn't done any special study of the latest reports, but studies of increasing middlemen's costs in the last 12 years show that labor costs in handling are the biggest culprits.

These labor costs almost doubled between 1947 and 1957. They now make up nearly half of the middleman's "marketing bill."

Other costs which increased were rail and truck transportation and such miscellaneous factors as packaging, and taxes.

Are Russians Happy?

Khrushchev Has a Reason For Demanding a Summit

By HARRISON E. SALISBURY
The New York Times News Service

NEW YORK—What lies behind Nikita S. Khrushchev's insistence on a meeting at the summit? Why has he maneuvered so stubbornly for Big Four talks?

These questions, in the opinion of specialists on Soviet affairs, touch upon a widely neglected aspect of the current crisis over Berlin.

It has been generally assumed that the key to the urgency behind Berlin lay in the basic weakness of the Soviet situation in East Germany and in fear of the ultimate aggressive policies of a nuclear-armed West Germany.

Specialists in Soviet affairs do not discount these German factors. However, they believe that forces of quite a different nature are the prime movers in Soviet policy at this time.

They point out that Khrushchev has returned again and again to the idea of a meeting of the chiefs of state in one crisis after another.

They suggest that Khrushchev is under compulsions to meet at the summit with his counterparts of the West and that these compulsions arise outside of the German problem.

* * *

IN FACT SOME of the specialists believe that Khrushchev may have deliberately intensified the crisis over Germany because it seemed to him that only in this way could he bring about a meeting at the summit.

When a person trained in the Marxist dialectic seeks to explore the motivation which lies behind a nation's foreign policy he first examines the necessities of that country's domestic situation.

Persons familiar with the Soviet scene suggest that this is an excellent rule to apply to the question of why Khrushchev so urgently wants to meet at the summit.

The place to find the answer, they suggest, is in Moscow, in Russia itself, within the Kremlin and within the framework of inter-Communist relations.

Soviet domestic policy since Stalin's death in 1953 has been dominated by a single theme living standards, more to eat, better homes, cheaper clothing.

* * *

THE GOVERNMENT — first that headed by former Premier Georgi M. Malenkov, then that headed by former Premier Nikolai A. Bulganin and now that headed by Khrushchev —has promised the Soviet people that at long last they will reap the rewards of the hardship and deprivation of the first 40 years of Bolshevik rule.

Life has been made easier. But so far this has only been a sample.

The slogan of the present seven-year plan is to overtake and exceed American standards in many categories. The hope has been held out to the Soviet people that soon—very soon—they will reach a standard of living comparable with that of the West.

These promises cannot be fulfilled unless there is a tapering off in the present enormous costs of the arms race.

This is apparent to the Soviet people. Khrushchev, himself, has clearly hinted at this publicly.

In private Soviet leaders say with complete frankness that there must be relaxation—or the goals for better living can not be met.

The specific cost of the arms race in terms of the Soviet budget can only be estimated in general terms. However, rule-of-thumb calculations, based on the bigger U.S. industrial plant, higher U.S. labor efficiency, more widespread advanced technology, make it clear that the present-day electronic weapons armory takes a far greater bite—proportionately—out of the Soviet gross national product than it does out of the U.S. gross national product.

Khrushchev is caught in an economic dilemma. At the present pace of the arms race the Soviet Union must continue to devote a very high proportion of its industrial output to advanced military technology.

But the longer this continues the greater become the pressures from the population—particularly the advanced technicians responsible for the new arms techniques—for better living conditions.

* * *

THE CONSEQUENCES of failure of Khrushchev's drive to the summit, thus, would have repercussions far beyond the domestic Soviet sphere.

Of this Khrushchev is undoubtedly well aware. He is also presumably familiar with one of the oldest axioms of Soviet politics—when policy is going to change there is first a change of personnel.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Congressman's Zeal Sent Plane Winging Over Spain

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — The Air Force hastily canceled a flight of top brass to Spain the other day after Oregon's crusading Congressman Charlie Porter, who went along as a reserve officer, threatened to confront American Ambassador John Davis Lodge and demand his resignation.

PORTER

As a result, the planeload of generals and colonels stopped at Lodon, Paris, Wiesbaden, Rome and Naples—but adroitly skipped Madrid.

Congressmen Porter and T. A. Thompson of Louisiana, both Air Force reservists, accompanied the military delegation which was commanded by Maj. Gen. R. A. Grussendorf.

Their purpose was to compare notes with European military leaders on military reserve programs.

An outspoken foe of dictators, Porter served notice that he would take advantage of their Madrid stopover to lambaste Ambassador Lodge for his warm support of Dictator Franco.

Porter pointed out that Lodge had called for a change from the polite handshake to the warm embrace in our dealings with Franco.

This was just the reverse of what was happening in Washington where the administration had called for a cool attitude toward dictators.

Therefore, Porter said he intended to tell Ambassador John Lodge to his face that he ought to quit pampering dictators and resign.

But the outspoken congressman never got a chance to confront Lodge.

The forewarned Air Force quietly crossed Madrid off the itinerary. General Grussendorf showed Porter a letter from the U.S. air attache in Madrid, explaining there was no reason to stop there since Spain has only 25 reserve air officers.

IT ISN'T OFTEN that American labor leaders champion the purchase of foreign manufactured products against those made in America.

However, that is what two powerful labor unions have done in the case of competition between General Electric and Westinghouse on one side against the C. A. Parsons Co., Ltd. of England, in the purchase of a half-million kilowatt turbo generator to be installed by the Tennessee Valley Authority near Tuscumbia, Ala.

Westinghouse and General Electric bid high —around $19,000,000. Parsons bid low—$12,000,000.

When TVA awarded the bid to the British company, Westinghouse and General Electric sought out labor to get its support.

Labor frequently has done the inside lobbying on behalf of big business where foreign orders are concerned. At first, labor was inclined to go along with the two American manufacturers. But, taking a closer look at the proposition, labor reversed itself.

Jim Carey's International Union of Electrical Workers and his rivals, United Electrical, found that even if American labor donated all their services free, the British plant would still undercut General Electric and Westinghouse.

"We find, using company figures," said Albert Fitzgerald of U.E. "that the actual cost of the companies on this job on which they bid $19,500,000 was $5,300,000 which would yield a profit of more than 365 per cent.

"Over the past 10 years," continued Fitzgerald, "the Bureau of Labor Statistics price index shows that the price of steam turbine generators has increased 103.5 per cent."

TVA authorities pointed out that neither of the two American firms was willing even to meet the terms of the TVA contract—they had demanded escalator clauses for higher costs in case labor and materials increased in price.

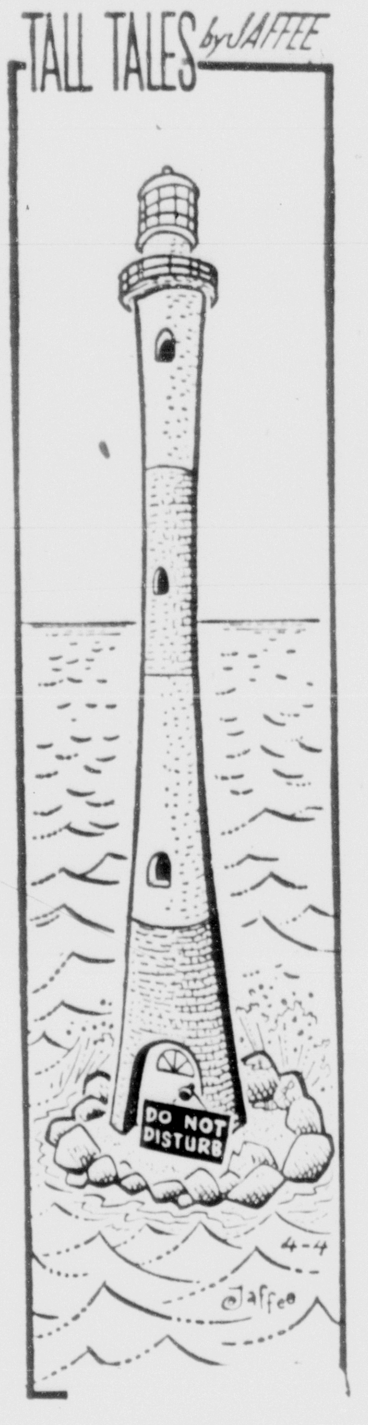
TVA officials also point out that there's a virtual U.S. monopoly in the manufacture of big generators — that Westinghouse, General Electric, and Allis Chalmers put their heads together, don't bid against themselves.

So unless Eisenhower overrules the TVA, the contract will go to the British.

Note—Theodore Quinn, ex-vice president of General Electric, testified before Senator Kefauver's anti-monopoly committee recently that the big electric corporations were top-heavy with inefficiency and could not compete with foreign products because of this, plus inflated price-fixing between themselves.

Joe Kennedy, father of the handsome senator from Massachusetts, is planning to run his other boy, Bobby, for governor of Massachusetts. Joe burnt up the wires from Palm Beach the other day when Bobby pulled that booboo about having offers from the underworld to call off Senate dogs in return for presidential support for his brother . . . Bobby Choate, the Boston publisher who pulled wires with his cabinet friends for that TV channel in Boston, is sweating more than Joe Kennedy ever did. It looks as if the Federal Communications Commission will take the channel away from him.



Praying for Plants, Well-Author Didn't Prove Point

A Cracker Viewpoint
By Nixon Smiley

I HAVE RECEIVED for review a copy of a new book entitled "The Power of Prayer on Plants" by the Rev. Frank Loehr (Doubleday, New York, $3.50.)

Dr. Loehr's book purportedly proves scientifically that prayer can stimulate plant growth.

Having read many thousands of scientific papers seeking information on plants and their growth, I frankly don't see that Dr. Loehr has proved anything.

Although I am not a scientist, and have never conducted an experiment, I am fairly well acquainted with what is known as the scientific method.

To me the photographs in Dr. Loehr's book are unconvincing, and the discussion of how the experiments were conducted are what scientists would call "pseudo-scientific."

* * *

ONE GETS TWO THOUGHTS from Dr. Leohr's book. One is that plants may receive energy from God through the prayer. The second is that energy might be radiated from the prayer through the workings of the personality.

Dr. Loehr quotes Aldous Huxley and Dr. J. Robert Oppenheimer to offer "proof" of the possibility of the second theory.

(The 19th century theory of "animal magnetism" explained this more simply and just as unconvincingly.)

No true scientist would accept quotations from "important people" as proof of anything.

Moreover, every researcher knows that one can "prove" many things through experiment. Even experienced researchers often fall into traps, which they sometimes set for themselves by using faulty methods, and come up with results that later prove to be false.

A researcher, to be worth his salt, must have a severely independent, disciplined mind, although a highly imaginative one.

He must be able to work without being pressed to get a particular result.

* * *

FRANKLY, HIS BOOK doesn't indicate that the Rev. Mr. Loehr is qualified to judge the result of an experiment. For one thing he doesn't have the training.

And secondly he doesn't possess the disinterested attitude one must have in order to do serious research.

Had Dr. Loehr been a detached science worker he might well have mentioned the research into the power of prayer by Sir Francis Galton (1822-1911).

Sir Francis, English anthropologist and statistician, studied the power of prayer on the lives of English kings, who, he found to be the most prayed-over personages in the world.

In comparing the life spans of English kings with physicians, lawyers and country gentlemen, Sir Francis came up with the following facts:

That, on an average, English kings lived longer than physicians, had about the same life span as lawyers, but lived shorter lives than country gentlemen.

Which, although it proves no more than Dr. Loehr's book does, makes more interesting reading.

* * *

DR. LOEHR MAY BE a very sincere person. I would be the last to call him a phony. But I would call him a severely misguided person.

His book sets Christianity back to the Middle Ages.

I have no intention of disagreeing with Dr. Loehr or anybody else in their contention that the growth of plants might be affected by prayer. But I do contend that Dr. Loehr hasn't proved it.

What he has done to science shouldn't happen to a dog.

It's books like this, which appear to be scientific, that confuse the public's understanding of the scientific method—that disciplined, detached approach to the study of a problem which is in itself one of the greatest discoveries man ever made.

NATO Ministers Know Need of Speed

(Last of a Series)

By CHARLES CORDDRY

WASHINGTON —(UPI)— A faster build-up of supersonic aircraft and missile forces is an urgent aim of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization as it completes its first decade.

The foreign ministers of the alliance are meeting here against the grave backdrop of crisis in Berlin and alarm in the U.S. Congress over Soviet missile progress. The meeting marks the anniversary of the signing of the NATO treaty on April 4, 1949.

At hand, as the statesmen take stock of NATO's strength, is a new report from a U.S. presidential advisory group urging immediate addition of $400,000,000 to American military aid funds. It would go mostly for advanced jet aircraft and missiles for NATO.

Moves are also afoot to stimulate production on the European continent of a variety of U.S. missiles from air defense to bombardment types.

The need for supersonic planes is a constant theme, European pilots and commanders argue that they could be the first to tangle with Russia's superior numbers of planes in a war. They say they should have more aircraft comparable to those of the Americans operating beside them.

Similar urgent problems for NATO leaders are the quick filling of remaining ground force needs in Central Europe, more rapid deployment of 1,500-mile range ballistic missiles and early completion of radar warning and communications networks.

* * *

THE SOVIET forces arrayed opposite NATO's 4,000-mile front from Norway to Turkey are "terrifyingly efficient and equipped for nuclear war," in the words of a top British official. All that holds the Russians down is the threat of air-atomic reprisal.

Russia and her European satellites have an estimated six million men under arms, close to four million of them ground forces. The bulk apparently is in Western Russia and the satellites.

The 15 NATO powers can count as many or more men under arms. But the comparison is not too valid.

Allowance must be made for the world-wide commitments and deployments of America and Britain. Together they account for more than half of NATO's total military manpower. They have about 425,000 to 450,000 men in Europe, the Middle East, Mediterranean and North Africa.

The rest of their forces, totaling more than 2,700,000, are conserved at home or deployed in other areas around the globe.

* * *

AVAILABLE estimates indicate that Gen. Lauris Norstad, Supreme Allied Commander in Europe, has assigned to him about 50 divisions, 5,500 to 6,000 aircraft, more than 160 air bases and, in the event of war, the Navy's big Sixth Fleet in the Mediterranean.

The Soviets, NATO estimates, have 175 divisions, of which 22 are in East Germany and 60 more in other puppet countries and in western Russia.

The satellites have 65 divisions of varying degrees of reliability. Russia has 18,000 to 20,000 military aircraft, largely jets, including 1,500 medium range bombers comparable to the American B-47, but hardly more than 100 long-range Bisons which they once were expected to stamp out in huge numbers.

Many of their 450 submarines are in the White, Baltic and Black Seas. It would be NATO's task to try to keep as many as possible from breaking into the Atlantic where they could attack convoys and bombard America.

* * *

IN THE MISSILE field, Russia officially is credited with having operational weapons with ranges of 700 to 800 miles. Reporters have heard those estimates from intelligence officers in several NATO European headquarters and they have been publicly stated here.

To be effective, such missiles would have to be deployed to the satellites. Inquiry in American, British and NATO quarters on the continent reveals no evidence that such has been done.

From the satellites, Russian missiles could reach any European target except some in Spain.

The estimates, if accurate, make the American Thor missile now based in England the longest range operational ballistic missile — more than 1,500 miles.

Washington estimates that the U.S. and Russia will have intercontinental ballistic missiles operational at about the same time. Congressional critics dispute that, claiming Russia is ahead. So does Russia.

* * *

ON THE WESTERN side, American land, air and sea forces have a variety of missiles in Europe. They include the 200-mile range Redstone, the 500-mile Matador pilotless bomber, the 75-mile Corporal, the 15-mile Honest John, and Nike anti-aircraft missiles. The sixth fleet can employ Sparrow air-to-air rockets, Regulus pilotless bombers and Terrier anti-aircraft missiles.

Most European countries are receiving, under U.S. military aid or buying, one or more of these missile types and some are planning their own production.

But NATO is not a military theater unto itself. It is part of a global defense system, a system that has brought about the "strategic encirclement" of the Soviet Union so that, as NATO officers put it, there is "nowhere that the Soviets can feel secure around their whole periphery."

Besides the air-atomic deterrent, NATO now has a shield force running from the top of Norway, where there is a common border with Russia to the east frontier of Turkey, also a common border with Russia.

In the crucial Central European sector are now deployed approximately 22 of 30 divisions Norstad considers the minimum he needs. When West Germany completes its 12 divisions and France is able to return two from Algeria, Norstad will have 30 on the central front.

The central land forces are backed up by heavy contingents of U.S. Air Force, Royal Air Force and Royal Canadian Air Force jets. The U.S. alone has 525 jet fighter planes in Europe that can carry atomic weapons.

Bonn Miners Reach Goal

The New York Times Service

BONN — West Germany's 600,000 coal miners will go on a five-day, 40-hour week on May 1. They will be the first German working-men to achieve the classic goal of organized labor.

The new schedule will reduce the miners' work week from 45 to 40 hours. Hourly wage rates will be unchanged, but over a three-year period the miners take-home pay will rise to equal the present total for a 45-hour week.

At the outset the introduction of a five-day week will cost the coal mining industry an estimated one mark (24 cents) a ton of coal. Production costs are about 70 marks or $16 a ton.

Employers and union spokesmen predicted the shorter work week would substantially ease West Germany's coal crisis. Pithead stockpiles, now 15,000,000 tons, have been accumulating since February, 1958.

Adlai Says Honesty's Not Enough

The New York Times Service

CHICAGO — Honesty is not enough in politics, Adlai E. Stevenson said here.

"To accomplish anything you have to have a lot more than virtue, goodwill and purpose," he said. "You have to know how to lead, organize and do."

In a speech at a $10-a-plate Sherman Hotel dinner to back Mayor Richard J. Daley for reelection, the former Illinois governor said the mayor's "skillful promotion of the partnership between Chicagoans and their government is one of the most encouraging spectacles to be seen in municipal government in America in many a day."

Mayor Daley, who is running for a second term, was state director of revenue when Stevenson was governor (1949-53).

Hailing the mayor as a man who succeeded because he understood politics, Stevenson, the Democratic candidate for president in 1952 and 1956, said, "The notion that active leadership in party organization somehow disqualifies a citizen from public office is not only wrong but dangerous. The result would be to dishearten the best influences in party activity when what we need is not less but more active participation by able, honest men in both parties."

Camarilla Club Greets Spring At Annual Dance

By BETSY BUFFINGTON
Herald Staff Writer

Camarillas gathered by the dozens Friday night for their annual Spring dance at the Riviera Country Club.

Welcoming some 250 revelers at the door were president Dotty Prevatt and husband Preston. Her dress was a filmy print silk organza in greens, blues and violets.

Others in the receiving line were vice president Shirley Rogers and husband Walter, secretary Annie Hahr McKay and her Hobie and Eleda and Bob Weed — she's treasurer.

Whirling about the dance floor were the Jim Billingses. Annette was in a lovely cafe-au-lait colored silk organza. They were with Alice Jean and Dale Anderson and Betty Ann and Ed Parker.

'Where's the Baby?'

"Where's the baby?" was the question most asked at a coffee Frances (Mrs. Herman) Boughton and her mother, Mrs. Alfred Benson, gave for the Boughtons' daughter, Sherry, Mrs. Duane W. Smith, at Frances' home on La Gorce Island.

Sherry and her seven-months-old Cappy are here for a ten-day visit from East Bloomfield, N.Y. so it was Cappy the coffee guests were inquiring about. Too bad, they sent the baby to Mrs. Benson's home for the day — he's not coffee-minded.

Being a new mama is becoming to Sherry—she looked so well in her becoming red and white printed cotton. Frances was wearing a cotton print and Mrs. Benson was in navy.

Greeting guests at the door was Mrs Marion Pafford in becoming pink linen. More aides and abettors were Mrs. Simon Deutsch, Mrs. Norman Kevers and daughter, Mrs. Harold Pelton; Mrs. DeWitt King, Mrs. Jack King, Mrs. Wiley Scott, and two young beauties, Pat Philpitt and Mrs. Fred Matthews.

Bright umbrellas shaded tables and chairs in the garden where punch was served and the coffee table was more than well supplied with all sorts of delicacies including creamed chicken on spoon bread.

And do you know that one Yankee girl didn't know what spoon bread was?? She shall be nameless but she has mighty pretty big violet eyes!

Under one of the umbrellas were Mary (Mrs. F. F.) Farver, Jean (Mrs. Kenneth) Paul and her sister-in-law Mrs. Drummond Paul, Mrs. Jack Brantley, Mrs. C. A. Gould, Mrs. David Lehman.

* * *

ELEGANT BLACK LACE is Fan Obrecht's choice for a Coconut Grove Playhouse first night. For weeks past she and husband George have had a houseful of children and grandchildren visiting from Baltimore: nine-year-old George with his parents, the P. Fred Obrechts, and Patty Voneif, daughter of Doris Obrecht (Mrs. Lloyd) Voneif. On April 27, Fan and George leave for Baltimore to spend the summer.

Give a Cheer for Harvard

A Miami contingent from fair Harvard whooped it up the other night at a party hosted by Arthur Feenan in the Columbus Hotel's Orange Bowl Room.

Young Arthur, a junior government major, is the son of Columbus manager Arthur and Mrs. Feenan. His date for dinner and dancing was Barbara Wertz of Miami Shores who's an electrical engineering major at MIT.

Vacationing with Arthur are fellow Harvardmen Al Nannini of Providence, R.I., and Harvey Henderson, Birmingham, Ala. Harvey and Arthur are SAE fraternity brothers. Al dated Jackie Doig while Harvey was with Carol Sue Jones, a Hood College student.

Some 15 others were there to cheer Harvard on.

Judge Blakeley Officiates

When Helen B. Hanshey of Mount Vernon, N.Y., and Ronald L. Stone, Seekonk, Mass., were married Easter Sunday, the bride's uncle Judge Norman N. Blakeley officiated and her aunt Florence was matron of honor.

They were married at the Blakeley home.

Also attending the bride was Mrs. Omar Blondin. Roy Hanshey, Mrs. Stone's son by a former marriage, was best man.

'A Star Should Have Glitter And Mystery:' Vivian Blaine

By BEVERLEY WILSON
Herald Staff Writer

Celebrity Parade

The "how messy can I look" school of young actresses burgeoning around Broadway and Hollywood has at least one violent nondisciple.

"You can't let yourself go. If you let one thing go, everything goes. A star has to surround herself with a little glitter and mystery. Otherwise she's cheating her public" says the singer, dancer, actress.

Curled up like a kitten in a big chair in the Carillon Hotel lobby, Miss Blaine epitomized a star's classic glamor.

She was dressed by 10 in the morning in snug-fitting white elasticized pants, knit blouse, decorated straw sandals, mascara and eye shadow. She's been a fetching redhead "this week." Other weeks, she chooses to be blonde.

Down to Palm Beach for a vacation after being hospitalized in New York with a bout of penumonia, she found the austere resort "terribly quiet" and escaped to Miami Beach after a couple of days. Here she's embarked happily on a formidable swing of nightclub visits.

She's friendly, peppery and very candid. New plans for marriage? (she's divorced from actor's agent Manny Frank.)

"Well, I certainly don't intend to go through life alone. But mother always said the watched pot never boils. I'll just have to wait and see," she says.

The Star of Broadway's Say, Darling and the earlier smash Guys and Dolls is busy readying new Broadway scripts.

"I've been a singer and dancer all my life, but it's the same old bit. Secretly, I yearn to be a dramatic actress" she says with a laugh. She's been bitten by the bug to the extent of playing a frowsy, pregnant wife of a drug addict in Hatful of Rain, both on Broadway and on the road.

The Newark-born star lives in a cozy New York apartment on Sutton Place. She collects clowns — stuffed and on paper. "And I've collected a few live clowns in my life too," she adds ruefully.

Let's Have a Picnic In the Backyard

By JEANNE VOLTZ
Herald Homemaking Editor

Daily Food Guide

The Season is on the wane. The pace slows, and there is more time to do things with the family—like a picnic in the backyard.

Plan a simple menu and even the cook and helpers will have fun. Main dish is Fat Rascals, a new name for frankfurter roll-ups grilled on long forks or green sticks and popped into buttered buns.

BACKYARD PICNIC
Fat Rascals
Grill Roasted Corn
Garden Salad Bowl
Assorted Relishes
Strawberries with Ice Cream
Buttered buns

The Fat Rascals can be made up in the morning and refrigerated until cooking time. The same goes for the foil packets of corn for roasting.

FAT RASCALS
Frankfurters
Prepared mustard
Cheddar cheese, cut in thin strips
Bacon slices
Buttered buns

Slit each frank lengthwise but not completely through. Spread slit with prepared mustard and stuff with a thin strip of cheese. Wrap with a strip of bacon, spiral fashion, and secure with a wood pick. When ready to serve, grill on toasting forks or green sticks over glowing coals until bacon is brown and crisp. Place in split, buttered and toasted buns.

GRILL ROASTED CORN
Softened butter or margarine
Finely chopped parsley
Paprika
Salt, Pepper
Fresh corn

Cream together butter, parsley, paprika, salt and pepper, using quantities depending on amount of corn to be cooked. Have corn shucked and free of silks. Spread butter mixture liberally on corn. Wrap ears separately in heavy duty aluminum foil and seal carefully.

When ready to cook place on grill over glowing coals. Roast until tender, turning now and then. Depending on how hot fire is and distance from heat, corn will take about 20 minutes.

SALAD HINTS

Remember that cauliflower flowerlets and sliced fresh uncooked mushrooms are delightful additions to tossed green salad.

Arithmetic Bumped GIs; Colonel Cleared

TOKYO — (UPI) — The Air Force said Friday enlisted men on emergency leave were bumped from a military plane to make room for a vacationing officer and his family because of errors in arithmetic and administration.

Lt. Col. Charles P. Platt was cleared by the Air Force of charges that he was responsible for actually bumping the men from the plane that took off for California March 26 with eight empty seats.

An Air Force spokesman said someone added six to 34 and got 48, making it appear there were seven too many passengers aboard the 41-seat transport.

The Air Force also said it was a serious "administrative error" that allowed the plane to take off from Tachikawa Air Base with the empty seats while the enlisted men were left behind.

The group included five enlisted men, all with high priorities. They were rushing home because of deaths or other crises in their families. A lieutenant and a civilian, who had no priority, also were in the group.

Officials said Platt, his wife and four children were traveling on the lowest priority-a space-available basis-and could not bump anyone under official regulations.

"There was room for everybody," the spokesman explained, because Platt and his family would have brought the total of passengers to 40.

But when one of the booking personnel added the names of the six Platts to the 34 already on the manifest, he came up with a total of 48, instead of 40. The seven men were bumped, the Platts were put aboard and the plane left with only 33 passengers.

The plane was recalled after 30 minutes in the air by Lt. Gen. Robert W. Burns, the top American commander in Japan, after he received a telephone call from Airman Coye Y. Bell, 27, of Fayetteville, Tenn., one of the enlisted men.

The general ordered the colonel to remain in Tokyo and put the enlisted men on the plane.

Platt, who formerly resided in Brooklyn, and now is commander of the Air Terminal Squadron at Tachikawa, denied he was responsible for the incident.

"I'm sorry that this happened," he said, "I do not feel I was responsible for it."

The Air Force said, "Lt. Col. Platt contributed to the confusion which caused the administrative error and led to the impression he had caused the 'bumping' of emergency leave passengers."

"The evidence does not support the allegation that Lt. Col. Platt took any action to 'bump' emergency leave passengers."

Airman Challenges Clearing of Colonel

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N.Y. — (UPI) — An airman who came home for the funeral of his three-year-old son Friday challenged an Air Force report clearing Lt. Col. Charles P. Platt of charges that he bumped airmen on emergency leave from a U.S.-bound plane in Japan.

"I don't see how he can be cleared," said Airman Robert J. Kindl.

"He (Platt) knew at the time that there were men going on that plane to go home on emergency leave," said Kindl. "If he knew there was an 'administrative error,' why didn't he put us on the flight instead of getting on the plane and going?"

Kindl said that he hoped the Air Force would give him a "compassionate transfer" so that he can stay in this country and be nearer his wife and their other son, Alan, two.

"My wife is so upset by the death of our boy that a doctor has recommended that I remain as close to the family as possible," he said. "If it can not be arranged, I will have to return to Korea for another three months."

One of the enlisted men said he missed attending the funeral of his mother because of the delay in Tokyo.

Another airman, Lewis Stramski, said in Harrah, Okla., that he arrived home Monday a few minutes after his sister, Mrs. Clara Pantlik, died of polio.

Insurance Revision Proposed

Larson Would Ban Interest Conflicts

State Insurance Commissioner J. Edwin Larson proposed a revision of Florida laws Friday, aimed at prohibiting conflicts of interest by state insurance employes, including the commissioner himself.

The proposals are an outgrowth of a series by The Herald in which it was disclosed that Larson had borrowed about $60,000 from companies he regulates, bought a new car with a loan from an insurance firm seeking to do business in Florida, and was the owner of stock in several insurance companies.

Larson afterwards admitted his actions "look suspicious," and urged state laws to ban what he had done.

Under proposals he admitted Friday neither the insurance commissioner nor any of his employes would be allowed to have a financial interest in any insurance company or agency.

It also would prohibit the commissioner or any employe from receiving any "fee, compensation, loan, gift or other thing of value," in addition to his regular pay, for any service rendered.

The section would not prevent an insurer from making a loan to the commissioner or a department employe through regular channels if the loan was adequately secured.

Nor would it prevent the insurance company from acquiring or holding such a loan or investment originally made by others.

Guilmartin Names Kelly Senior Aide

U. S. Attorney James Guilmartin Friday named Richard Kelly, 33, of Tampa as senior assistant U. S. attorney in Miami in another move in reorganizing his staff in the South Florida District.

E. Coleman Madsden recently was brought to Miami as Guilmartin's chief assistant for South Florida. Under direction of the U. S. attorney and his chief assistant are offices here, at Tampa and Jacksonville.

Guilmartin said the senior assistant at Jacksonville will be John Briggs, Robert Nunez III will fill the post at Tampa.

Kelly joined the staff in Tampa in 1956. He is a native of Zephyrhills and a 1952 graduate of the University of Florida.

Catholics To Seek U.S. School Aid

By GENE CURRIVAN
The New York Times Service

ATLANTIC CITY — The National Catholic Educational Association took a strong stand here Friday against federal control of education.

At the closing of its four-day convention this organization — the largest Catholic education group in the country — indicated it was ready to make a militant fight in Congress for federal funds and at the same time attempt to block any move that would wrest control from the local levels.

It also called for the federal government to bear in mind that American education historically is dualistic in nature and when new means of meeting the increased cost of public education are explored the welfare of private education must be protected.

The association also asked that when temporary federal aid becomes necessary to meet specific needs of education, the government bear in mind that the youths of the country are being educated in private as well as public schools.

It recommended that "federal aid be distributed equally within the limits of the federal Constitution so that it may serve the needs of all the youth of the country."

Hollywood Paraders Cheered by Crowds

By RICK TUTTLE
Herald Staff Writer

HOLLYWOOD — Over 40,000 spectators jammed the sidewalks Friday night as the three-hour Fiesta Tropicale parade boomed down Hollywood Blvd.

A record 35 floats rolled smoothly beneath the strings of colored lights, as 20 bands and drum and bugle corps set the pace past the reviewing stand on the boulevard.

The crowd applauded Fiesta Queen Carole Johnson, a 16-year-old blonde high school beauty "who never won anything," as she smiled and waved from her orange and white float and her eyes sparkled with excitement.

There was a 13-foot stiltman and seven-foot John Ropeter of the Hollywood Oriental Shrine Band, rocket floats, and balloons, popcorn and peanut salesmen, five-year-old baton twirlers and Cub Scouts, but mostly there were beautiful girls.

The bands and the floats came from Broward, Dade and Palm Beach Counties. It was the 17th annual parade.

Spectators who weren't lining the sidewalks, looked down from buildings.

One tiny baton twirler brought cheers from the crowd when she strutted away from the rest of her troop. She stopped 30 yards ahead, looked back, and giggled.

She didn't.

Ropeter has been parading with the Shrine Band for seven years. He weighs 300 pounds and leads the outfit with a four-foot sword. The units in front of him march rapidly.

There were 148 units in all — and all were splendid.

$5-Million Downtown Plan Urged

Downtown Miami will collapse into a blighted slum unless local government and business leaders come up with a master-plan for its development, City Engineer Arthur E. Darlow reported Friday.

Darlow, in a special report to City Manager Ira F. Willard, recommended a five million dollar program based mainly on mass transportation and highway improvements.

"Miami is one of America's most important cities, and it faces a crisis," Darlow said. Unless some coordinated program is adopted, the threatening "cancerous growth" could spread to surrounding areas.

The engineer said his 10-point program would solve many of the looming problems and estimated the project could be carried out for "five or six million dollars."

GREATER USE of mass transportation with fare variations in off-peak hours, and expanded park-ride express service.

EARLY COMPLETION of the proposed expressway program, the arterial street plan; replacement of obsolete bridges, initiation of a modern traffic system.

REMOVAL of the Florida East Coast Railway depot.

Car Squeeze On 79th St.

Repair work started Friday on NE 79th St. between NE Second Ave. and Biscayne Bay, and warned motorists to expect a traffic jam in the area for "several months."

Inspector Paul Denham of the Miami Police Traffic Division said the state is repaving and rebuilding the street. He said work will be in full swing in a few days and that traffic on the busy street will be squeezed into one lane in each direction.

Denham said police are faced with few alternatives in recommending other routes to motorists. He said the closest streets which cross the railroad tracks are NE 71st and NE 87th Sts.

Clinic Gets $30,000 Study Grant

Miami's unique clinic for ailing old folks now will be able to survey its accomplishments during its three year history, Dr. Samuel Gertman, director, reported Friday.

The clinic has received a $30,000 grant to do the job from the National Institute of Health.

Sponsored by the University of Miami Medical School and Jackson Memorial Hospital, the geriatrics clinic studies the aging problem from medical, psychological and social viewpoints. It is one of the few centers in the country in which the study of geriatrics and gerentology is a distinct field of medical effort.

Deportation Case Delayed

Deportation proceedings against Milton A. Cunha, 34, have been ordered stayed by Federal Judge Emett Choate because Cunha will be called as a material witness in a gunrunning case.

Cunha himself pleaded guilty last March to a charge that he offered a .50 caliber machine gun for sale illegally to U.S. agents posing as Latin revolutionaries. The case was the first time since the lively gunrunning trade died out with peace in Cuba.

Cunha had been arrested in February. At the same time Albert E. Darlow, who agents said was connected with him in operation of a gun shop in the rear of a garage at 28 NW 37th Ave., was taken into custody in the case.

Cunha also was required to give $1,000 bond for his appearance as a witness against Darlow.

Christine Smiles At License Snag

NEW YORK —(UPI)— Ex-GI Christine Jorgensen was turned down for a marriage license Friday because of inadequate proof of her femininity.

City Clerk Herman Katz refused to issue the license to the 33-year-old Christine and her fiance, Howard J. Knox, 38, a Washington statistician, because Christine's birth certificate lists her as a male.

"I'm very disappointed," Christine said, clinging to Knox's arm. But she smiled and appeared composed, reaching up at one point and flicking piece of lint from her fiance's coat.

"We hope we can iron out our difficulties and see this this thing through," said Knox, who kept in the background and let his financee do most of the talking.

The blonde nightclub entertainer wore a black ostrich hat, black dress with gold-mesh necklace and a mink jacket for her appearance at the license bureau.

Katz ruled after scanning the birth certificate that "it is my opinion that public policy, in the light of existing law, requires my rejection of the application at the present time."

But Katz left the door open for Christine to return for another try if she brings in adequate evidence of her sex in compliance with state law.

It was Christine's second rebuff here. An earlier application was turned down because Knox lacked proof of his 1945 divorce in Chicago. Knox returned from Chicago Thursday night with the necessary documents.

Christine was a U.S. soldier named George before undergoing surgery and hormone treatments in Denmark that transformed him into a woman during a period from 1951-1953.

Son Hears Killer Mom Get Death

VENTURA, Calif.—(AP)— Mrs. Mrs. Elizabeth Duncan, a jealous mother who couldn't bear to lose her son to another woman, was sentenced Friday to death in the gas chamber for hiring two men to strangle his pregnant bride.

Fifty-four-year-old Mrs. Duncan showed no emotion as she stood to hear the judge's sentence.

Superior Judge Charles F. Blackstock pronounced the sentence after turning down defense requests for a new trial and for a reduction of the penalty to life imprisonment.

Mrs. Duncan's son Frank, 30-year-old Santa Barbara attorney, was at her side as she was sentenced.

Although she was convicted of first degree murder in the slaying of his 30-year-old wife, Olga, Frank had stood by his mother through the long trial.

Mrs. Duncan's execution date was not set. An automatic appeal will be carried to a higher court.

Olga was kidnaped from her Santa Barbara apartment Nov. 17. She was beaten, strangled and buried in a roadside grave. Augustine Baldonado, 26, and Luis Moya, 20, testified at Mrs. Duncan's trial that she promised them $6,000 to kill Olga.

OTTO VON MERING of the University of Pittsburgh, a social anthropologist, told fathers to "stop feeling rejected" and take it in their strides.

He said in Washington that American fathers are the middle guys, the mediators and the "third persons" in the family relationship today.

Dr. Von Mering noted that fathers begin to feel left out of the family when their wives appear to concentrate all their time on the children.

He said the mother-child alliance is a natural "coalition" and papa usually retreats into the role of a "side-walk-superintendent and Monday morning quarterback."

Satchmo Sends Yugoslav Fans

LOUIS (SATCHMO) ARMSTRONG and his six-man Dixieland jazz group wound up their visit to Yugoslavia with a rousing concert before a packed house in Belgrade.

ARMSTRONG

High government officials and many of Belgrade's musical artists joined the audience of 2,500 in cheering loudly for the American good will ambassador.

Armstrong's playing of such standbys as "Saint Louis Blues," "When the Saints Go Marching In" and "Stomping at the Savoy" brought frequent outbursts of clapping and foot-stomping from the jazz-hungry Yugoslavs.

Producer on Bond To Escape Arrest

STANLEY KRAMER, an American Film Producer, posted bond to escape arrest in a dispute with a casting agency in Melbourne, Australia.

KRAMER

Kramer's attorney paid the Supreme Court 840 pounds (about $1,890) as security against settlement of a claim filed by a casting firm. The firm said they were due that amount for extras and equipment used in filming Kramer's end-of-the-world film "On the Beach."

Going to Quit Movies, Says Liz Taylor

ELIZABETH TAYLOR, altar-bound with Eddie Fisher, said it again Friday — she's going to quit the movies. After three more pictures.

"I'm committed to make three movies," she told a reporter. "I should be finished with them in about 18 months. After that, finis.

Miss Taylor, making plans for a private wedding probably May 11 to singer Fisher, has made similar vows in the past.

Tank Boss Offers Clue On Horses

WASHINGTON — (UPI) — The U.S. Army paused in its onward thrust into the missile age Friday long enough to give an 11-year-old boy in Madera, Calif., advice on handling an ancient, wayward horse.

It seemed the natural place for young Philip Peatman to turn. So, in boyish hand he penciled a note to the "Chief of Cavalry, U.S. Army."

It explained that he and his two brothers, aged 12 and six, had a 19-year-old horse and it behaved well most of the time. "But I would like to know how would you stop him from running back to the corral," Philip asked. "No matter how hard we pull he won't stop."

The Army has not had a chief of cavalry since shortly before World War II, but it has preserved a lingering nostalgia for the horse.

The new chief of the armored branch at the Pentagon, Brig. Gen. Frank S. Henry, fired off a reply candidly telling Philip that "in years past we frequently have had the same problem with our horses."

First, he said, if Philip's father approved, the youngster should get a double bridle with both curb and snaffle bit.

When the snaffle does not control the horse, use the curb bit, Henry advised.

Another trick, the Army's tank officer said, would be to rein in the horse on one side and make him turn in a circle until his gait slowed.

"I fully realize that it is pretty hard to teach a 19-year-old horse any new tricks," Henry said.

'Dear, There's a Burglar in the House'

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. —(UPI)— Mrs. Henry Hood awoke and nudged her husband. "There's a burglar in the house," she said.

Hudson, a draftsman for the Tennessee Valley Authority here, tiptoed to the door and peered into the hall. He gasped.

There was a shadow of a man on the wall, and there was the muted beam of a flashlight.

At least, thought Hood holding his bleeding hand, that should have frightened the burglar.

But no. The shadow was moving and the flashlight beam was coming closer.

Hood gambled. He switched on the bright hallway light.

There stood Henry Wayne Hood, aged five, returning from a nocturnal trip to the bathroom.

Hood went to the hospital for treatment of his hand wound. Since that night earlier this week, young Henry has been instructed to inform his parents before making trips to the bathroom in the middle of the night.

She Burned Babies! Gets 10-Year Term

BARTOW — Juanita Irene Hamil, 21, who tried to burn her two young children to death last January, was sentenced to 10 years in prison Friday.

Mrs. Hamil pleaded guilty before Criminal Court Judge Roy H. Amidon on two counts of trying to commit murder, arson and adultery.

She got 10 years for attempting two murders, the sentence to run concurrently with five years for arson and two years for adultery.

State Air Unit Plan Under Fire

ORLANDO — (AP) — A plan to establish a state aviation commission was brought into the open Friday and immediately ran into formidable opposition from commercial airlines representatives.

W. E. McLean, Orlando airport manager, called the meeting of aviation representatives to sound them out of the plan.

He said he visualized three functions for a commission — to promote aviation generally, promote air age education and provide general aviation with a voice in Washington.

McLean even had a proposed legislative bill drafted but it never got to the discussion state.

Some of the opponents suggested there could be an aviation group apart from the state government.

David B. Lindsay Jr., editor of The Sarasota Herald-Tribune and Journal, was one of these. He suggested the group consider a nonofficial organization "before inviting in the Frankenstein monster of state government with potential regulatory power."

"Alabama is a classic example of empire building — what we fear," Morris said. "We haven't bought a gallon of gasoline there for five or six years except maybe in an emergency because the gas tax in Alabama is the highest in the world."

Harry Copland, aviation manager for the Florida Development Commission, favored the idea of an aviation commission. He said his suggestions have to go through two stages of nonaviation people and often never reach the commission.

McLean conceded there is no chance to pass the bill he favors in this year's Legislature.

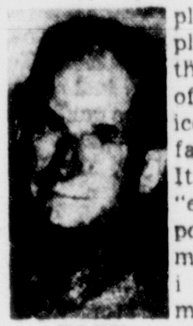
Papy Aims Bills At Key West

KEY WEST — Monroe County's Rep. Bernie C. Papy published notices Friday of three special bills he intends to introduce in the Legislature which will clip the powers of the Key West city commission.



PAPY

One bill would designate a five-member commission to replace the city's planning board, the Department of Public Service and the Welfare Department It would have "exclusive power" to determine what public improvements may be made by the City of Key West and issue all future bonds of the city.

Papy's second proposed measure would require re-registering of all Key West voters after July 1 and every four years thereafter, instead of the current eight-year registration requirement.

An assistant city clerk would be designated to administer voter registration in Key West if the bill passes the legislature.

The senior legislator also went over the City Commission's head by proposing a third measure which would rezone an area along Roosevelt Blvd. of which he owns a part. Papy's request to have his plot rezoned from residence "B" to business "A" in order to build a real estate office was turned down by the city Dec. 17.

Tiny But Terrific

The Defense Department Friday released these pictures of miniature devices developed by Army Ordnance for research in ballistic weapons. At right is an electric light only one tenth of an inch wide and 35-100ths of an inch long. It's used on missile control panels.

Dade County Demos Face Another Crisis

By JOHN McDERMOTT
Herald Political Writer

A new crisis developed Friday in the Dade County Democratic Party leadership.

Ousted Democratic Chairman Holmes Allen, now a process server for State Attorney Richard Gerstein, is trying to get back in power.

Allen is bidding for the anticipated party committee vacancy of County Judge Leland Featherstone.

Featherstone defeated Allen at the polls for a precinct group seat on the 80-member county executive committee last November. It ended 16 years of local party domination by the cigar-puffing process server.

But now Featherstone says he is considering resigning because he feels it may not be ethical for a judge to hold a party political office.

Johnson Davis, the new Democratic chairman, said that as chairman he is required to remain neutral in the fight sparked by Allen backers.

They are being opposed by supporters of Committeeman William C. Martin, who lost to Johnson in the skirmishing for the party chairmanship, and by State Committeeman Robert M. Morgan.

"If Allen gets named, the party leadership will be right back in the ashcan where it was when he headed it," Morgan declared.

Davis, who had support of the Allen faction for the chairmanship, said he sees no mandatory reason for Featherstone resigning.

What may result is a compromise candidate acceptable to both.

New by-laws require a majority vote of committee members attending an official meeting to fill a vacancy. Even so, floor nominations are possible, Davis said.

The immediate question is:

Will Featherstone resign and if so when?

Politicians Will Hear Humphrey

Miami political leaders will turn out in force tonight to honor Sen. George Smathers and to hear an address by Sen. Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota.

The Hialeah Junior Chamber of Commerce is expected to be host to some 500 people for the Smathers dinner at the Dupont Plaza Hotel at 7 p.m.

H. T. (Dutch) Schulenberg will serve as master of ceremonies and Judge Uriel Blount Jr., state president of the Jaycees, will introduce Humphrey.

F. H. Macurda, president of the Hialeah Jaycees, said Smathers will be presented with a bronze plaque "for excellence in service to the nation.

Johnson Is Falling Down On Job, Demo Senator Says

WASHINGTON — (UPI) — Sen Pat McNamara (D., Mich) gave voice Friday to smoldering discontent among the Democratic liberals by publicly accusing Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson of falling down on his job as Senate Democratic leader.

He sent a sharply-worded letter to Johnson protesting the Texan's failure to take a stand on the recently-enacted unemployment compensation extension bill. McNamara and other Democratic liberals favored a stronger version.

McNamara told Johnson the incident "raises serious questions in my mind about Senate majority leadership — or lack of it."

His blast followed a series of attacks on Johnson's leadership by Sen. William Proxmire (D., Wis.), who complained that Johnson has not been giving the liberal bloc the influence it deserves in party circles. Some other liberals were said to feel the same way.

Sen. Joseph S. Clark (D., Pa.) noted in a newsletter to constituents Friday that a liberal-supported amendment was written into the jobless bill by a vote of 52 to 32 "over the combined opposition of the President, the Finance Committee, and the Democratic managers on the floor."

He said the victory "came to nothing when the Senate conferees gave way in the joint Senate-House conference committee."

"It is important to note, however, that the results of last year's election are beginning to be felt — at least in the Senate," he said. "Everyone of the 18 new members elected last fall, Democratic and Republican alike, voted for the amendment."

Clark did not specifically mention Johnson or his position on the jobless pay bill.

Proxmire charged in several Senate speeches and elsewhere that Johnson had imposed one-man rule — or too much leadership — on Senate Democrats. He said the typical Democratic senator was left out of legislative policy-making.

McNamara's letter was worded in a tone that was severe even for the blunt Michigan senator.

Charging that the jobless pay extension bill showed a "serious breakdown" in Johnson's responsibilities as leader, McNamara asked "just where in this legislative process does the majority leader exercise his functions? What is his function, if not to lead?"

The legislation was passed in the last hours before Congress quit for Easter. President Eisenhower signed it this week. It provided a three-month extension of jobless payments for persons whose compensation periods were running out, but failed to assist workers whose benefits had already expired.

Senate liberals felt the bill would provide little help and got behind a substitute sponsored by McNamara.

Johnson was not in the Senate when the bill was passed after some frantic last-minute maneuvering by House and Senate leaders to reach agreement.

McNamara said in his letter that Johnson had refused to take a stand on his substitute because the Senate Financing Committee hadn't finished its study of the issue.

Then, he said, Johnson refused to take a position after the committee acted because the leadership "could not go against" the committee.

McNamara said Johnson's attitude seemed "very strange" to him. When the bill got to the Senate floor, McNamara said "you, of course, were not in the Senate that day."

McNamara's proposal was voted down 49-38. Johnson, who had left Washington, had neither "paired" with another senator on it, nor left word what his vote would have been had he been present.

"If the majority leadership had taken a position against us, this we could possibly understand," McNamara said. "But when the leadership refused to take any position, this we cannot understand."

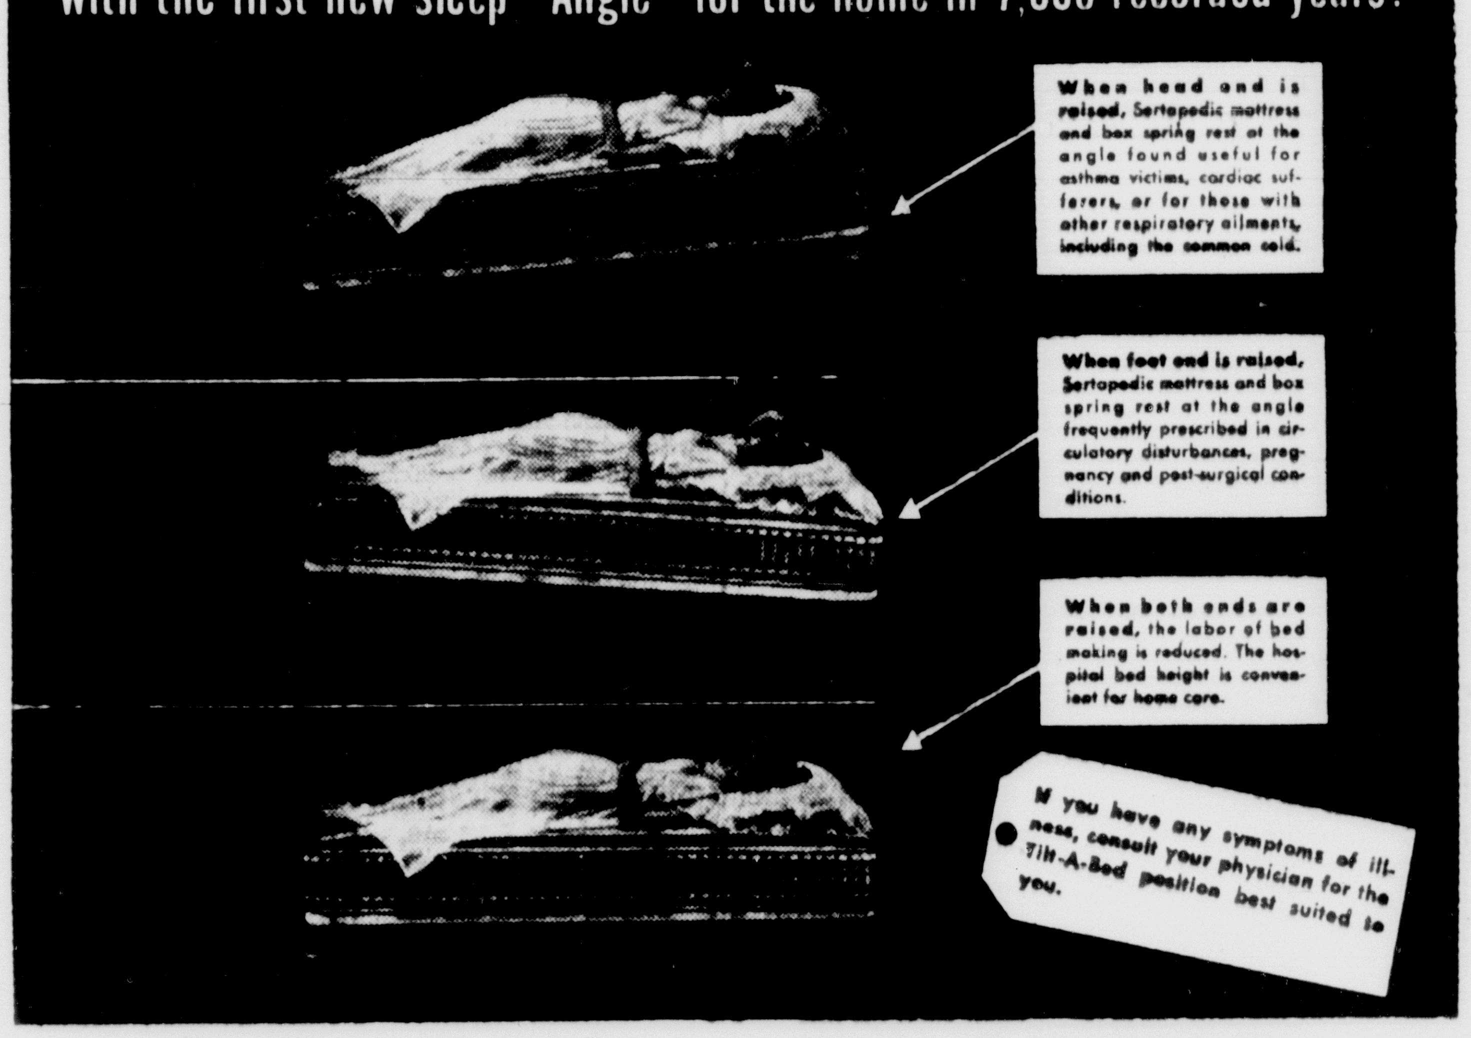
SERTAPEDIC*-'59 SLEEP SET
with the first new sleep "Angle" for the home in 7,000 recorded years!



When head end is raised, Sertapedic mattress and box spring rest at the angle found useful for asthma victims, cardiac sufferers, or for those with other respiratory ailments, including the common cold.

When both ends are raised, the labor of bed making is reduced. The hospital bed height is convenient for home care.

If you have any symptoms of illness, consult your physician for the Tilt-A-Bed position best suited to you.

Now . . . after 7,000 years . . . man has discovered a new "angle" on sleep for the home . . . an angle that will change the habits of centuries . . . make all old-fashioned mattresses and beds obsolete.

Doctors have long recommended the useful effects of sleeping at an angle. And now, Serta presents the '59 Sleep Set with Tilt-A-Bed action that will bring this new angle to your home.

Come in and see the Sertapedic-'59 Sleep Set with Tilt-A-Bed action . . . the most revolutionary kind of sleep equipment existing. You can own it for little more than the cost of an ordinary mattress and box spring.

Remarks on Religion

Bible In the Schools

By ADON TAFT
Herald Religion Editor

The threat this week of a lawsuit to halt the reading of the Bible in Miami's public schools has focused attention here on a national problem of growing dimensions.

And in the light of these developments, it seems to me that some remarks made by Dr. James M. Godard, executive vice president of the University of Miami, at the meeting Thursday night of the Texas Association of Church Related Colleges in Houston, deserve a wider audience.

Dr. Godard began by noting that, "Until teaching is accomplished by automation, the impact of a professor's teaching will be influenced by the pattern of beliefs which he holds. Even though the teacher may not directly present these beliefs in his teaching, in the interaction between himself and his students there is a subtle transmission of more than course material."

He went on to say that, "The church-related college has no monopoly on faculty who believe in God, but it does have an opportunity for the deliberate selection of faculty who do possess this quality."

* * *

Belief in God produces a high regard for excellence, said Dr. Godard. "When excellence is considered as an attribute of divine perfection, it is not only admired and respected, it is also loved as a part of the dynamics of the love of God."

The love of God produces a compassion in the educator which makes the individual student sacred to him, Dr. Godard said. "Each student is an important person. Even when he fails your course he is important."

Dr. Godard concluded by saying that if belief in God functions in a school's program, "the graduate should have developed a faith in the existence of a cosmic pattern and in a process which we might call destiny."

"Our God is not a God of chaos but a God of order. This faith should be so apparent in the personalities of the president, the deans, the faculty and the staff that the student will have the opportunity of seeing its validity."

Practices His Belief

Admittedly Dr. Goddard was addressing educators from church-related colleges, but he made it clear he felt that Christianity enhances education in any school because of the very nature of our faith.

And Dr. Godard believes what he said to the point of practicing it, for he is an active member of the Coral Gables Congregational Church and encourages student religious activities on the campus at the University of Miami.

C. M. Ward To Talk At Assemblies Rally

A sectional rally of the Assemblies of God from Key West to West Palm Beach will be addressed next Friday at Evangel Temple by a national radio preacher.

WARD

He is the Rev. C. M. Ward, speaker on the denomination's "Revivaltime" heard over 330 radio stations—10 of them in Florida. The purpose of the 7:30 p.m. rally here will be to gain support to have the program broadcast in Miami.

The rally also will be a prelude to a three-week revival at Evangel Temple which will begin Sunday, April 12.

Evangelist for the campaign will be the 22-year-old British preacher, the Rev. Philip Jackson, of London. He has just concluded what started out to be a two-week revival that ended up as a 34-week campaign in New York City.

He will return to England from here.

College Choir Concert Set

Sunday School Clinic Draws National Baptist Leaders

The biggest Sunday school training and expansion program in Florida history will be launched here today and continue for one week under the direction of 52 of the nation's top religious education workers from 10 states.

Only program of its kind to be held in the nation during 1959, the Sunday school clinic will open with briefing at Central Baptist Church at 2:30 this afternoon and then spread to more than 60 co-operating churches of the Miami Baptist Association on Sunday.

Dr. A. V. Washburn, Sunday school department secretary of the Southern Baptist Convention, from Nashville, will head the team of experts who will lead classes and workshops on the purpose of Sunday schools, laws of school growth, provision of space, adopting a program of work, visitation and training programs.

At the briefing session this afternoon final plans will be made for the most extensive religious census ever taken in this area which will be conducted Sunday when Baptists workers will attempt to reach 400,000 homes.

Special cards in Spanish will be used in the census in areas where Puerto Rican and Cuban-background residents live.

And two missionaries from Cuba — Dr. Herbert Caudill and Dr. Jose M. Sanchez — will work with the nine Baptist Spanish missions in the enlargement campaign.

Some 2,000 Sunday school teachers and officers are expected to attend the 9 a.m. to noon daily classes at Central Baptist beginning Monday and then go back to their own churches, under the direction of 300 pastors and educational workers here for the clinic, to put the theories into practice each night.

A feature of this phase of the program will be a daily "airlift" of workers from Key Largo, Marathon and Key West. J. P. Wallace and Robert Farmer will pilot the planes provided by the Kendall Flying School.

The first major address in the clinic will be given Monday morning by Dr. J. N. Barnette, former secretary of the Southern Baptist Sunday School Board. His topic will be "Reach the People for Bible Teaching." He was head of the Sunday school work for 30 years before he retired in 1957.

Other major speakers will be Dr. Harold E. Ingraham, director of the board's service division, "Teach To Win the Lost," on Wednesday; Dr. W. L. Howse, education division director, "Teach To Develop the Saved" Thursday; and Dr. Homer Lindsay, of Jacksonville's First Baptist Church, "Teach to Build Strong Churches," on Friday.

Additional leaders from Nashville will include Lawson Hatfield, superintendent of new Sunday school work; Mrs. Will S. McCraw, superintendent of extension work; John T. Sisemore, superintendent of adult work; James V. Lackey, superintendent of young people's work; William A. Cox, superintendent of intermediate work; Mrs. Lillian M. Rice, superintendent of junior work; Robert A. Dowdy, superintendent of primary work; Miss Helen Young, superintendent of beginner work; Mrs. Douglas Hills, superintendent of cradle roll work.

H. Taylor Bowers, education director at Central Baptist, is general chairman for the clinic.

Gables To Host Meet

The 76th annual meeting of the Florida Congregational Christian Conference will be held Wednesday through Friday at the Coral Gables Congregational Church.

Some 44 churches from over the state will be represented at the sessions where Dr. Arthur W. Newell and Dr. Earle H. Ballou will be the featured speakers.

Dr. Newell has been pastor of St. John's Evangelical and Reformed Church in Richmond, Va., since 1938. He has headed his denomination's commission on higher education and been moderator of the General Synod.

He will be the 8 p.m. Wednesday speaker.

Dr. Ballou, is executive secretary of the Congregational Christian service committee and has been in charge of relief activities since 1950. Before that he was a missionary to China.

He will speak at the 12:30 p.m. Thursday luncheon of the Women's Fellowship.

More than 200 delegates are expected to be on hand when the conference opens with a report by Dr. Arthur Stanley Wheelock on the progress of the fund-raising program for the expansion of facilities of the conference center in Avon Park.

'Talk Back' TV Series Readied

One of the most talked about series of religious programs in television history will be presented by the Greater Miami Council of Churches over Channel 10 beginning at 1 p.m. Sunday.

"Talk Back," a series of programs based on the 13 problems that a national poll says trouble Americans most, will give viewers an opportunity to take part, as the title indicates.

Each problem will be presented in a 12 minute filmed drama featuring top professional actors.

This will be followed by a live discussion from the studios of Channel 10, where the Rev. Dale H. Ratliff, director of the Protestant Service Bureau, will be the host and moderator.

Viewing groups are being organized at various churches in the area where each group will carry on its own discussion in an effort to encourage individual solutions to the problems rather than pat or pious answers.

In the half dozen cities where it has been tried, the program has gone over exceptionally well, according to the Rev. William C. Swygert, program coordinator for the Council of Churches.

The first show Sunday will dramatize a family situation in which the pressures of modern day living explode.

Making up the panel which will discuss possible solutions on the air will be Mrs. H. D. Freeman, president of the Woman's Society of Christian Service in the Miami District of the Methodist Church; Larry Zeibarph, a Lutheran insurance man; and Ellen Severson, a student at the University of Miami.

Discussion groups already have been organized at White Temple Methodist Church, Wesley Methodist Church, Granada Presbyterian Church and Palmetto Presbyterian Church. Others are being formed and you may find the one closest to you by calling MO 1-8333.

To Study Migrants

First-hand information on the needs of migrant families as well as work being done by the Florida Christian Ministry to Migrants and other agencies will be heard by the Greater Miami United Church Women when they meet at 9:30 a.m. Thursday at Wesley Methodist Church.

Speakers will include leaders in this work throughout the state, headed by the Rev. Paul M. Cassen of West Palm Beach.

The Rev. Julius Scipio, of Pompano, the Rev. Isaac Henerson, of South Dade, Bryan Page, of the state employment service, and Mrs. Sarah Abrisch, Dade public health nurse, will discuss why migrants are not self-supporting, why they need child care and housing aid.

Unity Center Spade Work Set

Groundbreaking for a $225,000 sanctuary for the Unity Center of Practical Christianity tops a day of groundbreakings and building dedications slated Sunday.

To be located at 412 NE 22nd St., the Unity Center will be a modern, hangar-like auditorium seating 1,100 persons. It will have a 96-foot, off-center tower which will be lighted from within.

A large fountain and reflecting pool will be in front of the center of the airconditioned sanctuary with theater-type seats. Entry will be from two side doors rather than from the middle.

Groundbreaking ceremonies will be conducted by the Rev. John Lee Baughman at 3 p.m.

The first unit of a five-building plant at Pinelands Presbyterian Church will be consecrated in another 3 p.m. Sunday service at Bahia and Bluewater Rds. in Cutler Ridge.

The $45,000 building, ultimately to be used as a fellowship hall, will serve as the sanctuary and provide temporary Sunday school rooms.

The Revs. James Carter, Miami Springs Presbyterian Church; Ronald Wilson, Westminster Presbyterian Church; and Archie Davis, Trinity Presbyterian Church, will take part in the consecration service.

Holy Communion at 11 a.m. will be the first worship service in the new building for the 214 member congregation which organized four years ago with 21 members.

Ground for a $60,000 educational building at Kendall Methodist Church will be broken at the close of the 11 a.m. Sunday service.

The structure will provide six classrooms and two assembly rooms which will handle 200 Sunday school pupils. The one-story building will be of Spanish-style architecture.

* * *

Dedication of the $30,000 dormitory at the Tropical Bible Institute operated in connection with the Full Gospel Tabernacle will take place at 11 a.m. Sunday.

There will be a dinner on the ground and a movie on the history of the church as part of the open house following the dedication ceremonies.

In addition to erecting the airconditioned dormitory, the church has built a book store and remodeled the sanctuary.

Plans for a new, 500-seat sanctuary with a 40-foot tower have been announced at Fulford Methodist Church. A. A. Torres has been named chairman of the building fund drive which will get underway April 15.

Renovation of Whitney Hall, 15000 Ludlum Rd., to make a temporary chapel for Christ Congregational Church will begin next week. The congregation now meets in the Cutler Cove School.

Lisbon Will Get 20 New Churches

LISBON — (AP) — Emanuel Cardinal Goncalves Cerejeira, patriarch of Lisbon, has announced 20 new Roman Catholic churches will be built here because of the population increase.

Lisbon parishes must not have more than 15,000 persons, he said, but some have as many as 50,000. Only seven new parishes have been formed in a half century.

He Spared GI Lives, Lost His Son, but Gained Faith

A Chinese who saved the lives of American GI's in the Orient and then came to Miami Beach only to lose his son, has faith that it all was part of God's will.

That faith is so strong that it has been recognized by his fellow members of the Miami Beach Independent Presbyterian Church who have chosen him as a leader. He was ordained an elder Wednesday night.

Born in Hong Kong, Chan was a communications officer on a passenger ship working out of the Portuguese free port of Macau during the war.

Some American soldiers escaped the prisoner of war camp in Hong Kong and reached Macau, where they persuaded Chan to get a boat and take them to Free China.

There he stayed to work for an aviation company until after the war, when he went to California to visit a sister and then to Connecticut to visit some GI friends.

Chan became a citizen and came to Miami Beach in 1953.

"My religion up till then had been 'self,'" admits Chan. Although of Protestant background, he said he used whatever religion seemed helpful in business. "I believed there was a God, but that was all."

When his two-month-old son died four years ago, it never bothered Chan. But it hit his wife pretty hard and people from the church began to comfort her and invite her to services.

She accepted Christ as her personal Savior and began urging Chan to go to church with her. One night he did and a visiting Scotch Bible teacher encouraged him to believe what the Bible says about Jesus and be saved.

From then on Chan strived to live his faith, serving as an usher, finally making the missions board, and now rising to elder.

"I just pray that all of this will give glory to Jesus Christ our Lord," he said.

Dentist Who 'Retired' to India Mission Field Heads List of Guest Speakers

A dentist and his wife who retired and then invested their lives and money in a missionary project head the list of guest speakers who will be in Greater Miami pulpits this weekend.

Dr. Eugene M. Riel, a Dayton, O., dentist who was far beyond the usual acceptance age when at 55 he entered mission work in 1956, will speak and show slides of his work at 9:45 and 11 a.m. Sunday at the Coral Way Methodist Church.

He and his wife also will be at Trinity Methodist Church at 7:45 p.m.

A grandfather seven times over, Dr. Riel established the first dental public health project in India. His wife established an occupational therapy department at Clara Swain Hospital in Bareilly.

They've found that the Indians come to them for counseling more readily because of their age and they pointed out that mission boards are eager to have folks of their ages if they are qualified for some special service as they are.

Dr. Riel reported that missionaries are well received in India, that Hindus have given most of the money which built the hospital where he and his wife work, and that the younger Hindus and Moslems have no deep roots in their traditional faiths.

* * *

Dr. Harold Paul Sloan, a retired Methodist minister who served some of that denomination's foremost churches, will be the pulpit guest for the 11 a.m. Sunday service at Miami Shores Community Church.

He is the author of "One Gospel for One World," formerly was editor of the Christian Advocate, and served on the faculty of Temple University.

* * *

Speaker for the 11 a.m. Sunday service at First Unitarian Church will be Dr. Sidney E. Mead, of Chicago. He is president of the Meadville Theological School of the University of Chicago.

He was a history professor at the University of Chicago for 15 years before taking his present post three years ago. He is a graduate of Redlands University, Yale Divinity School and the University of Chicago.

* * *

Charles Mix, one of the deacons at the North Miami Congregational Church, will preach there at 11 a.m. Sunday. He will be filling in for the Rev. Robert T. Woodruff Jr. who is scheduled to resume his duties in May after a long illness.

* * *

Father Dunstan, of the Order of St. Francis, will be the guest celebrant for the 7:30 a.m. Holy Communion service at the Holy Cross Episcopal Church while the Rev. Charles Stewart, a deacon from the parish, will deliver the sermon at the 11 a.m. service.

The Rev. John Davenport, of Opa-locka, will be the first speaker on the nightly schedule of supper, recreation, songs, talk, discussion, and devotions. He will talk about "finding myself."

Other speakers in the order of their appearance will be:

Friday's session will be a campfire dedication service on the beach.

Mission Conferences Slated

The candidate secretary of the board of world missions of the Presbyterian Church, U.S., will tour this area next week to talk to young people about opportunities to serve on the mission field.

He is the Rev. Eugene Daniel, who will address a series of six conferences to explain requirements for missionaries and outline the programs carried on by the denomination on the various mission fields.

The Rev. Mr. Daniel is a former missionary to Korea. He won the Silver Star and Distinguished Service Cross as a chaplain in World War II. And he is a graduate of Georgia Institute of Technology, Columbia Theological Seminary and Princeton Seminary.

He will hold his first conference in West Palm Beach on Sunday, with churches from Lake Worth and Belle Glade joining in. On Monday he will be in Fort Lauderdale, with churches of Hollywood joining in that conference.

He will be at Westminster Presbyterian Church on Tuesday, with churches from Hialeah and Miami Springs taking part.

The Rev. Mr. Daniel will be at Miami Shores Presbyterian Church on Wednesday, with churches of North Dade joining in the meeting. On Thursday he will be at Granada Presbyterian Church, with young people from all the southwest section in attendance.

Friday he will be at Riviera Presbyterian Church, with those south to Homestead joining in.

On Sunday, April 12, the Rev. Mr. Daniel will speak at the spring rally of the Senior Young People of the presbytery at St. Johns Presbyterian Church.

Fish Fly

Getting swatted is not normally a pastime such as we care to become acquainted with, but apparently at the University of Miami it is great sport. The rules are simple: an egg is taped to the boy's head, and the girl, armed with a fish, tries to swat the egg while riding the shoulders of another poor contestant. It was all part of Sigma Chi Fraternity's annual Derby Day. Results will not be found in the sports pages or anywhere else.

Union Ban Proposed For County Workers

By LEO ADDE
Herald Staff Writer

Metro Commissioner Robert Haverfield Friday called on the full commission to outlaw labor union membership for county employees.

Rival unions now attempting to organize county workers "are practicing a cruel hoax on the employees," Haverfield said.

Haverfield

Florida law bars unions from bargaining with governments for better wages or working conditions, he added, or from calling a strike of public employees.

Haverfield said he will sponsor a Metro ordinance prohibiting union membership for county workers if he can line up enough votes for its passage.

The commissioner stepped into the middle of a three-cornered hassle involving the county administration, the Teamsters and the AFL-CIO.

Each union, eying the county's 6,200-member payroll, claims to have signed up hundreds of employes. Each organization is scheduled to ask the Metro Commission on Tuesday to recognize it as bargaining agent for county workers.

County Manager O. W. Campbell has barred Teamster agents Sam Funt and William Huet from county property on grounds they "are not properly licensed by the state," and ordered the sheriff's office to arrest the pair if they violate the order.

Teamster officials cried "intimidation," but they canceled a scheduled Friday morning appearance at Dade Waste Department headquarters.

County Attorney Darrey A. Davis advised Haverfield last week that county employes may legally join unions, but that the county government can not be compelled to bargain with any union.

"I feel that under terms of the Metro charter the Commission has authority to pass an ordinance amending civil service rules or providing as a matter of general principle a prohibition against any county employe joining any labor union," Haverfield wrote to other commission members.

Haverfield said he feared unions, forbidden to bargain over-the-table with the county, "will use extra non-legal tactics in order to intimidate elected public officials."

Haverfield said he is "not opposed to unions" in their activities outside government.

"I know that my position in this matter will be misunderstood," he said. "If it brings on my defeat at the polls, I look forward with pleasure at my defeat for expressing a sincere, honest philosophy of government."

A $5 Ticket

Slow Driving Tab May Start Fight

One driver was slapped with a five-dollar ticket for going too slow Friday but other motorists howled about a house-moving operation that held up their pace.

Policeman James J. Faulds arrested Simon Cohen, 59, who runs a grocery at 601 NW 29th St., for driving too slowly in the middle of four-laned 12th Ave. about 5 a.m.

The officer admitted there wasn't much traffic at the time, but said Cohen's driving impeded what cars there were.

Cohen said Friday night he was not certain if he would pay the ticket. He said he might go to court to fight the arrest.

Meanwhile, motorists heading south to work on NW 27th Ave. about 7:30 a.m. Friday complained to police about a house being moved along the street from NW 54th St. to NW 24th St.

But a spokesman for the house-moving firm said the two-bedroom bungalow was only on the avenue about 30 minutes, and that there was no place to park it once the rush-hour traffic began.

Co-op Owners File Tax Suit

A new wrinkle in Park View Co-operative Apartment owners' fight for full $5,000 homestead exemption on each apartment was filed in Dade Circuit Court Friday.

A class suit in the name of John B. Howard, 7346 Gray Ave., contends that the assessor cannot cut up the $5,000 — it must be all or nothing under the homestead tax exemption law, Howard says.

The assessor has been allocating $1,250 to each of four apartments in each building in the MIAMI BEACH settlement.

Thursday, Circuit Judge Ray Pearson dismissed another suit filed by the apartment owners in the name of Moses Kurman, on grounds that they should have exhausted all appeals before the Tax Board of Equalization before going to court.

Ludman Metal Sale Sought

The Miami National Bank asked the Miami Federal Court Friday to permit it to sell its holdings of aluminum inventories of the nearly-bankrupt Ludman Corp., pledged to the bank to secure $280,000 in loans.

Meanwhile, one or more new plans for court-supervised reorganization of Ludman appeared in [illegible]ffing.

Herman Greenfield, owner of the Ainsley Building, proposed that he be allowed to operate the corporation for 10 years.

And an attorney, Edward Worton, filed notice with the court the Winter Seal Corp. of Detroit, has employed him to look into a plan for reorganizing Ludman on its behalf.

NEWS FROM THE SUBURBS

Eviction Faces GI Families

Some 160 OPA-LOCKA families of military personnel living in Navy-owned, two-bedroom homes on and near Opa-locka Blvd. face eviction because of the air station's shutdown on June 15.

The buildings, among 200 owned by the Navy Department, have to be vacated by May 31. Although most of the station's personnel have transferred to other billets, many of the families are not ready to move.

Uncertainty due to possible overseas assignments and non-availability of housing at new assignments make the May 31 date difficult to meet.

Commander Bart Slattery, base public information officer, said that orders from Washington required strict adherence with the eviction orders.

"We feel very bad about these evictions because it will make life tough for our people, but we are absolutely helpless to extend the deadline," Slattery said.

There is some hope that another government agency will take over administration of the homes after the Navy leaves but so far there was nothing concrete.

The personnel who occupy the low-cost, $54-a-month homes consist of Navy, Marine, Coast Guard and Air Force enlisted men.

Developers Sue For Name Use

Exclusive right to use of the name CAROL CITY was claimed by D & G Inc., developers of the North Dade residential community, in a suit filed in Circuit Court Friday against Carol City Bowling Lanes, Inc.

The bowling lanes are not in Carol City but at Palmetto By-Pass NW 163rd St. and 37th Ave. The original developers of Carol City were sued several years ago by Coral Gables and stopped from using the name "Coral."

Gunman Gets Year in Jail

Criminal Court Judge George E. Schuz found J. B. Seats of GOULDS guilty of assault with intent to commit murder and sentenced him to one year in jail Friday.

Seats shot Luther L. Roberts of HOMESTEAD in the Parkway Bar, last Oct. 21 after the two fought a fist fight outside, then went inside, shook hands, and had drinks together.

Even Crime Has a Certain Something

Miami Beach Truth Beats Fiction

By GENE MILLER
Herald Staff Writer

MIAMI BEACH, isle of joy, wher it's against the law to run a lawnmower without a muffler, is also a land of odd criminality.

Herewith are a few examples, all off the police blotter:

* * *

He walked to his car, put a nickel in the meter, locked a $515.13 payroll for the Patricia Hotel in the car trunk, went back to the bank.

When he returned the second time there was plenty of time on the meter. But the payroll was gone.

ON APRIL Fool Day Fletcher Brooks said he heard some shooting near his girl friend's house in the 1500 block of Fifth St. Something also hit him in the head, he said, and gave him a black eye.

Friday, after two days of headaches and dizzy spells, he went to Mt. Sinai Hospital. Surgeons removed a .22-caliber slug from his skull.

* * *

GEORGE Washington Webb confessed to police he stole 169 bed sheets, all with the name "Shelbourne Hotel" stitched to the hem.

The police took the evidence to headquarters. But Friday detectives decided to keep six and return the other 163. The maids wanted to change the beds.

* * *

LEE'S News Stand at 1500 Washington Ave. reported Friday someone had broken open its plywood shutters.

Stolen were four two-bit girlie magazines, strictly for "adults only."

The case went to the juvenile bureau.

* * *

AT THE Deauville hotel, two kindly, well-to-do ladies sat on a sofa admiring each other's jewelry. They exchanged gems briefly, chatted on, and then took back their jewels and put them in their pocketbooks.

But when Mrs. Sophie Miller, of Highland Park, N.J., opened her purse at the safety deposit box, gone were a diamond ring and broach. Total value: $8,000.

* * *

THE PLACE Pigalle, a night spot employing mostly undressed women, was stink-bombed.

At noon, with only a janitor present, someone sneaked in and tossed a bomb on the vacant stage. It exploded with much noise and much smell.

Owner Syd Moss suggested to Detective Billy Myers two possible suspects: a stripper he fired and another who quit.

Both damsels had iron-clad alibies. The crime occurred at noon. Strippers never get up that early.

Hialeans Blocked From Boat Route

By EDDIE GONG
Herald Staff Writer

HIALEAH residents who own homes along the banks of the Little River Canal were warned Friday that their future access to the Miami River is being permanently blocked off by a Metro construction project.

Albert J. Goskey, 52, of 230 W. 53rd St., Hialeah, circulated petitions Friday among canal dwellers. He said he discovered that four giant culverts were being put across a canal at NW 87th Ave. and 103rd St. by Metro engineers.

"We bought homes on the canal with the expectation of having boating access to the Miami River but these culverts will cut off this opportunity forever unless we do something quick," said Goskey, a 25-year Navy veteran.

Metro Water Control head Ronald Park confirmed that the culverts were being put in and said they would be in place within the next week. "It's too late to do anything about it now," he said.

"I think it would be great to have a system of connected waterways for boating enthusiasts but it's a matter of flood control and economy," Park explained.

He estimated that the present culvert, over which 87th Ave. will pass, will cost $15,000 and that a bridge would require 10 times as much money.

"Moreover, our water problem in Dade County is critical, and the South Florida Flood Control District has decided that this is the best place for a water control point."

The culverts will cut across a mile and a half canal which will be joined with the Little River Canal to the east in the future. A mile distance separates the two canals.

The west end of the shorter canal is only 200 feet from the Miami River and the two will be connected as soon as a bridge is completed at nearby Okeechobee Rd.

Realizing that time is rapidly running out, Goskey arranged an appointment with County Commissioner Ben McGahey for Tuesday. "I think that it may be too late then so we're going ahead with the petitions and may go to court if necessary," he said.

Goskey's chief complaint was that the County has spent thousands of dollars constructing bridges over the canal with the idea of allowing boats to get about. "These culverts will sure kill all the promises made to us about Florida living," he said.

Goskey, however, found one supporter in County Commissioner Joe Boyd. "It's a shame to block off the canal and I think it's a bad deal," Boyd said Friday.

The former Hialeah city attorney said he would make an effort to get a bridge put in instead of the culverts. "It may be possible to put in a boat lift device if necessary," he said.

Big Mouth Gets a Tip

Warn This Girl Quickly, Or She'll Be Your Wife!

By ANN LANDERS

ANN

DEAR ANN: I'm a college sophomore, 20, who is in too darned deep with a high school senior. She writes me two letters a day and calls me long-distance twice a week. She spends all her allowance on these long-distance calls and I feel lousy about it.

All she talks about is the ring I'm going to give her when she graduates from high school. She also plans to go to work to "help me through college." I don't need any help, but she insists this is what she wants to do.

About that ring, it isn't a diamond, it's a pearl, and it belonged to my grandmother. To be honest with you I don't feel the same about her as I did when I was in high school. She seems too young and overly emotional.

How can I extricate myself without shaking up this child? She doesn't date any other fellows and in today's letter she said she bought a cedar chest. Help!—VIC

And how did this "child" know about your grandmother's pearl ring, Big Mouth? It looks very much as if you gave her a reason to believe she might have use for a cedar chest in the near future.

Before she spends any more money on the long-distance telephone, suggest that she get back into circulation pronto. A clean break will be less painful than letting the deception drag on and on. If you don't act swiftly, you're apt to get an invitation to a wedding in the mail one of these days. Your own.

* * *

DEAR ANN: My mother recently remarried. Her new husband is a grand person and we are all extremely fond of him. My own father was a scoundrel who was unspeakably cruel and thoroughly despised by everyone. Our pre-school children never knew my real father, and if it is within my power, they never will.

The problem is this. I would like the children to call Mother's present husband "Grandfather." My own husband is against this. He says the man is not their grandfather and they should call him "Uncle." He says they have his father and one grandfather is sufficient. Please advise.

—ANOTHER ANN.

Dear Ann: If your husband can prove that your stepfather is an uncle to his children, he can call ME "Grandmother."

Of course they should call the man Grandfather. One is not enough, if they have two.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of The Miami Herald, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Care, Please

ST. HELIER, Isle of Jersey, England — (UPI) — E. N. Walker, a bomb disposal expert, said his appeal for all dangerous war souvenirs has brought him a number of anti-tank bombs and one hand grenade loaded with nitroglycerine. They came in the mail.

Land Co. Stock That Fell Is Back Up Again

Dow Jones, AP, UPI

The down-again, up-again common stock of General Development Corp. went up again Friday.

The stock, which dropped to $47.25 a share Thursday in a wave of selling, climbed back to $53.37 Friday, up $6.37.

The opening in General Development was delayed one hour on the American Stock Exchange to permit transferring the trading post so more manpower could be provided to handle transactions.

The advance was considered partly a technical rebound after recent declines. Brokers thought a statement by Louis Chesler, chairman of the Miami-based firm, that General Development's earnings were up 40 per cent in the first quarter of 1959 might also have contributed to the rise.

* * *

UNIVERSAL MATCH CORP. directors voted to split the firm's common stock two-for-one, subject to stockholder approval. An official said the directors will consider changing the firm's dividend rate — now 37½ cents quarterly — after stockholders have approved the split.

* * *

UNION CARBIDE CORP. will receive a contract that may total more than one million dollaars a year to supply liquid hydrogen for rockets for the next five years, the government space agency said.

* * *

THE REPUBLIC OF ITALY and Southern Italy Development Fund filed a registration statement with the SEC covering a proposed issue of 30 million dollars of guaranteed external loan bonds to finance an agricultural public works program in southern Italy.

* * *

COOK ELECTRIC CO. President W. C. Hasselhorn said the company's stockholders can expect a stock split later this year. He said directors probably will recommend the split in August.

* * *

SCOTT PAPER CO'S. British affiliate, Bowater-Scott Corp. Ltd., has joined with Papeteries de Belgique of Brussels to form a new Belgian corporation which will finish and sell household tissue products in the European common market.

* * *

MARK W. CRESAP JR., president of Westinghouse Electric Corp., has been named chief executive officer and will be given "general charge of the affairs of the corporation," directors announced. Chairman Gwilym A. Price will remain active in "an advisory and consulting capacity," they said.

* * *

AMERICAN OPTICAL CO. said it has developed periscopes to take the place of windshields in supersonic airplanes and tanks. They are built with cylindrical lenses, rather than conventional spherical ones.

* * *

DIAMONDS sold by DeBeers' central sales organization on behalf of South African and other producers reached a record $23,600,000 in the quarter ended March 31, reflecting an increased demand for industrial stones.

* * *

AMERICAN TELEPHONE & Telegraph Co. will move its annual meeting on April 15 to the Kingsbridge Armory in The Bronx to accomodate more stockholders.

* * *

STORER BROADCASTING CO. has agreed to sell Radio Station WAGA-AM and FM in Atlanta, Ga. to Plough Inc. for an undisclosed sum. Plough owns four other radio stations.

* * *

TEXAS CO. said an electronic computer manufactured by Thompson Ramo Wooldridge is completely controlling the operations of a four-million-dollar refining unit at its Port Arthur, Texas refinery.

PLANS TO BUILD a 20-million-dollar merchandise mart and coliseum in Atlanta were announced by Robert M. Holden Sr., an Atlanta real estate broker. The mart will have 1.5 million square feet of floor space, a 1,000-unit hotel, a heliport and a landing strip for planes, he said.

Market on Rise for 2nd Day

Blue chip industrials and utilities were confirmed in their rise by rails which rose for the second straight day after months of lassitude.

Gains of pivotal stocks ran from fractions to more than a point. Speculative issues posted gains of half a dozen points or more.

The market was higher from the start. Big blocks were traded as the ticker tape ran behind transactions for a 20-minute period. Gains widened until late in the session when some profit taking trimmed prices. The tape was late again in a final burst of transactions.

The erosion of the past two weeks had worn down prices until they were once more attractive to the big institutional investors, brokers said. The market average neared a widely heralded "support level" and buying was generated.

Meanwhile, the business and economic news remained heartening.

Leading issues among the motors, utilities, steels, chemicals, oils and rubbers advanced solidly. Airlines, drugs, electronics and electrical equipments also went ahead.

On the American Stock Exchange, General Development recouped 6 3-8 to 53 5-8 and Universal Controls 7½ to 67 as these badly-battered issues met renewed demand.

Wider gainers on the big board included General Time up 7 7-8 to 87 7-8, Thiokol up 6 1-8 to 129 1-8 and Zenith up 3 1-4 to 272.

American Telephone touched a new high for the year and showed a net gain of 2½ in a reflection of high quality buying. Goodyear gained 1½, Du Pont 3½, Anaconda 7-8, Eastman Kodak 1⅛, Chesapeake & Ohio 1½, Standard Oil (New Jersey) 7-8, Eastern Air Lines 1 3-8 and Schering 1¾.

But Owner Had to Find a Key First

Miami's Airport Hotel That Isn't There Yet Is Dedicated

By JAMES BUCHANAN
Herald Staff Writer

There was only one drawback to the dedication of the 256-room Miami International Airport Hotel Friday.

While the press and dignitaries on hand for the cocktails and speeches shifted from one foot to the other, Cohen probed the keyhole with a ringful of odd-shaped metal pieces.

Port Authority Director George McSherry finally found a workman with the key and the party trooped onto the roof of International Terminal for the "groundbreaking."

Because there was nothing but concrete and steel where the world's only on-the-airport hotel is to rise, Cohen and his party contented themselves with pitching coins into the wet cement. The coins, provided by a publicity firm, represented some 40 or 50 nations to which airplanes fly from International Airport.

There will be four stories of air conditioned, radioed, TV-equipped and soundproof hotel rooms. There will be a fifth floor of meeting rooms, a 300-seat dining room, 120-stool cocktail lounge, and half a dozen VIP suites with three bedrooms each.

It should be ready sometime in December.

"This is the first airport hotel," Cohen said, "which puts its residents just three minutes from their airplanes."

Rates will run from $8 single to $18 double, with a 25 per cent discount for those who want to grab a catnap of less than 12 hours.

"And we're figuring on a closed TV circuit that will be a real boon to tourists," he added.

Imagine, Cohen said, being able to wake up, punch a button on your special TV channel and seeing in one quick flash whether your plane is on time or not. "There are occasions," he added, "when you can get an extra hour's sleep."

The Town Crier

BY Jack Bell

STARVATION in Haiti has aroused much sympathy and concern in this community. A few asked for a community food-collecting effort. So, the reply of U. S. Rep. Paul Rogers to Mrs. M. V. Taylor, 1001 NW 14th Ct., is most enlightening.

BELL

In part, he wrote:

"Two American voluntary relief agencies already are moving U.S. surplus food into the distressed area, especially the towns of Jean-Rabel and Anse Rouge. Their survey — Catholic Charities and Church World Service — was done by jeep, horseback and on foot.

"The U.S. has programmed more than six million pounds of food to Haiti this fiscal year. Perhaps two thirds of it already has gone there. Department of State is counseling with our Embassy and the two volunteer agencies on what additional steps should be taken.

"There is a chronic food shortage in Haiti and the U.S. is working with the Minister of Agriculture in Haiti on a long range program of increasing food production."

Just a sample of the wonderful things our nation is doing, not only in Haiti but in other distressed areas across the earth.

A Horse?

A local woman went over to visit a northern friend, stopping at a plush hotel. They started to chat — natch.

"I've got a wonderful husband," was the reply. "He works like a horse to give me the best."

"Why, that's wonderful. And I'm sure your husband is enjoying it, too."

"Oh, he's not here. Who wants a horse in a swanky hotel?"

Minstrels

There's a minstrel show in the offing to equip that mission, the seventh annual Wesley presentation, April 17-18, at Coral Gables High School. Last year's show profits made that clinic possible.

The Wesley cast — from First Methodist Church of Coral Gables — includes many well-known business and professional men. The end men are Jim Powell, Ed Bishop, Judge Bill Culbreath and Judge Hal Dekle. Homer Kimbrell is the interlocutor.

They've their own orchestra, a blackface chorus trained by Mrs. Helen White, singers, dancers — and was there ever a minstrel show without the world's oldest and corniest jokes?

Life Saver

Joe Powell is a salesman at Don Allen's automobile place, and therein lies a little yarn. He worked for Don Allen in Zanesville, Ohio, 30 years ago. He came down here to retire. "But I was going nuts doing nothing," he says. "So I asked Mr. Allen to save my life."

Is This Right?

Two Miami juvenile boys were locked up in the Ocala jail, escaped and were recaptured and returned to jail. The mother of one of the boys heard of the recapture on the radio. She went to Ocala, arriving there at 2 a.m. Thursday.

She learned that her son had asked that she be notified and the sheriff and juvenile officer told him they already had done so. They had not notified her, and until she arrived the lad thought she did not want to help him.

That's the way to be a juvenile officer?????

Pavilions

When you go to Douglas Gardens Sunday afternoon for the dedication of new facilities at Jewish Home for the aged, you will see three new pavilions, each built around a patio.

The rose patio is designed in the style of Fontainebleau (The French one). The flower clock inspiration came from Edinburgh, Scotland, the rock garden from Israel. The lady responsible is Mrs. Sam Resnick. She has spent years helping the folks in the Home.

Ambulance Attendants Roll Gysin Child's Body Past His Midget Auto

Two-Year-Old Toddles To His Death in Pool

By JAMES BUCHANAN
Herald Staff Writer

Twenty minutes later he was found floating in the pool behind his family's home — the ninth youngster to die in water this year.

Had it been Vincent who toppled in the pool it would have meant nothing more than soaked clothing — for Vincent had been taught to "swim like a fish."

"I was watching them both, especially Vincent who was in front where the cars were," she told police. "Then when I saw Charles was gone I saw the outer utility room door was open and I went into the yard."

Her screams brought Harry Carney, a next door neighbor who plunged into the pool fully clothed. Hauling the youngster from the water, he began artificial respiration while his wife, Rita, summoned the Coral Gables rescue squad and police.

Neighbors passed it as they went to and from the house to help the prostrate parents and maid. A priest passed it to administer last rites. A medical examiner walked past it to reach the pool.

And then two ambulance drivers carried Charles past it — for the last time.

Be Alert

Faith First Step To Safety

What can you do to assure the safety of a year or two-year-old youngster when you have a pool at home?

Should you try to teach the little boy or girl to swim?

No! says the Red Cross.

Don't try to teach a child to swim until he is at least three years old.

In the meantime, take every human precaution to prevent your tot from falling in the pool when no one is around.

"Put the child in the water when he is 18 months old," says the Red Cross experts in water safety. "And be sure you're in the pool with it . . . show the child there is nothing to fear in the water. Show the youngster you are not afraid of the water, and that you're having fun."

"Then, when the boy or girl is three years old and capable of coordinating his movements with your instructions—then it's time to teach swimming."

In Swim Classes

Start Right Now At Saving Lives

LIFE

Take a course and save a life.

Between now and the end of the school year, it's going to be a life-or-death race between you and Dade's watery death traps to claim the attention of footloose youngsters.

And the American Red Cross points out that you must start right now if you're going to teach those youngsters to save themselves from drowning.

The first step is to learn how to teach them.

That is why the Red Cross, in cooperation with Greater Miami's Recreation Department is instituting a crash program of water safety instruction designed especially for civic and fraternal groups who want to "do something" about Dade's mounting water-death toll.

The two-part program, offering certified courses in Senior Lifesaving and Water Safety Instruction, begins Tuesday at Miami's Shenandoah Park Pool, 1805 SW 22nd Ave.

The Senior Lifesaving half of the program will also be taught at three other locations.

"We need at least 100 volunteers for the program," said Russell Townsend, director of safety services for the Dade Red Cross.

"If they complete the entire program, they'll each be qualified to teach group classes before the end of the school year," said Townsend.

"Civic and fraternal groups who want to set up summer swimming classes but have no instructors should send at least one of their own members now to get instructor training," Townsend said.

Townsend said that each person who completes the crash program training will be able to handle between 25 and 150 non-swimming youngsters.

The first of the two Shenandoah courses, Senior Lifesaving, will run from 7 to 10 p.m. each Tuesday and Thursday night from April 7 to April 23. Swimmers over the age of are eligible.

The second course, Water Safety Instruction, will run from April 28 to May 38, 7 to 10 p.m. Tuesdays and Thursdays, and is open to senior lifesavers over the age of 18.

WEST END POOL, 250 SW 60th Ave., 9 to 11 a.m. Tuesdays and Fridays starting April 7.

AN APPROVED private pool, 6721 SW 71st Ct., 1 to 3 p.m. Saturdays only, starting April 11.

SANS SOUCI HOTEL, 3101 Collins Ave., Miami Beach, 5 to 7 p.m. every night for two weeks starting April 13.

"If we can get at least 100 people to complete both courses, we might save many more than 100 lives," said Townsend.

Would You Help Save a Child's Life?

I will be on hand Tuesday night (with my bathing suit) to start the course that saves a life for swimming instructors, 7 p.m., Shenandoah Pool, 1805 S.W. 22nd Ave., and three other locations as indicated in story at right.

James Picola, a 12-day veteran of Metro government, took over as $15,000-a-year budget director Friday and declared an open-door policy for county commissioners.

Picola, who joined Metro March 23 as budget analyst at $12,000 a year, was named by County Manager O. W. Campbell to succeed Harry Toulmin.

Toulmin resigned March 20 at the height of a row with a Metro Commission group led by Alex Gordon over budgetary practices. Commissioners charged Toulmin with being secretive and evasive about county money matters, and the embattled director lashed back that Gordon was "out to wreck Metro."

Picola, in an interview with The Herald, said:

"Commissioners will be welcome at all times to solicit information from this office. I believe it is the prerogative of elected officials to question every phase of government."

Gordon's reaction was, "He sounds like a good man. We should get along fine."

Robert Haverfield, a member of the budget-probe committee led by Gordon, said, "Mr. Picola is a breath of fresh air."

The new budget director said he will retain William H. Scovell as budget administrator, the No. 2 job in the department. Scovell, who was passed over by Campbell in the Picola promotion, said he is "completely satisifed in the new budget setup."

Silver-haired, soft-spoken Picola was born in New York City 42 years ago and moved to Florida in 1949. He holds degrees in industrial engineering from Fordham University and in accountancy from University of Miami. He came to Metro after five years as comptroller for the Florida State Turnpike Authority.

Picola described himself as "a cold fish" — then disproved his statement during an animated discussion of the "challenge" of governmental work, particularly Metro.

While he was treasurer of a Miami firm making radar parts on federal contracts Picola had his first experience with government red tape.

"The federal government kept asking us for so much detailed information that we soon lost track of what we had told them," Picola said. He fumed, and unlike most other businessmen with the same complaint, took direct action.

"I decided to get into public work," he said, "and do my small part as a cutter of red tape."

Once inside government, he found it "gave an opportunity for ingenuity and daring seldom found in private establishments."

Picola said he joined Metro "with no misgivings," although he was aware of its internal frictions.

"I feel that all misunderstandings can be resolved by an open-minded approach to governmental problems," he said.

Metro "must work" in Dade County, he said, because "our tremendous growth demands control and direction."

No Bingo On Beach --Gerstein

Attorney Warns 20 Establishments

By AL FINKELSTEIN
Herald Staff Writer

The state attorney's office Friday yelled "Bingo!" — and 20 hotels and motels along Miami Beach reluctantly checked in their bingo beans.

Bingo, even without money involved is illegal in Florida, State Attorney Richard A. Gerstein notified them by letter after receiving "specific complaints from nearby competitors."

"The great majority of the hotels and motels involved were very understanding and co-operative," Gerstein said, "but one or two were nasty about it."

He said his office "doesn't go looking for such minor violations (as bingo) . . . but when we find them it rests upon me to see that the violations cease."

Herbert S. Shapiro, attorney for the Greater Miami Beach Hotel Association to which most of those warned belong, said he will meet with Gerstein to "get a complete legal status" on bingo.

"My understainding has been," Shapiro said, "that if there was some skill involved, there was no violation."

However, he said if Gerstein "explains otherwise," the motels "will certainly comply with his ruling."

Said Harry Suskin, owner of the Kimberly Motel:

"What means this? . . . Our guests don't pay to play . . . Winners get prizes, free boat trips or sightseeing cruises . . . Don't tell me this kind of bingo is against the law?"

But Gerstein said "that's precisely what is."

He said "close to 90 per cent" of the hotel owners he warned "didn't realize bingo . . . any kind of bingo was classified as a lottery" and therefore, illegal in the state.

Aztec Motel, 15901 Collins Ave.; Argosy Motel, 17425 Collins Ave.; Blue Mist Motel, 19111 Collins Ave., Carib Motel, 18975 Collins Ave.

Carillon Hotel, 6801 Collins Ave.; Castaways Motel, 16375 Collins Ave.; Casablanca Hotel, 6345 Collins Ave.; Colonial Inn Motel, 18101 Collins Ave.; Driftwood Motel, 17121 Collins Ave.

Dunes Motel, 17001 Collins Ave.; Golden Nugget Motel, 1855 Collins Ave.; Golden Gate Motel, 19400 Collins Ave.; Gould Motel, 17141 Collins Ave.; Heatherwood Motel, 18671 Collins Ave.

Kimberly Motel, 15811 Collins Ave.; Mercury Motel, 18001 Collins Ave.; Saxony Hotel, 3201 Collins Ave.; Sands Hotel, 1601 Collins Ave.; Tangiers Motel, 18695 Collins Ave.; Waikiki Motel, 18801 Collins Ave.

Coach's Son Gets 5 Years

The son of a New York prep school coach was subjected automatically to a five-year prison sentence Friday when Federal Judge Emett C. Choate revoked his probation.

The guilty plea made him subject to revocation of probation in an earlier case in New York, where Norton had been placed under a five-year suspended sentence on bad check charges. Norton was identified as the son of an athletic coach at Fordham Preparatory School and Cathedral College.

He was arrested in Fort Lauderdale on Feb. 19 by the FBI. Judge Choate suspended a three-year sentence in the car theft case.

Despite Threat of Suit

Prayers in School To Continue--Hall

By PHIL MEYER
Herald Staff Writer

Dade School Superintendent Joe Hall said Friday that praying will continue in local schools, despite the threat of an agnostic father to sue the school board.

"I don't propose to do anything," said Hall. "We're still going to have Bible reading and prayers."

Harlow Chamberlin, who said school prayers violated his constitutional guarantees of freedom of religion, has three children in Dade schools. His attorney said he would seek an anti-prayer injunction, probably in state court.

An offer of legal aid came Friday from Joseph Lewis, president of the Freethinkers of America, a national atheist group.

"We are prepared to bring here our own attorney, who is considered an authority on this phase of constitutional law, to take the case to the U. S. Supreme Court, if necessary," said Lewis.

Lewis called school prayers a "flagrant and pernicious violation of the basic principle of the separation of church and state upon which this government was founded."

Motorists' Accidents Show Rise

Police Friday reported an increase in the number of accidents and injuries in Miami during March and put part of the blame on a Circuit Court injunction against roadblocks to spot-check drivers.

Inspector Paul Denham of the Miami Traffic Division said there were 1,295 accidents, 466 injuries and four fatalities in Miami this March.

This is a nine per cent increase in accidents and a 29 per cent increase in the number of persons injured over March of 1958, Denham said.

Denham also said that March was the first month of 1959 that the accident figures showed an increase over last year. There were 21 per cent less accidents in January of this year and seven per cent less in February, he said.

A February Circuit Court ruling on a suit brought by former Miami Mayor Abe Aronovitz banned further police roadblocks for spot-checking drivers, licenses and inspection stickers. Several previous roadblocks touched off widespread protests from drivers.

"I think that curtailment of law enforcement had something to do with the increase in accidents during March," Denham said.

UM Beauty Named Miss Miami Beach

Ellen Severson, 18-year-old University of Miami freshman, was chosen Miss Miami Beach Friday night and won a trip to Cuba with the two runners-up and a date to compete in the Miss Florida contest at Sarasota.

Ellen, a grey-eyed brunette, is five-ten, weighs 144 pounds and stops the measuring tape at 38-25-37.

Picked second from the five finalists in the Miami Beach Jaycee-sponsored contest at the DiLido Hotel was Jo Ann Pflug, 18, also a University of Miami student.

Third place went to Peggy DeFreitas, 20.

Former Judge Seeks Divorce

Richard H. Hunt, for 34 years a Miami attorney, and a former Dade Circuit judge, filed a divorce suit in circuit court Friday charging that his wife, Mrs. Eloise P. Hunt deserted him 10 years ago and that he has been living alone in an apartment adjoining their spacious home, 115 SE 25th Rd., for three years.

He originally filed the suit in Key West but Mrs. Hunt filed a motion there for change of venue back to Dade County.

Cabana Shock Basis of Suit

An aluminum trailer cabana, charged with electricity from a nearby power line, knocked her to the ground, Mrs. Edith Shaffer alleged in a suit for more than $5,000 damages, filed in Dade Circuit Court Friday.

The suit said she was knocked down, suffering brain concussion and spinal injuries, when she touched the cabana last June 19. The suit is against Endure-A-Lifetime Products, Inc., the cabana installers.

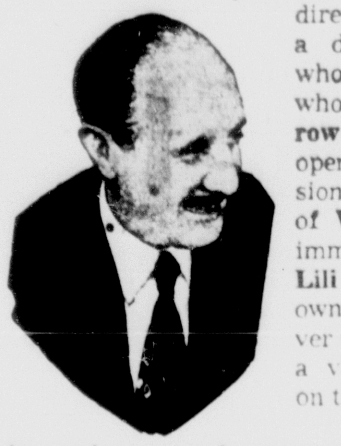
R. L. Stevenson Descendant to Direct Film of His 'Kidnapped'



WALT DISNEY'S filmization of "Kidnapped,' which will be made in part at Tobago in Trinidad, will be directed by Robert Stevenson, a descendant of Robert Louis, who wrote it . . . Orson Welles, who does a great Clarence Darrow in "Compulsion," which opens this week, has a compulsion of his own to star in a biopic of Winston Churchill. Project is immediately unlikely, however . . . Lili St. Cyr brought along her own musical director for the Clover Club date here. Naturally, he's a violinist who puts the accent on the G-string.

Movie program listings for the early part of next week are apt to be scrambled somewhat. Finish of the Oscar race Monday night will dictate what the features will be at many movie palaces . . . Repeal is generally predicted for Oklahoma in the votes scheduled later this month but the legalization of liquor sales won't make an immediate difference to night club businesss. Only bottle sales, not single drink sale, will be permitted at first.

Mathis and Monica Win Raves

WHAT DO YOU DO when you are both a nightlife reporter and a part-time (very small part!) actor in Sigma Delta Chi's annual Ribs and Roast lampoon which Sid Casell is whipping (sic) into shape at Miami Springs Villa's for an April 8 showing and there are simultaneous demands for your services as a reporter and an actor? Don't be silly. Hand over that greasepaint!

But you, as a saloon reporter, have a problem because there is a show opening at the Fontainebleau Hotel La Ronde Room. That constitutes the writing demand. You just decide to pass up the opening and catch the post-midnight second show. "But dear," dears your dear wifely RIB, "you need your sleep to stay fit for your rehearsals (the last with just a soupcon of sarcasm), I've done it before — let me cover for you."

"Are you mad!" is our pride-stung retort to her presumption. But we accept the offer.

There was, of course, a distinct Mathis in her madness, for singing sensation Johnny Mathis is the current star at the Fontainebleau — and Mathis, the current madness of the record collecting set, is a treat even to a reviewer.

Mathis, Monica a Bit Marvelous

"Johnny Mathis," reports our Papermate helpmate in her review, "is the answer to those who find themselves too old for Elvis and too young for Sinatra. When he last played here you wrote that there was too much of Nat King Cole in his style. Not so now—he's all Mathis and all the Mathis is terrific.

"Oh, that could be because he has varied his selection of tunes to include more of those identified with singers other than Cole. He opens, for instance, with 'My Funny Valentine,' associated with You-Know-Who, who is the champ of the La Ronde Room. This is not exactly a conventional "opening song" either but Mathis scores with it, and from this moment on—which is another number he does—he's in, like Sinatra, with La Ronde's patrons.

"We made a funny for you at the start of this review about Mathis's between-Presley-and-Sinatra appeal. Just a joke. He did seem to bring out a lot more late teen-agers than the usual cafe act, but don't let this mislead your readers into thinking he's for the adolescents only. I—and the rest of the married girls in my section — were properly impressed. And daddy, even you'd like him — especially in his exciting rendition of 'Lover.' Of course he sings 'When I Fall in Love.' It wouldn't be Mathis without that!

"I don't have to tell YOU about Corbett Monica, who is the 'comedy star of the show' as emcee Murray Schlam puts it. You woke me up one night just to tell me how good he was a couple of years ago. So you were right then and even righter now. He's a smooth worker with stories about his house and his wife and his problem of a name that often gets him mash notes from patrons who think he's the girl on the bill.

"Dagmar, who was looking over my shoulder as I made notes for this review, says you'll understand if I tell you that a comedian with the name of "Corbett" fractured his audience. Was there really a fighter by that name in your day, daddy?

"Opening the bill in the usual dance spot is the unusual dancing of Norton and Patricia. We see a lot of teams—this one is one of the very best in the mood in which they perform. Well, that's it. It was easy."

His Chipmunks on Tape Bring Composer Riches

LOS ANGELES —(AP)— David Seville is a fellow who has done pretty well in the chipmunk and witch doctor business. In the past year Seville — real name Ross Bagdasarian — figures he has sold $6,700,000 in novelty records.

The chipmunks who helped him are named Alvin, Theodore and Simon. They are, of course, the Singing Chipmunks on th records "Chipmunk Song" and "Alvin's Harmonica."

The witch doctor? That was the title of the song which launched Seville's big-time career. Earlier Seville helped his cousin, novelist William Saroyan, write "Come On-a My House." It netted Seville only $17,000.

All his money from the past year didn't come from song royalties or record sales. Seville also cashed in on commercial tie-ins with the Chipmunks, whose pictures appear on wallpaper, T-shirts, and cookies.

He also saved some money by not having to hire singers to take their roles. Seville himself is the chipmunks. A tape recorder enables him to achieve the strange sound attributed to Alvin and his pals.

WALTER WINCHELL

Walt Brennan Only Actor to Win 3 Oscars

BOB HOPE once opened an "Oscar" awards show by saying "This is Hollywood's production of 'Suspense,' the world's most exciting giveaway show" . . . And the annual awards presentations of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences are just that—and more! Over a quarter billion persons will see or hear this year's affair on Monday through live TV and radio, filmed versions for 19 foreign countries, and taped radio for the whole world.

A COLORFUL 30-year history lies in the past. Only 250 sat down to dinner at the first affair staged on May 16, 1929. Not even a radio broadcast marked the event. Fifteen "Oscars" were presented. There was no suspense that year. Winners had been announced on Feb. 17. Janet Gaynor was present for best actress award.

But Emil Jannings, winner in best actor category, arrived in Berlin that same day on his way home, never to return to Hollywood. Knowing he wouldn't be present, he had written, "I ask you to kindly hand me now already the statuette awarded me," so he carried the trophy with him.

★ ★ ★

ONLY ONE ACTOR has ever won three "Oscars"—Walter Brennan in the supporting category. Anthony Quinn acted his way to two supporting awards. Only three men—Fredric March, Spencer Tracy and Gary Cooper—have won two best actor "Oscars." There have been five women honored twice as best actress—Bette Davis, Luise Rainer, Vivian Leigh, Ingrid Bergman and Olivia de Havilland.

★ ★ ★

SIX-INCH STATUETTES occasionally are voted to juvenile stars. The first went to Shirley Temple at the 1935 affair. Shirley later handed Walt Disney a full-sized "Oscar" for "Snow White" and seven tiny "Oscars" for the dwarfs. Other moppets to get miniature awards were Mickey Rooney, Deanna Durbin, Judy Garland, Margaret O'Brien, Peggy Ann Garner, Claude Jarman Jr., Bobby Driscoll, Ivan Jandl (for "The Search") and Vincent Winter and Jon Whitely (for "The Little Kidnapers").

★ ★ ★

JUVENILES have competed with grown-ups for acting awards. First was Jackie Cooper for "Skippy" in 1931. He went to sleep on Marie Dressler's shoulder and snoozed right through his "defeat" by Lionel Barrymore. Mickey Rooney is the only other "juv" to vie for best actor. He was nominated twice, then waited 13 years to be nominated as a supporting performer. Judy Garland never got nominated when a child, but grown up, married and a mother, was nominated in 1954 for "A Star Is Born." In supporting ranks, Brandon De Wilde and Patty McCormick have run against adults.

James Cagney was the first actor to win for a role in a musical ("Yankee Doodle Dandy") in 1943. Warner Baxter was the first actor honored for a western performance ("In Old Arizona"). First musical movie honored was "Broadway Melody" at the second awards show. "The Great Ziegfeld" and "An American in Paris" have since been honored, proving that musicals do have a chance with drama and spectacle.

★ ★ ★

IN CASE of ties, the Academy gives "Oscars" to both winners. It's happened only once in the acting ranks. Wallace Beery and Fredric March each got a trophy in 1932. Twice, husband and wife have been nominated for achievements in the same movie. Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne competed in 1932 for work in "The Guardsman." Last year Charles Laughton was up for best actor and Elsa Lanchester for best supporting actress for their roles in "Witness for the Prosecution."

★ ★ ★

First movie-maker to win "Oscars" in two fields was Leo McCarey who was honored for writing the original and directing "Going My Way" after 17 years of hot competition by all kinds of talented folks. Joseph Mankiewicz, Billy Wilder and John Huston also won for both directing and writing. Director William Wellman never was voted an "Oscar" in that field but did get one for writing on "A Star Is Born."

★ ★ ★

WHEN George Bernard Shaw was voted the award for scripting "Pygmalion" in 1939, he grumbled: "It's an insult for them to offer me any honor. They might as well send some honor to George for being the only King in England."

Quits Directing for Role

After 29 Years Gregory Ratoff Still Plays a Producer

By JOHN CROSBY

Having lunch with Gregory Ratoff is a little like having lunch with a cataract. There's a roar in the ears afterwards and one feels bruised all over.

Ratoff
. . . gold

"My life is accursed," he'll shout at you. "When I opened on Broadway in 1930 in 'Wonder Boy,' I played the part of a producer who was — hmm — a thief, a bum, a dirty double-crosser, a liar. My friends said 'Hollywood producers will run you clear back to Russia when they see it.' The day after I opened I'm signed to a movie and to play—a producer."

"It got so when I walk on a set I say: 'Where's the desk, where's the telephone?' "

I told him I'd seen him in "All About Eve," an old movie I just got around to. His eyes lit up. " 'All About Eve' — I never saw it.

"They give me the script, I said: 'Heavy script.' They said: 'You play Max.' I skip through." Here he made like a man riffing the pages. "Page 15 I find Max. Max says 'No!' Twenty pages later, I find Max again. He says 'Yes.' Thirty more pages—Max has a whole line: 'You can't do this to me.'

"I tell Joe Mankiewicz the producer: 'You don't need an actor for this part.' He says: 'I don't want an actor. I want you.' So I'm Max."

FOR THE PAST 12 years Ratoff has been directing pictures, rather than acting in them. Most of the pictures have been made in Europe where Ratoff now lives with his second wife, an opera singer. In Milan where he lives a call came in one day from CBS. Come back, said CBS. Why? said Ratoff. Come back and we'll tell you, said CBS.

"So I come. It's a television series by Cy Howard with Sam Levene called 'The Wonderful World of Little Julius.' What do they want me for? Of course — the producer!"

Ratoff is quite enthusiastic about the series—or at least as enthusiastic as he ever gets about a film in which he has to play a producer.

"It's funny, anyhow," he concedes. "Sam Levene plays an agent who is responsible for all the kids who are stars. He hates the kids because they always grow up. So now he doesn't want kids any more. Only he finds this little kid—Eddie Hodges—and sees a gold mine in him. He brings him to me. I am a producer—a dirty, doublecrossing, conniving, thieving bum of a producer with a heart of gold.

"That's it, the whole series — the kid, Sam Levene, and me. The only trouble is that Levene loves to rehearse and I don't. He would cut his salary to rehearse. But it's good comedy. It's got heart, real love. I am very pleasantly surprised."

★ ★ ★

MOST of the producers he plays are violent, scheming, low, cunning knaves with hearts of gold. Are they based on any producer in particular? They are, Ratoff will tell you, compesities of quite a lot of producers. He'll admit there's quite a lot of Jed Harris in his characterization. "Whatever you feel personally about Harris, he's a genius, that man!"

As to the kind of character the voluble White Russian plays, perhaps it is the best exemplified by a bit from "Wonder Boy."

"I am a dirty, low-down producer, a double crosser, a no-good. I am reading 'Film Daily' where I see that mine own brother has double-crossed me. I scream at my secretary: 'Get on the phone mine own brother, the dirty double-crosser.'

"Mine secretary is saying: 'In Hollywood it's only 6 in the morning' and I'm screaming: 'He should sleep, that monster. Get me on the phone that bum, that thief, mine own flesh and blood whom I can't trust any more.' So my secretary gets him on the phone and I say 'Hello, Hal. How's Momma?' That's the kind of producer I am. Conniving but funny."

As for the producer he most admires, Sam Goldwyn would certainly be high on the list.

"He is my own dear friend and a fine man. He is making 'Porgy and Bess.' It will be a monument. And all his own money! Other producers need a bank; only Goldwyn can take $8,000,000 out of his back pocket!"

SOMETHING DUAL about this duel? Yep, the fellow with the 5 o'clock shadow facing actor George Sanders has changed appearance in the lower picture. Upper shows the late Tyrone Power playing King Solomon as "Solomon and Sheba" was being filmed in Madrid. Below Yul Brynner has the role and the producers hope the fans won't notice it too much.

LIFE WITH LARRY THOMPSON

Youth Is Very Young

IT WAS A pleasure to serve as a judge for the Sigma Chi fraternity the other afternoon in picking their Derby Day Queen.

They had 23 lovely competitors and if my wife wasn't one of my readers I'd wax even more enthusiastic in describing them.

Much as I enjoyed the afternoon, it left me depressed. There really is nothing more depressing for a man my age than exposure to a group of bright-eyed buoyant collegians.

I was only 20 years old when I went to the fraternity house. I felt as young as a kitten and as frisky as a colt. As soon as I was surrounded by a houseful of youth, I felt my age of 47.

And after watching the antics, hearing the laughter, feeling the spirit of exuberance of these young folks, I advanced to 100 years.

I like young people. I like them very much. But do they have to be so young?

* * *

"I HAVE TWO SMALL BOYS, 18 months and five months, and a rocking chair," says Mrs. J. M. Klinger, T-43-F Seaplane Base, Key West. "Now all I need are the words and music to two songs my mother sung to me. One of these is Babes in the Woods and the other is about an old man sitting under a tree, apple tree, I believe. I would appreciate some of the old lullabies too."

Will members of our Old Songs and Poems Musical and Literary Society please take care of the lady with the old man and the tree and any stray lullabies they have around?

I am mailing her the words to "Babes in the Woods," as sent to me by Leta Kuchlin, 740 SW Ninth St.

Her mother sang it to the children years ago, "and I am here to state that it was a real tear jerker," she says. "I used to marvel that she didn't squall and bawl with us when she sang it."

Mrs. A. H. Burnstein, Robert Richter Hotel, says: "I sang that song to my children and now to my grandchildren. I would love to know how and where I can either get the record or sheet music for it."

This "Babes in the Wood" is not the song written in 1915. Dr. J. Davis Reichard 1541 Palancia Ave., Coral Gables, says that one was written by Jerome Kern, for a show of the same name.

Mrs. Dale E. Jackson, Fort Pierce, says she knows very well that the Babes we're talking about dated way beyond '15, because she knew it back in 1901.

Her father had a phonograph which used cylinder records. He had a supply of blank, white wax records and made home recordings. Mrs. Jackson sang two songs for these records. One was "Hello, Central, Give Me Heaven" and the other was our "Babes in the Wood."

"Being enamoured of my own voice," she recalls, "while Mother was out of the house I climbed on a chair to reach the telephone. When she came in, I was singing "Hello, Central, Give Me Heaven" to the operator.

"Mother apologized to Central and assured her that it would never happen again. Central begged Mother not to punish me, for she thought it was cute. That saved me from a stinging rear elevation."

* * *

AND THEN MRS. JACKSON wonders if anyone remembers a cough remedy of long ago called "Frog in My Throat." Druggists used a large paper-covered frog to advertise it.

* * *

OH YES, ABOUT THE WORDS to the Babes. Well, these two children got lost in the woods and it got dark and they sobbed and they sighed and they bitterly cried, and the poor little things, they lay down and died. Just like that.

And when they were dead, the robins so red
Brought strawberry leaves and over them spread,
And all the day long, they sang them this song:

Now isn't that a pretty and a sad tale? It's better when your mother sings it, though.

POEM, By MRS. E. J. LAMB, Pompano Beach:

Some collect porcelain, some collect bills.
Some collect ailments, and so collect pills.
Some collect paintings and rare bibelots.
Some collect diamonds. Some collect woes.
Some collect garbage. Some collect yachts.
But I have trouble collecting my thoughts.

'Treasure' Only $100

When firemen entered the 11-room house of James Sullivan, a parking lot operator, they found bills lying around in a number of rooms.

At the time, an assistant chief said it was "incredible" the way firemen discovered cash as they moved through the structure. A basket of money was carried out, he said.

Now, police and fire records set the amount removed from the house at about $100.

Jack Kofoed Says

Inflationary Blame Can't Be Singular

NO ONE DENIES that the United States is in an inflationary cycle. It goes something like this: When wages are increased, prices increase with them. Products lose a competitive position in world trade. Unemployment results. There is pressure on government to make more money available. Government gives in, creates more, and the value of the dollar drops. There you have inflation. Everybody knows this.

Unions are partly to blame in their continuing insistence on higher and higher pay. But, according to as prominent an executive as Hughston M. McBain, former Marshall Field board chairman, business, and other conservative groups must share that blame.

They demand more and more foreign aid, federal help for slum clearance, hospitals, agricultural supports . . . for a thousand different projects to be carried by the federal gravy train. This in spite of the fact that government is committed to spending far more than it can possibly afford.

Inflation always has led to disaster. It always will. Temporarily increased wages and profits are no help against it. Can't union leaders and top men in management realize that? Can't they adjudicate differences on the theory that America is more important than an individual, or any group of individuals, whether on the side of labor or management? Or is it that nobody cares?

A boy who tries to duck the draft, or is so frightened he runs as soon as the battle is joined, is considered a traitor. He may go to prison for the former offense, be executed for the latter.

Yet, in my book, important people . . . whether in unions or management . . . who, day after day, contribute to the inflationary trend are more despicable traitors than any scared kid who goes over the hill when the shooting starts. Probably no one will agree with me, but that's the way I feel.

The dollar is worth only 48 cents. We won't have to try too hard to make it worth only 24.

GIVE THIS a thought: It's Charles F. Banning's idea of what Christianity means:

In the home — kindness.
In business — honesty.
In society — courtesy.
In work — thoroughness.
In play — fairness.
To the unfortunate—pity.
To sin — resistance.
To the weak — help.
To the strong — trust and good will.
To the penitent — forgiveness.
To all men — reverence and love.
To God—worship and service.

THERE ARE listed on police blotters the startling facts that occasionally some daffy thief steals a hot stove and an equally brain-washed numbskull bites a dog. But, the other day in New York a couple of guys stole 210,000 golf balls. What did they expect to do with them?

Even if ardent linksmen, they couldn't use that many in several lifetimes. If they tried to sell to pro shops, they'd have had the police on them in no time.

And, they couldn't stand on street corners, whispering to passers-by, "How about some nice hot golf balls?"

Those fellows would have been better off if they'd stolen a blistering stove, or sunk their teeth into a St. Bernard.

OLD WITTICISMS, or wisecracks, are picked up, repolished to fit modern conditions and attributed to someone who's seeking publicity. There never has been a phrase-maker in the mature manner than Sir Winston Churchill. His words sounded the thunder peal in time of national danger.

But, for the smart retort, the biting line, that celebrated scamp Wilson Mizner never had peers. It was he who remarked that "the first hundred years are the hardest" and "be nice to people on your way up, because you'll meet 'em on the way down."

The teams of Owen and Parker and Cross and Dunn have broken up. Sheila Barrett and Joan Abbott are out of show business.

Walsh and Fields were smart. They settled permanently in Our Town, Sammy as host at the Place for Steak, Leon to play club dates and work his head off for the Footlighters.

Tony Martin is still a headliner, and Desi Arnaz has become about the richest guy in Hollywood.

Fireworks Day at Cape; Three Missiles Take Off

By Herald Wire Services

CAPE CANAVERAL — A powerful Jupiter missile roared skyward Friday, winding up a triple ballistic fireworks display in seven hours.

The 15th blastoff of the reliable Jupiter came on the heels of the highly successful launching of two cape newcomers.

The highly touted Titan and a test model of "Bold Orion," an upcoming air-to-ground missile capable of 1,000-mile range, were fired on spectacular launchings.

The 60-foot Jupiter—triple duty weapon, moon rocket and carrier for huge space probes of the future—climbed aloft with a roar at 7:30 p.m.

The workhorse Jupiter was aimed at an impact area near Antigua Island about 1,500 miles from the launching site.

The highly-touted Titan ICBM arched over a 300-mile span of ocean in the third successful flight test of this super-weapon.

The silver-and-white Titan's short but significant hop down the Atlantic tracking range made veteran rocketeers marvel. The Titan's older brother, the Atlas, did not make a successful flight until its third try, six months after the first Atlas shot.

The Martin Co., which makes the intercontinental ballistic missile at Denver, called the shot a "perfect success."

The Bold Orion—a slim, little solid fuel test rocket—was launched from a high-flying B47 jet bomber in a test series designed to develop an air-launched ballistic missile. The 20-foot missile will have a range of about 1,000 miles.

Probe Ends In Firing Of 14 at UF

GAINESVILLE — Fourteen persons at the University of Florida, including some faculty members, have been dismissed because of homosexual activities exposed by a legislative investigating committee.

Dr. J. Wayne Reitz, university president, announced the action Friday.

"Action has also been taken with respect to the few students involved," Dr. Reitz said.

Names and addresses of those dismissed were withheld.

Dr. Reitz said the 14 dismissals included both academic and non-academic employes.

He said a thorough analysis had been made of the testimony supplied by the legislative committee.

State Sen. Charley Johns of Starke who headed the investigating group said he was "well pleased with the action that has been taken and I have every confidence that Dr. Reitz is going to do everything in his power to keep the situation at a minimum."

He said Dr. Reitz was correct in saying that in all universities a certain amount of homosexuality exists.

At Quincy, chairman James E. Love of the Board of Control said "we concur fully with the manner in which this case has been handled."

All action has been taken by the board that it felt necessary, the chairman said "frankly, the procedures which have been set up to cope with the situation are much better than I thought possible," he added.

Dr. Reitz said "I again want to emphasize that there is no reason to believe that the extent of homosexual conduct at the University of Florida is unique and that other public institutions have any lesser problem.

"This conclusion is expressed in the legislative investigation committee confidential report," he added.

"Certainly this statement neither condones such activity nor alters our firm position in taking action whenever we develop adequate evidence."

The contents of the committee's report were never disclosed.

TWENTY-FIVE WORDS netted Mrs. James S. Sirmans $10,000 Friday. A Marianna school teacher, she wrote her sentiments in a nationwide contest. She said that if the home is the center of every family's life there will be peace in the world. She won the $10,000 prize which was presented to her Friday in Tallahassee by Gov. LeRoy Collins. The contest was sponsored by the Home Improvement Council.

Attorney General Says

Public Entitled To Crime Details

TALLAHASSEE — (AP) — Atty. Gen. Richard W. Ervin said Friday he sees no basis for any added restrictions on releasing of information on crimes as a result of the recent Florida Supreme Court decision in the Phillip Singer case.

Ervin declined to comment directly about action of Palm Beach County Sheriff John F. Kirk in forbidding his deputies to give to newsmen any information on crimes except that available from arrest slips and complaint warrants, which usually is very sketchy.

He said that about a year ago he issued an opinion in which he ruled that law enforcement officers should not release information contained in investigative reports used in developing their cases.

He said that he saw no need for such officers to go beyond this to unduly restrict newsmen from their legitimate news gathering operations.

Ervin said it was his opinion the Florida Supreme Court went too far in its opinion in the Singer case, but that it was his impression the opinion was directed more at trying to discourage sensationalizing on crime stories rather than to restrict news gathering.

"I feel it would be harmful if newspapers are forbidden from carrying out their legitimate functions of coverage of the news," he said.

"Newspaper stories many times have served a very useful purpose to track down criminals. And enterprise by newspapers has resulted in breaking up of rackets and in improving law enforcement generally."

Kirk said he was restricting release of information to newsmen because of a Florida Supreme Court ruling in which a new trial was ordered for Singer, who had been charged with the murder of Mrs. Osee Fagan, wife of the Alachua County prosecuting attorney.

Ervin said it was his opinion each case involving claims of inflamed public opinion could be handled by the presiding judge on the basis of each particular set of facts.

2 Verdicts In One Case

After a Circuit Court jury returned a $40,000 damage verdict against Thunderbird Motel, Miami Beach, Judge Irving Cypen directed the jury to come again — this time with a verdict finding the motel not liable for damages.

Judge Cypen's order did not specifically set aside the $40,000 award, so it, too, was recorded by the clerk.

The unusual double action came in a suit by Mrs. Modieste Sinopoli who slipped in a motel shower bath, and her husband, Roy H. Sinopoli, of Savannah, Ga. Mrs. Sinopoli was injured three years ago when a suction rubber mat on the floor of the shower bath tub slipped under her feet.

Suit Filed To Foreclose On Hotel

Two New York City mortgage holders have filed a foreclosure suit against the operators of the Biscayne Terrace Hotel.

In Dade Circuit Court Thursday, Morris and Gerald Becker, who hold a $508,000 mortgage, filed suit asking the court to appoint a receiver for the six-year-old, 200-room hotel at 340 Biscayne Blvd.

They said they had to pay an insurance company $56,800 last month to protect their mortgage, and that they also paid $77,032 in taxes to keep the county and city from attaching the property.

The hotel is operated by the Fields Hotels Corp. Sydney Fields, spokesman for the firm, was unavailable for comment Friday.

Warren Freeman, general manager, said he was not familiar with the suit, but so far as he knew business was good.

GIs Offered Policy Deal

A savings of up to two-thirds in their GI insurance costs can be made by veterans whose policy numbers are preceded by the letters "RS," the Veterans Administration said.

These approximately 500,000 policy holders may exchange their present five-year term policies for new term policies that carry the same face value at a greatly reduced premium cost.

Veterans not wishing to incur the expense at this time of the permanent type plans can save money while waiting by exchanging their original policies for the new low-type.

Full information can be secured by contacting the Miami VA office or by writing the VA office to which premiums have been paid.

Airliner Comes Down on Cushion of Foam

Belly Landing 'Like a Feather'

DETROIT — (AP) — A crippled turbo-prop airliner "came down like a feather" with eight passengers and three crewmen Friday in a safe wheels-up landing at Willow Run airport. No one was hurt.

The four-engine Capital Airlines Viscount skidded in on a cushion of foam spread 2,000 feet along a runway to lower friction and reduce the hazard of fire. It couldn't get one landing wheel down, so it landed without any.

Passengers and crew had more than two hours of anxious waiting in the air before Capt. Earl D. Nygren brought down the 21-ton airliner. Nygren said: "It was just a routine belly-landing. It came down like a feather."

The plane skidded to a stop 1,400 feet down the runway as fire trucks and ambulances stood by, just in case. The plane suffered surprisingly little damage, said Nygren, who had circled for two hours to consume fuel while other crew men struggled to get the balky wheel down. By using up fuel, Nygren hoped to lessen the danger of fire in a crash landing.

Co-Pilot Joseph A. Herbrich, 29, of Plymouth, Mich., cut the engines off the minute the plane touched the ground. Nygren, 41, is from nearby Belleville, Mich. Joan Mitcha, 27, of Ypsilanti, Mich., was the stewardess.

The stuck wheel was noticed as the nonstop New York-Detroit flight was coming in for a landing. It was Capital Flight 63 out of LaGuardia Field.

In-Law Trouble

MOTHERS CAUSE MOST IN-LAW PROBLEMS!
RIGHT ☐
WRONG ☐

By S. M. DUVALL and EVELAN M. DUVALL, Ph.Ds

THEY MAY, ESPECIALLY if they insist on being too involved in your affairs. But there is a good chance that some of the problem lies in your own aggressive efforts to become independent. As a child you were completely dependent on your parents, as your mate was on the other side of the family. Now you both must stand on your own feet and live your own lives. This isn't always easy. So, you "take it out" on your mother-in-law and blame her for your problems. With true maturity you can enjoy being inter-dependent with your in-laws — that state of mutual helpfulness in which both generations benefit.

Yes ______ No ______

Yes. Most girls want to be homemakers and they go into marriage and family life soon after completing their schooling. Some kind of education for family living is therefore strongly indicated to prepare young people for competence in homemaking. Now, when nine out of ten women work sometime during their lives, a girl needs also training in saleable skills so that when she does go to work she has something to contribute at a rate that brings her a decent return. This calls for the kind of basic educational preparation upon which a girl may build her vocational future.

In mental illness, the doctors can't help the relatives.

True ______ False ______

True. Interviews with 23 psychiatrists connected with hospitals showed that this is on the whole true. The doctors feel that they are more than busy caring for the patients. The relatives often need help, financial and emotional, but this should be provided by social agencies, not by the overworked hospital staff.

YOUR GAS FREE FOR 1 FULL YEAR

WITH YOUR 1959 ENGLISH FORD

HERE'S HOW:

Since we began our "Free Gas Courtesy Card" Plan with the purchase of an ENGLISH FORD it has come to our attention that a great deal of misinformation has reached the public about how the plan works. We have therefore compiled the following list of questions that you might ask and we have answered each one in order to give you the true facts on the "Free Gas" Plan.

Charlie Grentner

PAYMENTS AS LOW AS $9.75 PER WEEK

Q. When and How do I receive the free gas?
A. You receive a Courtesy Card immediately which is good at over 200 stations in Dade County.
Q. How do you figure "1 Year's Supply?"
A. By using an average mileage of 10,000 and arriving at a total of 333 gallons.
Q. Do I pay any more for the car on the Free Gas Campaign?
A. No. All factory prices are the same at all dealers as required by the Federal Price labeling law.
Q. Must I buy any "EXTRAS?"
A. No.
Q. Does the Free Gas plan apply to all models?
A. Yes, there are no gimmicks or restrictions on this plan.
Q. May I choose my brand of gas?
A. Yes. You may choose any brand of regular gas and the station.
Q. Must I use all the Gas within one year?
A. No. If you do not use this much within a year your courtesy card is valid until all the gas has been used.
Q. Am I limited to a certain amount each week?
A. No. You may use as much or as little as you wish.
Q. If I move or go on Vacation do I still receive my free gas?
A. Yes. We can arrange to supply you free gas anywhere in the United States.

Tipoff On Perfection: Palmer Goes Right to Work on Errors

AUGUSTA, Ga.—Defending champions are never satisfied, as Arnold Palmer demonstrated Friday after the second round of the Masters Golf Tournament. He had scrambled to a 36-34—141, three under par, to lead by two strokes at the halfway mark.

Instead of exulting over displacing Canadian Stan Leonard, first day leader who slumped to a 74, Palmer hastened to the practice area to straighten out his iron shots. In puffing over the hills behind Palmer and Sammy Snead, who added a 73 or 147, I saw Palmer's irons time and again get him into trouble. However, he was like Houdini in making escapes.

MacFARLANE

"Arnold is like the rabbit with the dogs chasing him," said Miamian Willie MacFarlane, a former National Open champion. Willie now agrees with Miami Shores' Jim MacLaughlin that Arnold is likely to become the first repeat champion in the 23 years of this golfing classic.

Before they teed off in the second round, MacFarlane had predicted the golfers who survived the hazards of the 10th, 11th and 12th holes would do well. Palmer played these holes in par, while Leonard, who led opening day with a 69, was two over on the three key holes.

Palmer concedes he's learned some big lessons on the tour. He says, "I used to get disgusted when I didn't play well. I picked up in some tournaments. I wouldn't ever do that now. I have learned not to let bad shots or holes upset me. I have learned never to think I'm out of the running."

"I still play boldly where the situation warrants it," Palmer said. He could have been referring to the 10th, where he had to make a beautiful pitch to salvage a par four after being short with his second. It could have applied to the 11th, where he made a closed wedge recovery from a side-hill lie for a par four. Or the 12th, where he had to pitch from the rough to get his par three.

Previewing the Florida Derby

1. Troilus 2. Easy Spur 3. Sword Dancer

The true story of Palmer's greatness was reflected from him practicing while others were telling about their good shots and trying to forget their poor ones.

Our Guys Still Struggling

WITH THE exception of Ed Furgol (156), the South Florida contingent was included among the 42 who scored 149, or better, to stick in the scramble.

Dow Finsterwald of Tequesta had a 68 for a 147. He chopped 11 strokes from his opening round of 79. Julius Boros of Fort Lauderdale added a 69 for a 144. Cary Middlecoff of Diplomat made it with a 71 for a 145 and Snead, floundering to a 73, was in with 147.

Finsterwald

"I don't putt well enough to win the Masters," said Boros, but Ed (Porky) Oliver, who also had a 69, gave him an argument on that, remarking, "You are one of the better putters year in and out."

Boris dropped a 15-footer for an eagle three on the 15th and scored three birdies on putts from 15 to 40 feet. He had to settle for a double-bogey five on the 12th, where he drove into the water. It seems duffers are not alone in making splashes. Boros, who tied for fourth in the 1955 Masters, thinks Tom Day's Plantation course is the best in South Florida.

Sam Slays Ben--With Humor

THE THIRD ROUND was played under clear blue skies, warm temperatures and moderate winds — which put one in mind of Florida weather. Perhaps this was why Snead chose to be humorous rather than complaining about his scoring.

In the lockerroom with an appreciative audience, Sammy even had Ben Hogan, who survived the cutoff with his 147, laugh aloud. Once it was difficult even to make Pokerface Ben smile.

HOGAN

Hogan cackled and almost choked on his sandwich when Snead described how he hit far to the right of the 11th to avoid going into the brook back of the green.

"I almost pitched over the green into the water," Hogan said and laughed again when Sammy told of finding his drive in the woods off the 13th tee, "in a hole, in a rut."

77 Reasons for Sadness

"I got along beautifully," Jackie retorted when asked how he did.

BURKE

"Jackie," said Snead, "you're only 32 years old. You'll have a lot more seventy sevens."

"Maybe," Burke agreed. "But why did it have to come today?"

Burke's sadness was not contagious, because Sammy was in a good humor and allowed he expects to shoot a 67 in the third round. He made one qualification.

"I'll do it, if I can get past the 10th, 11th and 12th. Those holes murder me."

Florida Derby Line: Easy Spur vs. Field

By BUSS HARRIS
Herald Turf Writer

Racing fans from coast to coast will cast their eyes on Gulfstream Park today for the eighth running of Jimmy Donn's $116,400 Florida Derby.

A field of nine, including three of the top candidates for Triple Crown honors this season, will clash in the mile-and-one-eighth classic with the winner earning a net prize of $75,300.

Second money is $20,000; third is $10,000; fourth is $7,000, and the fifth horse will get $3,000.

Hartack

Boulmetis

Rogers

. . . which one will win Derby?

The field, in post position order, includes Easy Spur (Jockey Bill Hartack); Rico Tesio (Walter Blum); McLellan (Logan Batcheller); Rare Rice (Jack Leonard); Revolutionist (Bill Harmatz); The Chosen One (Jimmy Combest); Troilus (Chris Rogers); Master Palynch (Bobby Stevenson); and Sword Dancer (Sam Boulmetis).

A crowd of 25,000 is expected with three bands and a water ski show providing additional entertainment. The spectacle will be televised nationally over CBS (Channel 4) beginning at 4:30 p.m.

Hartack will be seeking his third straight Florida Derby score aboard Spring Hill Farm's Easy Spur. He won last year with Tim Tam and in 1957 with Gen. Duke.

Easy Spur, a gelded son of Crowfoot, earned favoritism in today's contest by an easy victory in the Hutcheson Stakes and a smashing eight-length triumph over Troilus and five other Derby rivals in the Fountain of Youth Stakes.

Bayard Sharp's Troilus and Brookmeade Stable's Sword Dancer are the other members of the Florida Derby's "Big Three."

Troilus had been given a three-week rest following his success over First Landing in the Flamingo and was obviously a "short" horse. In addition, he did not have the services of his regular rider, Rogers. The latter has been sitting out a 10-day suspension which ended Friday.

With Rogers back in the saddle and Troilus now a fit horse following a brilliant workout last Monday, the Sharp colt figures to be a

In This Chase, They Win Close

By GENE PLOWDEN
Associated Press Writer

The winner of today's Florida Derby at Gulfstream Park will be no more than 57 inches closer to the finish line than the second horse at the end of the mile and a furlong run, according to past performances.

Sky Ship won the 1952 Inaugural by a head and Money Broker won by the same margin in 1953. Correlation triumphed by a length in 1954 and Nashua scored by a neck in 1955.

Florida-bred Needles won by three quarters of a length in 1956 and the next year Gen. Duke beat Bold Ruler by a length and a half—biggest margin of them all.

Gen. Duke holds the record for the Derby at 1:46 4-5, which equals the world record for this distance.

Scrambles Past Leonard; Pursuit Hot

Palmer Back in Control, Leads Masters With 141

By HUGH FULLERTON JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

AUGUSTA, Ga. — Arnold Palmer, a golfer with little regard for tradition, made his bid to become the first player ever to win two masters tournaments in succession.

Palmer took over the lead at the halfway point with rounds of 71-70—141 on the wind-toughened, 6,980-yard Augusta National Course. Then he calmly said he wasn't concerned about the tradition that a Masters winner never repeats.

"I'm just concerned about winning the tournament," he said.

Palmer flouted one Masters tradition when he won last year with a solid 284. He was the youngest winner in more than 20 years.

Friday more than a half dozen others had cracked par before Palmer, strong-armed son of veteran Latrobe, Pa., professional, finally established himself as the leader.

The result was probably the tightest cluster of players near the top of the scoring list ever seen in the 25-year-old Masters.

Alone in second place at 143 was Canada's Stan Leonard, the first day leader with 69. In spite of better playing conditions, the 45-year-old Leonard couldn't hold his early pace and finished with a 74.

Within two strokes of him were 15 players, including two foreign visitors and three former U.S. Open champions.

Almost any of them was in position to bid for the title in the remaining two rounds and even such old gallery favorites as Ben Hogan and Sam Snead, U.S. Open Champion Tommy Bolt and PGA Champion Dow Finsterwald weren't clear out of it. They were in another big, chummy group at 147.

Only the 40 low scorers and those tied for 40th place will continue in the last two rounds of the tournament today and Sunday.

With such a cluster of talent at the top, it took a score of 149 or better to survive the cutoff. Among those who failed to make it were Jimmy Demaret, a three-time Masters champion, Horton Smith, who has won twice, and former winners Claude Harmon, Herman Keiser, Craig Wood, and Gene Sarazen.

Friday's playing condisions were made for low scoring and the players were quick to show it.

Finsterwald started with a 68 during the calm early part of the day. Even though the gusty, uncertain wind increased later, the par breaking continued.

Veteran Ed (Porky) Oliver; Julius Boros, former Open Champ, and slender, long-hitting Paul Harney fired three-under-par 69s for 144 totals. They were joined there by Dave Thomas, the big Welshman; Angel Miguel, the tiny Spaniard, and U.S. pros Mike Soucak and Billy Maxwell. Thomas, Souchak and Maxwell all shot 71s.

Miguel had his second 72. Billy Joe Patton, the clouting Morganton, N.C., amateur, and Pro Bo Wininger had 70s for 145 totals.

Palmer started out by getting birdies on the first two holes, but he slipped back even with par at the sixth and stayed there through the 12th in spite of missing a couple of greens.

On the 475-yard 13th he fired an iron shot to the green for a birdie and on the 520-yard 15th he got another bird with a good chip after overshooting the green. He deuced the short 16th but lost a stroke at the 18th green.

New York to Robinson: Fight Basilio or Git!

NEW YORK —(AP)— Middleweight Champion Sugar Ray Robinson Friday was ordered to sign for a title fight with Carmen Basilio by noon April 15, or lose his crown.

The latest ultimatum to the 38-year old champion was issued by the New York athletic commission. At the same time the commission rejected Germany's Gustav (Bubi) Scholz, the European champion, as a suitable contender for Robinson at this time.

Scholz and Robinson's attorney, Martin Machat, had advised the commission by letter that negotiations had been completed for a Robinson-Scholz title fight in the U.S. or Germany before September, 1959.

Ray Robinson

Gen Melvin Krulewitch, commission chairman, pointed out that commission rules require champions to defend their titles every six months. Robinson hasn't defended since he regained the jewels from Basilio in Chicago, March 25, 1958.

New York's warning to Sugar Ray followed the action of the National Boxing Association. On March 30, the NBA indicated it would strip Robinson of his title unless he signed for a defense April 25. The NBA, however, did not name an opponent for Robinson. New York is not a member of the NBA.

Only last January, when the NBA said it would take drastic action against Robinson, Gainford threatened a suit against each member of the NBA's executive committee. When the committee met, Robinson mollified the members by saying he planned a title defense in either May or June.

Krulewitch said that Basilio, the former champion, was the outstanding challenger and that he had filed a formal challenge backed up with the necessary $2,000 check. He said that Gene Fullmer, another ex-champion, had written the commission asking for a title fight but had not filed a formal challenge.

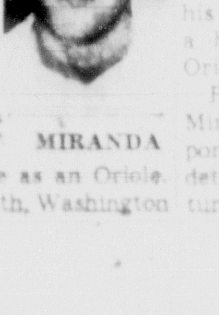
Scholtz, 29, is ranked fourth contender, by both the NBA and Ring Magazine. He has 54-1-4 win-loss-draw record. The German's only loss was to France's Charles Humez on March 11, 1958. Scholz stopped Humez in the 12th round of a return bout last October to win the European title.

Decision Monday

Miranda Comes In --But Is He Out?

The status of Baltimore Shortstop Willie Miranda is still very much up in the air and will probably remain that way until at least next Monday.

Miranda arrived here Thursday night — 36 days late in reporting to the O's spring training camp. "Just passing through," the little Cuban said cheerfully. "Maybe I room with Loes (Pitcher Billy Loes, who was traded to Washington Wednesday)."



MIRANDA

"If Miranda becomes Loes' roommate it'll be as an Oriole. Friday Cal Griffith, Washington owner said he was going to ask Commissioner Ford Frick to void the deal for Loes because Billy has a sore arm.

Richards said he talked to Miranda at length, but reported his status would not be determined until the club returns to Baltimore Monday.

Bear Spins As Phillies Reap, 7 to 2

By EDDIE STORIN
Herald Sports Writer

Jim (Bear) Owens, once a Miami Marlins problem child, may have boosted himself over that hill which separates a major leaguer from a minor leaguer Friday night at Miami Stadium.

For years observers have been saying Owens has as much ability as any pitcher in the Philadelphia Phillies organization. But he's never shown his craftmanship at the proper time.

Friday night, in the first inning, Owens was about one hit away from an early shower. That hit never came and the Phils whipped Baltimores Orioles, 7-2, with the Bear gaining the pitching victory.

Going into Friday's contest Owens' status was clouded with doubt. He reported late to spring training after a brilliant 12-2 winter league season and he was hit hard in two previous exhibition appearances.

A walk, three successive singles and a bases-loaded walk gave the Orioles two runs with only one out in the first inning. Jack Meyer was warming up when Phillie Pitching Coach Tom Ferrick went to the mound for a word with Owens.

Then Billy Gardner slammed into a double play to end the inning and give the Bear new life. From then on, Owens was the master, holding the Orioles hitless until he retired after the seventh inning.

The brilliant comeback undoubtedly lifted Owens into contention for a spot in the Phils' regular starting pitcher rotation since Manager Eddie Sawyer still has an opening or two.

Eddie Bouchee, another ex-Marlin, gave the Phils a 2-2 deadlock in the third inning with the first of his three singles.

Loser Milt Pappas' wild pitch put the Phils on top for keeps in the fourth, and a pair of two-run homers by Harry Anderson and Carl Sawatski wrapped up the victory in the late innings. Both homers came off Reliefer West Stock.

Meyer pitched the last two innings for the Phils, allowing one hit — a double by Joe Ginsberg. The defeat was Baltimore's eighth in 21 games.

Tonight Stan Musial and the St. Louis Cardinals come to town for two days to close out the Orioles' exhibition schedule. Rookie Ernie Broglio will pitch for the Cards; Jack Harshman for Baltimore.

Derby Duel: Easy Spur ...And Field

Sword Dancer could be the under-rated member of the Big Three. In his first start this season, Sword Dancer finished fifth after meeting with interference in the Hutcheson. He came back to rack up an impressive victory at a mile and 70 yards.

Boulmetis will be shooting for his third consecutive "hundred grander" on Sword Dancer. The veteran jockey rode Vertex to victory in the Gulfstream Park Handicap and Bowie's Campbell Memorial the last two Saturdays.

It is interesting to note that in Frank E. Kilroe's 1959 Experimental Free Handicap ratings, Sword Dancer was given 122 pounds with the others in the Florida Derby lineup pegged well below him. Rico Tesio was rated at 116, Easy Spur 113, Troilus 112; Master Palynch 110, Rare Rice 108 and McLellan 105. Revolutionist and The Chosen One were not even listed.

However, Kilroe's ratings were based on 1958 performances and much has happened since then.

As stakes winners, Easy Spur, Troilus, Sword Dancer, Rare Rice and Master Palynch pack 122 pounds today. Rico Tesio, McLellan and Revolutionist carry 118 and The Chosen One gets in with 114 because he has yet to win a race.

Ken Albury Leads Stars

NASSAU, Bahamas —(AP)— E. W. (Skip) Etchells of old Greenwich, Conn., won Friday's second race of three that will decide the International Spring Star class sailing champions.

Etchells ran his point total to 45 by overhauling Kenneth Albury of Nassau in light airs on Montagu Bay.

Skippers Meet Prior to Regatta

A skippers meeting has been scheduled at 8 a.m. Sunday for those who will compete in the Sunburn Sailing Regatta in Biscayne Bay.

The Sunday regatta, an annual event, is sponsored by the Biscayne Bay Yacht Club. Sixteen classes are scheduled.

Southwest Wins

Robert Lee won both the breaststroke and individual medley Friday night to lead Southwest High's boys swimming team to a 60-35 victory over Stranahan at the losers' pool.

Stranahan won the girls meet, 61-34.

Rose Smashes Second Record In AAU Swim

NEW HAVEN, Conn. —(AP)— Three American and four meet records were smashed Friday night in a terrific international display of swimming at the National AAU Indoor Championships.

One of the meet marks was shattered by fabulous Murray Rose as he stroked to his second AAU title by capturing the 220-yard in 2:02.2. The Australian Olympic champion lowered his own mark by three-tenths of a second.

American and meet standards were shattered by Norbert Rumple of Southern Illinois in the 220-yard breaststroke in 2:36.1; by Charley Bittick, Southern California sophomore, in the 100-yard backstroke in 55.5; and by George Harrison, Stanford sophomore, in the 400-yard individual medley in 4:35.8.

Southern California was way in front for team honors with 43 points and eight events to go today. The Indianapolis A. C. and New Haven's Swim Club trailed with 13. The Trojan freshmen, paced by Rose and Henricks, won a year ago.

Southern Cal's speedy 400-yard freestyle relay team beat out the New Haven Swim Club, last year's champs, by six feet. The team consisted of Rose, Don Redington, Tom Winters and Jon Henricks.

Edison Raps Jackson, 5-4; Stings Roll

A two-run error in the sixth inning gave Miami Edison's baseball team a 5-4 victory over previously unbeaten Miami Jackson Friday afternoon on the winners' diamond.

In other local games, Hialeah blanked Tech, 5-0; Miami High downed Miami Beach, 5-3; and South Dade clubbed Christopher Columbus, 9-3.

Stranahan beat Norland, 6-5; Forest Hill of WPB topped St. Pat's, 6-4; and unbeaten Key West toppled Southwest, 9-2, in out-of-town games.

Jackson's costly two-out error gave Edison Pitcher Tommy Davis his third straight victory. Ken Mann and Jack Dewinkle for Edison and George Zardon for Jackson each collected two hits.

Miami High's Bob Ward pitched a no-hitter against the home-standing Typhoons. But walks and errors allowed Beach to score three runs off Ward, who struck out seven and walked four.

Pete Sackman turned in a sparkling three-hit pitching job for Hialeah. He struck out 13. Ted Groome drove in three Hialeah runs with a double and single.

Larry Evans drove in two runs as South Dade won its fourth game at Homestead. Ron Beaudette pitched a three-hitter, giving up six walks and striking out eight.

Edison Trackmen 'Vault' To Gables Meet Victory

By RAY CRAWFORD
Herald Sports Writer

A surprisingly strong showing in the pole vault gave Miami Edison's Red Raiders the Coral Gables High Invitational track championship Friday night at University of Miami.

Edison edged heated rival North Miami, 53¾ to 48½. Going into the night's final event — the pole vault — Edison held a 47¼ to 47 lead over North Miami.

Ronnie Lester won the pole vault for Edison with a jump of 12 feet, 6 inches. His victory and Bill Thompson's tie for third gave the Raiders 6½ points in the pole vault to 1½ to North Miami.

Disqualification of North Miami's J. Williams in the half mile cost the Pioneers five points. Williams crossed the finish line first, but was charged with bumping Winter Haven's Harold Williams twice during the race and at the finish line.

Judges upheld the protest, giving Williams first place, and a new meet record 2:03.5.

Eight other records fell in the meet which attracted 19 schools and over 450 athletes.

Fort Lauderdale's Jeff Little high jumped six feet, four inches; Alan Wright of South Broward ran the 100-yard dash in 10 seconds; Miami High's Ted Young did a sensational 4:37.5 mile; Sooothwest's John DaCosta toured the 180 low hurdles in 19.9, and J. Ryan of South Broward turned in a 51.1 in the 440 yard dash.

Edison's 880 relay team of Pirrotta, Sherrill, Hineman and Curry set a record of 1:32.4. Edison also set a mile relay mark of 3:29.6, and Broward's spring medley team of Ryan, Wright, Chalker and Brewer dashed off a 2:02 record clocking.

Following Edison and North Miami were:

Unser Hospitalized—Observation

2 Cars Spin Out At Daytona Beach

Jerry Unser of Lakewood, Calif., one of the drivers involved, was taken to a hospital to spend the night under observation after complaining of a twisted back.

The other driver, Al Keller of Green Acres City, Fla., escaped unscathed. He later qualified the Central Excavating Special in which he narrowly escaped disaster.

The two incidents slowed up qualifying procedure. It was late in the afternoon before the last six of the 19 or 20 cars which will start recorded their times. It was too late to hold qualifying for Sundays' 1,000-kilometer race, so the tests were canceled.

A second 100-mile race for USAC-FIA formula libre cars also is on today's program. But, as the Indianapolis-type cars come under that classification, the event is expected to be practically a duplicate of the first race's entry list.

A. J. Foyt of Houston, Tex., driving a Dean Van Lines Special, turned in the best time of the six qualifiers Friday. His best of two laps over the two and one - half mile steeply banked course was 168.91 miles an hour.

Dick Rathman said he expected a 40-lap average of 172 mph would win today's race, an opinion shared by other drivers.

There was a question as to whether the Greenman-Casale Special driven by Jimmy Davies of Pocoima, Calif., would be ready to start because of a dropped valve. It did not qualify, but would be permitted to go to the post in last position. Should it start it would bring the field to 20.

Neither of the spinouts was during a trial. Keller's started in a practice run just before he entered the curve at the west end of the track. His car spun and looped on the track once and then three times on the slick infield grass. He was traveling more than 165 miles an hour at the time. The car remained upright and was undamaged.

Unser's machine spun into the top rail of the east turn, shot down to the apron, then up to the rail again, the rear tire hitting the fence. It, too, remained upright.

Outhit Problems on Psychiatrist's Couch

Ed Bouchee Gives This Advice: 'When In Doubt, See A Doctor'

By EDDIE STORIN
Herald Sports Writer

Talk may be cheap to the average person, but to stocky Eddie Bouchee it's the most priceless commodity in the world.

"When a guy has a problem on his mind," says Bouchee, "he shouldn't keep it in. He sould see a psychiatrist."

The Philadelphia Phillies first baseman, far more mature than when he played with the Miami Marlins in 1956, offered this candid advice to the world Friday night at Miami Stadium.

Thirteen months ago Bouchee began his recovery program at the Institute of Living in Hartford, Conn., after pleading guilty to an indecent exposure charge involving two young girls.

"I wouldn't be here today," said Ed, "if it wasn't for a wonderful psychiatrist. "I owe him and Mr. Carpenter (Bob Carpenter, owner of the Phils) everything. They gave me the chance to find myself again.

"My rehabilitation program in Hartford consisted of one thing — talk. Perhaps I talk too much now," he grinned, "but frankly, I don't ever intend to stop."

The 210-pound Frenchman still visits a psychiatrist once a week in Philadelphia, which is now his home. "We just sit around and jabber," he said, "but when I leave I feel great.

"Nobody should ever hold anything inside like I did. They should see a doctor. It wouldn't do anybody any harm to visit a psychiatrist even if they feel okay.

"You never know," he stressed. "It was almost too late when I found out."

Baseball-wise Bouchee feels he's ready to better his rookie year when he hit .293 with 17 home runs and 76 runs batted in.

"The Phillies had a track coach work with me all winter," Ed said. "He taught me how to run . . . I never really knew before. This alone should add some hits and boost my average.

"And I've never been more relaxed or happier. I think I've found myself for keeps."

Braves Win in 13th On Covington Homer

By the Associated Press

The Milwaukee Braves, defending National League champions and everybody's Florida cousins, proved Friday that they still know how to win those extra-inning baseball games.

The Braves' 7-15 exhibition record is the worst in the majors, but the way they won, 4-3, from the Washington Senators in 13 innings at Orlando is a far better indication of their potential.

Power-hitter Wes Covington broke a 3-3 tie that had existed since the third inning with a home run. Pitchers Humberto Robinson and Bob Giggie who came on in the seventh, held the Nats scoreless over the last 10 innings.

New York blanked Los Angeles, 1-0, at Sarasota; St. Louis defeated Chicago's White Sox, 2-1, at St. Petersburg; Pittsburgh beat Kansas City, 6-1, at West Palm Beach; Detroit routed Cincinnati, 10-5, at Tampa and San Francisco defeated Cleveland, 6-4, at Phoenix in other games.

Rookie John Gabler and Zack Monroe combined for the Yankees shutout as the World Champions' pitching continued to sparkle. The Dodgers managed only one hit off each Yank pitcher. Gil McDougald's homer,

Griffith Asks Frick to Void Deal on Loes

ORLANDO — (AP) — President Cal Griffith of the Washington Senators Friday said he will ask Baseball Commissioner Ford Frick to void a deal in which the Baltimore Orioles sent sore-armed Billy Loes to the Nats.

Griffith said the Senators' team physician had found Loes, an out-spoken right-hander, to have an incomplete rupture of the right arm near the shoulder. The physician recommended surgery, but said there is only a 50-50 chance of recovery from the ailment.

Griffith added that Lee MacPhail, Orioles' general manager, had told him Loes' arm was sound before the Tuesday swap which gave Baltimore Right-hander Vito Valentinetti.

(In Miami, Paul Richards, Orioles' manager, said "the whole baseball world knew that Loes had a sore arm. It's nothing new.")

Loes was sent to Washington for the examination Thursday, after reporting to the Senators and complaining of a sore arm.

Loes, 29, had a 3-9 record with the Orioles last year, his eighth season in the Majors. He broke in with the Brooklyn Dodgers in 1950 and had his top year in '53 with the Brooks with a 14-8 record.

In New York, Frick offered no comment pending an official request from Griffith.

Orange Wins Spring Game At Florida

GAINESVILLE —(AP)— Dave Bludworth, a 155-pound halfback who enrolled at the University of Florida without a football scholarship, was the star runner of the annual Orange and Blue intrasquad game ending spring practice Friday.

Coach Bob Woodruff said Bludworth, of De Funiak Springs, and Jim Eadons, another halfback from Sarasota, will go on scholarship for the way they played in spring drills.

Bludworth set up the first touchdown for the Orange team — winner of the game 13-6—with a 68-yard run in the second quarter. He was the top runner with 78 yards on four carries.

Because heavy rains interferred with the practice schedule, play was ragged. Coach Woodruff said the layoffs had spoiled the timing but the players hustled and scrapped well.

Sal 'Thinking It Over'

Cardinals Seek Maglie as Coach

ST. PETERSBURG — (AP) — Sal Maglie, who helped pitch the New York Giants, Brooklyn Dodgers and New York Yankees to four pennants, is considering an offer to serve as a pitching coach in the St. Louis Cardinals Farm system.

Maglie revealed Friday the offer was made Thursday by Cardinal General Manager Bing Devine after announcement that the Redbirds were giving the 42-year-old right-hander his unconditional release.

MAGLIE

"I deeply appreciate their offer," Maglie said in the Cardinal clubhouse at Al Lang Field. "But I don' know whether I will accept it. I promised Bing I'd think it over and let him know in two-three days."

Giant-Killing Lakers Go After Celts Today

BOSTON —(AP)— Giant-killer Minneapolis Friday mapped slowdown tactics to atone for 18 straight losses to the Boston Celtics and regain its onetime rating as the royalty of pro basketball.

The setting will be the finals of the National Basketball Association playoffs which open today at Boston Garden in a nationally televised contest (NBC-TV, Channel 7, 3 p.m. EST).

The Lakers, who finished 17 games back of defending world champion St. Louis in the Western Division only to stun the Hawks in the regional playoffs, aren't going to play dead for the Celts.

But playoffs are a different matter as St. Louis discovered. Led by the scoring magic of rookie-of-the-year Elgin Baylor, the Lakers wiped out the Hawks in six games. Meanwhile, Boston had to go the full seven contests to eliminate Syracuse in a frantic finish.

"The trick is to knock about 10 or 12 points off the 119-point average the Celtics have been scoring at our expense," explained Minneapolis Coach Johnny Kundla. "I think that would beat them.

Lincoln Special Called Off

LINCOLN, R. I. — (AP) — The $50,000-added Lincoln Special scheduled for April 18 at Lincoln Downs was canceled Friday because of a lack of nominations.

Managing Director B. A. Dario canceled the rich race for 3-year-olds and up with only three nominations in hand and the deadline set for tonight.

The only nominees were Babu, a Chilean-bred colt who had raced in this country only three times, and Roman Romeo and Admiral's Joy, a pair of New England-owned campaigners.

Louisville Slugger Due Here Today

Beecham, determined to prove a boast that "I'll be stronger than most welterweights," pulled out all the stops in his Friday drills, throwing punches in what amounted to non-stop action.

Beecham's workout indicated that he'd be faster and more durable around the 150-pound mark than when he "slopped up" to meet middleweights on nearly equal terms at 160.

Jamaica, Laurel Card $25,000ers

By the Associated Press

While most of the nation's racing fans focus on Gulfstream Park and today's $100,000-added Florida Derby, the show goes on at four other horse tracks.

In two cases, it's a show with a $25,000-plus feature.

Jamaica offers the $25,000 added Paumonok Handicap, while Laurel has the $25,000-added Wilwyn Handicap. Tanforan is topped by its $15,000-added California Oaks for three-year-old fillies, and Lincoln Downs offers the $10,000 Bill McAuley Memorial Handicap for three-year-olds.

Nine sprinters were named for the 50th running of the six-furlong Paumonok, with Calumet Farm's Kentucky Pride, Brookfield Farm's Isendu and Mrs. Joe W. Brown's Tenacious expected to fight it out for the winner's share.

Kentucky Pride, ridden by Steve Brooks, and Isendu, ridden by Willie Shoemaker, were top-weighted with 123 pounds. Tenacious, handicap star at New Orleans' Fair Grounds, was to carry 122 pounds. Isendu, with a pull in the weights, whipped the favored Kentucky Pride in the opening day feature at Jamaica.

UM Thinclads Visit Citadel

University of Miami's track team will meet The Citadel in Charleston, S. C. today with little hope of breaking what now stands as a nine-meet losing streak.

Coach Bob Downes' shorthanded Hurricanes are further handicapped by the fact that Bob Rosbaugh, potential first place winner in the pole vault and high jump and Walter Corey, also a potential five point winner in the javelin, were unable to make the trip because of spring football practice.

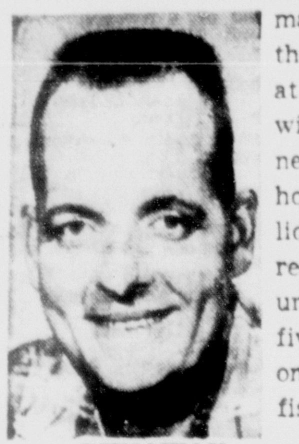
Announcer Plans Marathon

There's A Fish Tale In the Making Here

"It's a stunt, of course," Ray Barnett was saying, "but we're keeping it dignified. It's not any circus. No wild gimmicks."

Barnett, a young fishing skipper-turned-broadcaster was talking about his one-man "fishing marathon" which started at noon Friday. It will end when Barnett can no longer hold apart his eyelids, or crank on his reel handle. He figures about three to five days, depending on the number of fish he catches.



DUNAWAY

"The more fish I fight the tireder I'll get," he pointed out. "And, really, the main point of the marathon is to catch plenty of fish—not just to stay awake a long time."

Barnett lists three reasons for his long angling fling, the principal one being to prove beyond doubt that fishing off Miami Beach is nothing short of fabulous—even when you anchor in one spot and stay there.

"I expect to load up," he said confidently, "on everything from billfish to bottom fish. You don't have to troll to catch sailfish, you know, if you have good live bait."

* * *

Will Release Most Fish

SECOND REASON given for the marathon is to help promote the Metropolitan Miami Fishing Tournament, and therefore to aid in spreading the word on Miami-area fishing throughout the land. The Met's highly-geared publicity machine turns out usable copy for virtually every daily paper in the country.

All of Barnett's fish will be entered in the Met.

"Except for possible citation winners, I'll release most of the fish," he said, "provided someone is aboard to witness the release."

As for reason number three—well, its simply to bring a bit of public notice to radio station WMET, for which Barnett broadcasts a fishing program called Marine Mysteries every day at 6 a.m. and 5:55 p.m. During the marathon, the programs will be aired directly from the boat.

* * *

Another Big Reason Yet?

HEADQUARTERS of the fishathon is Capt Jack Holt's 55-footer, the Skipjack, which is anchored exactly three miles west of the Miami harbor entrance in 75 feet of water.

Barnett hopes plenty of daytime visitors will help him fight off the sandman, and anyone who wants to "drop in" has only to apply at the Skipjack Line ticket office at the Chamber of Commerce Docks for free taxi service out to the boat.

FISHING

...with Vic Dunaway

To guard against the possibility of his cat-napping at night, Barnett has enlisted local newsmen and radio broadcasters as nighttime observers.

Some more rules: No mate or assistant will help him rig baits, strike or fight a fish. He will have at least one baited hook in the water all the time, and he will not cut off a fish—even a big shark which might battle him a couple of hours and sap his strength. Under no conditions will the boat be moved until the marathon is over.

Although he didn't say so, I have a sneaking hunch there is another big reason for this mammoth angling endeavor.

Is there a fisherman anywhere who wouldn't welcome the chance to head for the deep blue and fish until he drops?

Fronton OK Near Dog Track

The court said the racing law provision that a new race track cannot be located within 100 miles of an existing racing plant does not apply to frontons.

The only distance restriction applying to jai alai is that a new fronton must be at least 20 miles from an existing fronton. But the court said the 20 mile limitation applies only to frontons and does not affect the proximity of a new fronton to an existing race track.

The court, in a unanimous five-judge opinion written by Justice T. Frank Hobson, ordered the state racing commission to issue a permit to Florida Jai Alai, Inc., for a new fronton in Seminole County on the Sanford-Orlando highway. The proposed fronton would be just across the highway from the Sanford-Orlando kennel club's dog racing track.

The racing commission denied the jai alai permit last June on the ground that the proposed fronton would not be 20 miles away from the dog track.

Scott Chills Odds, Logart In Third

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Charley Scott, Philadelphia's up - and - coming welterweight slammed Isaac Logart to the deck and pounded the Cuban mercilessly against the ropes for a stunning third round technical knockout Friday night.

Referee Marty Gallagher called off the punishment at 1:14 of the round. It was Scott's second victory over Logart in three weeks.

A whistling left hook to the jaw drove Logart to the canvas, and the small crowd at Capitol Arena for this nationally televised bout yelled for Scott, an 8-5 underdog, to finish it off.

Charley obliged. Logart dragged himself up at the count of six and was still wobbly when Gallagher let them at each other again at nine.

Montreal Traffic Jam 'Ties Up' Black Hawks

CHICAGO—(AP)—Facing do-or-die pressure, the Chicago Black Hawks plan to throw a fourth attacking line against the Montreal Canadiens in their sixth Stanley Cup semi-final round game in Chicago Stadium tonight. Montreal leads, 3-2.

Sleepy-eyed Hawk players got off their plane at 4 a.m., convinced the Canadiens' best weapon Thursday night in a 4-2 victory was a pre-game traffic jam which held up the Hawks' bus ride to the Montreal Forum.

Coach Pilous had whisked the Hawks to a mountain hideaway to keep them calm and relaxed for the game. They were anything but that when they virtually skated from the bus to a puck faceoff against the Canadiens.

"We never got out the kinks and the Canadiens killed us in the first 10 minutes," said Coach Rudy Pilous.

TORONTO — The Toronto Maple Leafs, on the short end of the odds since they started their Stanley Cup playoff drive three weeks ago, are out in front for the first time. Now they have to prove they can stay there.

Riding a three-game winning streak, the Leafs go into tonight's sixth game of their semi-final series against the Boston Bruins with a 3-2 lead.

"None of us will be happy until we've won the series for sure," said Coach Punch Imlach Friday before putting his team through an hour-long practice. "The players are confident they can win but they're not taking those Bruins for granted."

Silvers Discharge Due At End of This Season

By RICHARD F. SHEPARD
The New York Times Service

Phil Silvers
. . . four-year hitch ends

NEW YORK — Sgt. Ernie Bilko will leave television's front lines at the end of this season.

The stormy sergeant created by Phil Silvers will get his discharge after four seasons. This confirms previous speculations.

However, there were indications that Silver would appear on Columbia Broadcasting System TV next season. Perhaps in some special shows.

The 9 to 10 p.m. period filled by the Army comedy and "Lux Playhouse" each Friday will be taken by "Desilu Playhouse." This series of dramas appears on CBS-TV on Mondays from 10 to 11 p.m.

The Westinghouse Electric Corp., sponsor of "Desilu," had been looking for a time later in the week.

Apparently a large part of the company's appliance sales are made over week-ends and the advertiser felt that a spot later in the week would be more advantageous.

CHANGING conditions in radio and television have spurred seven unions with nationwide network contacts to try for greater solidarity in future industry negotiations.

The unions meet here in a closed session. They will attempt to work out a plan of unity on such issues as the growth of video tape, the increasing use of programs made in foreign countries and moves by networks to stockpile programs when contracts run out and strikes threaten.

The meeting was arranged by the National Association of Broadcast Employes and Technicians.

G. Tyler Byrne, international executive vice president, said that it was the first such gathering of broadcast unions.

He noted that each of the unions had been involved in major negotiations that produced "startling results" in the last year and a half.

Firemen Have Fire Trouble

DENVER, Colo. — (AP) — A police radio dispatcher sent a car to a Denver fire station with this message:

"Turn out the fire under the roast."

Seems the firemen had departed in a hurry to put out a weed fire. The cook forgot to turn off the oven.

Persons and Programs

NBC-TV'S Jack Paar will vacation from April 27 to May 15. Eddie Albert and Margo will spell Paar the first week.

CBS-TV's Ed Sullivan will film shows in Italy in August and in Russia in September . . . CBS-TV's Trackdown has the wobbles.

NBC-TV's Omnibus is trying to coax in Cyril Ritchard for a musical project later this season . . . ABC-TV will back-to-back three 60-minute shows on Monday night next fall—Cheyenne, Bourbon Street and Adventures In Paradise—which means that Voice of Firestone will have to find a new slot . . . CBS-TV's Jack Benny is down with a virus bug in New York.

Illegitimacy Curb Studied

North Carolina Debates Sterilization Penalty

RALEIGH, N. C. — (AP) — A bill which would permit sterilization as a means of curbing illegitimate births was debated at a legislative public hearing.

The bill would give the State Eugenics Board authority to classify as "grossly sexually delinquent" a woman who gave birth twice out of wedlock, and to order her sterlized. The woman would have the right to appeal to Superior Court for a jury trial. The measure would set up steps to attempt to rehabilitate the mother of one or more illegitimate children.

If the bill passed the Legislature, it would become law inasmuch as the governor has no veto power.

Doctors and county officials supported the proposal, pointing to the burden of illegitimate children on public welfare rolls.

Opponents, most of them speaking as private citizens, attacked the bill as contrary to religious teaching, costly, unwieldly, and as cruel and unusual punishment for immoral behavior.

Dr. Claude Nichols of Duke University said severe emotional disturbances often follow when a woman is sterilized.

Maestro Sweepstakes Racing to the Wire

Herald Bureau

FORT LAUDERDALE — The Symphony Orchestra "sweepstakes" winner will be made known this month, possibly in another week.

Symphony officials will decide which of the season's four guest conductors will become permanent, but it won't be an easy selection.

In the late book the choice seemed to lie between Henri Nosco, the first conductor of the season, and Mario de Bonaventura, the last.

A number of orchestra members are betting that di Bonaventura, son of a West Virginia barber, is a shoo-in, but he's by no means a unanimous choice.

The people who were closest to all four conductors, the musicians, will have a strong voice in the selection.

The job pays about $9,000 a year and was sought after by conductors and would-be conductors from coast to coast and even in Canada.

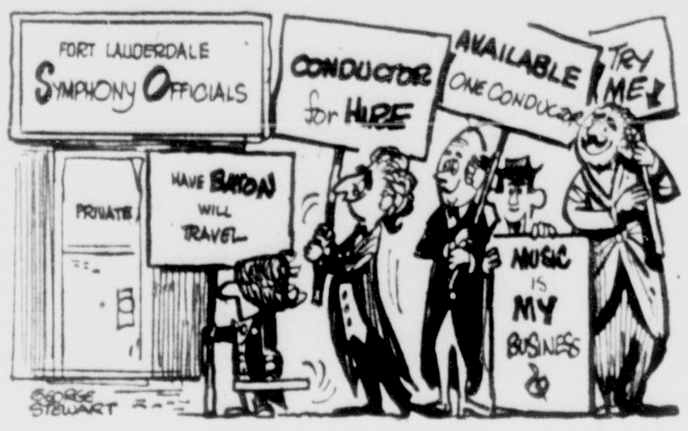
"It will be a tremendous decision," said Mrs. David Riddle, chairman of the orchestra committee, "and no matter which one is selected, three-quarters of the people will think it's the wrong one."

Michael Bowles, a native of Dublin, and Robert Mandell, a protege of Leonard Bernstein, conductor of the New York Philharmonic Symphony, also are in the running.

Members of the orchestra and the directors already have been polled, and their choice is known to the orchestra committee members, who are keeping it a secret.

An informal poll of four musicians Wednesday showed some strong likes and dislikes, but gave no indication of who the choice will be.

One violinist was all for Mandell because of his



"vibrance and technique." Another made fun of Mandell and said Nosco was the best suited.

"He's a real artist and a thorough musician," he said.

"There are men in this area who are better," she said.

Another was for di Bonaventura.

One musician, who declined use of his name, said Nosco appeared to be ahead until di Bonaventura showed up.

Di Bonaventura, he said, is not as fine a musician as Nosco, who for years was assistant concert master under Toscanini, but was surprisingly good. His informality at rehearsals makes him a good bet for school concerts and for getting along with the public, he said.

The orchestra committee, composed of representatives of the orchestra, the board and Symphony Society, will consider the poll of the musicians and the directors.

The committee then will make its recommendation to the executive board, which will make the final choice.

Will We Bite The Hand...?

WITH THE STATE OF FLORIDA in financial straits, it will be interesting to watch the reaction of her population to the belt-tightening and the other difficulties that seem to be inevitable.

What will they do, the people who have enjoyed her and those who have waxed fat off of her in this last plush, free-spending decade? Fight back at her in her troubles — or tighten their own belts and stand with her? . . .

Jitneys Might Help Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD WOULD BE WELL ADVISED to look seriously at the idea for jitney service to the North Beach area. Such cars have served Miami Beach well for many years, and people who are habitual riders across Biscayne Bay prefer them to the buses. For one thing, they make the trip faster and no one has to stand up . . .

It can be a very rewarding effort, the creation of a library; people with books of value or interest which they no longer have space for, or would like to put to good use in behalf of the community, should keep this project in mind . . .

PUBLISHING CIRCLES IN HOLLYWOOD are agog over the fact that Bert Nevins Jr., young son of the Mrs. America impresario, has established a new paper called The Item. Geoffrey Frankel is co-editor; Tommy Mann, Dennis Salus, Bruce Frankel and Cathy Chiste are the reporters.

Most fascinating story in the latest issue, which all the metropolitan papers missed, was this one by Bruce Frankel:

"David Balick, four, son of Dr. and Mrs. Balick, was injured while playing Zorro. He attempted a leap and landed teeth first into the headboard of his bed. His face was badly swollen and his teeth are now in need of repair . . . in case you didn't know, his father is a dentist." . . .

Want End to 'Promises'

Negro Leaders Claim Patience 'Running Out'

Herald Bureau

FORT LAUDERDALE—Negro leaders have told City Commission candidates they are becoming impatient with the city's response to their needs.

The Negro leaders spoke after 16 commission candidates aired their views before the 125 Negro members of Northwest Voters League at the Northwest YMCA Wednesday night.

The Rev. H. W. Sweeting of the Mount Herman Church and the Rev. Robert Lee of the Mount Olive Baptist Church said their people's patience has "about run out."

They said they were dissatisfied with promises and pleas for patience so that their problems may be worked out.

Nathaniel Wilkerson, Negro candidate for the commission, attacked what he called "definite and obvious lack of thorough representation" for the community and the allocation of capital funds without regard to the greatest need.

Child Badly Hurt by Car

HALLANDALE — A three-year-old girl was seriously injured Thursday when she darted into the path of a car near her home.

In poor condition with a concussion and possible skull fracture at Memorial Hospital was Marlene Isler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Boyd Isler, 202 E. Hallandale Beach Blvd.

Police said the child had been playing in a neighbor's yard and tried to cross the street to her home.

The driver of the car, Peter Paul Reinar, 25, of Fort Lauderdale, told police he first stopped his auto when he saw the girl at the edge of the street. He said after he started up again, the youngster dashed into the car.

No charges were filed against the driver, police said.

Traffic Survey Shelved

Election First At Hollywood

By RICK TUTTLE
Herald Staff Writer

HOLLYWOOD — City commissioners held a special meeting Thursday on a proposed $72,000 parking and traffic survey, then tabled action until after the municipal elections.

In a 3-2 vote, the board decided the eve of an election wasn't the proper time to act on what Mayor E. L. McMorrough called a "political issue."

"We can't tell who will be sitting in these seats 19 days from now," McMorrough said. "I can't see jamming something like this down their throats."

Commissioners William Zinkil and Jerry Tardiff, both candidates in the April 7 primary, opposed the move.

The city Long Range Planning and Advisory Board has strongly urged immediate approval of a parking and traffic survey by the Ruhl-Barry Co.

"I'm angry over a demand like this by the Planning Board," McMorrough said. "We are being criticized by one of our own boards for not taking action earlier. They sat on it for two months and now expect us to hop around like rabbits."

City Planner Neno J. Spagna agreed with McMorrough's contention that the survey could be made later and still be accurate. The company can project figures to establish the parking and traffic needs at peak season, he said.

Zinkil wanted immediate approval, however, and Tardiff seconded his motion to hire Ruhl-Barry.

But Commissioner B. L. David moved for the tabling, which superseded a vote on Zinkil's motion.

In other action, the board: PASSED a resolution pledging acquistion of right-of-way for relocation of the Intracoastal Waterway at the Sheridan St. bridge site.

ADOPTED a resolution urging Gov. LeRoy Collins and the Broward legislative delegation to help fight discontinuance of the summer youth recreational program supported in part by state school funds.

Schools May Forbid Off-Campus Lunches

Fear 'Gravy Train'

'CUT Our Salary,' Ask Two Officials

By TOM VINCIGUERRA
Herald Staff Writer

HOLLYWOOD—"We don't want to see the medical examiner's office become a gravy train."

Thus did Dr. Jack Mickley, county medical examiner explain Thursday why he asked his bosses, the County Commissioners, for a salary cut.

"What's the gimmick?" the baffled commissioners wondered. "Put it in writing."

"There's no gimmick," insisted Dr. Mickley. "Dr. Haugen (Dr. Roger Haugen, associate medical examiner) and I want a straight salary of $12,000 a year each."

The physician says the present fee system, under which the medical examiner receives a fee for each autopsy and examination, should have gone out with the Broward peace justices and constables.

Mickley said the number of cases has soared annually (from 100 in 1952 to 615 last year), and he frankly admitted "$12,500 is enough for the job. We don't want to make a gravy train out of the medical examiner's office."

Mickley added: "If our work drops, we'll ask the commission to knock off some money. If it increases, we'll ask for more money."

Last year, 617 cases handled by the medical examiners' office cost the county $35,344.44 in fees. If the commission goes for the salary arrangement next year, Dr. Mickley said the county will save $3,000 right off the bat.

Dr. Mickley says he has another reason for asking for the pay cut.

The Broward medical examiner's office has set an example in its operations," he said. "We are used as a model by other communities seeking to set up a medical examiner's office."

Zoners Accused Of Stalling

Herald Bureau

FORT LAUDERDALE—The County Zoning Board was accused Thursday of delaying a decision on rezoning to permit a 2½ million dollar shopping center pending outcome of a Pompano Beach move to annex the area.

A referendum election will be held April 14 to decide if Pompano Beach residents are in favor of a city charter change which would allow residents of an outside area to vote for annexation to Pompano.

If it is annexed, the Pompano Beach Zoning Board will take jurisdiction over the disputed zoning. A number of residents in the area are opposed to the shopping center and want the county commission to reject a request to rezone it for the shopping center.

The center has been proposed for the junction of Cypress Rd. and Airport Rd., north of Lyons Park.

Frank B. Akerman, representing the residents, presented a petition to the County Zoning Board Wednesday night asking the board to turn the matter over to the County Commission for a decision.

Fiesta Float

Finishing touches were applied late Thursday to this float for tonight's Fiesta Tropicale parade through downtown Hollywood. Mrs. Louise LaVoie, chairman of the Highlanders, readies a West Hollywood entry. More than 23 floats will be in the two-hour spectacle, expected to draw 75,000 persons.

SHE'S LOOKING, too — forward, that is, to visiting Everglades to help promote the Festival of Florida Products April 17-25. The celebration has won the Collier County seat the governor's award for the past two years. This year it will feature a boat-a-cade to which the 30 principal boating clubs of the state have been invited and — oh, yes, Miss Bee Mueller of Winter Haven, the former Festival queen.

'Home Rule' Hinted by Petersen

By CLARENCE ZAITZ
North Broward Bureau

POMPANO BEACH—County Commission Chairman George Petersen made a broad hint at a modified form of home rule before the Chamber of Commerce Thursday.

He cited how the county's hands are tied "by an antiquated state constitution" which doesn't give the county enough legislative power.

Petersen made the remarks at a monthly coffee club meeting of the Chamber of Commerce as he outlined the county's progress and plans, but dwelled largely on tax problems the county faces.

He called for a "new governor and completely new Legislature" if they don't do something about reapportionment. He termed reapportionment "is the only solution to the equalization of taxes."

Petersen also called for the Legislature to "quit appropriating county tax dollars for any purpose not within the jurisdiction of the county government."

Health Measure Studied by Board

By GREGG TAYLOR
Herald Staff Writer

HOLLYWOOD — Students in junior and senior high schools will take no trips to the corner hamburger stand for lunch next year if the School Board adopts a recommendation on its cafeterias.

A requirement that all junior and senior high students eat in school cafeterias is included in a list of recommendations from the board's Cafeteria Advisory Committee.

The board will take them up next Wednesday, John Calvin, committee chairman, said here Thursday.

The recommendations also include proposals for bulk buying, which Calvin said could save up to $10,000 yearly.

A committee recommendation reads:

"All students of junior and senior highs who do not bring their lunch to school will be required to eat at the cafeterias unless they are excused by parents."

If approved, the policy would take effect in September.

There are several reasons for the requested change, the report says.

Through maximum use of the cafeterias, healthful meals can be served at the lowest possible cost.

It will keep youngsters from going to drive-ins or lunch wagons near their schools to get "inadequate" meals.

It would provide closer relationships of principals and teachers with students.

"Quite frankly this means teachers and principals could better control discipline by keeping children on the campus," the committee said.

And the committee recommends immediate end to free lunches for guests of school personnel or outside "dignitaries."

The committee, which worked six months on its recommendations, also makes these proposals:

Non-food supplies for cafeterias would be bid on through the School Purchasing Departments. Cafeteria managers now buy paper, pencils, napkins and the like. Each cafeteria would requisition these items from the low bidder.

The School Purchasing Department would be asked to prepare a plan for bulk bidding on non-perishable foods, with the low bidder delivering directly to the schools.

Witness Search Renewed

By ERWIN POTTS
Herald Staff Writer

FORT LAUDERDALE — Glenn Mercer, elusive key witness whose absence blocked trial of the county's chief building inspector, Charles Vermorel, is reported back in town.

But Assistant State Attorney Quentin Long and County Special Investigator Carl Christy hadn't found him late Thursday.

Armed with a subpoena, Christy combed the West Hollywood haunts of Mercer Wednesday with no results. A tip from an acquaintance of Mercer's set off the search.

Mercer's friend said he was seen by several people in West Hollywood in the past few days.

Vermorel had been charged with extortion and malpractice but charges were dropped and he was reinstated March 23 after failure to locate Mercer caused cancellation of his trial for the second time.

Both Mercer and carpenter Ernest Rainey, 6304 SW 22nd St., West Hollywood, were expected to testify that Vermorel accepted "under the table" money from them while he was chief building inspector.

Mercer disappeared in early February and was reported in Georgia, Cuba, Hawaii and South America.

County Solicitor Tom Coker said Thursday that even if Mercer is located he will not refile charges against Vermorel until he is convinced Mercer will be on hand for the trial.

"There's no way we can hold him until the trial," said Coker. "I want to talk to him myself to make sure he'll be there."

Hundreds Want In the Act Of Redesigning 'Old Glory'

By DAVID KRASLOW
Of Our Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Fifty stars forming a silhouette of George Washington.

—Stars forming the letters USA.

These are among hundreds of suggested designs for the 50-star flag forwarded to the Army Quartermaster Corps, official repository for all such proposals.

KRASLOW

Suggestions have come from just about every part of the U.S. except Hawaii, the soon-to-be 50th state.

There have been entries from 44 states, the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico—and even three foreign countries (Peru, Costa Rica and Canada.)

Some 450 star designs have been submitted by more than 550 individuals and organizations. There have been more than 100 duplications.

About 75 per cent proposed variations of straight rows of stars.

Included among the suggestions was the design used in the 50-star flag which Interior Secretary Fred Seaton has had on display in his office for months.

Seaton's unofficial flag has six rows of seven stars across and one row of eight stars. The eighth star causes a slight bulge in the middle row.

The new 49-star flag, approved last January, has seven staggered rows of seven stars each.

The Army says most of the suggestions were submitted by adults, but "a good number" came from children.

The Army is holding onto the suggestions until it is told what to do with them. It is expected that a presidential commission will be appointed to recommend a new design.

There was a suggestion that the Statue of Liberty be placed in the blue field with stars clustered around it.

Some suggested a cross for the blue field; others a Star of David.

One design had the appearance of a cattle brand — an "X" inside a circle.

Other proposals:

The continental U.S. outlined in stars.

Fifty little stars forming a big star.

The words "In God We Trust" over a cross of stars.

One contributor suggested sprinkling 50 stars into the blue field in any old manner so that there would be no problem in adding stars "when the U.S. admits China, India and Russia."

Gas Prices Are Eyed

BOISE, Idaho —(AP)— Gov. Robert E. Smylie named an investigating committee to probe gasoline prices which range from 25 to 40 cents a gallon in Idaho.

The governor sent a telegram to 10 major oil companies saying he has learned that "some prices currently used in the trade violate the Idaho Unfair Sales Act and state anti-trust statutes."

Smylie also asked the major oil companies to correct the situation.

The chairman of the investigating committee, which is to report by the 1961 Legislature session, said its study will be "thorough and factual and not witch-hunting."

Realty Men Hit Closings

A stand against closing schools to avoid integration has been taken by the Real Estate Industries Council of Dade County.

Maurice M. Meehan, chairman of the council, which includes organizations in building and related fields, said it is supporting a recent resolution of the Florida Education Association opposing any school-closing measure.

"We know that a segment of the Florida Legislature may introduce such a proposal in this session," he said. "We want to lend whatever support we can to kill such a measure."

The council has sent telegrams to Dade legislators and to Gov. LeRoy Collins, he said.

Short Circuit, Squalls Cut Off Downtown Power

FORT LAUDERDALE — Power was knocked out south of New River for up to 50 minutes Thursday afternoon when insulators flashed over and burned out a relay circuit at Florida Power and Light Co.'s Pinehurst substation.

AROUND BROWARD

The downtown area and many other sections of the city were also affected for several minutes when a fast - moving squall line passed through.

William McGee, FP&L manager in Fort Lauderdale, said the cause of the substation failure was not known. It occurred almost an hour before the storm hit. All power was restored as the 10-minute thundershower came to an end around 3:30 p.m.

Pianist Scores in Concert

By BOB FREUND
Special to The Herald

FORT LAUDERDALE — The Community Concert Association season concluded Wednesday night in a blaze of pianistic glory.

FREUND

Grant Johannesen, who replaced the ailing Van Cliburn, was no mere substitute. It is unfortunate that many seemingly did not attend this concert by an artist whose name may not be found on the front pages. The ones who did come, came to hear, not to see.

The still youthful Johannesen is a mature musician, who we are certain possesses a much more ,interesting and varied repertoire than his younger colleague.

Mr. Johannesen is a performer who can evoke a tremendous storm or a trailing wisp of smoke, and does not miss the in-between dramatic nuances.

The Bach - Saint - Saens gavotte in B Minor was simply effective; the Mozart sonata in D was executed with brilliant runs, and revealed the immense resources of this artist.

The concert was a fitting finish to what has been a remarkably varied and musically rewarding seasons.

Masseuses Arrested

HOLLYWOOD — Two women were free under $500 bonds Thursday after police raided a massage parlor.

Detective Fred Rohloff said the Rubino woman, instead of massaging him, undressed and told him to do the same. He and Officer Robert Loos then arrested the women.

Arabs Hit Iraq As 'Red Gate'

BEIRUT, Lebanon — (AP) — An Arab League foreign ministers meeting, called to tackle the Iraq-United Arab Republic dispute, got off to a bad start Thursday. Iraq boycotted the session and its leftist regime came under heavy attack from the U.A.R. and Yemen.

Furthermore, only six of the 10 league members were represented. Besides Iraq, Jordan and Tunisia sent no representatives. Libya's delegation has yet to arrive.

Deputy Foreign Minister Farik Zeineddin told a formal public session that Iraqi Premier Abdel Karim Kassem had refused President Gamal Abdel Nasser's appeals for cooperation.

Hassan Ibn Ibrahim of Yemen, whose country is loosely federated with the U.A.R., followed up with an assertion that the Iraqis had opened the doors of the Arab World to the danger of Communism.

Both the U.A.R. and Yemen urged that the sessions be public. This in effect, would put Kassem on public trail for flirting with Communism.

This demand for open sessions was taken up in a subsequent closed meeting.

Zeineddin implied that Kassem had given Israel another opportunity to move against the Arab peoples, saying that Iraq's attitude is reflected in "international currents."

Angry Cary Middlecoff Heads For Putting Green After 74

AUGUSTA, Ga. — South Florida's chief contenders — Cary Middlecoff and Sammy Snead — had different complaints Thursday after soaring to opening 74s in the 23rd Masters Golf Tournament.

Middlecoff, short with putts in posting a 35-39—74, strode angrily to the practice putting green for a long session. He is pro at Hallandale's Diplomat club.

Snead, whose Boca Raton contract has been extended three years, muttered about gusty winds which he partially blamed for his 36-38—74.

MIDDLECOFF

Cary and Sammy had one thing in common. Each was five strokes behind Canadian Star Leonard who set the first round pace with a remarkable three-under-par 33-36—69. The morning rains, blown away by gusty winds which cleared the skies, did not bother Leonard. He led the pack by two strokes.

Leonard picked up birdies on putts from 15 to 22 feet on the first, sixth and seventh holes.

The course will play differently today, because the wind dried out the layout and the greens should be faster. Defending Champion Arnold Palmer and Jack Burke, 1956 winner, along with Chandler Harper are in commanding positions with 71s.

Greens Never So Slow

YOUR REPORTER followed Middlecoff on the back nine. The trip produced more exercise than copy, although Cary in scrambling to a par four at the 10th indicated he might do something.

Middlecoff pulled his second shot and found a tree half stymying his recovery. He pitched within four feet and got his par four. This advantage was soon lost when he overshot the 12th green and made a poor pitch back.

"I never saw the greens so slow," Middlecoff moaned as he worked on the practice putting green with a sympathetic Claude Harmon watching. "As long as I've played here, I couldn't believe the greens were that slow. I left putts four feet short all day. I'll hit 'em harder Friday even if I'm past the cup."

Middlecoff insisted he feels no ill effects from the hernia operation he underwent September. Cary showed he is capable of good golf by winning the recent St. Petersburg Open. Many feel Cary's chances of bagging his second Masters were hurt by skipping some tourney competition.

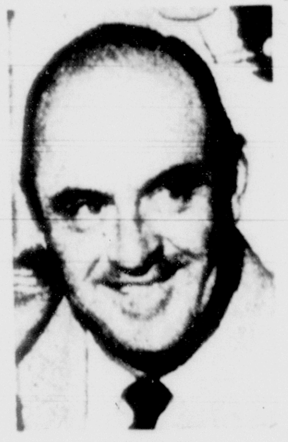
Winds Kept Snead Guessing

SNEAD WAS more upset by the winds than he was by Dave Yeomans of Miami ordering him ten tickets at $12 each for Carmen Basilio's fight here Wednesday night. Snead solved that problem by taking only one ducat. He couldn't do anything about the gales.



SNEAD

"I hit as good shots as I ever hit in my life but got bogies," Snead told reporters who followed him into the clubhouse. "The gusts switched to all directions — that made it tough. Looks like I hit harder when the wind was with me."

Snead's first trouble came on the eighth where he settled for a double-bogey six after hitting a three-wood second under a tree. He had to waste a shot to regain the fairway.

"Hitting into the wind on the 10th I thought my second shot would drop at the pin," Snead ruefully recalled. "Instead it sailed over the green and cost me a bogey-five.

Snead: A 68 in Calm Weather

SNEAD retained his good humor despite being so far behind. He expressed belief that his shots Thursday played in the calm weather conditions of last Tuesday would have produced a score of 68.

"Are you satisfied with your 74 under the conditions?" Snead was asked.

"I've never been satisfied with but one 74 in my life," Snead retorted. "That was the one in the 1946 British Open, which I won. I went out in 40 and back in 34 and was the only golfer to break 40 on the back nine."

* * *

Doesn't Everyone Throw Grass?

SNEAD PRODUCED a laugh for his working press listeners by recalling the way golfers tested the winds by pulling up grass and letting it blow.

"One fellow pulled up grass and threw it over his shoulder," Snead said. "His partner asked, 'Why did you do that?' The fellow replied, 'Because everyone else is doing it.'"

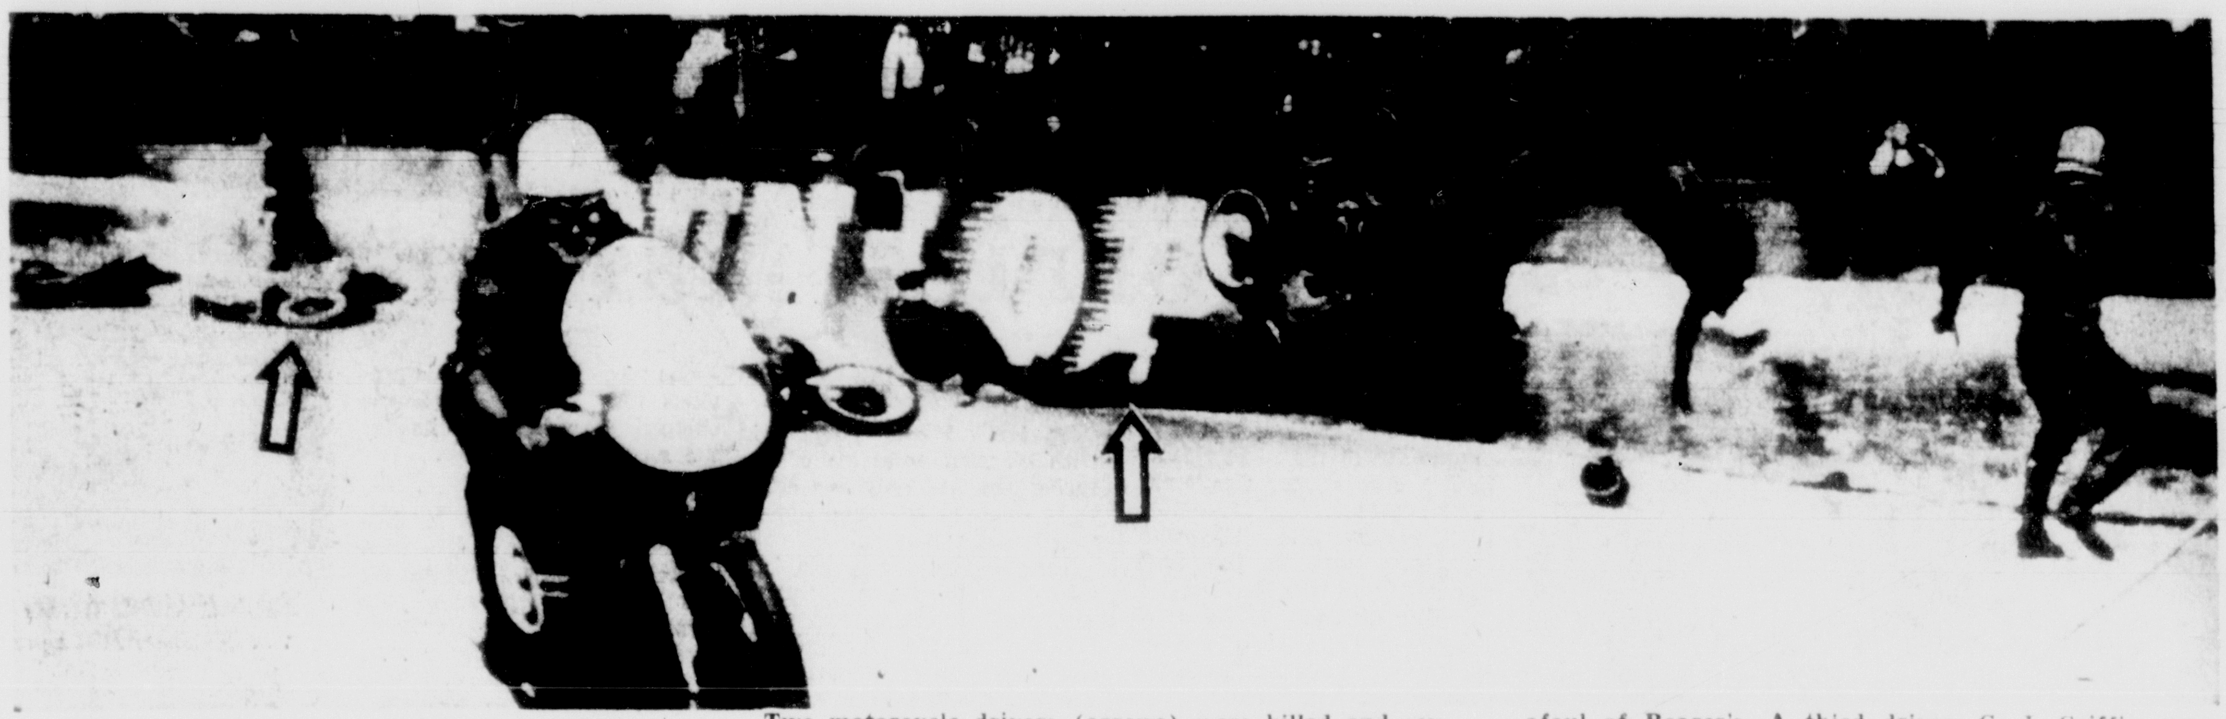
Masters Fans Came Prepared

MIDDLECOFF and Snead were not as unhappy as veteran Jimmy Demaret, who scored 34 on the front nine but blew to 44 on the back . . . "He put his second in the water on the 11th and took a six," Toney Penna, who followed Jimmy, reported. "He dunked his tee shot on the 12th. When Demaret hit his approach into the water on the 13th, he got mad" . . . Arnold Palmer became one of the four breaking par 72 by sinking a 12-foot putt on the 18th . . . Bob Rosburg, who had to settle for a 75, thinks Jackie Burke is likely to win . "Jackie isn't complaining about an aching back, or anything," Bob explained. "In that frame of mind, Burke is dangerous" . . . Gene Littler, a strong pre-tourney favorite, gained his 72 with 18 straight pars. He muffed his best birdie chance by missing a five-foot putt on the 17th . . . The morning rain delayed start of the tournament but did not dampen enthusiasm of thousands of fans who came prepared for any sort of weather . . . The Masters contestant with the most modest ambition was Herman Keiser, 1946 winner, who said he hoped to survive the cut after the second round . . . Herman endangered his chances by shooting a 78.



Death On Wheels

Two motorcycle drivers (arrows) were killed and several others just escaped death in this spectacular spill at London Sports Arena. Edward Boarer (left) was killed when pinned under his machine. Pete Luscombe lost his helmet and was killed when his machine ran afoul of Boarer's. A third driver, G. J. Griffin, was tossed head first by his catapulting machine (at far right) but escaped with his life. This is an exclusive London Daily Mirrow picture.

Leonard 69 Leads by 2 In Masters

AUGUSTA — (AP) — Stan Leonard had luck that was denied to others Thursday and led the way through the first round of the 23rd Masters Golf Tournament.

Three under par for the 6,980 yard par 36-36—72 course, it gave Leonard a two-stroke edge over Arnold Palmer, young defending champion from Pennsylvania; Jack Burke, the 1956 winner, and former PGA champion Chandler Harper at the end of a day that spelled trouble for some of the most famous players in the select field of 87.

Palmer, though dissatisfied with his driving, came in with 36-35—71. Burke, with 37-34—71, joined him as one of the few to beat par on the back nine. Harper shot 35-36—71 with a hot putter.

Only four players bettered Augusta National's usually tough par for the first round and five others shot even par 72s. The par-shooters were U.S. Open Champion Tommy Bolt, Australia's Peter Thomson, Spain's Angel Miguel, Gene Littler and Jay Hebert.

Ben Hogan was bracketed at 73 with Gary Player of South Africa, Dick Mayer, the 1957 Open champion, Dave Thomas of Wales, and Art Wall, top money winner this year, among others.

Three-time Masters Champion Sam Snead posted a 74. Some of the other 74 shooters included Cary Middlecoff and Claude Harmon, former winners of this tournament.

Both Palmer and Burke said they had trouble judging shots and attributed their good scores to putting success. Burke was able to lag them up close on the greens and Palmer said he sank some long second putts.

The trouble centered mainly on the stretch from the 11th through the 13th holes, in a valley where swirling winds and winding Rae's Creek formed a double threat.

It was there that Jimmy Demaret soared from two under par to three over on a three-hole stretch. He hit into the creek three times then followed by three-putting the 14th.

Leonard had to work for a couple of pars on that stretch and felt he was lucky to get them. He was in the woods on the 10th hole and made his four only through a superb iron shot and he had to play out of shallow water for a par three at the 12th. Thereafter he played carefully and successfully.

After today's second round, the field will be cut to the 40 low scorers and those tied for 40th for the last two rounds.

Willie Jones Lifts Phils Past Orioles

By JOHN UNDERWOOD
Herald Sports Writer

Willie Jones, one of the "old guard" for Philadelphia, drove in three runs Thursday night to lead the Phils to an 8-6 victory over Baltimore before a small gathering of 876 at Miami Stadiu. Seth Morehead, forme Miami Marlin, was the winning pitcher, working the first five innings and allowing two runs.

Hector (Skinny) Brown, Baltimore starter, was raked for two runs in the first. Sparky Anderson singled to left and went to third on Richie Ashburn's bouncer past shortstop.

Brown was dealt a heavier jolt in the third when he walked Bob Bowman to load the bases after an infield single by Bouchee and an error. This time Jones smashed one past third base for a double, scoring two runs. Sacrifice flies by Ruben Amaro and Jim Hegan made it 6-0.

Morehead gave up two hits an inning for the first three, but wasn't scored upon until the third when Gus Triandos doubled deep to left center to bring home Bob Nieman. Nieman stroked a fifth-inning homer before Morehead ended his mound stay.

The Orioles picked up another run in the sixth on Bobby Boyd's single, a walk and Triandos' third hit.

The Phillies got one in the seventh when Ashburn doubled and raced home on Pitcher George Bamberger's wild throw. Baltimore scored two in its half of the inning on Willie Tasby's booming double to deep center.

Easy Spur 2nd Derby Choice

Troilus Is Pick (By Nose)

By RUSS HARRIS
Herald Turf Writer

Proof that Saturday's $100,000 added Florida Derby should be one of Gulfstream Park's greatest races is offered in a Herald poll of trainers' selections.

The men who know horses best like Bayard Sharp's Troilus — but the margin is only 9-8 over Spring Hill Farm's Easy Spur. Surprisingly enough, only one of 18 horsemen chose Brookmeade Stable's Sword Dancer as the horse to beat although the pricemakers regard the derby as a three-horse race.

The six other expected starters are Rare Rice, McLellan, Revolutionist, The Chosen One, Master Palynch and Rico Tesio.

Most of the pickers discount the eight-length beating Easy Spur handed to Troilus in the Fountain of Youth stakes. They believe Sharp's Flamingo winner was just not ready for a mile-and-one-sixteenth test after being rested for three weeks.

Trainer Bobby Cramer summed up another key point for the Troilus backers. Said Cramer: "Troilus, of course, didn't have his regular rider, Chris Rogers, in his last start. Troilus is the kind of horse you have to keep after and Rogers knows him well. That will make a big difference Saturday. Besides that, Troilus is a solid horse. I think he'll come back."

The lone trainer to pick Sword Dancer was Bob White, who conditions Noble Sel. Said White: "I think Sword Dancer is a fine colt, better than he's rated."

Here's what other trainers had to say:

J. L. Clark—"I like Troilus. He beat them all before and he can do it again."

Frank E. Fitzgerald—"I'm going with Paul Kelly. Easy Spur likes the track and won easily the last time out."

Danny Perlsweig—"I'm partial to Troilus. He was a dead short horse and should improve sharply."

Joe Carroll—"It's hard to separate Easy Spur and Troilus. I know all about Easy Spur's

Ailing Castleman Worries Marlins

By EDDIE STORIN
Herald Sports Writer

Although the 28-year-old shortstop was in the lineup Thursday as the Marlins took another drubbing (17-6) at the hands of Indianapolis, he was still favoring his arm more than somewhat.

Manager Pepper Martin, who is beginning to wonder how long "an ordinary sore arm" takes to get well, has been playing Castleman at second base to avoid the long throw from shortstop. But even at that position, he was unable to make a routine throw Thursday.

There were runners on first and second with one out in the sixth inning when Joe Martin of the Indians grounded to Castleman. Foster fielded the ball in time to make a force play at second, but after starting to throw there decided to take the shorter route and flipped to first base.

"No," said Castleman frankly, "I can't say that the arm is showing much improvement. It still hurts like the devil to throw.

"I can't understand it. I've never had any arm or shoulder trouble in my life. Maybe I can shake it in the warmer weather in Puerto Rico," he added hopefully.

The ex-major leaguer hasn't been hitting the way he is expected to, but claims this has nothing to do with the sore arm.

"My timing is off," surmised Castleman. "That layoff didn't do me any good. But it should come around okay."

Thursday Foster weighed in with his first solid hit of the spring (he has only one other in 14 times at bat) and it produced two runs.

The Miamians met the ball solidly for the second straight day, combing Cloyd Boyer and Bob Kuzava for 10 hits. But once again the pitching was horrible as Art Kay and Al Diez were belted for 16 runs in the first four innings.

In fairness to the pitchers on both sides, it should be noted that a 35-mile-an-hour gale favored the hitters, blowing singles into extra base hits.

Len Tucker, outfielder-first baseman recently optioned from Washington, led the Miami offense with three singles—one more hit than in his previous four games. Bill Lajoie chipped in with two hits for the second straight day.

Bosox Beat Giants, Yankees Conk Cards

By the Associated Press

The Boston Red Sox and Chicago Cubs closed spring shop in Arizona Thursday, but the Red Sox did it on a winning note, 4-2, over San Francisco. The Cubs were beaten, 4-2, by Cleveland.

The Red Sox got home runs from Frank Malzone and Haywood Sullivan in a 12-hit attack that nailed Giant starter Mike McCormick for all four runs. Ike Delock, finally showing 1958 form, gave up a homer to Daryl Spencer, but otherwise limited the Giants to five scattered singles in six innings.

At Tucson, Tito Francona doubled for two runs to break an eighth-inning tie and send the Cubs down to their 12th loss in 22 starts. The Cubs had caught up in the top of the eighth on Earl Averill's two-run pinch homer.

Rain wiped out three of four afternoon games on the Florida schedule. There was action only at St. Petersburg where the New York Yankees beat the St. Louis Cardinals, 2-1.

The Yanks' crack lefty, Whitey Ford, spaced nine hits in eight sharp innings as the Cards lost their sixth in a row. Ford was untouchable after the Cards picked up a first-inning run on two singles sandwiched around an infield out.

Larry Jackson went the route for the Cards and allowed only nine hits, but the Yanks put three of them together in the fifth for one run, then two more followed a walk in the sixth with Mickey Mantle batting in the winning run.

Rained out were games between Milwaukee and Washington, Los Angeles and Pittsburgh, and Kansas City and Detroit.

Logart Gets Second Crack At Scott

Logart, 25-year-old Cuban contender, is a 9-5 favorite to avenge the earlier defeat when he comes up against Scott in a nationally televised (NBC, 10 p.m. EST) 10-rounder at Capitol Arena.

Scott, 22-year-old upstart from Philadelphia, made a farce of the odds three weeks ago at St. Nick's in New York. Logart then was favored 3-1 to whip the almost unheard of Scott. But he lost by a split decision.

Rain Again Halts Daytona Trials

It forced cancellation of time trials for sports cars Wednesday, also.

Bill France, Speedway president, said time trials will be staged all day today for all cars.

A pair of 100-mile races for speedway cars is scheduled Saturday at 2 p.m. and 3:30 with a total purse of $32,660. A 1,000-kilometer international sports car race is scheduled Sunday at 12:30 for a $20,000 purse.

Thirteen speedway cars qualified last Saturday and Tuesday and there are 11 other entries. Fastest lap turned in during the trials was 176.88 miles an hour by George Amick of Rhinelander, Wis., in a Bowes Sealfast Special. It established a new American race track lap record.

The Speedway cars will race over the new high-banked 2½-mile track. The sports cars will race over the banked track plus a flat, sharply curved road in the infield making for a course measuring 3.81 miles. It will require 164 laps to complete the 1,000 kilometers.

In practice earlier in the week, Carroll Shelby of Dallas, Texas, averaged 100 miles an hour over the sports car course. He drove a 4.5 Maserati.

Other entries in the sports car competition include Roberto Mieres, Buenos Aires, in a Porsche; Chuck Daigh, Long Beach, Calif., in a 4.5 Ferrari; Fred Windridge, Arlington, Va., in a Kelso Lister-Corvette; George Constantine, South Bridge, Mass., in an Aston-Martin; A. J. Foyt, Houston, in a Lister-Corvette; Curtis Turner, Charlotte, N.C., in a supercharged Thunderbird.

House Speaker Sums Up Laws Likely to Pass

Florida's Legislature, which meets every two years, reassembles next Tuesday in Tallahassee. The eyes of the legislators and the rest of the state will be on three influential men—Speaker of the House Thomas Beasley, Senate President Dewey M. Johnson and Governor LeRoy Collins. How they agree and differ on key issues will affect you. Speaker Beasley explains his views in today's article written especially for The Herald.

By THOMAS D. BEASLEY
Speaker of Florida House

TALLAHASSEE — Any effort to accomplish reapportionment of the Legislature through constitutional revision in the session convening next week will, in my opinion, be a waste of time.

I try to be realistic in approaching the problems facing Florida and I believe there are so many issues before the 1959 session that the chances of working out an acceptable reapportionment formula within the 60-day period are nil.

His Views
Will Affect
YOU

It is obvious that economy in government — the fight to hold the line against new taxes — and consideration of possible new legislation on segregation are going to have priority on our agenda. They are going to consume considerable time.

I think it ought to be plain to all of us that if the Legislature can not now reapportion under the present formula by a simple majority, it would be utterly impossible to accomplish reapportionment through a constitutional amendment requiring a three-fifths vote in each house.

* * *

He Predicts No New Taxes

Here is my outlook on some of the major problems facing us in this session:

Taxes: I predict that the 1959 Legislature will avoid levying new taxes. But I am confident we will be able to plug some loopholes in existing tax laws which will have the effect of boosting our revenue without burdening the taxpayers.

I anticipate during this session that there will be tremendous pressure from certain sources to persuade the Legislature to levy new taxes but those efforts will meet defeat.

It is my judgment that there is going to have to be some cuts made in the proposed state budget for the next biennium and I think every governmental department will have to share in the trim.

I want to clarify one thing. I have never been and am not now in favor of any reduction in the Minimum Foundation Program for our schools.

However, I am of the opinion that the majority of the people of Florida believe we are paying for more education than our children are receiving. But that is a situation

Views in a Nutshell

Here in a nutshell is how Speaker Thomas D. Beasley of DeFuniak Springs feels about major issues facing the Florida Legislature opening next Tuesday:

BEASLEY

REAPPORTIONMENT — "Chances are nil."

TAXES — "Legislature will avoid levying new taxes."

SCHOOLS — "People are paying more for education than our children are receiving."

SEGREGATION — "I am opposed to legislation that will impair our public school system." But he believes a law will be passed to enable parents who desire to enroll children in private, segregated schools.

CONSTITUTIONAL REVISION — "Some will be accomplished . . ."

Probers Bare New Tactics

U.S. Reds Get Word: Look Loyal, Peaceful

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Communists in the U.S. are now reported under orders "to wear a new look."

The House Committee on un-American Activities, telling of this, said:

"To a degree unmatched in party history, Communists are now promoting themselves as loyal to the U.S., peace-loving and humanitarian in purpose, and anxious to work in harmony with Socialists, liberals, and even capitalists for the good of the nation."

This picture of communism was portrayed in a 120-page report on Communist activities in Southern California. This area, the committee said, is now the special target of resurgent Red efforts.

Investigators said a new Communist tactic is to pose as a crusader against monopolies thereby bidding for cooperation of labor and other elements in what the report calls an attack on the free enterprise system.

The committee also noted a change in the party line regarding Negroes. Instead of a "Soviet Negro nation," the new goal is described as one of helping Negroes more nearly realize aspirations of becoming an integrated part of American life.

"That the party has been impeded in its efforts to influence any substantial portion of the Negro population is unquestionably due to the innate integrity and common sense of this minority," the report said.

The committee said other changes in tactics involve an invigorated drive to lure youth into the party, and an effort to re-establish a welcome for the Communist Party in organized labor.

The committee said the main emphasis in remodeled Communist tactics is on a program of direct action to infiltrate legitimate community affairs. The role of the indirect "front" organization has been largely abandoned, investigators said.

Reds Say Lama Is In India

New Outbreak Boils in Tibet

NEW DELHI, India —(UPI) — The Chinese Communists said Thursday the Dalai Lama of Tibet has eluded a massive Red air-and-ground hunt and slipped across the heavily-guarded border into India. There was no confirmation available here.

The report by the official Communist New China News Agency is expected to put a further strain on relations between India and Peiping in the wake of the Tibetan anti-Communist revolt.

The Red report coincided with reports here of a new outbreak of heavy fighting between the fierce anti-Red Khamba tribesmen and Chinese Communist troops in an area southeast of the sacred city of Lhasa.

Informed sources in New Delhi said the Communists were using planes, cannon and automatic weapons against the Khambas, who spearheaded the open rebellion in Lhasa two weeks ago.

There was increasing pressure on Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru to review his neutralist foreign policy in view of Peiping's crackdown on the Tibetans.

The New China News Agency dispatch, broadcast by Radio Peiping and monitored in Tokyo, said the Dalai Lama was accompanied into India by some of the rebels who took part in the Lhasa uprising. It said Dalai Lama, who is considered the god-king of Tibet, entered India Tuesday "under duress by the rebellious elements."

The Communists repeatedly have claimed that the Dalai Lama, revered as a living Buddha by Tibetans, had been forced to flee against his will.

The Communist agency said Indian border police were on their way from Tawang to meet the Dalai Lama.

The Reds had been reported using planes and paratroops in the hunt for the Dalai Lama. A dispatch from the Indian border city of Kalimpong reported heavy reinforcement of Chinese Communist troops on the Tibetan side.

7 Million In Profits On Paper

The wild fluctuations in the price of General Development Corp. stock in recent weeks have made a paper profit of at least seven million dollars for Miami's three Mackle brothers and almost 30 million dollars for Board Chairman Louis Chesler.

When the Mackle Co. merged with General Development last year, Frank Jr., Robert and Elliott Mackle got 200,000 shares of the new firm's stock in the deal. It was valued at about $10 a share then.

When the American Stock Exchange closed Thursday, the stock—which earlier this year had jumped as high as $77.50 —was trading at $47.25 a share. That would make the Mackles' paper profit $7,450,000—but it's only on paper.

Chesler owns 713,000 shares of General Development. Based on the latest trading price of the stock, Chesler's stock holdings in the firm now would be worth close to 30 million dollars.

A spokesman for General Development said the Mackles have not sold any of those shares. Restrictions of the Securities and Exchange Commission would prevent their selling without full public disclosure through the SEC.

In addition, the Mackles hold options to buy 105,000 additional shares at around $14 a share. But they have not exercised the options.

In trading on the open market, the three brothers have bought other holdings in the corporation for varying prices.

Had they sold when the stock was at its highest this year, their profit would have exceeded 15 million dollars.

Tornadoes Cross Florida, Leave Death and Wreckage

More Palm Beach News Page 1B, 24A, 3B

TANGLED WRECKAGE in Dade City, Orlando and Mims, with damage estimated at more than $1,000,000.

ONE SEAMAN DROWNED, and two others believed dead after their 60-foot tug sank in near-Hurricane force winds in the Atlantic.

A WOMAN DEAD, killed when tornado winds hurled her 400 feet from her shattered trailer in Orlando.

DOZENS OF INJURIES throughout the state.

The twisters hit first in Dade City, at 5:30 a.m.

They followed the east-to-west path of the squall line, which blew out to the Atlantic and turned southward, but did little damage to the Gold Coast.

A clash of cold air from the north, and warm air from the Gulf touched off the storms, weathermen said. They predicted clearing skies today.

But for three hours, the freak weather Thursday produced terror, shattered homes and crumpled cars.

Mrs. Rosie Varnado, 40, was alone in her trailer in Orlando when the tornado touched down. She died en route to a hospital.

The tug, the William L., sank about 65 miles east and 38 miles north of Palm Beach. The Coast Guard picked up two survivors and the body of a third crewman. Two others were believed to have gone down with the tug.

The craft went down about 3:10 p.m., and Coast Guard planes continued to search for survivors until dusk.

The names of the crewmen were not immediately known.

Hardest hit was a four-block residential strip in Orlando's Azalea Park, with about 20 homes damaged. National Guardsmen patrolled the area Thursday night.

"The house just seemed to explode," one victim said.

Telephone service to Dade City from Tampa was knocked out, and two persons were hospitalized and 15 injured less severely in the city 35 miles northeast of Tampa.

Officials at Mims, a town on the Atlantic in North Brevard County, said "several" people were hurt, none seriously.

Gov. LeRoy Collins called out the National Guard to prevent looting in storm damaged areas.

Squall Line Sweeps Over South Florida

The Miami Weather Bureau, which predicted rapidly warming temperatures today said the tornadoes stemmed from a clash of cold air from the front and warm moist air off the Gulf.

The squall line built up about 200 miles from the actual front, Forecaster Walter Davis said, and raced south through the state triggering spotty but violent storms.

Tornadoes develop from cold overrunning warm air. The warm air rushes upward as the cold air sweeps downward.

Although parts of Miami caught winds up to 45 miles an hour, the squall passed over the city late in the afternoon doing little more than knocking down a few trees.

JUPITER ISLAND — High winds and rain forced Secretary of State John Foster Dulles to forego his morning swim Thursday.

But the convalescing Dulles managed to take a dip in the ocean later in the day when overcast skies cleared.

Joseph M. Green, Dulles' personal assistant, said Dulles' morale is very high and that he is being "realistic" about his illness.

The secretary of state is resting here while recuperating from a recent cancer operation in Washington.

Free People Told To Show Courage

WASHINGTON—(AP)—President Eisenhower Thursday cautioned the Atlantic Pact countries against "substituting illusions for reality" in searching for new agreements with Russia to reduce world tension.

Speaking as an old soldier, Eisenhower appealed for free people to display courage, sacrifice and perseverance while their governments carefully explore for just solutions to existing East-West deadlocks.

"We must be prepared during the years ahead to live in a world in which tension and bickering between free nations and the Soviets will be daily experiences," he said.

Some 1,400 delegates and distinguished guests from the 15 member countries gathered in the interdepartmental auditorium on historic Constitution Ave. to hear Eisenhower deliver a keynote address at the opening session.

In a closed-door sesson that followed Eisenhower's talk, Acting Secretary of State Christian Herter said the U.S. will use its full array of aircraft and missile power to defend its Atlantic Pact allies if it should become necessary.

Speaking on behalf of the U.S. government, Herter told the NATO Council the U.S. now is making faster progress than Russia in developing missiles. Despite the mounting tensions over Berlin, Herter predicted the crisis would be settled without shooting, but he stressed the need for the Allies to stand firm.

Addressing the same closed-door meeting, Britain's Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd assured the Allied representatives that his country stands as firmly as the other Allies in resisting Russian pressure for one-sided agreements.

Lloyd put Britain on record as viewing any plan for neutralizing or demilitarizing Germany as the worst possible solution of the German problem.

He also said Britain would not advocate any troop and arms freeze plan in Central Europe unless it was linked with the goal of German reunification.

The remarks at the closed-door afternoon session were relayed to newsmen by a NATO spokesman. They were clearly aimed at dispelling reports that the British favored making more concessions to the Soviets than do the U.S., France, West Germany and other Atlantic Pact partners.

Eisenhower avoided mentioning the Berlin crisis directly in his brief address. But he pledged to "make concrete and realistic proposals" about the over-all German problem in a move to improve relations with Russia.

Two of the foreign leaders of the defense alliance, Secretary General Paul-Henri Spaak of Belgium and Foreign Minister Joseph M. Luns of the Netherlands, brought out into the open their concern over Berlin tensions.

Standing on the giant stage, they also joined in denouncing Soviet policy, saying it endangers international peace by a campaign of subversion, threats and outright aggression.

Spaak called for the allies to be even more vigilant in the future because, he said:

"By again raising the issue of the status of Berlin and by handling the German question as it has, Moscow is playing a game in which the ultimate stake is the existence of our European political institutions and defense system."

He called on the NATO allies to be alert for "honorable compromises with the Soviets which uphold the basic principles of Western civilization."

Luns, who is chairman of the 15-nation meeting, scathingly assailed weakhearted, weary defeatists in Allied ranks who he said would conclude agreements with Russia in the mistaken belief that this would avoid war.

Reds Warn Upper Air Not 'Safe'

BERLIN —(UPI)— A Soviet spokesman said Thursday that the Red air force would not try to prevent high-altitude U.S. transport flights to West Berlin. But he warned that the Russians could not "fully guarantee" the safety of such flights above 10,000 feet.

The spokesman at the Soviet embassy in East Berlin said that high Western flights in the three air corridors to West Berlin would endanger air security. He explained that Soviet air force planes normally fly above the corridors at altitudes over 10,000 feet.

The Russian embassy spokesman was explaining a Soviet statement Wednesday that further high level flights in the Berlin corridors could lead to "complications." Soviet jets had buzzed a big U.S. Air Force C130 transport when it flew to Berlin last Friday at 25,000 feet.

"The fact that we say that Western high altitude flights might lead to possible complications does not mean that we are preparing actions against such flights," the Soviet embassy spokesman said.

"We mean only that the present air safety system of air security will not exist for aircraft above 10,000 feet and that the Soviets will not be able to fully guarantee the safety of such flights."

He said that under the air safety rules that have prevailed until now the Soviet air force sends its aircraft across the corridors continually above that altitude.

The space above the 10,000 foot level, the Russian embassy spokesman said, is reserved for Soviet aircraft. He said that if Western aircraft used the same altitudes they might be endangered.

"But that does not mean that any American aircraft would be molested or attacked," he added.

Bitten Man Has Rabies

RICHMOND, Va. —(UPI)— Police searched the eastern seaboard Thursday for a South Carolina businessman who may die if he does not seek treatment for rabies he unknowingly contacted.

Herbert Birtwistle of Greenville, S.C., was bitten Tuesday by a dog in Easley, S.C. The dog was found to be rabid Wednesday after Birtwistle left alone on an auto trip to Rhode Island, his former home, to visit his ailing wife.

Rabies is an acute virus disease of the central nervous system. Doctors at the Medical College of Virginia here said Birtwistle would die an agonizing death if he did not receive treatment.

Cabinet Member Urges Easing of Welfare Rules

Residence Limits Rapped

WASHINGTON — (UPI) — An Eisenhower cabinet member urged the states Thursday to get rid of their residence requirements for public assistance payments to the needy and handicapped.

Arthur S. Flemming, secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, told the Family Service Association of America there was no "sense" to the practice of requiring needy persons to live in a state for a minimum period before they become eligible for assistance.

Flemming's speech, which appeared to be a major policy statement, followed disclosure that the department is considering endorsement of a plan enabling mothers to stay home with their children rather than having to take jobs to support them.

The plan would be aimed especially at mothers of needy families.

Flemming told the social workers, who have long opposed the residence requirements for needy persons, that he hoped they would be removed soon.

Every state except New York bans public assistance to persons who have not lived in the state for a certain period, usually one to three years. New York legislators recently rejected a proposal for such requirements.

Flemming said the government is trying to achieve, in written policy, a new "family-centered" approach to welfare problems. Such an approach would treat the needy or handicapped person as a part of his family, rather than merely trying to meet his individual problem without regard to others he lives with.

In that connection, Jay L. Roney, director of the Social Security Administration's bureau of public assistance, told the group that "more and more mothers of growing children are working on jobs outside the home. He said this was particularly true among the nation's neediest families.

He said the key question in considering a policy for working mothers in needy families was whether the mother's "first responsibility is to work in order to support her children financially or to stay home and to provide them with a strong family life."

More than half of the nation's broken families are trying to exist on less than $2,000 a year, he said, and broader state assistance appeared to be needed.

Flemming also said the question of whether the federal government should continue to share the costs of only a few assistance programs or go into the entire field should be settled.

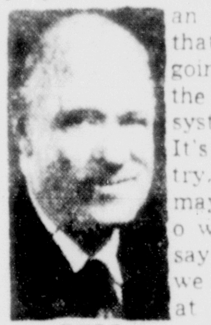
The Town Crier

BY Jack Bell

HARLOW Chamberlin, backed by American Civil Liberties Union, is seeking a ban on prayers in school. It's old hat, an argument that has been going on since the public school system started. It's a free country. Each of us may choose our own religion, say the prayers we like or none at all. Then, to carry the ball a bit farther: Why should a Jewish child say a Christian prayer, or vice versa?



BELL

It seems to me the whole argument against prayer is overdone. Personally I don't think prayer in school does any child any good. If he behaves himself, is tolerant and considerate and does his school work, that's enough, in my book. But I'm just one. Millions of parents must like the idea of prayer in school, or it wouldn't be there.

So, if the majority of the children are Christian and the teacher has them saying a Christian prayer, the Jew, the Mohammedan, the Hindu and children of sects with unusual beliefs may remain silent. Or, if they wish, say a silent prayer of their own.

Clothing

Lend-a-Hand needs clothing for children. Mrs. Faye Newalk has been trying to save clothing for the 600 summer camp children. But so many children without school clothes have been sent to her by the agencies that she's running low.

She needs all types of clothing, for babies, boys, girls. Anything that can be worn is acceptable. Take it to the workshop at 225 SW Second Ave. or call FR 9-9632.

Dedicated

Douglas Gardens, 151 NE 52nd St., truly is a dedicated shrine. There, at 2 Sunday afternoon, they'll dedicate another group of buildings at Jewish Home for the Aged. Judge Irving Cypen will preside and Dr. Homer Marsh, dean of University of Miami medical school, will speak.

The new buildings include four pavilions, research laboratory (for geriatrics), and a sheltered workshop. Fourteen years ago Jewish leaders obtained the land and started the home. It's one of the really bright spots in Miami's haphazard care of the aged.

Lama Now In India, Reds Report

the area where the new fighting was reported, mobilized its entire 5,000-man militia to meet the threat of possible trouble.

Prime Minister Jigme Dorje of Bhutan told UPI Correspondent Patrick J. Killen in Kalimpong that Bhutan would grant temporary asylum to the Dalai Lama if he requested. But it was clear Bhutan feared possible Red Chinese reprisal if the Dalai Lama remained for any length of time.

Indians already were becoming more suspicious of the Chinese Reds and their intentions toward the Indian protectorates of Bhutan and Sikkim in the Himalayas between India and Tibet. There also was some fear the Reds might invade the kingdom of Nepal, which also has offered the Dalai Lama asylum.

Kalimpong reports said the Reds had turned Tibet into a virtual armed camp in the attempt to quash the still-simmering revolt. Additional Peiping troops were said to be pouring in by motor transport and planes. The Red Chinese forces in Tibet were estimated at around 300,000 before the fighting flared.

The Kalimpong sources said the Reds were deporting 100 truckloads of rebellious Tibetans daily to forced labor camps, presumably in occupied western Tibet.

PAA Locks Horns With Teamsters

By DOM BONAFEDE
Herald Staff Writer

Pan American World Airways and the Teamsters Union locked horns Thursday for the first time since Jimmy Hoffa bulled his way into the airline industry last February.

In a systemwide secret ballot, 860 PAA stock clerks, including 272 in Miami and 250 at Cape Canaveral, voted on a proposed union contract which includes an average 31½-cent hourly wage increase.

Refusal by the membership to accept the contract could lead to preliminary strike action.

But a PAA spokesman commented:

"So far there is no indication of any strike. If there is, we plan to continue operations, depending of course on what the other unions do."

There were reports that many of the Teamsters members were satisfied with the new wage terms, but did not see eye-to-eye with the company on other sections of the proposed contract.

Results are expected to be disclosed Friday.

Officials of Miami Teamsters Local 390, headed by Joe Morgan, declined to comment on the election or even admit that an election was being held.

Company spokesmen, however, confirmed the report.

By an overwhelming majority, the clerks voted to join the Teamsters, thus marking the first time the powerful union won the right to represent any working group in the airline industry.

The clerks formerly were members of the Machinists Union, and later transferred to the Transport Workers. The switch was declared void by the AFL-CIO on jurisdictional grounds, leaving the door open for the Teamsters to come in.

A portion of the program will originate in Washington's Constitution Hall. There also will be pickups from New York, Hollywood and Independence, Mo., Truman's home town.

Chinese Pay Dear For Tibet

Total Submission Communist Aim

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Foreign News Analyst

The Communists' behavior leads to speculation that there are some things they fear more than propaganda reverses.

For years Red China painstakingly built a propaganda picture for the rest of Asia: A once backward, agrarian country rapidly transforming itself into a major world power through the magic of a political system.

Some Asians listened and expressed confidence in peaceful co-existence. But events in Tibet have changed tolerance into fear and suspicion.

Tibet is to Asia what Iraq is becoming to the Middle East and what Hungary was to Europe.

In Hungary the Russians forcefully reminded Europe that whatever the cost — even the wrath of world opinion— communism demands total submission. In the Middle East, Arabs who thought it possible to use the Communist threat as a bludgeon against the West are finding out that once Communists taste power, as in Iraq, they move swiftly to annihilate all opposition.

Tibet, with a population of 1,300,000, had only the remnants of an army of 3,000 rifle-bearing men. China is a nation of 600 million with a modern army of many millions. To the Western mind it might seem inconceivable that Tibet could pose any threat to Red China.

Cut Fees, Hospitals Are Urged

CHICAGO —(UPI)— American Hospital Association President-elect Dr. Russell A. Nelson called on the nation's hospitals to cut down their own fees before the government steps in to do it for them.

"More self controls are needed for the strength of our voluntary hospitals," Nelson said. "The mechanism for this type of self-control already exists— in the state hospital associations."

Nelson's comments were published in the current issue of Hospitals, the magazine of the AHA.

He said the hearings and recent insurance department decisions all point toward one thing: "Control — control of hospital services through state-regulated control of Blue Cross payments to hospitals."

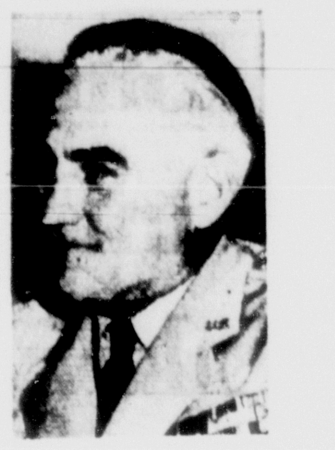
General's a Hero

'I Did No Wrong,' Says Colonel Who 'Bumped' 7 GIs

TOKYO — Despite denials he had done nothing wrong, a lieutenant colonel faced investigation Thursday for allegedly "bumping" five enlisted men on emergency furlough off a flight to the U.S.



Gen. Robert W. Burns

. . . he's GIs' hero

Lt. Gen. Robert W. Burns, commander of U.S. forces in Japan, ordered the investigation after a spunky airman took the protest of the enlisted men right to the top.

"All I can say is that as far as I'm concerned, I had nothing to do with keeping those people off the plane," said Lt. Col. Charles Platt Jr. of New York City. He had been headed for a vacation in Hawaii.

The Air Force and the enlisted men told about the incident Thursday, a week after it happened. The Air Force said Platt may be completely innocent. But one enlisted man insisted the men with their emergency travel orders bumped the colonel and he got mad and bumped them back.

Two soldiers were hurrying home for their mothers' funerals. Both got there too late, although it is possible they would have been too late anyway. Another was going home for his son's funeral.

This is the sequence of events as given by the Air Force in Tokyo and some of the enlisted men back in the U.S.:

There were seven enlisted men at Tachikawa Air Base outside Tokyo ready to board the "Pacific Express" for emergency furloughs.

"We bumped him," said Airman Robert J. Kindl of Saratoga Springs, N.Y., who was going home for the funeral of his four-year-old son.

"He got mad, pulled rank and ordered a major underneath him to bump us . . .

"We were little wheels and he was a big wheel. So he wanted to get to Hawaii and have a good time. He didn't care who it hurt or what the trouble was."

The enlisted men said they appealed to officers at the air base but the officers replied they could do nothing about it.

Airman Coye Y. Bell, Fayetteville, Tenn., was anxious to get to the bedside of a brother injured in a traffic accident. He decided to call Burns, an Air Force general.

BELL

"We were in the right and we were mad," Bell said.

With the help of the Red Cross, Bell got Burns on the phone. The plane had taken off for Hawaii, but Burns checked the soldiers' story and had the plane headed back within 30 minutes. Then Burns went out to the airport to see that the enlisted men got on the plane.

"We didn't want to do a thing like that but we had top priority emergency furloughs," said Staff Sgt. John P. Snyder of Vandergrift, Pa.

En route back, the "Pacific Express" had to dump most of its full fuel load into the ocean as a safety precaution before landing.

Then two of the seven enlisted men could not be found. The Air Force put five of them on the plane along with two other high priority passengers, and sent the airliner on its way again.

Read said he missed his mother's funeral because of the colonel. Snyder arrived home the day after funeral services for his mother but the body was kept at the funeral home so he could see it.

A source in the passenger terminal who would not be quoted by name said the plane even with Platt's family aboard on its original takeoff had 33 occupied and eight empty seats.

An Air Force spokesman could not confirm this immediately saying the passenger list was still being checked. He emphasized "there is no evidence at this point to indicate Platt has done anything wrong."

"We don't know how it happened," the spokesman said. "emergency leaves normally provide a priority that is sufficiently high to safeguard any passenger against being bumped by someone on regular leave, regardless of rank. It may be that we need some new procedures, or better fulfillment of the old."

Platt was asked to be available for the investigation. He canceled his vacation and returned to duty.

The woman landed on the mezzanine floor of the Hollywood Plaza Hotel and rolled down a flight of stairs into the lobby before a score of horrified onlookers.

Police said Rowley has a record of arrests for drunkenness, forgery and assault with a deadly weapon.

Small Pox Shots Given By Hundreds

Herald Bureau

WEST PALM BEACH—Hundreds of persons were vaccinated in the Belle Glade area Thursday following a report of two cases of smallpox there.

Both cases were reported to be mild and both are isolated in the migrant workers' community there.

Neither case has been absolutely diagnosed as small pox. Absolute diagnosis depends on the results of vital tests given the two workers. Results will be known in three days, health officials said.

There is no epidemic, there have been no deaths and there are no new cases.

That was the reply of Dr. C. L. Brumback, county health director, to reports Thursday that the smallpox situation had taken a change for the worse.

"The report is abolsutely incorrect," the health director said. He added there has been no change at all in the situation since the two cases were first reported Tuesday.

Dr. Brumback said he was in Belle Glade Wednesday to check on the situation, and at the time of his visit there, the county health clinic had administered vaccinations to more than 300 persons, he said he expected the total figure for the day would run over double that number.

The health director explained, however, that no count has been made as yet in the county's three major health centers, in this city and at Belle Glade and Pahokee.

He pointed out that Palm Beach County has carried on an immunization program against smallpox for years. He admitted there wasn't much general interest in it, however, until the two cases were reported.

"They stimulated interest in the program," the doctor said.

The two cases reported affect migrant farm laborers, one of them a Puerto Rican, the other a Negro.

No smallpox cases have been diagnosed in Florida since 1946, when two cases of the highly contagious disease were reported, according to Dr. A. William Menzin of the Dade County Health Department.

The viral germ is transmitted by direct contact with someone who has the disease or by objects the diseased person has touched, such as sheets, books or eating utensils.

The Health Department recommends every child be vaccinated at five months and again upon entering school.

Immunity lasts from five to ten years, and revaccination is urged for all persons coming in contact with the disease or traveling extensively.

Roberts: 'Paving Faulty'

City Engineers Issue Report

Herald Bureau

WEST PALM BEACH—The city's consulting engineers took issue Thursday with protests by Intercounty Construction Corp., for Lauderdale, that it is not to blame for defective West Palm Beach paving.

That was the tenor, at least, of a report made to the city by Roberts & Co. Associates, and which was released by City Manager James J. Mott.

Roberts & Co. claimed in a letter to the city that paving under an Intercounty contract is defective on S. Olive Ave., at Churchill Rd. Circle and Court, and on Australian Ave. and Forest Hill Blvd.

The same report said the city has until April 18 to enforce replacement of the pavement under the contract or to call on the surety company to have the work done.

Forest Hill Blvd. paving came in for attention on two fronts. Rubin Construction Co., this city, disclaimed any responsibility for defective paving there between the Seaboard Railroad and Parker Ave. under an inter-city contract.

In a copy of a letter sent by Rubin to Intercounty and released by the city, the local firm said that heavy traffic on the road, stemming from the new Forest Hill School and use of the pavement by heavy trucks appeared more likely to be the cause of the damage.

The paving was required as part of a city program for the installation of a municipal sewage system.

'Medicine Show' to Aid Crusade

WEST PALM BEACH — An old time "Medicine Show" will be unveiled here at 4 p.m. today as a benefit for the local Cancer Crusade.

ARNETTE

The show will be staged by Mr. and Mrs. Alan Scott, Key West, who will pause first with their show on a trailer at the Civic Center in Lake Worth at 1 p.m.

J. Alex Arnette, county Cancer Crusade chairman, said the appearance of the show here is jointly sponsored by the American Cancer Society and the Chamber of Commerce.

The Scotts aren't selling secret cures or snake oil. Their medicine show deals only in cancer education, Arnette said, and will aid the drive here for $59,000.

Scooter Rider Faces Charges

WEST PALM BEACH — A 15-year-old motorscooter rider who police said was involved in an accident that resulted in the death of a motorcycle patrolman, Thursday faced charges in Municipal Court.

Police said a summons was served on the boy, Elmer Joseph Lutz Jr., 3104 Parkland Rd., charging him with failing to yield the right of way at an intersection and causing an accident resulting in fatal injuries.

F. Alvah Tatum, 35-year-old patrolman, was escorting a funeral procession at Parker Ave. and Hampton Rd. Saturday when the accident occurred.

New Sewer Ceremonies

LAKE WORTH — Mayors from eight surrounding communities will be on hand today for the 4 p.m. ceremonies marking the start of construction on the city's 2.5 million dollar sewage disposal system.

The ceremonies, directed by City Manager Tom Smith, will be held 500 feet south of the Casino on the oceanfront.

Mayor Carl Leverenz and the City Commission will wield the spades during the groundbreaking. Roy Michael will represent Palm Beach County commissioners.

PB Saga Comes to Life in Old Photos

PALM BEACH — Judge James R. Knott — art exhibitor.

KNOTT

Pictures he will show at the meeting of the Palm Beach Historical Association tonight are not his handiwork, but have been painstakingly compiled by this Circuit Judge, who is president of the Historical Association. They are copies he has had made of old photographs taken in the early days which show the history of this region more graphically than any written record possibly could.

Among the pictures he will put on the walls in Bethesda Church Guild Hall, where the meeting will be held, will be one of the old Coconut Grove Hotel.

He will also show the actual register of the hotel, which contains signatures of many notables including that of Charles I. Cragin, whose estate, "Garden of Eden," was the first show place in Palm Beach.

There will also be views showing the glamorous old Royal Poinciana Hotel and the adjoining Coconut Grove, where society danced at what is now the cocktail hour.

Sure to create comment is a picture showing the first airplane to fly over the Royal Poinciana, a Curtiss bi-plane, in 1911. First passenger to go aloft in it was the late George Graham Currie, father of Judge Banzai Currie. Mr. Currie's wife gathered her children together and prayed. "Your father will soon not be alive," she is said to have told them. But the elder Currie survived the flight, and soon many others were eager to go up in the plane.

Pictures of Actor Joe Jefferson will be shown, and there will also be an opportunity to see the chair which he designed. It can be converted into a desk.

There will be a picture of a future president of the U.S., Zachary Taylor, leading 1,100 federal troops on the shores of Lake Okeechobee during the Seminole Wars. Many old houses will also be on view to revive memories of days gone by.

On the somber side will be a picture of the mass burial of victims of the 1928 hurricane in Woodlawn Cemetery, and one of the first hangings to take place after Palm Beach County was formed.

Pictures of Seminole Indians taken in the 70's are said by the Smithsonian Institute to be the third oldest of any in existence.

Real estate men will be amused at a reproduction of a page from an 1885 number of the English magazine "Puck," which makes fun of the extravagant claims of Florida realtors.

Those who attend the meeting of the Historical Association will view the pictures after the talk made by Congresswoman Frances Bolton of Ohio who will be introduced by former Ambassador Stanton Griffis.

Delray Beach Safari to See Debut of Stockbroker's Play

Herald Bureau

DELRAY BEACH — A busload of Delray Beach citizens will travel cross state to Clearwater April 13 to attend the opening of a play written by a Delray Beach stockbroker.

Stephen J. Sanford's "Her Majesty Regrets" will be presented by the Little Theater of Clearwater at the Francis Wilson Playhouse April 13-18. A contingent of Sanford's friends and members of the Delray Beach Playhouse will make the trip for the opening night performance.

At 18, when he was a freshman at Princeton, Sanford had the distinction of being the youngest living playwright with a play in production.

Since then he has written nine more. None of them have achieved a Broadway production, but Sanford wasn't far away with a Greenwich Village production of his "Man Crazy," at the Cherry Lane Theater.

The stockbroker is perhaps better known in Delray Beach as an actor than a playright. In the two years of his residence here he has performed in many Playhouse productions and achieved high local acclaim for his portrayal of the detective in "Three on A Match," first production of the current season. Sanford is also a member of the Playhouse board of directors.

He entered the national competition of the Jacksonville Little Theater for the H. K. Smith Sr. Memorial Award last spring. His comedy, written several years ago, was chosen over 47 other entrants, 18 of them from Florida.

A period piece concerning the trials of a Balkan queen in a small country at the end of World War II, "Her Majesty Regrets" calls for a cast of 19.

Sanford spent some time in Clearwater with director Harvey T. Warren at readings to select members of the cast. More than 50 actors tried out for parts in the new play.

Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Raveson of Delray Beach have organized the bus party to Clearwater. They will leave Delray the morning of April 13, have dinner in Clearwater and attend the formal opening of Sanford's play that night. The return trip to Delray will be made the following day.

Bigamist's 1st Wife Files Divorce Suit

As Audrey Jane Sears, 25, filed the suit Wednesday, Ernest Sears Jr. sat in his county jail cell and recalled how he met Mary Joyce, 22. She is the woman for whom he gave up his first wife, their two children and a new home in Florida.

"I saw her two years ago today," Sears said. "I just happened to drive by her home after going fishing. I was separated from my wife at the time. Mary Joyce and I had a date and then we fell in love."

Sears was convicted of bigamy last month. The charge was reduced to attempting to commit a felony and suspended on condition he return to his first wife, Audrey.

He went with his family to Winn, Fla., but returned last March 26 to his second wife and a one to two year prison sentence.

Sears said he would seek annulment of his second marriage so that he and Mary Joyce could "get remarried when I get out of prison."

Lake Worth teenagers say their parents are delinquent, and they offer proof. Their teen town, the city-sponsored youth center, has a problem, thanks to parents.

Neither wants to come to Teen Town to chaperone the youngsters at recreation on Friday and Saturday nights. And Teen Town can't operate, under an iron-clad city rule, without a chaperone on hand.

Recently, the youth center was forced to keep the padlock on its door until 10 p.m. because no adult was present at 7:30, the usual opening time.

STEWART

Twice, the kids put the key in the lock without a chaperone around to keep an eye on things. They were soundly reprimanded by city officials.

But, teenagers say, it's parents who should get the reprimand — and maybe even the woodshed.

The kids claim it would take two or three years to exhaust the list of chaperones if the parents rallied to the cause. But there have been no takers. Generous with materials and money for Teen Town, parents are stingy with their time, youngsters complain.

City officials warn that unless adult chaperones come forth, the kids won't be able to use the facilities provided by the city.

With the cooperation of City Manager Tom Smith and the Recreation Department, teenagers reconditioned the basement and used their talent and ingenuity on artistic murals.

The teenagers govern themselves. They're strict too. For instance, a beatnik in jeans is banned from the premises.

The entire program, however is threatened by the lack of interest on the part of parents, a City Hall aide said Wednesday.

So who's delinquent?

May 15 Is PB Target Date for Bridge Opening

Acceptance By SRD Due Then

By ED PFISTER
Herald Bureau Chief

WEST PALM BEACH — The Royal Park Bridge — a vital link between the Palm Beaches that has been closed for a year for reconstruction — won't be reopened to traffic until May 15.

The decision was reached here Thursday at a conference of city and county officials, representatives of the State Road Department, the contractors and insurance companies.

It was decided that neither the city nor county wanted to take responsibility for the operation of the bridge until it is officially accepted by the SRD.

The decision was reached after insurance companies made it clear they would not recognize any claims for damages that might result if the bridge is opened before it is officially accepted.

The bridge proper is virtually completed, it was brought out at the conference, but such finishing touches as handrails and traffic controls still have to be installed.

Although it was indicated the stage of construction might reach a point where traffic could be permitted to use the span before the May 15 date, none of the agencies involved wanted to accept responsibility until the bridge is finally approved.

After the May 15 opening date was fixed, interested officials of the Palm Beaches, the county and the state got together to work out details of the traffic pattern that will be put into effect at both ends of the bridge.

The bridge, variously called Royal Park, Royal Palm and Middle Bridge, has been converted from a narrow three way to a four lane structure. A lift span has been installed in place of the old swing span.

Construction on the bridge was held up last fall because of a steel mill strike.

Storm Damage Slight in PB

Herald Bureau

WEST PALM BEACH — The Greater West Palm Beach area was only mildly affected by a series of violent storms which ranged through Florida Thursday.

A storm out of the southwest descended on the Palm Beaches shortly after 2 p.m. accompanied by a fairly heavy downpour of rain and winds that ranged up to 48 miles per hour in guests.

A store window was blown out in Palm Beach, and signs and branches were blown about but there were no reports of serious damage.

The rainstorm dropped temperatures from the middle 80's to the low 70's, bringing some relief from muggy conditions that had prevailed earlier in the day.

By 3:15 p.m. the sun broke through the clouds and temperatures climbed back to normal.

The U.S. Weather Bureau said that while showers might occur, the squall line had moved by the Palm Beach area.

By DAVID KRASLOW
Of Our Washington Bureau

KRASLOW

WASHINGTON — Fifty stars forming a silhouette of George Washington.

—Stars forming the letters USA.

These are among hundreds of suggested designs for the 50-star flag forwarded to the Army Quartermaster Corps, official repository for all such proposals.

Suggestions have come from just about every part of the U.S. except Hawaii, the soon-to-be 50th state.

There have been entries from 44 states, the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico—and even three foreign countries (Peru, Costa Rica and Canada.)

Some 450 star designs have been submitted by more than 550 individuals and organizations. There have been more than 100 duplications.

About 75 per cent proposed variations of straight rows of stars.

Included among the suggestions was the design used in the 50-star flag which Interior Secretary Fred Seaton has had on display in his office for months.

Seaton's unofficial flag has six rows of seven stars across and one row of eight stars. The eighth star causes a slight bulge in the middle row.

The new 49-star flag, approved last January, has seven staggered rows of seven stars each.

The Army says most of the suggestions were submitted by adults, but "a good number" came from children.

The Army is holding onto the suggestions until it is told what to do with them. It is expected that a presidential commission will be appointed to recommend a new design.

There was a suggestion that the Statue of Liberty be placed in the blue field with stars clustered around it.

Some suggested a cross for the blue field; others a Star of David.

One design had the appearance of a cattle brand — an "X" inside a circle.

Other proposals:

The continental U.S. outlined in stars.

Fifty little stars forming a big star.

The words "In God We Trust" over a cross of stars.

One contributor suggested sprinkling 50 stars into the blue field in any old manner so that there would be no problem in adding stars "when the U.S. admits China, India and Russia."

Gas Prices Are Eyed

BOISE, Idaho —(AP)— Gov. Robert E. Smylie named an investigating committee to probe gasoline prices which range from 25 to 40 cents a gallon in Idaho.

The governor sent a telegram to 10 major oil companies saying he has learned that "some prices currently used in the trade violate the Idaho Unfair Sales Act and state anti-trust statutes."

Smylie also asked the major oil companies to correct the situation.

The chairman of the investigating committee, which is to report by the 1961 Legislature session, said its study will be "thorough and factual and not witch-hunting."

Realty Men Hit Closings

A stand against closing schools to avoid integration has been taken by the Real Estate Industries Council of Dade County.

Maurice M. Meehan, chairman of the council, which includes organizations in building and related fields, said it is supporting a recent resolution of the Florida Education Association opposing any school-closing measure.

"We know that a segment of the Florida Legislature may introduce such a proposal in this session," he said. "We want to lend whatever support we can to kill such a measure."

The council has sent telegrams to Dade legislators and to Gov. LeRoy Collins, he said.

House Speaker Sums Up Laws Likely to Pass

Florida's Legislature, which meets every two years, reassembles next Tuesday in Tallahassee. The eyes of the legislators and the rest of the state will be on three influential men—Speaker of the House Thomas Beasley, Senate President Dewey M. Johnson and Governor LeRoy Collins. How they agree and differ on key issues will affect you. Speaker Beasley explains his views in today's article written especially for The Herald.

By THOMAS D. BEASLEY
Speaker of Florida House

TALLAHASSEE — Any effort to accomplish reapportionment of the Legislature through constitutional revision in the session convening next week will, in my opinion, be a waste of time.

I try to be realistic in approaching the problems facing Florida and I believe there are so many issues before the 1959 session that the chances of working out an acceptable reapportionment formula within the 60-day period are nil.

His Views
Will Affect
YOU

It is obvious that economy in government — the fight to hold the line against new taxes — and consideration of possible new legislation on segregation are going to have priority on our agenda. They are going to consume considerable time.

I think it ought to be plain to all of us that if the Legislature can not now reapportion under the present formula by a simple majority, it would be utterly impossible to accomplish reapportionment through a constitutional amendment requiring a three-fifths vote in each house.

* * *

He Predicts No New Taxes

Here is my outlook on some of the major problems facing us in this session:

Taxes: I predict that the 1959 Legislature will avoid levying new taxes. But I am confident we will be able to plug some loopholes in existing tax laws which will have the effect of boosting our revenue without burdening the taxpayers.

I anticipate during this session that there will be tremendous pressure from certain sources to persuade the Legislature to levy new taxes but those efforts will meet defeat.

It is my judgment that there is going to have to be some cuts made in the proposed state budget for the next biennium and I think every governmental department will have to share in the trim.

I want to clarify one thing. I have never been and am not now in favor of any reduction in the Minimum Foundation Program for our schools.

However, I am of the opinion that the majority of the people of Florida believe we are paying for more education than our children are receiving. But that is a situation

Views in a Nutshell

BEASLEY

REAPPORTIONMENT — "Chances are nil."

TAXES — "Legislature will avoid levying new taxes."

SCHOOLS — "People are paying more for education than our children are receiving."

SEGREGATION — "I am opposed to legislation that will impair our public school system." But he believes a law will be passed to enable parents who desire to enroll children in private, segregated schools.

CONSTITUTIONAL REVISION — "Some will be accomplished . . ."

Probers Bare New Tactics

U.S. Reds Get Word: Look Loyal, Peaceful

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Communists in the U.S. are now reported under orders "to wear a new look."

The House Committee on un-American Activities, telling of this, said:

"To a degree unmatched in party history, Communists are now promoting themselves as loyal to the U.S., peace-loving and humanitarian in purpose, and anxious to work in harmony with Socialists, liberals, and even capitalists for the good of the nation."

This picture of communism was portrayed in a 120-page report on Communist activities in Southern California. This area, the committee said, is now the special target of resurgent Red efforts.

Investigators said a new Communist tactic is to pose as a crusader against monopolies thereby bidding for cooperation of labor and other elements in what the report calls an attack on the free enterprise system.

The committee also noted a change in the party line regarding Negroes. Instead of a "Soviet Negro nation," the new goal is described as one of helping Negroes more nearly realize aspirations of becoming an integrated part of American life.

"That the party has been impeded in its efforts to influence any substantial portion of the Negro population is unquestionably due to the innate integrity and common sense of this minority," the report said.

The committee said other changes in tactics involve an invigorated drive to lure youth into the party, and an effort to re-establish a welcome for the Communist Party in organized labor.

The committee said the main emphasis in remodeled Communist tactics is on a program of direct action to infiltrate legitimate community affairs. The role of the indirect "front" organization has been largely abandoned, investigators said.

Reds Say Lama Is In India

New Outbreak Boils in Tibet

NEW DELHI, India —(UPI) — The Chinese Communists said Thursday the Dalai Lama of Tibet has eluded a massive Red air-and-ground hunt and slipped across the heavily-guarded border into India. There was no confirmation available here.

The report by the official Communist New China News Agency is expected to put a further strain on relations between India and Peiping in the wake of the Tibetan anti-Communist revolt.

The Red report coincided with reports here of a new outbreak of heavy fighting between the fierce anti-Red Khamba tribesmen and Chinese Communist troops in an area southeast of the sacred city of Lhasa.

Informed sources in New Delhi said the Communists were using planes, cannon and automatic weapons against the Khambas, who spearheaded the open rebellion in Lhasa two weeks ago.

There was increasing pressure on Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru to review his neutralist foreign policy in view of Peiping's crackdown on the Tibetans.

The New China News Agency dispatch, broadcast by Radio Peiping and monitored in Tokyo, said the Dalai Lama was accompanied into India by some of the rebels who took part in the Lhasa uprising. It said Dalai Lama, who is considered the god-king of Tibet, entered India Tuesday "under duress by the rebellious elements."

The Communists repeatedly have claimed that the Dalai Lama, revered as a living Buddha by Tibetans, had been forced to flee against his will.

The Communist agency said Indian border police were on their way from Tawang to meet the Dalai Lama.

The Reds had been reported using planes and paratroops in the hunt for the Dalai Lama. A dispatch from the Indian border city of Kalimpong reported heavy reinforcement of Chinese Communist troops on the Tibetan side.

7 Million In Profits On Paper

The wild fluctuations in the price of General Development Corp. stock in recent weeks have made a paper profit of at least seven million dollars for Miami's three Mackle brothers and almost 30 million dollars for Board Chairman Louis Chesler.

When the Mackle Co. merged with General Development last year, Frank Jr., Robert and Elliott Mackle got 200,000 shares of the new firm's stock in the deal. It was valued at about $10 a share then.

When the American Stock Exchange closed Thursday, the stock—which earlier this year had jumped as high as $77.50—was trading at $47.25 a share. That would make the Mackles' paper profit $7,450,000—but it's only on paper.

Chesler owns 713,000 shares of General Development. Based on the latest trading price of the stock, Chesler's stock holdings in the firm now would be worth close to 30 million dollars.

A spokesman for General Development said the Mackles have not sold any of those shares. Restrictions of the Securities and Exchange Commission would prevent their selling without full public disclosure through the SEC.

In addition, the Mackles hold options to buy 105,000 additional shares at around $14 a share. But they have not exercised the options.

In trading on the open market, the three brothers have bought other holdings in the corporation for varying prices.

Had they sold when the stock was at its highest this year, their profit would have exceeded 15 million dollars.

Be Realistic, He Warns NATO

'We'll Live in Tension For Years to Come'–Ike

Free People Told To Show Courage

WASHINGTON—(AP)—President Eisenhower Thursday cautioned the Atlantic Pact countries against "substituting illusions for reality" in searching for new agreements with Russia to reduce world tension.

Speaking as an old soldier, Eisenhower appealed for free people to display courage, sacrifice and perseverance while their governments carefully explore for just solutions to existing East-West deadlocks.

"We must be prepared during the years ahead to live in a world in which tension and bickering between free nations and the Soviets will be daily experiences," he said.

Some 1,400 delegates and distinguished guests from the 15 member countries gathered in the interdepartmental auditorium on historic Constitution Ave. to hear Eisenhower deliver a keynote address at the opening session.

In a closed-door sesson that followed Eisenhower's talk, Acting Secretary of State Christian Herter said the U.S. will use its full array of aircraft and missile power to defend its Atlantic Pact allies if it should become necessary.

Speaking on behalf of the U.S. government, Herter told the NATO Council the U.S. now is making faster progress than Russia in developing missiles. Despite the mounting tensions over Berlin, Herter predicted the crisis would be settled without shooting, but he stressed the need for the Allies to stand firm.

Addressing the same closed-door meeting, Britain's Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd assured the Allied representatives that his country stands as firmly as the other Allies in resisting Russian pressure for one-sided agreements.

Lloyd put Britain on record as viewing any plan for neutralizing or demilitarizing Germany as the worst possible solution of the German problem.

He also said Britain would not advocate any troop and arms freeze plan in Central Europe unless it was linked with the goal of German reunification.

The remarks at the closed-door afternoon session were relayed to newsmen by a NATO spokesman. They were clearly aimed at dispelling reports that the British favored making more concessions to the Soviets than do the U.S., France, West Germany and other Atlantic Pact partners.

Eisenhower avoided mentioning the Berlin crisis directly in his brief address. But he pledged to "make concrete and realistic proposals" about the over-all German problem in a move to improve relations with Russia.

Two of the foreign leaders of the defense alliance, Secretary General Paul-Henri Spaak of Belgium and Foreign Minister Joseph M. Luns of the Netherlands, brought out into the open their concern over Berlin tensions.

Standing on the giant stage, they also joined in denouncing Soviet policy, saying it endangers international peace by a campaign of subversion, threats and outright aggression.

Spaak called for the allies to be even more vigilant in the future because, he said:

"By again raising the issue of the status of Berlin and by handling the German question as it has, Moscow is playing a game in which the ultimate stake is the existence of our European political institutions and defense system."

He called on the NATO allies to be alert for "honorable compromises with the Soviets which uphold the basic principles of Western civilization."

Luns, who is chairman of the 15-nation meeting, scathingly assailed weakhearted, weary defeatists in Allied ranks who he said would conclude agreements with Russia in the mistaken belief that this would avoid war.

Remains of Two Homes Tornado Hit in Orlando

Tornadoes Cross Florida, Leave Death and Wreckage

More State News Pages 24A, 1B, 3B

TANGLED WRECKAGE in Dade City, Orlando and Mims, with damage estimated at more than $1,000,000.

ONE SEAMAN DROWNED, and two others believed dead after their 60-foot tug sank in near-Hurricane force winds in the Atlantic.

A WOMAN DEAD, killed when tornado winds hurled her 400 feet from her shattered trailer in Orlando.

DOZENS OF INJURIES throughout the state.

The twisters hit first in Dade City, at 5:30 a.m.

They followed the east-to-west path of the squall line, which blew out to the Atlantic and turned southward, but did little damage to the Gold Coast.

A clash of cold air from the north, and warm air from the Gulf touched off the storms, weathermen said. They predicted clearing skies today.

But for three hours, the freak weather Thursday produced terror, shattered homes and crumpled cars.

Mrs. Rosie Varnado, 40, was alone in her trailer in Orlando when the tornado touched down. She died en route to a hospital.

The tug, the William L., sank about 65 miles east and 38 miles north of Palm Beach. The Coast Guard picked up two survivors and the body of a third crewman. Two others were believed to have gone down with the tug.

The craft went down about 3:10 p.m., and Coast Guard planes continued to search for survivors until dusk.

The names of the crewmen were not immediately known.

Hardest hit was a four-block residential strip in Orlando's Azalea Park, with about 20 homes damaged. National Guardsmen patrolled the area Thursday night.

"The house just seemed to explode," one victim said.

Telephone service to Dade City from Tampa was knocked out, and two persons were hospitalized and 15 injured less severely in the city 35 miles northeast of Tampa.

Officials at Mims, a town on the Atlantic in North Brevard County, said "several" people were hurt, none seriously.

Gov. LeRoy Collins called out the National Guard to prevent looting in storm damaged areas.

The squall brought winds of 55 miles-an-hour to Greater Miami, but a few trees were the only casualties.

Squall Line Sweeps Over South Florida

The Miami Weather Bureau, which predicted rapidly warming temperatures today said the tornadoes stemmed from a clash of cold air from the front and warm moist air off the Gulf.

The squall line built up about 200 miles from the actual front, Forecaster Walter Davis said, and raced south through the state triggering spotty but violent storms.

Tornadoes develop from cold overrunning warm air. The warm air rushes upward as the cold air sweeps downward. When the clash is severe, the whirling wind dips down in the typical funnel-shaped twister.

Although parts of Miami caught winds up to 45 miles an hour, the squall passed over the city late in the afternoon doing little more than knocking down a few trees.

Dulles Takes Dip in Ocean

Herald Bureau

JUPITER ISLAND — High winds and rain forced Secretary of State John Foster Dulles to forego his morning swim Thursday.

But the convalescing Dulles managed to take a dip in the ocean later in the day when overcast skies cleared.

Joseph M. Green, Dulles' personal assistant, said Dulles' morale is very high and that he is being "realistic" about his illness.

The secretary of state is resting here while recuperating from a recent cancer operation in Washington.

Reds Warn Upper Air Not 'Safe'

BERLIN —(UPI)— A Soviet spokesman said Thursday that the Red air force would not try to prevent high-altitude U.S. transport flights to West Berlin. But he warned that the Russians could not "fully guarantee" the safety of such flights above 10,000 feet.

The spokesman at the Soviet embassy in East Berlin said that high Western flights in the three air corridors to West Berlin would endanger air security. He explained that Soviet air force planes normally fly above the corridors at altitudes over 10,000 feet.

The Russian embassy spokesman was explaining a Soviet statement Wednesday that further high level flights in the Berlin corridors could lead to "complications." Soviet jets had buzzed a big U.S. Air Force C130 transport when it flew to Berlin last Friday at 25,000 feet.

"The fact that we say that Western high altitude flights might lead to possible complications does not mean that we are preparing actions against such flights," the Soviet embassy spokesman said.

"We mean only that the present air safety system of air security will not exist for aircraft above 10,000 feet and that the Soviets will not be able to fully guarantee the safety of such flights."

The spokesman repeated the Soviet stand that flight regulations bar Western allied aircraft traveling over the Soviet zone of Germany to West Berlin from flying above 10,000 feet.

He said that under the air safety rules that have prevailed until now the Soviet air force sends its aircraft across the corridors continually above that altitude.

The space above the 10,000 foot level, the Russian embassy spokesman said, is reserved for Soviet aircraft. He said that if Western aircraft used the same altitudes they might be endangered.

"But that does not mean that any American aircraft would be molested or attacked," he added.

Bitten Man Has Rabies

RICHMOND, Va. —(UPI)— Police searched the eastern seaboard Thursday for a South Carolina businessman who may die if he does not seek treatment for rabies he unknowingly contacted.

Herbert Birtwistle of Greenville, S.C., was bitten Tuesday by a dog in Easley, S.C. The dog was found to be rabid Wednesday after Birtwistle left alone on an auto trip to Rhode Island, his former home, to visit his ailing wife.

Rabies is an acute virus disease of the central nervous system. Doctors at the Medical College of Virginia here said Birtwistle would die an agonizing death if he did not receive treatment.

Cabinet Member Urges Easing of Welfare Rules

Residence Limits Rapped

WASHINGTON — (UPI) — An Eisenhower cabinet member urged the states Thursday to get rid of their residence requirements for public assistance payments to the needy and handicapped.

Arthur S. Flemming, secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, told the Family Service Association of America there was no "sense" to the practice of requiring needy persons to live in a state for a minimum period before they become eligible for assistance.

Flemming's speech, which appeared to be a major policy statement, followed disclosure that the department is considering endorsement of a plan enabling mothers to stay home with their children rather than having to take jobs to support them.

The plan would be aimed especially at mothers of needy families.

Flemming told the social workers, who have long opposed the residence requirements for needy persons, that he hoped they would be removed soon.

Every state except New York bans public assistance to persons who have not lived in the state for a certain period, usually one to three years. New York legislators recently rejected a proposal for such requirements.

Flemming said the government is trying to achieve, in written policy, a new "family-centered" approach to welfare problems. Such an approach would treat the needy or handicapped person as a part of his family, rather than merely trying to meet his individual problem without regard to others he lives with.

In that connection, Jay L. Roney, director of the Social Security Administration's bureau of public assistance, told the group that "more and more mothers of growing children are working on jobs outside the home. He said this was particularly true among the nation's neediest families.

He said the key question in considering a policy for working mothers in needy families was whether the mother's "first responsibility is to work in order to support her children financially or to stay home and to provide them with a strong family life."

More than half of the nation's broken families are trying to exist on less than $2,000 a year, he said, and broader state assistance appeared to be needed.

Flemming also said the question of whether the federal government should continue to share the costs of only a few assistance programs or go into the entire field should be settled.

The Town Crier

BY Jack Bell

HARLOW Chamberlin, backed by American Civil Liberties Union, is seeking a ban on prayers in school. It's old hat, an argument that has been going on since the public school system started. It's a free country. Each of us may choose our own religion, say the prayers we like or none at all. Then, to carry the ball a bit farther: Why should a Jewish child say a Christian prayer, or vice versa?

BELL

It seems to me the whole argument against prayer is overdone. Personally I don't think prayer in school does any child any good. If he behaves himself, is tolerant and considerate and does his school work, that's enough, in my book. But I'm just one. Millions of parents must like the idea of prayer in school, or it wouldn't be there.

So, if the majority of the children are Christian and the teacher has them saying a Christian prayer, the Jew, the Mohammedan, the Hindu and children of sects with unusual beliefs may remain silent. Or, if they wish, say a silent prayer of their own.

Clothing

Lend-a-Hand needs clothing for children. Mrs. Faye Newalk has been trying to save clothing for the 600 summer camp children. But so many children without school clothes have been sent to her by the agencies that she's running low.

She needs all types of clothing, for babies, boys, girls. Anything that can be worn is acceptable. Take it to the workshop at 225 SW Second Ave. or call FR 9-9632.

Dedicated

Douglas Gardens, 151 NE 52nd St., truly is a dedicated shrine. There, at 2 Sunday afternoon, they'll dedicate another group of buildings at Jewish Home for the Aged. Judge Irving Cypen will preside and Dr. Homer Marsh, dean of University of Miami medical school, will speak.

The new buildings include four pavilions, research laboratory (for geriatrics), and a sheltered workshop. Fourteen years ago Jewish leaders obtained the land and started the home. It's one of the really bright spots in Miami's haphazard care of the aged.

Lama Now In India, Reds Report

the area where the new fighting was reported, mobilized its entire 5,000-man militia to meet the threat of possible trouble.

Prime Minister Jigme Dorje of Bhutan told UPI Correspondent Patrick J. Killen in Kalimpong that Bhutan would grant temporary asylum to the Dalai Lama if he requested. But it was clear Bhutan feared possible Red Chinese reprisal if the Dalai Lama remained for any length of time.

Indians already were becoming more suspicious of the Chinese Reds and their intentions toward the Indian protectorates of Bhutan and Sikkim in the Himalayas between India and Tibet. There also was some fear the Reds might invade the kingdom of Nepal, which also has offered the Dalai Lama asylum.

Kalimpong reports said the Reds had turned Tibet into a virtual armed camp in the attempt to quash the still-simmering revolt. Additional Peiping troops were said to be pouring in by motor transport and planes. The Red Chinese forces in Tibet were estimated at around 300,000 before the fighting flared.

The Kalimpong sources said the Reds were deporting 100 truckloads of rebellious Tibetans daily to forced labor camps, presumably in occupied western Tibet.

PAA Locks Horns With Teamsters

By DOM BONAFEDE
Herald Staff Writer

Pan American World Airways and the Teamsters Union locked horns Thursday for the first time since Jimmy Hoffa bulled his way into the airline industry last February.

In a systemwide secret ballot, 860 PAA stock clerks, including 272 in Miami and 250 at Cape Canaveral, voted on a proposed union contract which includes an average 31½-cent hourly wage increase.

Refusal by the membership to accept the contract could lead to preliminary strike action.

But a PAA spokesman commented:

"So far there is no indication of any strike. If there is, we plan to continue operations, depending of course on what the other unions do."

There were reports that many of the Teamsters members were satisfied with the new wage terms, but did not see eye-to-eye with the company on other sections of the proposed contract.

Results are expected to be disclosed Friday.

Officials of Miami Teamsters Local 390, headed by Joe Morgan, declined to comment on the election or even admit that an election was being held.

Company spokesmen, however, confirmed the report.

By an overwhelming majority, the clerks voted to join the Teamsters, thus marking the first time the powerful union won the right to represent any working group in the airline industry.

The clerks formerly were members of the Machinists Union, and later transferred to the Transport Workers. The switch was declared void by the AFL-CIO on jurisdictional grounds, leaving the door open for the Teamsters to come in.

A portion of the program will originate in Washington's Constitution Hall. There also will be pickups from New York, Hollywood and Independence, Mo., Truman's home town.

Chinese Pay Dear For Tibet

Total Submission Communist Aim

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Foreign News Analyst

The Communists' behavior leads to speculation that there are some things they fear more than propaganda reverses.

For years Red China painstakingly built a propaganda picture for the rest of Asia: A once backward, agrarian country rapidly transforming itself into a major world power through the magic of a political system.

Some Asians listened and expressed confidence in peaceful co-existence. But events in Tibet have changed tolerance into fear and suspicion.

Tibet is to Asia what Iraq is becoming to the Middle East and what Hungary was to Europe.

In Hungary the Russians forcefully reminded Europe that whatever the cost — even the wrath of world opinion— communism demands total submission. In the Middle East, Arabs who thought it possible to use the Communist threat as a bludgeon against the West are finding out that once Communists taste power, as in Iraq, they move swiftly to annihilate all opposition.

Tibet, with a population of 1,300,000, had only the remnants of an army of 3,000 rifle-bearing men. China is a nation of 600 million with a modern army of many millions. To the Western mind it might seem inconceivable that Tibet could pose any threat to Red China.

Cut Fees, Hospitals Are Urged

CHICAGO —(UPI)— American Hospital Association President-elect Dr. Russell A. Nelson called on the nation's hospitals to cut down their own fees before the government steps in to do it for them.

"More self controls are needed for the strength of our voluntary hospitals," Nelson said. "The mechanism for this type of self-control already exists— in the state hospital associations."

Nelson's comments were published in the current issue of Hospitals, the magazine of the AHA.

He said the hearings and recent insurance department decisions all point toward one thing: "Control — control of hospital services through state-regulated control of Blue Cross payments to hospitals."

General's a Hero

'I Did No Wrong,' Says Colonel Who 'Bumped' 7 GIs

TOKYO — (AP) — The general who commands U.S. forces in Japan emerged as a GI hero Thursday—along with a spunky enlisted man who took a protest right to the top.

Lt. Gen. Robert W. Burns ordered a military airliner back to Japan, put aboard five enlisted men on emergency home furlough and opened an investigation of the lieutenant colonel they said had bumped them.

"All I can say is that as far as I'm concerned, I had nothing to do with keeping those people off the plane," said Lt. Col. Charles Platt Jr. of New York City. He had been headed for a vacation in Hawaii.

The Air Force and the enlisted men told about the incident Thursday, a week after it happened. The Air Force said Platt may be completely innocent. But one enlisted man insisted the men with their emergency travel orders bumped the colonel and he got mad and bumped them back.

Two soldiers were hurrying home for their mothers' funerals. Both got there too late, although it is possible they would have been too late anyway. Another was going home for his son's funeral.

This is the sequen[illegible] events as given by [illegible] Force in Tokyo and [illegible] the enlisted men back [illegible] U.S.:

"We bumped him," said Airman Robert J. Kindl of Saratoga Springs, N.Y., who was going home for the funeral of his four-year-old son.

"He got mad, pulled rank and ordered a major underneath him to bump us . . .

"We were little wheels and he was a big wheel. So he wanted to get to Hawaii and have a good time. He didn't care who it hurt or what the trouble was."

The enlisted men said they appealed to officers at the air base but the officers replied they could do nothing about it.

Airman Coye Y. Bell, Fayetteville, Tenn., was anxious to get to the bedside of a brother injured in a traffic accident. He decided to call Burns, an Air Force general.

BELL

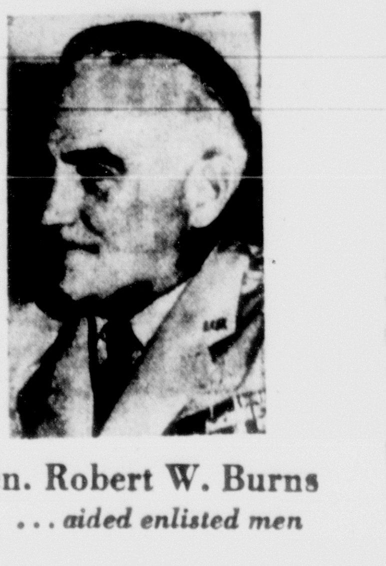
"We were in the right and we were mad," Bell said.

With the help of the Red Cross, Bell got Burns on the phone. The plane had taken off for Hawaii, but Burns checked the soldiers' story and had the plane headed back within 30 minutes. Then Burns went out to the airport to see that the enlisted men got on the plane.

"We didn't want to do a thing like that but we had top priority emergency furloughs," said Staff Sgt. John P. Snyder of Vandergrift, Pa.

En route back, the "Pacific Express" had to dump most of its full fuel load into the ocean as a safety precaution before landing.

Then two of the seven enlisted men could not be found. The Air Force put five of them on the plane along with two other high priority passengers, and sent the airliner on its way again.



Gen. Robert W. Burns
. . . aided enlisted men

Read said he missed his mother's funeral because of the colonel. Snyder arrived home the day after funeral services for his mother but the body was kept at the funeral home so he could see it.

A source in the passenger terminal who would not be quoted by name said the plane even with Platt's family aboard on its original takeoff had 33 occupied and eight empty seats.

An Air Force spokesman could not confirm this immediately saying the passenger list was still being checked. He emphasized "there is no evidence at this point to indicate Platt has done anything wrong."

"We don't know how it happened," the spokesman said, "emergency leaves normally provide a priority that is sufficiently high to safeguard any passenger against being bumped by someone on regular leave, regardless of rank. It may be that we need some new procedures, or better fulfillment of the old."

Platt was asked to be available for the investigation. He canceled his vacation and returned to duty.

The woman landed on the mezzanine floor of the Hollywood Plaza Hotel and rolled down a flight of stairs into the lobby before a score of horrified onlookers.

Police said Rowley has a record of arrests for drunkenness, forgery and assault with a deadly weapon.

'Roaring Ball of Blue Flames,' Says Eye Witness

Hurled to Tree Top by Tornado, He Lives

By DAN BROWN
And GENE BURNETT
Herald Staff Writers

MIMS — A small tornado ripped through this north Brevard community early Thursday and slightly injured a man by hurling him to a tree top.

The storm also smashed the injured man's home and two others, nearly demolished a bottled gas company office and damaged a church and scores of other buildings. The smashed homes were valued at $30,000.

"It slashed through town like a "roaring ball of blue flames," a witness said.

Roads were littered with broken power lines, uprooted trees, shattered signs and other debris.

The Florida Highway Patrol blocked several roads until power company crews from Titusville four miles to the south made emergency repairs.

The patrol also warned sightseers away because of the downed power lines.

APPARENTLY, THE storm was one of three spawned by a squall line which swept through Florida Thursday. The others hit Dade City and Azalea Park near Orlando killing one person and injuring 23 persons. Injured in the Mims storm was Joyn Wright, a used car dealer, who was sitting on a bunk shaving when the winds struck.

Wright said he heard the winds "rip across U.S. 1 in front of his car lot and home, then "didn't know anything" until he came to in the tree top about 50 feet from the home.

Right's glasses were smashed and he was cut and bruised, but he was not hospitalized.

Most of Wright's incomplete home was also blown into the grove of trees and his car lot office was destroyed. His bunk bed stayed at the top of a 30-foot oak all day.

Wright estimated his losses at "$4,000 or more."

The storm struck Mims from the southwest at 8:15 a.m. and roared through in a few seconds cutting a 200-yard wide swath about three quarters of a mile long.

* * *

IT STRUCK FIRST at the Suncoast Bottled Gas Co. office directly across U.S. 1 from Wright's lot tearing off the roof, and shattering a grove of oaks which surrounded the office.

Mrs. William Bouvier, wife of the company' owner, and Russell Keister, an employe, were in the office when the blast struck. Neither was injured.

"The storm looked like a roaring ball of blue flame. It glowed like a welder's torch when we looked up and saw it moving eastward," said Keister.

"It was strong," said Mrs. Bouvier. "It blew my car 30 feet and banged it into an oak tree."

The powerful wind scraped at the saint James Missionary Baptist Church after hitting Wright's lot. It plucked the church parsonage off its foundations then dropped it. The home nearly disintegrated.

* * *

BOTH THE PARSONAGE and demolished home nearby were empty when the wind struck. "Some one would have been killed if they hadn't been," said Joe Mendelson, chief of the north Brevard fire patrol.

In other parts of the Negro section winds lifted four homes from their foundations. One spun around and stopped with its back door where the front door had been.

In the city's white sections, the roof of James McKenney's home "peeled like a banana," and a blast flung open a kitchen door at the home of Edward Crandall near the bottled gas company.

Crandall said he "couldn't budge the door" until the wind stopped. He said the storm created a "white smothering effect and then it was gone."

* * *

WHEN THE STORM struck, classes were just starting at the Mims Elementary School. Some playground equipment toppled and the school grounds were lashed by windblown debris, but the school officials said no children were hurt

Art Wortham, manager of the Titusville branch of the Florida Power and Light Co. said the winds knocked out service to about 250 homes.

Service reportedly was restored to most by two hours after the storm.

Damage to citrus was light.

At the groves of Mrs. N. W. Bryan a dozen trees were uprooted, but Mrs. Bryan said "it took trees that had already been picked."

Elsewhere In Brevard, the squalls which spawned the tornados did no important damage, although drenching rains fell most of the day.

Police said there were no serious automobile accidents, although they had several "minor" ones.

In one of the minor accidents, a car skidded and overturned on rain slick State Rd. 401, the south road to Cape Canaveral, but the Florida Highway Patrol said it knew of no injuries in the accident.

The car had been abandoned when a patrol car reached it.

Ft. Pierce Man Buys TV Station

Herald Service

FORT PIERCE — O. Wayne Rollins, president of Rollins Broadcasting-Telecasting who makes his home here, said Thursday his firm has bought a Pensacola TV station.

The radio-TV executive, whose company owns a chain of radio stations plus a TV outlet in Plattsburgh, N.Y., said WEAR-TV-Pensacola was purchased for 1.5 million dollars. The sale is subject to approval by the Federal Communications Commission.

Rollins, who lives here with his family at 809 Ohio Avenue has extensive real estate interests in Florida including apartment houses, groves and waterfront properties.

His purchase of 17,000 acres in Okeechobee County starting from the corner of state roads 441 and 68 was one of the largest single real estate acquisitions by an individual in the state's history.

Hoyt C. Murphy of Fort Pierce, long time friend of Rollins, was instrumental in bringing the radio and TV tycoon to Florida a few years ago.

Their most recent real estate venture was the optioning of a 30,000 acre tract, most of it in Okeechobee County but with 12,000 acres going into Highlands County. This now gives the Rollins interests control of nearly 50,000 acres in South Central Florida.

The Pensacola TV station will be the first Rollins radio or TV operation in the Sunshine State. Their radio stations are in New York, Chicago, St. Louis, Indianapolis, Norfolk, Wilmington, Del., and Georgetown, Del.

"How about a TV station for Fort Pierce?" Mr. Rollins was asked.

His answer: "If the Indian River area continues to grow — with Kiplinger predicting 181% population increase in ten years this potential development will make it possible."

Vero Man Gets Post At Ft. Pierce

FORT PIERCE — David Crowson, 30, Vero Beach has been appointed public works supervisor and civil engineer for Fort Pierce.

City Manager Floyd Glisson said that Crowson will start his $8,000 a year job April 13. He has been with Carter Engineering in Vero Beach.

Crowden, a graduate of the University of Florida, was with the Atlantic Coastline Railroad in the engineering department, and also with Reynolds, Smith and Hills.

Since 1954 he was with Carter Engineering and was in charge of their Bartow office before coming to Vero.

WINTER HAVEN, Fla. — (UPI) — Members of the Florida Canners Assn. packed a record 1,116,160 gallons of frozen grapefruit concentrate last week, it was announced Thursday.

The Florida Canners Assn. said the season's total pack, up to March 28, of 3,629,628 gallons also is a record for that point of the season.

The canners also packed 1,412,801 gallons of frozen orange concentrate during the week, paying an average price of 58 cents per pound of solids for their oranges.

Bigamist's 1st Wife Files Divorce Suit

As Audrey Jane Sears, 25, filed the suit Wednesday, Ernest Sears Jr. sat in his county jail cell and recalled how he met Mary Joyce, 22. She is the woman for whom he gave up his first wife, their two children and a new home in Florida.

"I saw her two years ago today," Sears said. "I just happened to drive by her home after going fishing. I was separated from my wife at the time. Mary Joyce and I had a date and then we fell in love."

Sears was convicted of bigamy last month. The charge was reduced to attempting to commit a felony and suspended on condition he return to his first wife, Audrey.

He went with his family to Winn, Fla., but returned last March 26 to his second wife and a one to two year prison sentence.

Sears said he would seek annulment of his second marriage so that he and Mary Joyce could "get remarried when I get out of prison."

What Flights Mean

'No More Bumpy Highway Rides'

Herald Bureau

MELBOURNE — The new transcontinental flight connections that will be made possible by the addition of national airline service at Melbourne airport on April 26 is expected to eliminate a lot of automobile riding over bumpy roads by America's guided missile experts.

These civilian and military missilemen do considerable traveling between California and Florida's Air Force Missile test center, and up to now there has been only one way in and out of Florida.

Bud Clark, manager of the joint airline military traffic office at AFMTC, said Thursday that the only present transcontinental connection is out of Orlando.

"And we have to send our missile experts over there in either private or staff cars," said Clark. "This isn't only troublesome, but time consuming—and costly."

He says the addition of the two Miami-Tampa-New Orleans National flight—one going in each direction daily—to Melbourne airport's schedule should prove "very beneficial to you here."

Clark said "about 75 per cent of our airline business here is between Florida and California."

Another benefit that the new National service is expected to bring is a gain in the landings and take-offs at the local field.

City commissioner E. W. (Bill) Buss claims these four additional daily operations will help push Melbourne's field nearer the operation quota set by the Federal Aviation Agency for establishment of a control tower.

Buss also stated that "we are keeping a good record of the private plane operations, and the time might be close for us to qualify for a FAA tower."

Melbourne airport and the Patrick Air Force base field ground-to-air control zones almost touch, and officials report that there always is a possibility of mid-air collision. PAFB has a tower.

Another development following announcement of National service here was the appointment of Walter S. Fordyce as chairman of the NAL welcoming committee by Mayor J. J. Spitznogle. Fordyce, the city's aviation director, was instrumental in bringing Eastern Air Lines to Melbourne.

Survivors include his wife June, three brothers and two sisters. Services will be 10 a.m. Saturday from the Baird Funeral Chapel, with burial in Hillcrest Memorial Gardens.

Missile School Slated

Herald Bureau

MELBOURNE — The U.S. Air Force's first contractor-operated advanced training school for intercontinental guided missilemen soon will be in operation at the Air Force missile Test Center for training of Snark SM-62 launch crews, it was announced Thursday.

This school will be operated by Norair division of Northrop Corp., builders of the Snark, according to Richard R. Nolan, Norair vice president and general manager.

Nolan and George Douglas, Norair vice president for engineering, are here from division headquarters at Hawthorne, Calif., to review new programs with Will J. Tobo, the corporations' base administrator, and other key personnel.

The training school will be staffed by 35 crack missile system instructors, headed by Ralph Quinn, veteran training executive. About 80 men will be enrolled in the initial class.

Supervising the training program for the Air Training Command will be Detachment No. 2 SM-62-2 from Amarillo Air Force base, Texas. It is commanded by Capt. Richard M. Conner of Willsboro N.Y.

The Cape Canaveral school will provide launch pad crew training in guidance, controls, propulsion and other Snark system for Air Force technical experts who have previously completed intensive training at Amarillo, AFB.

On completion of their training here, the missile specialists will be assigned to the Strategic Air Command's first operational Snark units at Presque Isle Air Force Base, Mo., commanded by Col. Richard Beck of New York City.

Graduates of the new training school will join personnel of the 556 strategic missile squadron, who have been receiving "on the job training" at Cape Canaveral for the past 15 months.

The Air Force Snark, with its 6,000 mile range, is the first U.S. intercontinental missile to be launched by military personnel.

Mr. and Mrs. Quinn will make their home at Eau Gallie. Assisting Quinn in direction of the school will be James Tyndall and Kenneth Revoir, instructor supervisors. The Tyndalls will reside at Titusville. Revoir will arrive for duty next week.

Public Housing Foes Organize At Fort Pierce

Herald Service

FORT PIERCE — Opposition to public housing in Fort Pierce came out in the open Thursday, with the announcement of a new organization, "Landowners and Taxpayers Association of St. Lucie County, Florida."

Attorney David McCain is temporary chairman, and reports that 82 persons have pledged support and contributions to the new organization.

In announcing formation of the group, McCain stated, "One of the selected primary purposes of this organization is to promote the democratic principles of free enterprise, predicted upon a sound economy, and to oppose government competition with private enterprise.

"Selection of this particular dedication was made in view of the current investigation concerning public housing for St. Lucie County, which would have to be financed by the public housing administration, a federal agency."

The Fort Pierce Housing Authority, which was holding its regular meeting Thursday about the time the opposition announced its plans, appeared neither surprised nor unduly concerned. Chairman Nathan Zelmenovitz commented "Some opposition will probably make us work harder."

Although the housing authority has not formulated plans, the members appear convinced that private enterprise is not meeting the housing needs in substandard areas.

Mosquito Unit Asks New Name

Herald Correspondent

FORT PIERCE — "A rose by any other name would smell as sweet," according to the poet, but the St. Lucie County Sanitary District is hoping for local legislation that will give the general public a better understanding of its duties and functions.

The new proposed name is "St. Lucie County Mosquito Control District," which gives a clear idea of just what Director Fred Harden and his department does.

The department feels it gets enough calls about mosquitoes and sandflies, without getting alarms from citizens asking that the department clean up a sanitary menace, dispose of a dead horse, or inspect a garbage pile.

They are not surprised to get these calls and it is sometimes difficult to expalin why a department called a "Sanitary District" has nothing to do with sanitation.

Jaycees To Enroll Voters

Herald Bureau

MELBOURNE — The Melbourne Junior Chamber of Commerce, with City Commission approval, will take voter registrations between 6 and 9 p.m. Friday and Monday and from 2 to 5 p.m. Saturday at Bass Printing Co.

The city is permitting the vote books to be open at night so working people, not already registered, may sign up. During the day, books will be open in the city clerk's office at city hall.

Registration books will close at 5 p.m. Tuesday for the special April 18 annexation election.

Residents in the annexation area who have not yet registered in county books will have to go to the courthouse in Titusville to sign. Those already listed in the county books are eligible to vote and do not have to re-register.

'Service, Not Salary Main Idea'

By ANNE WILDER
Herald Correspondent

FORT PIERCE — Opposition to local bills raising the salary of the St. Lucie County School Superintendent and of the school board members was voiced Wednesday evening, when Representative Rupert J. Smith conducted a public hearing in the courthouse on local legislation.

H. T. Hammer, former school board member, criticized the proposed salary increase of the superintendent, set in the bill as at least 10 per cent over the highest salary of other school personnel, as an unsound basis for determining how much the position should pay.

He also spoke against a bill to raise school board salaries from $600 to $1,800 a year, saying that payment should not be a consideration in serving on the school board, and that men and women should willing to serve if the salary were sufficient to pay expenses involved.

A sizable crowd which filled the courtroom applauded Hammer's remarks. In general, those at the public hearing were economy minded, and any statement about reducing or holding the line on costs was greeted with applause.

A sizable number attending were disturbed about a proposed city bill to change the method for annexing contiguous land to the city. There were some fears that the bill might allow the city to annex land arbitrarily. However, when it was explained that land could be taken in only with approval of freeholders in the city and in the area to be annexed, with two thirds of the freeholders voting, and two thirds of those voting approving, the opposition diminished.

In a number of cases, objections to bills were withdrawn after the content of the bill and purpose was explained in detail.

Representative Smith did not state his own attitude on the bills, saying he had not had a chance to study some of them in detail.

State to Ask Building Bids

FORT PIERCE — Senator Harry Kickliter received word Wednesday that the budget commission has approved advertising for bids for a new laboratory building at the Indian River Experiment Station here.

Five area leaders met with Governor LeRoy Collins Tuesday and asked him to release the $48,000 allocated for this much needed new building.

At the time, the governor was encouraging and said he would take the matter up with the cabinet Wednesday. The Experiment Station does citrus and vegetable research for this particular Indian River growing area.

By DAVID KRASLOW
Of Our Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Fifty stars forming a silhouette of George Washington.

—Stars forming the letters USA.

These are among hundreds of suggested designs for the 50-star flag forwarded to the Army Quartermaster Corps, official repository for all such proposals.

KRASLOW

Suggestions have come from just about every part of the U.S. except Hawaii, the soon-to-be 50th state.

There have been entries from 44 states, the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico—and even three foreign countries (Peru, Costa Rica and Canada.)

Some 450 star designs have been submitted by more than 550 individuals and organizations. There have been more than 100 duplications.

About 75 per cent proposed variations of straight rows of stars.

Included among the suggestions was the design used in the 50-star flag which Interior Secretary Fred Seaton has had on display in his office for months.

Seaton's unofficial flag has six rows of seven stars across and one row of eight stars. The eighth star causes a slight bulge in the middle row.

The new 49-star flag, approved last January, has seven staggered rows of seven stars each.

The Army says most of the suggestions were submitted by adults, but "a good number" came from children.

The Army is holding onto the suggestions until it is told what to do with them. It is expected that a presidential commission will be appointed to recommend a new design.

There was a suggestion that the Statue of Liberty be placed in the blue field with stars clustered around it.

Some suggested a cross for the blue field; others a Star of David.

One design had the appearance of a cattle brand — an "X" inside a circle.

Other proposals:

The continental U.S. outlined in stars.

Fifty little stars forming a big star.

The words "In God We Trust" over a cross of stars.

One contributor suggested sprinkling 50 stars into the blue field in any old manner so that there would be no problem in adding stars "when the U.S. admits China, India and Russia."

Realty Men Hit Closings

A stand against closing schools to avoid integration has been taken by the Real Estate Industries Council of Dade County.

Maurice M. Meehan, chairman of the council, which includes organizations in building and related fields, said it is supporting a recent resolution of the Florida Education Association opposing any school-closing measure.

"We know that a segment of the Florida Legislature may introduce such a proposal in this session," he said. "We want to lend whatever support we can to kill such a measure."

The council has sent telegrams to Dade legislators and to Gov. LeRoy Collins, he said.

Gas Prices Are Eyed

BOISE, Idaho —(AP)— Gov. Robert E. Smylie named an investigating committee to probe gasoline prices which range from 25 to 40 cents a gallon in Idaho.

The governor sent a telegram to 10 major oil companies saying he has learned that "some prices currently used in the trade violate the Idaho Unfair Sales Act and state antitrust statutes."

Smylie also asked the major oil companies to correct the situation.

The chairman of the investigating committee, which is to report by the 1961 Legislature session, said its study will be "thorough and factual and not witch-hunting."

Rain Changes Plans

Daytona Tries Auto Trials Again Today

DAYTONA BEACH — (AP) — Rain Thursday washed out qualifying time trials for speedway cars at Daytona International Speedway.

It forced cancellation of time trials for sports cars Wednesday, also.

Bill France, Speedway president, said time trials will be staged all day today for all cars.

A pair of 100-mile races for speedway cars is scheduled Saturday at 2 p.m. and 3:30 with a total purse of $32,660. A 1,000-kilometer international sports car race is scheduled Sunday at 12:30 for a $20,000 purse.

Thirteen speedway cars qualified last Saturday and Tuesday and there are 11 other entries. Fastest lap turned in during the trials was 176.88 miles an hour by George Amick of Rhinelander, Wis., in a Bowes Sealfast Special. It established a new American race track lap record.

The Speedway cars will race over the new high-banked 2½-mile track. The sports cars will race over the banked track plus a flat, sharply curved road in the infield making for a course measuring 3.81 miles. It will require 164 laps to complete the 1,000 kilometers.

In practice earlier in the week, Carroll Shelby of Dallas, Texas, averaged 100 miles an hour over the sports car course. He drove a 4.5 Maserati.

Other entries in the sports car competition include Roberto Mieres, Buenos Aires, in a Porsche; Chuck Daigh, Long Beach, Calif., in a 4.5 Ferrari; Fred Windridge, Arlington, Va., in a Kelso Lister-Corvette; George Constantine, South Bridge, Mass., in an Aston-Martin; A. J. Foyt, Houston, in a Lister-Corvette; Curtis Turner, Charlotte, N.C., in a supercharged Thunderbird; and Glenn Roberts, Daytona Beach, in a supercharged Thunderbird.

Brian London Has Date With Canvas

British Heavies Offer Horizontal Viewpoint

By ARTHUR DALEY

Copyright, The New York Times Company, 1959

NEW YORK—The sun never sets on the British Empire but the empire's greatness certainly was never founded on its heavyweight fist-fighters. If it had been, it would have been on their prostrate bodies because English heavyweights have an alarming affinity for the horizontal.

They start out vertical with a stand-up pose in the Jem Figg tradition, all form and no substance. But then some varlet tags 'em on the whiskers and down they go. They have glass jaws. It isn't that they lack courage or desire. Chins of Dresden china undo them.

The latest in a long line of sterling heavyweights from the British Isles is Brian London, although his record is marred by the fact that he has not been knocked out as often as such illustrious predecessors as Bombardier Wells, Joe Beckett and Phil Scott. But give him time. He'll get there yet.

Patterson

London

Jackson

His next visit to dream street is scheduled to take place in Las Vegas in a month when he is scheduled to meet Floyd Patterson, the almost unknown heavyweight champion of the world.

The theme song for this pugilistic waltz already has been selected by Cus D'Amato, the suspicious proprietor of the titleholder. It is: "London bridge is falling down."

The British Board of boxing control, acting in the fashion of the society for the prevention of cruelty to homebred heavyweights, has refused London permission to let himself get victimized by Patterson. But the ex-champion of the empire is blinded by the glow shining forth from a $75,000 guarantee.

"I'd be daft to turn it down," said London, a man of principle—and principal.

For Floyd this is merely a tune-up for his June bout with Ingemar Johansson of Sweden in New York. It sure will add matchless luster to a record which already shows knockouts of such ferocious tigers as Hurricane Jackson, Pete Rademacher and Roy (Cut 'N' Shoot) Harris. British bookmakers have installed Patterson as a 10-1 favorite—which should give you an idea.

But the ravenous rabbit from blighty is a heavyweight and there always is the remote possibility that a big man might be lucky enough to land a heaven-help-us punch, even when thrown from deepest right field. This is highly improbable, however, although it's the only competitive excuse that can be offered.

The latest import hasn't been around long enough to compile records that could be compared in supineness to those achieved by Messrs. Wells, Beckett and Scott. The first two contributed vastly to the reputation of Georges Carpentier and helped the Orchid Man of France gain his bout with Jack Dempsey, the first million-dollar gate.

Carpentier was grossly incompetent in his first bout with the Bombardier. He didn't knock him out until the fourth round. At this late date it's impossible to figure out what delayed him. In the return match Gorgeous Georges hit par—and Wells—with a knockout in the first round.

British heavyweights seem to lack the alley-cat toughness of their American counterparts, the Jack Dempseys and the Rocky Marcianos—just to give two typical examples. It was the Rock who flattened Don Cockell, a Britisher, in a dreary exhibition in his next-to-last fight.

Brian London is coming over for the ride and the 75 grand. Patterson is too cautious to dispatch him in a hurry but dispatch him he will. That seems as certain as death and withholding taxes.

Logart Gets Second Crack At Scott

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Isaac Logart risks welterweight prestige tonight against newcomer Charley Scott, an upset victor the first time they met.

Logart, 25-year-old Cuban contender, is a 9-5 favorite to avenge the earlier defeat when he comes up against Scott in a nationally televised (NBC, 10 p.m. EST) 10-rounder at Capitol Arena.

Scott, 22-year-old upstart from Philadelphia, made a farce of the odds three weeks ago at St. Nick's in New York. Logart then was favored 3-1 to whip the almost unheard of Scott. But he lost by a split decision.

Indianapolis Mauls Marlins Again

By EDDIE STORIN
Herald Sports Writer

HOLLYWOOD — For the second day in a row, Miami's frustrated Marlins suffered an embarrassing loss to the Indianapolis Indians Thursday, 17-6.

There was no doubt of the eventual winner after Indianapolis racked starter Art Kay for six runs in the first inning. Before Kay left, he was the victim of 12 runs on nine hits (in 2 1-3 innings).

Al Diez pitched the next 2 2-3 innings, allowing four runs. Rudy Hernandez was fairly effective, limiting the American Association Indians to one run on one hit and three walks in two innings.

Wednesday Indianapolis beat the Marlins, 14-4.

Masters Brings Them Out -- Rain or Shine, Old or Young

AUGUSTA, Ga.—Golf fans must be rated along with football followers as the most enthusiastic of sports spectators. It rained hard here Thursday morning, but thousands showed up for the Masters Golf Tournament.

Start of this golfing classic over a course soaked by Wednesday night rains was delayed for half an hour. The fans had raincoats, umbrellas and other wet weather equipment. They were not going to let a little dampness scare 'em.

Two of the all-time greats, Jock Hutchinson and Fred McLeod, were the first to tee off. They sloshed the full route, Hutchinson scoring 42-43—85, McLeod a 42-47—89.

Showers continued during the day, but the golfing show proceeded and there was every reason to believe attendance would top that of last year. They never report the paid admissions, but the sponsoring Augusta National Country Club must do okay financially. Last year the sponsors doubled the prize money right down the line.

Getting back to Hutchinson and McLeod, one of the fine things about this tournament is that oldtimers are not forgotten. Their expenses are paid to the tourney and it is optional whether they play. Willie Macfarlane of Miami, a former National Open champion, was content with being a spectator. So was George Sargent, another ex-Open title holder.

Snead Stuck With Fight Tickets

YOUR REPORTER asked Sammy Snead if he had seen Dave Yeomans of Miami.

SNEAD

"Naw, he didn't come because Gomeo Brennan's fight on Carmen Basilio's card here Wednesday night was called off," Sammy explained. "If you see that Yeomans when you get back tell him I'm looking for him."

It developed that Yeomans had reserved 12 tickets for the fight, in which Basilio scored a TKO over Arley Seifer in the third round, for Snead.

"The tickets were $12 each," Snead said in horror. "I had a time talking 'em into canceling all but one of the tickets."

Despite the $12 top price—that trumps some of Miami Beach Promoter Chris Dundee's gouging—the fight attracted 2,300 spectators.

Williams' Neck 'Much Better'

TED WILLIAMS' pain in the neck is much better, Fred Corcoran, the baseball star's business advisor, reports. He talked with Ted at Boston by telephone.

"Looks like Ted just can't have a season free from injury or illness," Corcoran said. He recalled with a shudder the spring Ted fell and broke his collarbone in practice at Sarasota.

Once it was a bad ankle which restrained Williams. Another time he crashed into a wall in an All-Star game and hurt his shoulder.

"I still think Ted will do okay," Corcoran mused. "He has to, because Next Aug. 30, he'll become 40 years old."

Mangrum On a 'Night Shift'

LLOYD MANGRUM paused for a chat and Corcoran remarked, "You've got a good tan."

"I've been following the sun," said Mangrum.

Corcoran chuckled as he recalled the 1940 Masters in which Mangrum finished second to Jimmy Demaret after starting with a 64 in the first round.

"Henry McLemore, then a sports writer, was bothering me for a story angle," Corcoran recalled. "I told Mangrum to go out and hit a few practice shots. He retorted, 'But it's too dark.'

"Finally he agreed. I took McLemore out to watch Mangrum and Henry was fit to be tied. He said, 'Don't tell anyone else about this. What a story. Mangrum shoots a 64 and then goes out and practices.'"

Henry didn't know the story was framed for him by Corcoran.

Middlecoff Took It Easy

THIS WAS THE 14th Masters for Cary Middlecoff, now winter pro of the Diplomat Club at Hollywood Beach. Middlecoff played only nine holes in the final practicing Wednesday.

CARY MIDDLECOFF

"I've got to save my legs," Cary explained. "I'll need them if I'm around by Sunday."

Middlecoff had been inactive in tournaments this winter until he joined the touring pros and won at St. Petersburg. This helped make him an eight-one choice in the current event. Middlecoff says he has fully recovered from a hernia operation last September, but he said his back gets a little stiff when he sits down too long.

"It won't give me any trouble because I feel fine after I've walked a hundred yards."

Middlecoff holds the record win—by seven strokes—in the 1955 Masters when he beat Ben Hogan. Middlecoff was runnerup in 1948 and finished third in 1956.

"Chances of breaking 280 in this tournament are slim," Middlecoff said. "The scores depend upon the weather. Par for the four days is two rough ones and two good ones. If we have three good days, the scores will drop by two or three strokes. Three bad days will send them up."

Leonard's 69 Leads Windy, Wet Masters

AUGUSTA — (AP) — Stan Leonard had luck that was denied to others Thursday and led the way through the first round of the 23rd Masters Golf Tournament.

Three under par for the 6,980 yard par 36-36—72 course, it gave Leonard a two-stroke edge over Arnold Palmer, young defending champion from Pennsylvania; Jack Burke, the 1956 winner, and former PGA champion Chandler Harper at the end of a day that spelled trouble for some of the most famous players in the select field of 87.

Palmer, though dissatisfied with his driving, came in with 36-35—71. Burke, with 37-34—71, joined him as one of the few to beat par on the back nine. Harper shot 35-36—71 with a hot putter.

Only four players bettered Augusta National's usually tough par for the first round and five others shot even par 72s. The par-shooters were U.S. Open Champion Tommy Bolt, Australia's Peter Thomson, Spain's Angel Miguel, Gene Littler and Jay Hebert.

Ben Hogan was bracketed at 73 with Gary Player of South Africa, Dick Mayer, the 1957 Open champion, Dave Thomas of Wales, and Art Wall, top money winner this year, among others.

Three-time Masters Champion Sam Snead posted a 74. Some of the other 74 shooters included Cary Middlecoff and Claude Harmon, former winners of this tournament.

Both Palmer and Burke said they had trouble judging shots and attributed their good scores to putting success. Burke was able to lag them up close on the greens and Palmer said he sank some long second putts.

The trouble centered mainly on the stretch from the 11th through the 13th holes, in a valley where swirling winds and winding Rae's Creek formed a double threat.

It was there that Jimmy Demaret soared from two under par to three over on a three-hole stretch. He hit into the creek three times then followed by three-putting the 14th.

Leonard had to work for a couple of pars on that stretch and felt he was lucky to get them. He was in the woods on the 10th hole and made his four only through a superb iron shot and he had to play out of shallow water for a par three at the 12th. Thereafter he played carefully and successfully.

After today's second round, the field will be cut to the 40 low scorers and those tied for 40th for the last two rounds.

SS Gotay Sent Down

Cards Ask Waivers On Sal Maglie

ST. PETERSBURG —(AP)— The St. Louis Cardinals Thursday returned hot shortstop prospect Julio Gotay to their triple-A minor league camp at Daytona Beach, along with five pitchers, and announced they would ask waivers on 42-year-old Sal Maglie for the purpose of an unconditional release.

Also sent down were pitchers Bob Blaylock, Bill Smith, Dean Stone and the two righthanded Bob Millers.

The cut left the Cards with 30 players, the number they'll be able to use the first week of the season before Curt Flood's 30-day military status ends.

The decision not to put on the roster 19-year-old Gotay was based partly on a .200 spring average by the strong-armed, fleet Puerto Rican with potential batting power, but primarily on recent stomach upset attributed to the tension and pressure on a teen-ager.

"He'll be back," Hemus said, "And he'll be a star, I believe. He's got as many tools and as much promise as any kid I ever saw."

Easy Spur Backed Heavily

Trainers Pick Troilus, 9-8, To Win Derby

By RUSS HARRIS
Herald Turf Writer

Proof that Saturday's $100,000 added Florida Derby should be one of Gulfstream Park's greatest races is offered in a Herald poll of trainers' selections.

The men who know horses best like Bayard Sharp's Troilus — but the margin is only 9-8 over Spring Hill Farm's Easy Spur. Surprisingly enough, only one of 18 horsemen chose Brookmeade Stable's Sword Dancer as the horse to beat although the pricemakers regard the derby as a three-horse race.

The six other expected starters are Rare Rice, McLellan, Revolutionist, The Chosen One, Master Palynch and Rico Tesio.

Most of the pickers discount the eight-length beating Easy Spur handed to Troilus in the Fountain of Youth stakes. They believe Sharp's Flamingo winner was just not ready for a mile-and-one-sixteenth test after being rested for three weeks.

Trainer Bobby Cramer summed up another key point for the Troilus backers. Said Cramer: "Troilus, of course, didn't have his regular rider, Chris Rogers, in his last start. Troilus is the kind of horse you have to keep after and Rogers knows him well. That will make a big difference Saturday. Besides that, Troilus is a solid horse. I think he'll come back."

The lone trainer to pick Sword Dancer was Bob White, who conditions Noble Sel. Said White: "I think Sword Dancer is a fine colt, better than he's rated."

Budget, Race Actions Need Sound Plans

Florida's Legislature, which meets every two years, reassembles next Tuesday in Tallahassee. The eyes of the legislators and the rest of the state will be on three influential men—Speaker of the House Thomas Beasley, Senate President Dewey M. Johnson and Governor LeRoy Collins. How they agree and differ on key issues will affect you.

By DEWEY M. JOHNSON
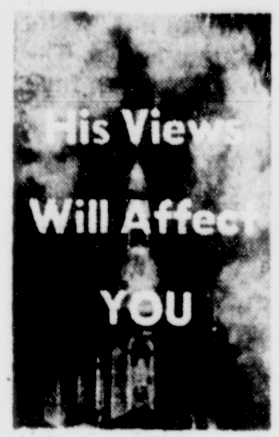
President of Florida Senate

TALLAHASSEE — Taxes, segregation and reapportionment are the major problems facing the 1959 legislature convening Tuesday.

I believe we will accomplish much through sound and sensible action in dealing with government spending and race relations.



I am also hopeful that a compromise reapportionment plan can be proposed by constitutional amendment and put before the voters.

In regard to avoiding new taxes, I believe we can eliminate several programs now operated at state expense without curtailing essential public services.

There are some educational benefits offered by the state which I believe adult individuals could pay for themselves.

I think the legislators will go along with reducing adult education expenses to a minimum but they will approve such programs that will enable adult students to earn a livelihood.

I refer to courses which lead to high school diplomas for persons who were not able to complete high school before going to work; manual arts training, typing, shorthand and accounting classes.

Further reductions can be made I believe in the kindergarten and summer enrichment programs.

Tighter Welfare Programs

TIGHTER CONTROL on welfare, spending, particularly in the program for aid to illegitimate children, would assist our efforts to hold down the cost of government.

New laws might include forcing both parents—mother and father — to do more on behalf of the child and requiring the mother under oath to disclose the name of the father so he can be held responsible for the child's support.

A majority of the legislators, I believe, realize the taxpayers don't want to be told they are going to have to pay new taxes every two years for additional services many of them personally do not feel are warranted.

As I look at it, while we might cut spending a little too thin and hurt in a few places, I believe that overall we can provide for the absolutely necessary services with low taxes which will be an inducement to new people and new industries.

We won't be a backward state so long as we can live within our existing revenues and provide the essential services.

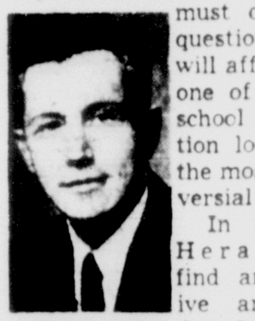
Gov. Collins Writes Exclusive for Us

Dear Reader:

One of the most important state legislative sessions in years will begin Tuesday. Our representatives in Tallahassee must decide on questions that will affect every one of us, with school integration looming as the most controversial issue.



COLLINS

In Sunday's Herald you'll find an exclusive article by Gov. LeRoy Collins, in which he lists the eight issues he believes will be most important, and what action he believes the Legislature should take. In addition, Political Writer John McDermott gives you a point-by-point countdown of all the issues in the Editorial Magazine.

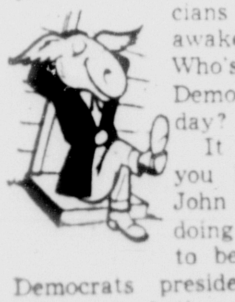
Who's The No. 1 Democrat Today?

The Gallup Poll answers a question that has the politicians staying awake nights: Who's the No. 1 Democrat today?



It will tell you how Sen. John Kennedy is doing in his fight to become the Democrats presidential candiate and whether Adlai Stevenson, Estes Kefauver, Lyndon Johnson and Stuart Symington still have a chance.

Are We Spoiling Our Children?

ANOTHER question which has bedeviled most of us gets a good going-over in the Women's Section: Are we spoiling our children? We invited a panel of eight people from various walks of life to discuss the question, and they came up with some interesting observations.

How Lama Fled Chinese Reds

NEW DELHI, India —(AP)— Under Chinese pursuit the Dalai Lama made a 300-mile trip on foot across Tibet's mighty mountains in order to reach refuge in India, his joyous followers disclosed Friday.

Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru told a wildly applauding parliament the 23-year-old god-king is in good health and will be given "respectful treatment."

Nehru did not use the word asylum. Informed sources said he considered this an improper term in reference to the only ruler in the world whom his people regard as a god.

They gave this account:

The Dalai Lama slipped by night from his summer palace of Norbulinka in Lhasa, the Tibetan capital. The party included his 57-year-old mother, his 14-year-old brother Rimpoche Ngeri, his 26-year-old sister Tsering Domme, four cabinet ministers and two tutors.

They had to slip past the guns of the Chinese Communists as they headed toward some of the wildest country in the world. They took the most direct route to India, about 150 air miles away but more than 300 miles through the valleys and snow-clad passes.

The party crossed the Kyi chu River, 25 miles south of Lhasa, and walked on and up through the Che pass, 17,000 feet high. On the other side of the mountain range they passed over the broad Tsangpo River and walked 35 miles to Minden Ming, a rebel stronghold.

All this time the Chinese Communists had spotter planes in the air and parachute troops ready to drop if the fugitives were sighted. The Dalai Lama's party frequently saw the searching planes.

At Minden Ming the Dalai Lama picked up a strong escort of fierce Khampa warriors, who have led the revolt and who have been fighting the Chinese Communists in Tibet for three years. They moved up through the mountains to the rebel stronghold around Lake Trigu and walked south to the Indian border.

Nehru Wednesday night received a secret message from Shillong. The message said an emissary of the Dalai Lama had arrived at Towang to ask for political asylum.

Instructions had gone out previously to India's border checkposts to permit entry, however, and the Dalai Lama actually had already crossed.

Tibetan exiles declared the Dalai Lama still is the ruler of Tibet, making clear he will remain a rallying point of the

Lively 2-Year-Old Toddles His Way to Death in Pool

By JAMES BUCHANAN
Herald Staff Writer

A tiny two-year-old who liked to go places scampered away on his last adventure Friday.

Twenty minutes later he was found floating in the pool behind his family's home — the ninth youngster to die in water this year.

Had it been Vincent who toppled in the pool it would have meant nothing more than soaked clothing — for Vincent had been taught to "swim like a fish."

Left with Charles and Vincent and one-year-old baby John was the maid, Clayeller Godbolt, 35, of 3609 SW 27th St., who had been employed by the Gysins for eight months.

"I was watching them both, especially Vincent who was in front where the cars were," she told police. "Then when I saw Charles was gone I saw the outer utility room door was open and I went into the yard."

Her screams brought Harry Carney, a next door neighbor who plunged into the pool fully clothed. Hauling the youngster from the water, he began artificial respiration while his wife, Rita, summoned the Coral Gables rescue squad and police.

The Gysins learned of the accident in a telephone call from the maid and rushed home to find the rescue efforts already underway at poolside.

Neighbors passed it as they went to and from the house to help the prostrate parents and maid. A priest passed it to administer last rites. A medical examiner walked past it to reach the pool.

And then two ambulance drivers carried Charles past it —for the last time.

Floods Drive 2,000 Out of Their Homes

By United Press International

Spring floods, fed by April showers and melting snowbanks, kept more than 2,000 persons homeless in New England and the Midwest Friday.

The floods followed a week-long weather siege of tornadoes in the South, dense fog in the East, and heavy rains in the North. Together, the vile weather combination claimed 20 lives.

Parts of Illinois, Wisconsin and Iowa had been living with their floods for more than a week. A total of 1,700 persons were homeless in the industrial Rockford, Ill., area and 80 families had been driven from their lodgings in Wisconsin.

In contrast, the New England floods swirled up with little warning in Vermont an New Hampshire. They were expected to spread rapidly through the six-state New England region.

The New England floods were choked by ice floes so big they snapped a 65-foot metal radio transmitter tower like a matchstick on the Sugar River near Claremont, N.H.

Cold Front Moving Toward N. Florida

A cold front was sweeping southeastward from Texas toward North Florida with cloudiness and rain Friday, but forecasters predicted good weather for at least most of today in the southern part of the state.

"It's hard to tell right now whether the front will keep coming or slow down before it gets to Central and South Florida," Miami Forecaster Phil Ackerman said.

But the front shouldn't really bring much of a temperature drop, even if it gets to South Florida, Ackerman said.

The forecast for today was increasing cloudiness and possible rain in the northern part of the state starting this morning. Sunny skies were predicted for South Florida — with possible increasing cloudiness if the cold front keeps coming.

Ackerman said there was no indication of a squall line traveling with the new weather front, like the one which spawned deadly tornadoes in Central Florida on Thursday.

NATO Council Calls for Firm Stand on Berlin

Channel 7 Award Is Reopened

WASHINGTON — (UPI) — The Federal Communications Commission Friday reopened the Miami television Channel 7 contest to determine whether any improper influences figured in the award to Biscayne Television Corp.

This is the fourth case the commission has reopened on the basis of charges aired last year before the House influence investigating subcommittee that backstage approaches were made to former FCC Commissioner Richard A. Mack and other commission members while applications for TV awards were pending.

Mack resigned under fire after hearings which involved influence charges against him in the Miami Channel 10 contest. He is scheduled to go on trial with his long-time friend, Thurman A. Whiteside of Miami, Tuesday.

The commission moved Friday on its own motion to reopen the Channel 7 case. The FCC twice-ad voted to grant the channel to Biscayne, which is owned by former NBC President Niles Trammel and principal stockholders of The Miami Herald and the Miami Daily News.

The FCC initially voted to award the channel to Biscayne, for operation of station WCKT at Miami, on Jan. 18, 1956.

Three losing applicants in the four-way contest appealed to courts. After the case was returned to the FCC, the commission on June 21, 1957, reaffirmed the grant to Biscayne by a 4-2 vote.

Those voting in favor of Bixcayne were former FCC Commissioner George C. McConnaughey, John C. Doerfer, Robert E. Lee and Mack.

Commissioners Rosel H. Hyde and Robert T. Bartley dissented. Commissioner T. A. M. Craven abstained.

The losing contestants in the fight were East Coast Television Corp., South Florida Television Corp., and Sunbeam Television Corp.

The commission said it would hold hearings to determine whether any member of the FCC should have disqualified himself from voting in the contest.

The commission said it would consider holding the hearings outside of Washington. The commission set no date for the hearings nor did it name a presiding officer.

Ike Talks Today on U.S. Policy

GETTYSBURG, Pa. —(UPI) — President Eisenhower Friday flew to Gettysburg, Pa., where today he will deliver a major foreign policy speech he hopes will make clear to Americans "the internatonal facts of today's life."

The President, who will speak at a Gettysburg College convocation, plans to emphasize the need for grater individual and collective understanding to maintain freedom's fight against Communist dictatorship.

White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty gave newsmen a brief preview of the President's planned speech befor the chief executive flew to Gettysburg by helicopter.

He said Eisenhower believes the American people "need to understand our nation's position and role in strengthening the world's free nations which, with us, see our concepts of freedom and human dignity threatened by atheistic dictatorshop."

This indicated the President might take the occasion to put in a new plug for his four-billion-dollar foreign aid program, which is faced with a tough battle in the Democratic-steered Congress.

9 Allies Promise Support

WASHINGTON —(AP)— The Atlantic Pact council called on the Western Big Three nations Friday to stand firm in West Berlin despite Russia's threat to end four-power rule next month.

The foreign ministers of nine allied countries, including West Germany, Italy, Canada and Turkey, pledged solid backing for a tough Western negotiating policy in East-West talks due to begin in Geneva May 11.

Their unanimous views, expressed during the second day of top-level NATO meeting, coincided with mounting signs the American, British and French governments — the Big Three — would heed the advice.

The Big Three foreign policy chiefs, prodded by West Germany, were reported to have hedged on the concessions they were thinking of offering the Russians.

"The liberty of Berlin is the liberty of Europe — if Berlin falls, who will be next?" asked West Germany's Foreign Minister Heinrich von Brentano as discussion of the Berlin crisis ended.

The representatives of the 15 Allies turned in the afternoon to consideration of Middle East problems. They also arranged to hear Secretary General Paul-Henri Spaak's annual report on achievements of the alliance in building defenses against Russia.

As the conference in the Inter-Departmental auditorium reached the midway point, authoritative officials reported these signs of a tougher Big Three negotiating policy toward the Soviets:

1. Britain has agreed to link its plan for a military freeze of troops and weapons in Central Europe with progress toward German reunification. The West Germans and French were reported to have insisted on this.

2. A Western plan for a confederation uniting East and West Germany has been shelved. This would have picked up Russia's proposed approach toward German unity but would have included Western ideas for an independent, democratic all-German government.

3. A U.S.-proposed peace treaty draft for all Germany has virtually been scrapped. Instead the West will unveil only a "set of principles" which would guide a later peace pact.

Von Brentano said the Allies must remain united in the face of the Soviet Challenge and must not abandon basic principle.

Italy's Foreign Minister Giuseppe Pella firmly supported Von Brentano's no retreat in Berlin stand as did Canada's George Randolph Pearkes, Denmark's Jens Otto Krag, Norway's Halvard M. Lange, Greece's Panayotis Kanellopoulos, Netherlands Foreign Minister Joseph M. Luns, Turkish Foreign Minister Fatin R. Zorlu, and Belgium's Pierre Wigny.

U.S. Plastered by Fallout From 'Dirty' Red A-Bombs

Radiation Grows; U.S. Probes Rate

WASHINGTON — (UPI) — Stratospheric fallout from Russia's radioactivity dirty atomic tests in the Arctic last October is now hitting the U.S. with growing intensity.

This was disclosed Friday after preliminary study of new fallout monitoring data by Dr. Willard F. Libby, scientist member of the Atomic Energy Commission.

It is too early to say whether the Soviet fallout will push the Strontium-90 contest of any U. S. foods above maximum permissible levels. Libby doubts that it will.

The new information, accumulating with every April shower, tends to support fast fallout theories recently advanced for big nuclear explosions in the polar regions.

Libby hopes to have facts which will settle this issue by May 4 when the Congressional Atomic Energy Committee opens hearings on radioactive fallout.

The new data, from AEC rain sampling and Navy air filtering stations, suggest that U. S. cities in the latitude of Minneapolis, say, are getting the heaviest dose of Soviet fallout.

Fallout comes in three categories:

1—Local, deposited in minutes or hours in the immediate vicinity of the explosion. This is the dreaded scourge of nuclear war.

2—Tropospheric, distributed worldwide in a month or less in latitudes corresponding to those of the blast site. This is a hazard only less immediate than that of local fallout.

3—Stratospheric, worldwide in distribution and consisting of radioactive particles pushed into atmospheric regions above 40,000 feet where they drift for a long time before coming down. Only the longer-lived radioactivities are a menace in this category.

The U.S. has tried—with new manufacturing and testing techniques — to clean up its weapons test. But the latest fallout information proves decisively that Russian weapons have become dirtier and dirtier.

Ike to Get Special Report

WASHINGTON —(AP)— President Eisenhower has ordered a study of how the government can best evaluate the effect of radioactive fallout on health.

The White House announced Friday that the study already is well under way. The Atomic Energy Commission, the Department of Welfare and the Budget Bureau are carrying it out.

James C. Hagerty, presidential press secretary, said the three agencies expect to report to Eisenhower in a few weeks.

revolt against Red Chinese rule in Tibet.

Informed sources said, however, India will recognize the Dalai Lama only as a spiritual leader of the Buddhists and he will be forbidden to form any government in exile in India. This is to avoid offending Red China.

The Chinese Communist embassy declined to comment on the Dalai Lama's request for refuge in India. Peiping Radio had pictured the Lama as forced by anti-Communist rebels to flee to India.

Reliable Tibetan exile sources in India's frontier town of Kalimpong said the Dalai Lama is heading for Shillong, capital of India's easternmost province of Asam, for a few days rest.

They reported he is being escorted by Indian army and political officers and expects to reach Shillong Sunday. They expect him to come to New Delhi for talks later. The Dalai Lama brought a party of 80 with him from Tibet, crossing into India near Towang Tuesday night.

Tibetan sources in Kalimpong said the Dalai Lama began his hazardous flight the night of March 17, shortly before a revolt erupted against Red rule.

1. Allow discussions with Russia about a new arrangement for maintaining the Allied foothold in West Berlin but only if it recognizes their rights to be there as conquerers. This would be part of an overall discussion on Germany.

2. Open the way for more technical, commercial and cultural contacts between East and West Germans. It would also permit an East-West German committee to be formed on a non-governmental level to explore steps for unification. But no formal recognition of East Germany is envisaged.

3. Begin talks with Russia about a Central European zone where the number of men and weapons would be frozen. This, however, would be linked in some way with progress toward German reunification.

Son Hears Killer Mom Get Death

VENTURA, Calif.—(AP)— Mrs. Mrs. Elizabeth Duncan, a jealous mother who couldn't bear to lose her son to another woman, was sentenced Friday to death in the gas chamber for hiring two men to strangle his pregnant bride.

Fifty-four-year-old Mrs. Duncan showed no emotion as she stood to hear the judge's sentence.

Superior Judge Charles F. Blackstock pronounced the sentence after turning down defense requests for a new trial and for a reduction of the penalty to life imprisonment.

Mrs. Duncan's son Frank, 30-year-old Santa Barbara attorney, was at her side as she was sentenced.

Although she was convicted of first degree murder in the slaying of his 30-year-old wife, Olga, Frank had stood by his mother through the long trial and subsequent hearings to determine her punishment and sanity.

Mrs. Duncan's execution date was not set. An automatic appeal will be carried to a higher court.

Olga was kidnaped from her Santa Barbara apartment Nov. 17. She was beaten, strangled and buried in a roadside grave. Augustine Baldonado, 26, and Luis Moya, 20, testified at Mrs. Duncan's trial that she promised them $6,000 to kill Olga.

Picola Is Named Dade Budget Chief

James Picola, hired only 12 days ago by Metro as a budget analyst, was named chief budget director Friday.

County Manager O. W. (Hump) Campbell jumped the 42-year-old New York-born accountant to Metro's top $15,000-a-year financial post over the No. 2 man in the budget department, William Scovell.

Two weeks ago Picola was comptroller for the Florida State Turnpike Authority.

He replaces Harry Toulmin as budget director. Toulmin, criticized for "lack of co-operation" by county commissioners, resigned the day after Picola was hired for a $12,000 analyst job.

Campbell said there was no connection between the hiring of Picola and Toulmin's resignation.

I'll Seek U.S. Loans --Castro

American Press Draws New Blast

By Herald Wire Services

HAVANA, Cuba — Prime Minister Fidel Castro says he will be looking for money as well as defending "Cuba and her revolution" on his visit to the U.S. later this month.

The bearded revolutionary told a TV audience he will seek loans from the U.S. Export-Import Bank and "all sources of credit possible."

The Batista government left only 70 million dollars in the treasury, Castro said, adding that Cuba's economic situation was further aggravated by falling sugar prices and increased competition from other sugar countries.

Castro is leaving for Washington April 15 on an unofficial visit as the guest of the American Society of Newspaper Editors. He accepted the invitation before becoming prime minister Feb. 2.

Castro said he was "anxious personally to explain my program to the U.S. press and people."

During a four-hour telecast he charged that American wire services did not quote him correctly and that Time magazine, The Miami Herald and other newspapers were waging a "campaign of lies" against his regime.

Castro also termed former Costa Rican President Jose Figueres a "bad friend" and "false democrat" for having suggested that the Castro regime was influenced by Communists.

Meanwhile Revolutionary firing squads Friday shot four more convicted collaborators of former Dictator Fulgencio Batista, bringing to 500 the unofficial total number of "war criminals" executed since Jan. 1.

Three were executed in Santa Clara and one in Santiago. Castro predicted near the beginning of the trials that no more than 400 would be executed.

Revolutionary tribunals nevertheless continued to grind out death sentences. Two more were condemned in the last 24 hours, 10 others sentenced to prison terms ranging up to 15 years, seven were absolved and one death sentence was ratified on appeal.

7,000 Dodge Duty, Reds Say

An interior ministry spokesman in East Berlin said the number of West Germans in the draft age, 19 to 25, who have come to East Germany in recent months, equals the strength of seventy 100-man companies in the West German armed forces.

Johnson's Cautious

Here are highpoints in Senate President Dewey M. Johnson's legislative outlook:

JOHNSON

REAPPORTIONMENT — "Hopeful" for a compromise.

TAXES — Avoid them by eliminating some programs.

WELFARE — "Tighter control" on spending.

SEGREGATION — After every other remedy is exhausted, let voters decide whether schools should be closed rather than integrate.

CONSTITUTIONAL REVISION — "A certain amount" but "I want to retain old, basic 'safety valves' of our present constitution."

Senate President's View

some provisions of the Alabama law and considering such other grounds as would come within recent U.S. Supreme Court decisions.

Some form of parent-option plan is in order. What worries me is that it does not apply until integration is ordered.

A better plan may be offered which would provide for scholarship in tuition granted to any student, white or colored, who enters a private non-sectarian school. The payment would be made from the general revenue fund as distinguished from school funds.

Whenever a child is withdrawn from public school in the county, the county's minimum foundation grant from the state would be reduced by the same amount the state is contributing to the child to attend a private school. The actual expense from tax dollars would be exactly the same.

After every other remedy is exhausted, I think there ought to be a provision to permit qualified voters of a school district to determine whether schools should be closed rather than integrated.

It should call for the closing of all schools in the district both white and colored, not just an isolated school.

The legislature must keep in mind that we are fighting for the rights of the better class colored citizens as well as white.

* * *

Keep 'Check and Balances'

REAPPORTIONMENT — My experience from the "give and take" attitude finally reached in 1957 indicates that such an atmosphere again can result in reaching a solution that will be worth letting the people decide for themselves by submitting a constitutional amendment.

We will never reach now, or 50 years from now, a perfect solution that is going to meet 100 per cent approval in the extra-large counties and the exceedingly small counties.

The "check and balance" in the Federal Congress dates back to 1787 and Florida early adopted a similar check and balanace in the two houses of our Legislature. The states in the U.S. Senate have the same amount of representation and House is based on population.

I don't recommend that we go quite that far.

With minimum limitations of one representative to a county, I think apportionment in the House should be based strictly on population. In the Senate I believe a number of factors should be considered that will effectively carry out the theory of check and balance.

While the present formula may not be quite equitable and fair, it would definitely be unfair to the smaller counties to determine complete control in both houses by population. If we would adopt the same formula for representation in both Houses then we would no longer need both houses.

In order to give relief to some congested areas, additional senatorial districts seems to be the answer.

Some Revisions Likely

CONSTITUTIONAL REVISION — I believe the legislature will draft a certain amount. Personally I want to retain old basic "safety valves" of our present constitution.

High pressure along the Eastern slopes of the Rockies presented a pattern of dry weather from much of the Mississippi Valley to the Pacific coast and sunny mild weather was featured over the Southeast. A vigorous low pressure disturbance over Lake Huron accounted for showers across the Northern Appalachians.

At noon 70 degree temperatures extended from the Gulf coast into the Carolinas and 60's accompanied warming southerly breezes into portions of the Ohio Valley and mid-Atlantic states. In the wake of low pressure off the North Atlantic coast northwesterly winds prevailed along the New England coast but sunshine pushed temperatures into the 50's.

A cold front trailing southward from Lake Huron extended southwestward into Texas. Brisk northwesterly winds pressed cold air southward over most of the midsection of the country with temperatures in the 40's in the northern plains while 80's appeared in southern Texas.

A pattern of fair to partly cloudy skies over the far West found late morning temperatures in the 40's and 50's in the Northern Pacific states while portions of the warm southwest were pushing toward the 90 degree mark.

Production Rising But Number of Jobs Shrinking

Economists say the recession is about over. Then why is unemployment falling behind rising production? And how much is automation to blame for current joblessness? Here is a report in depth on what is happening in fast-changing America, and why.

By ROGER GREENE
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON — The business recession in the U.S. may be about over, but it has left a painful paradox in its wake.

Reduced to simplest terms: Unemployment hasn't melted fast enough in an economy once again moving into high gear.

Industry has been accelerating the trend to push-button factories, robot production lines and automatic offices. And in the labor market, a broad band of vanished jobs appears.

The transition is far-reaching, and not directly connected with the recession, but today's lagging re-employment serves to focus attention afresh on what labor leaders call "the silent revolution."

As yet, the full story is only beginning to emerge. Day-by-day changes in the vast U.S. industrial and business complex are far too numerous to be accurately tabulated. And automation, in itself, is no longer new.

One thing, however, is clear: the lifting of the 1957-58 recession has disclosed a broad wake of vanished jobs. Some have disappeared forever.

Despite a steadily growing labor force — increasing at the rate of nearly a million a year — automation-equipped factories, farms, mines, railroads and business offices manage to keep the economy humming with fewer and fewer workers.

To the army of jobless, averaging $30.62 a week in unemployment compensation, the situation is fraught with tragedy.

Yet there is a grain of humor, as well as truth, in the tart comment by Mrs. Effie Blackard, 56, wife of a jobless Roanoke, Va., textile worker: "With automatic machines taking over so many jobs, it looks like the men have finally outsmarted themselves."

James B. Carey, president of the International Union of Electrical Workers, puts it this way:

"The spread of automation poses for American industry one of the greatest challenges we will have to meet.

"If it is handled humanely and wisely, it can be a boon not only to industry but to all mankind. If handled greedily, with emphasis on profits, it can be a disaster of the first magnitude."

Two men in a Chicago radio plant assemble 1,000 radios a day using automation; the same job once took 200 workers. A skeleton staff of technicians now runs an entire 40-million-dollar oil refinery by remote control from a panel of instruments.

And in some food plants, the entire canning process, including the manufacture of cans and shipping cartons, is completely automatic, untouched by human hands.

AFL-CIO President George Meany says industry is now producing more goods with a million fewer workers than in 1942.

U.S. production, he says, has recovered about three-fourths of what it lost in the slump, but only one-fourth of the recession-idled workers have got their jobs back.

"Industry squeezed a lot of water out of the work force during the recession," says a Boston industrialist, who asked his name be withheld.

By "water," he meant excess or inefficient workers who were dropped when the economy faltered.

Seymour L. Wolfbein, chief of the Labor Department's manpower division, says there are about 212,000 fewer factory production workers on the job today than a year ago. But in mid-January these fewer employes worked six million more man-hours per week than did the larger force a year ago.

Wolfbein cited figures showing a steady downward employment trend in some of the nation's major industries where automation has taken root:

1 — Manufacturing — 15,700,000 employes at the end of 1958 compared with 17,200,000 in 1953, down 1½ million.

2 — Autos — 627,000 average in 1958 vs. 929,000 in 1953, down 302,000.

3 — Railroads — Except in World War II, railroad jobs have been dwindling steadily since 1920 under the double-barreled impact of mechanization and growing competition from trucks, planes and private cars. In 1951, the railroads employed 1,400,000; 1,200,000 in 1956; 950,000 in 1958.

4 — Textiles — In trouble for a long time, the industry employed 1,271,000 in 1951 vs. 959,000 late in 1958, a drop of 312,000.

Government economists say three per cent nationwide unemployment is normal — due to seasonal layoffs, temporary factory shutdowns and other factors — whereas anything over six per cent is classified as distressed.

Officially, then, the nation as a whole is distressed on the job front. March figures show 4,700,000 jobless — nearly seven per cent of the total U.S. labor force of 67,400,000.

President Walter P. Reuther of the United Auto Workers says that in addition to the 4,700,000 officially listed as jobless, at least 1½ million others are too discouraged to seek work and don't show on the unemployed rolls.

Management says that with union demands for ever higher wages, it must turn to labor-saving devices in order to survive. In other words: Automate or die.

Reuther has his own answer to that. He tells of visiting a newly automated Ford plant and having an official ask him:

"How are you going to collect union dues from those robot machines?"

"And how," retorted Reuther, "are you going to get the robots to buy Fords?"

The solution to the problem as advocated by most union leaders — and strongly opposed by most management officials — is a shorter work week, longer vacations and earlier retirement.

The unions argue that this would spread the work among the steadily increasing labor force, and at the same time maintain the level of consumer purchasing power needed to keep the economy rolling smoothly.

The AFL-CIO executive council, meeting in San Juan, Puerto Rico, in February, called on Congress to enact a mandatory 35-hour work week for some 28 million American workers this year.

Some government economists and industry spokesmen insist the unions are over-emphasizing the threat of automation.

James X. Ryan, Philadelphia, regional manager of the National Association of Manufacturers, declares:

"Testimony before the Senate-House economic committee indicates that automation is applicable in the near future to less than eight per cent of the industries of America.

"Since these industries utilize about one-quarter of the labor force, apparently less than 25 per cent of the labor force will be affected by automation.

"Technological advances have always made more jobs."

Wolfbein predicts automation will help create 10 million new jobs and bring about a 50 per cent increase in gross national product from 450 billion to 675 billion dollars by 1965.

For millions of jobless Americans, however, the immediate outlook is etched in gloom.

On Capitol Hill, lawmakers in both the Senate and House have risen in increasing numbers lately to paint a black picture of suffering by thousands of jobless families in their states.

Sen. Robert C. Byrd (D., W. Va.), for example, told the Senate that 278,000 West Virginians are subsisting on meager handouts of government surplus food — known as "Molligrub" — and 89,700 have lost their jobs in the hard-hit coal mining areas.

In a survey covering the worst-hit areas, Associated Press reporters found much the same story, endlessly repeated.

Take the sparkling clean city of Roanoke, Va., "The Star City of the South," nestled between the Alleghenies and the Blue Ridge Mountains at the southern end of the rich Shenandoah Valley.

With 6,800 jobless out of a 69,000 working force, Roanoke qualifies as a heavily distressed area, though by no means one of the worst.

Washington Ready for Cultural Center But Needs 'Angel' With $25 Million

No Money Available

The richest nation in the world, with billions to give away to its allies, is about to go around hat-in-hand in an effort to build a national cultural center in Washington so that visiting Soviet artists will have a place in which to exchange their culture.

The dream of a center that will compare with that in Moscow has been in being for a long time but so far all that has materialized is a nine-acre site on the Potomac.

Uncle Sam hasn't got the money for the center though he did give the land. So the 25 million dollars will be raised by donations. Just how this all happened is explained in this article.

WASHINGTON —(AP)— The stage is set for a national cultural center. All it needs is angels with about 25 million dollars and wings to get it off the ground.

In the culture cold war, Washington rates badly. It's one of the few major capitals of the world that doesn't have an opera house. Now it's down to one legitimate theater.

When Russia's famed Moiseyev Dancers came here, they performed in a movie house.

The U.S., anxious to increase cultural exchange with the Soviet, doesn't have anything in its capital city to compare with the showcase Moscow has for theatrical arts.

The idea of building a splendid center for the performing arts has been kicking around Washington practically since Congress began sitting here.

Now, thanks to the 85th Congress, there's a law on the books that provides a scenic nine-acre site overlooking the Potomac—not far from the White House—for "music, opera, drama, dance and poetry." The government will provide the land, but the money has to come from donations.

President Eisenhower has named a 30-member board of trustees headed by Arthur S. Flemming, secretary of health, education and welfare, to raise the money and build the center.

But if the omney—tentatively estimated at 25 million dollars—isn't on hand by Sept. 2, 1963, the whole deal may be off.

That time deadline is what has advocates of the cultural center champing at the bit to get a nationwide fund raising drive going.

So far, though, nothing much has happened and almost six months of the precious time is gone.

Rep. Frank Thompson Jr. (D., N.J.), chief sponsor of the center in Congress, said he feels the project has been "clearly harmed" by what he said were Republican politics in selection of the 15 public members of the board. There are nine Republicans, four Democrats and two independents in the group.

Though the policy-making board has no members from the world of theater and the performing arts, it has a number of persons of wealth, which helps in fund-raising campaigns.

Thompson said the President overlooked naming to the policy-making board "someone deeply versed in the theater, in fund raising and in government."

He suggested Robert Dowling, already head of the American National Theater and Academy, a congressionally-sponsored group to promote the theater.

Dowling, 63, a New York City real estate operator long active in theater, was a leader in setting up New York City's Lincoln Center for the Arts and has offered to help do the same for the national cultural center.

Thompson said he feared Dowling was left off the board because he is a Democrat.

When it came to estimating how much the cultural center would cost, Thompson says he just pulled the 25 million dollar figure "out of a hat," but he feels it is probably a fair figure.

He predicted the funds can be raised in two or three years.

The cultural center, result of a long struggle, already has cost some $94,000—the sum spent by the now defunct District of Columbia auditorium commission in looking for a site and plans.

Misslemen Promotions Proposed

WASHINGTON — (UPI) — President Eisenhower has tapped two of the nation's leading military missile officers for promotion.

Eisenhower announced his intention to nominate Maj. Gen. Bernard A. Schriever to be a lieutenant general and Rear Adm. John T. Hayward to be a vice admiral.

Schriever is now commander of the Air Force Ballistic Missiles Division at Inglewood, Calif. He will become commander of the Air Force Air Research and Development Command at Andrews Air Force Base, Md., succeeding Lt. Gen. Samuel E. Anderson. Anderson was assigned commander of air materiel on March 1.

Hayward, now assistant chief of naval operations for research and development, will be moving into a new job created by a pending Navy reorganization. The new title will be deputy chief of naval operations for development and will add to his present responsibilities management of the Navy's guided missile division as well as other modern weapons development. The naval air arm now handles guided missiles.

Schriever will be succeeded by his deputy, Brig. Gen. Osmond Ritland.

Governor Says

No Fancy Car for Him

DES MOINES —(AP)— The Iowa House has passed a bill to buy a fancy official car for the governor, but Gov. Herschel Loveless says he would be happy driving a low-priced auto.

State law limits the amount spent on a car for the governor to $2,000. Many Iowans say the state's chief executive should drive a prestige automobile.

Loveless said he has ordered a new state car. It will be the same as those driven by the highway patrol — either a Ford, Chevrolet or Plymouth, black with standard transmission.

"I don't care what kind of car I drive," the Democratic governor said. "Cadillacs are for Republicans." He now drives an Oldsmobile handed down from his predecessor.

Icebreaker Limps Back

BOSTON —(AP)— Reputed to be the world's mightiest icebreaker, the U.S. Navy's ship Glacier returned from five months in the Antarctic on one propeller and a prayer. She had lost three in the tremendous South Polar ice fields.

Unity Center Spade Work Set

Groundbreaking for a $225,000 sanctuary for the Unity Center of Practical Christianity tops a day of groundbreakings and building dedications slated Sunday.

To be located at 412 NE 22nd St., the Unity Center will be a modern, hangar-like auditorium seating 1,100 persons. It will have a 96-foot, off-center tower which will be lighted from within.

A large fountain and reflecting pool will be in front of the center of the airconditioned sanctuary with theater-type seats. Entry will be from two side doors rather than from the middle.

Groundbreaking ceremonies will be conducted by the Rev. John Lee Baughman at 3 p.m.

The first unit of a five-building plant at Pinelands Presbyterian Church will be consecrated in another 3 p.m. Sunday service at Bahia and Bluewater Rds. in Cutler Ridge.

The $45,000 building, ultimately to be used as a fellowship hall, will serve as the sanctuary and provide temporary Sunday school rooms.

Additional educational units, a sanctuary and a manse are planned in the seven-year building program.

The Revs. James Carter, Miami Springs Presbyterian Church; Ronald Wilson, Westminster Presbyterian Church; and Archie Davis, Trinity Presbyterian Church, will take part in the consecration service.

Holy Communion at 11 a.m. will be the first worship service in the new building for the 214 member congregation which organized four years ago with 21 members.

Ground for a $60,000 educational building at Kendall Methodist Church will be broken at the close of the 11 a.m. Sunday service.

The structure will provide six classrooms and two assembly rooms which will handle 200 Sunday school pupils. The one-story building will be of Spanish-style architecture.

Dedication of the $30,000 dormitory at the Tropical Bible Institute operated in connection with the Full Gospel Tabernacle will take place at 11 a.m. Sunday.

There will be a dinner on the ground and a movie on the history of the church as part of the open house following the dedication ceremonies.

In addition to erecting the airconditioned dormitory, the church has built a book store and remodeled the sanctuary.

Plans for a new, 500-seat sanctuary with a 40-foot tower have been announced at Fulford Methodist Church. A. A. Torres has been named chairman of the building fund drive which will get underway April 15.

He Spared GI Lives, Lost His Son, but Gained Faith

A Chinese who saved the lives of American GI's in the Orient and then came to Miami Beach only to lose his son, has faith that it all was part of God's will.

That faith is so strong that it has been recognized by his fellow members of the Miami Beach Independent Presbyterian Church who have chosen him as a leader. He was ordained an elder Wednesday night.

Born in Hong Kong, Chan was a communications officer on a passenger ship working out of the Portuguese free port of Macau during the war.

Some American soldiers escaped the prisoner of war camp in Hong Kong and reached Macau, where they persuaded Chan to get a boat and take them to Free China.

There he stayed to work for an aviation company until after the war, when he went to California to visit a sister and then to Connecticut to visit some GI friends.

Chan became a citizen and came to Miami Beach in 1953.

"My religion up till then had been 'self,'" admits Chan. Although of Protestant background, he said he used whatever religion seemed helpful in business. "I believed there was a God, but that was all."

When his two-month-old son died four years ago, it never bothered Chan. But it hit his wife pretty hard and people from the church began to comfort her and 'invite her to services.

She accepted Christ as her personal Savior and began urging Chan to go to church with her. One night he did and a visiting Scotch Bible teacher encouraged him to believe what the Bible says about Jesus and be saved.

From then on Chan strived to live his faith, serving as an usher, finally making the missions board, and now rising to elder.

"I just pray that all of this will give glory to Jesus Christ our Lord," he said.

Lisbon Will Get 20 New Churches

LISBON — (P — Emanuel Cardinal Goncalves Cerejeira, patriarch of Lisbon, has announced 20 new Roman Catholic churches will be built here because of the population increase.

Lisbon parishes must not have more than 15,000 persons, he said, but some have as many as 50,000. Only seven new parishes have been formed in a half century.

Dentist Who 'Retired' to India Mission Field Heads List of Guest Speakers

A dentist and his wife who retired and then invested their lives and money in a missionary project head the list of guest speakers who will be in Greater Miami pulpits this weekend.

Dr. Eugene M. Riel, a Dayton, O., dentist who was far beyond the usual acceptance age when at 55 he entered mission work in 1956, will speak and show slides of his work at 9:45 and 11 a.m. Sunday at the Coral Way Methodist Church.

He and his wife also will be at Trinity Methodist Church at 7:45 p.m.

A grandfather seven times over, Dr. Riel established the first dental public health project in India. His wife established an occupational therapy department at Clara Swain Hospital in Bareilly.

They've found that the Indians come to them for counseling more readily because of their age and they pointed out that mission boards are eager to have folks of their ages if they are qualified for some special service as they are.

Dr. Riel reported that missionaries are well received in India, that Hindus have given most of the money which built the hospital where he and his wife work, and that the younger Hindus and Moslems have no deep roots in their traditional faiths.

* * *

Dr. Harold Paul Sloan, a retired Methodist minister who served some of that denomination's foremost churches, will be the pulpit guest for the 11 a.m. Sunday service at Miami Shores Community Church.

He is the author of "One Gospel for One World," formerly was editor of the Christian Advocate, and served on the faculty of Temple University.

Charles Mix, one of the deacons at the North Miami Congregational Church, will preach there at 11 a.m. Sunday. He will be filling in for the Rev. Robert T. Woodruff Jr. who is scheduled to resume his duties in May after a long illness.

Father Dunstan, of the Order of St. Francis, will be the guest celebrant for the 7:30 a.m. Holy Communion service at the Holy Cross Episcopal Church while the Rev. Charles Stewart, a deacon from the parish, will deliver the sermon at the 11 a.m. service.

Youth Week Opens

The first annual Youth Activities Week for the 12-23-year-olds at Sellers Memorial Methodist Church will begin at 6 tonight and continue through next Friday.

The Rev. John Davenport, of Opa-locka, will be the first speaker on the nightly schedule of supper, recreation, songs, talk, discussion, and devotions. He will talk about "finding myself."

Other speakers in the order of their appearance will be:

The Rev. Homer Bain Jr., who will discuss moral standards; the Rev. James Rowan, getting along with parents; Dr. and Mrs. Eugene Riel, missionaries to India, education and career; Dr. Thomas Strozier, the body and love; the Rev. Al Koestline, finding Christian answers.

Friday's session will be a campfire dedication service on the beach.

Mission Conferences Slated

The candidate secretary of the board of world missions of the Presbyterian Church, U.S., will tour this area next week to talk to young people about opportunities to serve on the mission field.

He is the Rev. Eugene Daniel, who will address a series of six conferences to explain requirements for missionaries and outline the programs carried on by the denomination on the various mission fields.

DANIEL

The Rev. Mr. Daniel is a former missionary to Korea. He won the Silver Star and Distinguished Service Cross as a chaplain in World War II. And he is a graduate of Georgia Institute of Technology, Columbia Theological Seminary and Princeton Seminary.

He will hold his first conference in West Palm Beach on Sunday, with churches from Lake Worth and Belle Glade joining in. On Monday he will be in Fort Lauderdale, with churches of Hollywood joining in that conference.

He will be at Westminster Presbyterian Church on Tuesday, with churches from Hialeah and Miami Springs taking part.

The Rev. Mr. Daniel will be at Miami Shores Presbyterian Church on Wednesday, with churches of North Dade joining in the meeting. On Thursday he will be at Granada Presbyterian Church, with young people from all the southwest section in attendance.

Friday he will be at Riviera Presbyterian Church, with those south to Homestead joining in.

On Sunday, April 12, the Rev. Mr. Daniel will speak at the spring rally of the Senior Young People of the presbytery at St. Johns Presbyterian Church.

Rough Draft Ready

Bill Would Aid Segregation in Florida Schools

TALLAHASSEE — (UPI) — A bill to encourage public support of private schools in the event of forced integration was drafted Friday by Rep. Gordon Frederick of Seminole County.

Frederick said he will introduce the bill Wednesday, the day after the 1959 legislature opens. He sent a rough draft to the attorney general's office with instructions to eliminate any legal kinks.

The bill would give taxpayers who contribute to private schools a credit on the taxes they would normally pay for support of the public schools.

The credit would be limited to one-half of the contribution, but could not exceed the individual's total annual school tax bill.

Frederick said the restrictions probably would limit an individual to an annual tax credit of no more than $60 or $80. He said he intended the credit to cover only the county property taxes collected for school operations.

The rough draft referred to state taxes, which might have included sales taxes earmarked for school operations, but Frederick said that will be removed.

School Superintendent Thomas Bailey said he has not seen the bill, but offhand he sees some administrative and legal problems and fears it might jeopardize the already shaky county school financial structure.

Atty. Gen. Richard Ervin declined to comment, and said he will stick to the private school tuition plan he and Bailey previously proposed.

The Bailey-Ervin plan was offered as "pop off valve" for parents who refuse to send their children to an integrated school and cannot afford to educate them privately.

Frederick said his bill would offer no relief of this type.

People who pay no real estate taxes for school support would get nothing under his bill. Nor would the tax credit apply on tuition paid to private schools.

It would operate only if a taxpayer made a financial contribution toward the private school, in addition to the regular tuition for his child's education.

And he could get the tax credit regardless of whether he had children in school.

Teamster School Move Hit

TALLAHASSEE — (UPI) — State School Superintendent Thomas D. Bailey spoke out Friday against unionization of teachers by outside labor organizations.

Bailey's statement was prompted by a request from a Broward County school official for an opinion on whether teachers could legally affiliate with the Teamsters union.

The opinion was asked by D. A. Dessenberger. Bailey said he has asked Dessenberger for more details so he can seek a legal ruling from Atty. Gen. Richard Ervin.

He stressed he has no official knowledge that the Teamsters union plans to try to sign up Broward County officials. Bailey said he talked with the president of the Broward County Classroom Teachers Association and he has no knowledge of any such move.

"Such a thing would be "disastrous." Bailey said, declaring he is "unalterably opposed" to teachers belonging to any labor union controlled from outside.

He did not advocate any union for teachers, he said, but would vigorously oppose any attempt to sign them up in an organization they do not themselves control.

For Her 'Peace Plan'

Mom's 25 Words Nets Her $10,000

TALLAHASSEE — (AP) — A Marianna school teacher who believes the family home is the key to world peace won $10,000 for her thoughts Friday.

Mrs. Luielle Sirmans received the check in a surprise presentation as Gov. LeRoy Collins, State School Superintendent Thomas D. Bailey and Attorney General Richard Ervin looked on.

Brought here on the pretex of a conference, Mrs. Sirmans was taken to the governor's office to receive the second place prize in a nationwide home improvement contest sponsored by the Home Improvement Council.

The contest required entrants to say in 25 or fewer words why they wanted to improve their homes.

Mrs. Sirmans said she wrote that her goal was to make an attractive home for her sons, 20 and 14, and that if the home was the center of every family's life there would be peace in the world.

She said she would use the money to make the improvements she has so long wanted to make on her home.

Mrs. Sirmans, a sixth grade teacher, has taught in Jackson County schools for 15 years.

Disaster Areas Get Aid

Loss Is Placed At $1,250,000

ORLANDO —(AP)— Disaster specialists from the American Red Cross worked with local chapters in two central Florida areas Friday to expedite family assistance to tornado victims.

National Guard units called out by Gov. Collins Friday after violent winds struck at Dade City and Orlando continued patrolling the damaged sections to prevent looting and to keep out unnecessary traffic and spectators.

Residents in the damaged sections, though still shocked from the early morning tornadoes that took one life and left 19 others injured, worked to clean up the debris and salvage what they could from their damaged homes.

The loss was placed at more than $1,250,000.

Edward J. Gully of Atlanta, director of disaster services for the Red Cross in the southeastern area, said applications already are being taken from families who feel they will need help in rebuildng and refurnishing their homes, for medical care and other needs.

"We have assigned caseworkers, building advisors and also a nursing staff," Gully said, "whose responsibility will be to consult with stricken families and help them work out a recovery plan, the Red Cross to provide supplementary funds they will need."

Gully said 12 disaster specialists had moved into Orlando and Dade City.

Orange and Pasco County chapters continue to operate feeding stations for refugees and clean-up workers, he said.

Two hundred person made temporarily homeless by the tornado and workers are being fed at Orlando and a similar number at Dade City, Gully reported.

Orange County chapter manager Ernest Knight reported a storm damage survey showed seven homes destroyed in the Azaleas and nearby Union Park suburban sections and 30 with major damage.

'Conflict' Plan Issued By Larson

TALLAHASSEE — (AP) — State Insurance Commissioner J. Edwin Larson Friday released a proposed revision of Florida insurance laws which would ban certain conflicts of interest.

A new section would prohibit the insurance commissioner or any employes of his department from being financially interests in any insurance company or agency.

It also would prohibit the commissioner or any employe from receiving any "fee, compensation, loan, gift or other thing of value" in addition to his regular pay for any service rendered.

The section would not prohibit an insurer from making a loan to the commissioner or a department employe through regular channels if the loan was adequately secured. Nor would it prevent the insurance company from acquiring or holding such a loan or investment originally made by others.

Probe Ends In Firing Of 14 at UF

GAINESVILLE — Fourteen persons at the University of Florida, including some faculty members, have been dismissed because of homosexual activities exposed by a legislative investigating committee.

Dr. J. Wayne Reitz, university president, announced the action Friday.

"Action has also been taken with respect to the few students involved," Dr. Reitz said.

Names and addresses of those dismissed were withheld.

Dr. Reitz said the 14 dismissals included both academic and non-academic employes.

He said a thorough analysis had been made of the testimony supplied by the legislative committee.

State Sen. Charley Johns of Starke who headed the investigating group said he was "well pleased with the action that has been taken and I have every confidence that Dr. Reitz is going to do everything in his power to keep the situation at a minimum."

He said Dr. Reitz was correct in saying that in all universities a certain amount of homosexuality exists.

At Quincy, chairman James E. Love of the Board of Control said "we concur fully with the manner in which this case has been handled."

All action has been taken by the board that it felt necessary, the chairman said "frankly, the procedures which have been set up to cope with the situation are much better than I thought possible," he added.

Dr. Reitz said "I again want to emphasize that there is no reason to believe that the extent of homosexual conduct at the University of Florida is unique and that other public institutions have any lesser problem.

"This conclusion is expressed in the legislative investigation committee confidential report," he added.

"Certainly this statement neither condones such activity nor alters our firm position in taking action whenever we develop adequate evidence."

The contents of the committee's report were never disclosed.

GOP Chiefs To Confer

FORT LAUDERDALE — Republican state chairmen of 12 southern states will meet here today and Sunday to discuss party rebuilding and the southern Republican position on a 1960 party platform.

G. Harold Alexander, Florida GOP chairman and chairman of the Southern Association, said sessions will be aimed at implementing the "Road to Victory" plan approved by the national committee in January.

300-Mile Test Brings Program Speedup

Third 'Perfect' Shot Scored by Giant Titan

Titan Roars to New Triumph

. . . biggest U.S. missile blasts off

Mightiest Missile Called a 'Prodigy'

CAPE CANAVERAL — (UPI) — A thundering Titan ICBM arched across a 300-mile stretch of ocean Friday on a perfect flight that made it the child prodigy of the nation's long-range missile family.

It was the third straight successful flight in as many firings of the 90-foot rocket, designed to span the widest oceans with a devastating hydrogen warhead.

The silver-and-white Titan's short but significant hop down the Atlantic tracking range made veteran rocketeers marvel. The Titan's older brother, the Atlas, did not notch a successful flight until its third try, six months after the first Atlas shot.

The Martin Co., which makes the intercontinental ballistic missile at Denver, Colo., called the shot "a perfect success."

"These initial triumphs of the big 'T' have resulted in the acceleration of what was already an accelerated program," Martin said. "Objectives that were planned for later missiles have been moved ahead of schedule and are now a part of current flight tests."

Martin hopes to make the 110-ton Titan combat-ready by next February a year after the missile scored a triumph on its initial flight test Feb. 6.

The sky was completely clear when the Titan blasted off at 12:11 p.m. EST, and reporters could see the entire powered phase—the crucial part — of the missile's flight.

Six seconds after its first stage engine coughed and roared into action, steel mooring clamps freed the Titan and it began a majestic climb into the blue. Its silver upper stage glinting in the bright sun, the Titan began arching southeast 25 seconds after liftoff and a white vapor trail formed when it gained several thousand feet of altitude.

After about two minutes and 20 seconds of flight, the first stage engine burned out and a second later a small puff of smoke was seen in the sky.

This apparently was the ignition of two small solid-fuel rockets on the upper stage, designed ultimately to insure clean separation of the second stage from the booster section of the rocket.

However, there was no attempt to fire the second stage. This is considered a crucial test, since ignition of an upper stage in flight has been a problem plaguing many rockets. Instead of fuel the second stage of Friday's Titan carried 5,600 gallons of water for ballast.

The Air Force was cautious in labeling the flight a success, but the Pentagon soon issued a statement that preliminary reports indicated the Titan "achieved its test objectives."

Jet Fires Big Rocket 700 Miles

CAPE CANAVERAL —(AP)— A B47 jet bomber streaked in over the cape Friday and blasted a highly secret "Bold Orion" test missile toward a target some 700 miles out over the Atlantic.

The new air-to-ground weapon, actually an intermediate range ballistic missile which can be launched from a plane, left a curly smoke trail as it roared from beneath the B47.

Air Force officials declined comment other than to confirm that "a research and development test rocket was fired at the Atlantic missile range."

The two-stage solid fuel missile, about 25 feet long, was developed by the Martin Co., one of three firms vieing for the "Bold Orion" contract.

It was learned this was the eighth launching of the Martin test rocket from a jet bomber over the cape. One of the sleek weapons traveled more than 1,000 miles to an ocean target.

The B47 Friday was trailed by a smaller jet which probably carried camera equipment to record the airborne blast-off.

Air Force experts believe that when developed, the "Bold Orion" program could lengthen the lifetime of such strategic bombers as the B47 and B52. The planes will be capable of firing the missile from well outside an enemy radar screen.

McDonnell Aircraft and Lockheed, the other two companies developing "Bold Orion" models, also have conducted shoots from the cape, both from plane and ground launching sites.

In one instance, the new B58 Hustler bomber fired an air-to-ground missile just after the plane broke the sound barrier.

Attorney General Says

Press Entitled To Crime Details

TALLAHASSEE — (AP) — Atty. Gen. Richard W. Ervin said Friday he sees no basis for any added restrictions on releasing of information on crimes as a result of the recent Florida Supreme Court decision in the Phillip Singer case.

Ervin declined to comment directly about action of Palm Beach County Sheriff John F. Kirk in forbidding his deputies to give to newsmen any information on crimes except that available from arrest slips and complaint warrants, which usully is very sketchy.

He said that about a year ago he issued an opinion in which he ruled that law enforcement officers should not release information contained in investigative reports used in developing their cases.

He said that he saw no need for such officers to go beyond this to unduly restrict newsmen from their legitimate news gathering operations.

Ervin said it was his opinion the Florida Supreme Court went too far in its opinion in the Singer case, but that it was his impression the opinion was directed more at trying to discourage sensationalizing on crime stories rather than to restrict news gathering.

"I feel it would be harmful if newspapers are forbidden from carrying out their legitimate functions of coverage of the news," he said.

"Newspaper stories many times have served a very useful purpose to track down criminals. And enterprise by newspapers has resulted in breaking up of rackets and in improving law enforcement generally."

Kirk said he was restricting release of information to newsmen because of a Florida Supreme Court ruling in which a new trial was ordered for Singer, who had been charged with the murder of Mrs. Osee Fagan, wife of the Alachua County prosecuting attorney.

Ervin said it was his opinion each case involving claims of inflamed public opinion could be handled by the presiding judge on the basis of each particular set of facts.

She Gets 10 Years In Burning of 2 Tots

BARTOW —(UPI)— Juanita Irene Hamil, 21, who tried to burn her two young children to death last January, was sentenced to 10 years in prison Friday.

Mrs. Hamil pleaded guilty before Criminal Court Judge Roy H. Amidon on two counts of trying to commit murder, arson and adultery.

She got 10 years for attempting two murders, the sentence to run concurrently with five years for arson and two years for adultery.

She was charged with splashing gasoline on her two children at their Polk City home, locking them in a bathroom and setting them afire. Sharon Key, 4, was badly burned, but Olin Vivian, 3, escaped with only minor burns.

Mrs. Hamil, divorced from the father of the children said at the time she did it because the children were "getting on my nerves."

After she had set their clothes afire and locked the bathroom door, however, she lost her nerve and went screaming for help. Two men, neighbors, battered down the bathroom door and saved the lives of the children.

The little girl, Sharon Kay, is now taking skin grafts in a Lakeland hospital. The three-year-old boy has been living in a Lakeland childrens home.

Both will be put in the custody of their maternal grandmother, Mrs. Marguerite Highbargin of Iola, Kan.

William Ernest Clabo, who was living with Mrs. Hamil at the time of the incident, also pleaded guilty to adultery. He was sentenced to one year in jail or a $500 fine.

Blind Girls to Compete in County Finals

. . . blind spelling champs bone up for county finals

Herald Service

ST. AUGUSTINE — Blindness since birth has proved no handicap to Lillian Carole Snow, 14, and Carol Tompkins, 13, as far as spelling prowess is concerned.

Winner and runner-up in the Spelling Bee at their school, Florida State School for the Deaf and the Blind, they'll compete in the St. Johns County finals here on April 8, with 20 top spellers from 10 other schools in the county. St. Johns is the northernmost county participating in the Miami Herald Spelling Bee.

Lillian, a winner from State School last year, finished third in the county finals then, just missing the trip to Miami. This will be Carol's first year in the county finals.

Lillian, a seventh grader, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Snow, Eau Gallie. Sixth grader Carol's parents are Mr. and Mrs. T. Tompkins of Jacksonville.

Both pupils are vivacious teenagers with a zest for life and learning. They like "cool" clothes, have hobbies and dance with a strong preference for rock and roll.

Blond Lillian and brunette Carol swim in the school pool, participate in athletics and enjoy playing the piano.

Also they would like to collect autographs of rock and roll artists, but so far have been able to collect only the signatures of the Everly Brothers, singers. Now there is an Everly Brother's fan club at the school.

In addition to using braille writers, and they're not called typewriters, they also use the conventional typewriter. Their teachers say that it is because of their excellency in spelling that typing comes so easy for them.

Both girls read braille efficiently, and it is with amazing rapidity that their fingers run over the raised dots as they study their textbooks or read braille magazines. The average braille student reads silently about as fast as the sight reader reads aloud.

St. Pete College Planning Starts

A local architectural firm said Friday it has begun preliminary planning for the new 12 million dollar Florida Presbyterian College at St. Petersburg.

Maurice H. Connell, head of the firm of Connell, Pierce, Garland and Friedman, Architects-Engineers of Miami, said work on the architectural and engineering plans began this week.

He said plans call for a coed college which will accommodate 1,200 students. A freshman class of 400 be received in the fall of 1960.

Movie program listings for the early part of next week are apt to be scrambled somewhat. Finish of the Oscar race Monday night will dictate what the features will be at many movie palaces . . . Repeal is generally predicted for Oklahoma in the votes scheduled later this month but the legalization of liquor sales won't make an immediate difference to night club businesss. Only bottle sales, not single drink sale, will be permitted at first.

Mathis and Monica Win Raves

WHAT DO YOU DO when you are both a nightlife reporter and a part-time (very small part!) actor in Sigma Delta Chi's annual Ribs and Roast lampoon which Sid Casell is whipping (sic) into shape at Miami Springs Villa's for an April 8 showing and there are simultaneous demands for your services as a reporter and an actor? Don't be silly. Hand over that greasepaint!

But you, as a saloon reporter, have a problem because there is a show opening at the Fontainebleau Hotel La Ronde Room. That constitutes the writing demand. You just decide to pass up the opening and catch the post-midnight second show. "But dear," dears your dear wifely RIB, "you need your sleep to stay fit for your rehearsals (the last with just a soupcon of sarcasm), I've done it before — let me cover for you."

"Are you mad!" is our pride-stung retort to her presumption. But we accept the offer.

There was, of course, a distinct Mathis in her madness, for singing sensation Johnny Mathis is the current star at the Fontainebleau — and Mathis, the current madness of the record collecting set, is a treat even to a reviewer.

Mathis, Monica a Bit Marvelous

"Johnny Mathis," reports our Papermate helpmate in her review, "is the answer to those who find themselves too old for Elvis and too young for Sinatra. When he last played here you wrote that there was too much of Nat King Cole in his style. Not so now—he's all Mathis and all the Mathis is terrific.

"Oh, that could be because he has varied his selection of tunes to include more of those identified with singers other than Cole. He opens, for instance, with 'My Funny Valentine,' associated with You-Know-Who, who is the champ of the La Ronde Room. This is not exactly a conventional "opening song" either but Mathis scores with it, and from this moment on—which is another number he does—he's in, like Sinatra, with La Ronde's patrons.

"We made a funny for you at the start of this review about Mathis's between-Presley-and-Sinatra appeal. Just a joke. He did seem to bring out a lot more late teen-agers than the usual cafe act, but don't let this mislead your readers into thinking he's for the adolescents only. I—and the rest of the married girls in my section — were properly impressed. And daddy, even you'd like him — especially in his exciting rendition of 'Lover.' Of course he sings 'When I Fall in Love.' It wouldn't be Mathis without that!

"I don't have to tell YOU about Corbett Monica, who is the 'comedy star of the show' as emcee Murray Schlam puts it. You woke me up one night just to tell me how good he was a couple of years ago. So you were right then and even righter now. He's a smooth worker with stories about his house and his wife and his problem of a name that often gets him mash notes from patrons who think he's the girl on the bill.

"Dagmar, who was looking over my shoulder as I made notes for this review, says you'll understand if I tell you that a comedian with the name of "Corbett" fractured his audience. Was there really a fighter by that name in your day, daddy?

"Opening the bill in the usual dance spot is the unusual dancing of Norton and Patricia. We see a lot of teams—this one is one of the very best in the mood in which they perform. Well, that's it. It was easy."

His Chipmunks on Tape Bring Composer Riches

LOS ANGELES —(AP)— David Seville is a fellow who has done pretty well in the chipmunk and witch doctor business. In the past year Seville — real name Ross Bagdasarian — figures he has sold $6,700,000 in novelty records.

The chipmunks who helped him are named Alvin, Theodore and Simon. They are, of course, the Singing Chipmunks on th records "Chipmunk Song" and "Alvin's Harmonica."

The witch doctor? That was the title of the song which launched Seville's big-time career. Earlier Seville helped his cousin, novelist William Saroyan, write "Come On-a My House." It netted Seville only $17,000.

All his money from the past year didn't come from song royalties or record sales. Seville also cashed in on commercial tie-ins with the Chipmunks, whose pictures appear on wallpaper, T-shirts, and cookies.

He also saved some money by not having to hire singers to take their roles. Seville himself is the chipmunks. A tape recorder enables him to achieve the strange sound attributed to Alvin and his pals.

Hogan on Hogan's 1st Round: 4 Mistakes, 4 Extra Strokes

AUGUSTA, Ga. — The appeal that Ben Hogan maintains with the golfing fans is amazing. Out at the practice area there Friday morning, a spectator called out, "Here Comes Hogan."

The fans shifted to the area where Hogan started warming up with lazy-looking wedge shots. Before turning in succession to a nine-iron, seven and longer range clubs. All of his shots looked good, but you could tell when Ben was displeased. He grimaced.

HOGAN

Hogan started the second round of the Masters with a 73 opposite his name. He was dissatisfied with it, mainly because he figured four mistakes were made in his opening round.

"I've had higher scores," Ben said. "I don't care what everyone else is shooting. The golf I played Thursday wasn't my standard. I wasted four shots. I hit four strokes that I shouldn't have had to hit."

Hogan said he wasn't worried by the windy gales. He thinks a golfer should be able to compensate for the elements.

"All I expect to do is hit good shots," he continued. "If I do that, the scoring will take care of itself."

Hogan has mellowed since his big comeback after the auto-bus collision which almost cost him his life. He is more friendly with the press, but he still sets a high standard for himself on the course. He is not satisfied with anything short of perfection.

Leonard? He Could Hang in to Win

THEY FINALLY came up with Florida weather for the Masters — clear blue skies, warm temperatures and moderate winds which may be expected to gain velocity during the afternoon.

Watching the boys tee off, Willie MacFarlane of Miami came up with the prediction that "The scoring will be much lower today. Someone will have a 67. If I'm wrong, it'll be because the score is lower."

MacFARLANE

You may check on Willie's prediction by looking at the second round scores in another column. MacFarlane refused to venture a guess about the winner, "There are a lot of guys who could win it," he said. "Stan Leonard is one."

This comment came because some were figuring the Canadian's 69 in the opening round was a flash in the pan.

MacFarlane was reminded that Sammy was angry Thursday over the gusty winds, which he blamed for his 74.

"I mean he's got to get mad at the way he's playing," MacFarlane explained. "The long hitters have the advantage on this course. Why, I could take care of myself if they'd let George Bayer drive for me. I'd get on the greens from where George hit the ball."

10th, 11th and 12th Holes the Payoff

WHEN the tournament ends the players in the money will be those who scored well on the 10th, 11th and 12th holes, MacFarlane allowed.

"They are the payoff holes," said Willie. "You can get into the woods on the 10th. You have to be accurate with your approach to the downhill 11th green, backed up by water, and you can't take any chances on the 12th, fronted by a brook.

"The winner and the other leaders will be those who get pars, or birdies, on these holes."

No Kinks in Masters' Setup

THE MASTER'S is not only the best-run golf tournament in the world. It is the best-operated sports event. Down through the years, its handling has been perfected by the trial and error method.

They have scoreboards, refreshment and comfort stations all over the place. Well-trained gallery marshalls handle the crowds.

The opening day turnout was estimated at 15,000. They expect 25,000 today and again Sunday. The admission charge is $3 for each of the first two rounds, five bucks today and $7.50 for the finals. No one complains and other sports promoters might take note of the fact there is no charge for parking. Little things like that irritate fans.

Years ago, when Miami was in the golf tournament business, I tried to persuade some of the officials to come here and observe how this tournament was run. Perhaps if they had, Miami would have developed a classy tournament. As it stands, we've given up tournament sponsorship and have not done anything about increasing facilities for golfers. One of these days we may wake up to discover these are among the reasons why tourists have shunned Florida for Arizona and other vacation spots.

Florida Wheels Lose in Meet

GARDEN GOVE, Calif.—(UPI) — The defending champion Flying Wheels of Long Beach, Calif., beat the Florida Wheels of Tampa, 49-34, Thursday night in the opening round of the National Wheelchair Basketball Tourney.

The Flying Wheels squad was sparked by John Cheeves who racked up 17 points for his team which led by a slim margin of 21-20 at halftime. Earl Ingram was high man for Tampa with 16 points.

Hartack Seeks Third Straight

Easy Spur First Choice In Today's Florida Derby

By RUSS HARRIS
Herald Turf Writer

Racing fans from coast to coast will cast their eyes on Gulfstream Park today for the eighth running of Jimmy Donn's $116,400 added Florida Derby.

A field of nine, including three of the top candidates for Triple Crown honors this season, will clash in the mile-and-one-eighth classic with the winner earning a net prize of $75,300.

Second money is $20,000; third is $10,000; fourth is $7,000, and the fifth horse will get $3,000.

The field, in post position order, includes Easy Spur (Jockey Bill Hartack); Rico Tesio (Walter Blum); McLellan (Logan Batcheller); Rare Rice (Jack Leonard); Revolutionist (Bill Harmatz); The Chosen One (Jimmy Combest); Troilus (Chris Rogers); Master Palynch (Bobby Stevenson); and Sword Dancer (Sam Boulmetis).

A crowd of 25,000 is expected with three bands and a water ski show providing additional entertainment. The spectacle will be televised nationally over CBS (Channel 4) beginning at 4:30 p.m.

Hartack will be seeking his third straight Florida Derby score aboard Spring Hill Farm's Easy Spur. He won last year with Tim Tam and in 1957 with Gen. Duke.

Easy Spur, a gelded son of Crowfoot, earned favoritism in today's contest by an easy victory in the Hutcheson Stakes and a smashing eight-length triumph over Troilus and five other Derby rivals in the Fountain of Youth Stakes.

Bayard Sharp's Troilus and Brookmeade Stable's Sword Dancer are the other members of the Florida Derby's "Big Three."

While Troilus met defeat in the Fountain of Youth, most observers are dismissing that race from their calculations.

Troilus had been given a three-week rest following his success over First Landing in the Flamingo and was obviously a "short" horse. In addition, he did not have the services of his regular rider, Rogers. The latter has been sitting out a 10-day suspension which ended Friday.

With Rogers back in the saddle and Troilus now a fit horse following a brilliant workout last Monday, the Sharp colt figures to be a strong second choice in the wagering.

Sword Dancer could be the under-rated member of the Big Three. In his first start this season, Sword Dancer finished fifth after meeting with interference in the Hutcheson. He came back to rack up an impressive victory at a mile and 70 yards.

Boulmetis will be shooting for his third consecutive "hundred grander" on Sword Dancer. The veteran jockey rode Vertex to victory in the Gulfstream Park Handicap and Bowie's Campbell Memorial the last two Saturdays.

It is interesting to note that in Frank E. Kilroe's 1959 Experimental Free Handicap ratings, Sword Dancer was given 122 pounds with the others in the Florida Derby lineup pegged well below him. Rico Tesio was rated at 116, Easy Spur 113, Troilus 112; Master Palynch 110, Rare Rice 108 and McLellan 105. Revolutionist and The Chosen One were not even listed.

However, Kilroe's ratings were based on 1958 performances and much has happened since then.

As stakes winners, Easy Spur, Troilus, Sword Dancer, Rare Rice and Master Palynch pack 122 pounds today. Rico Tesio, McLellan and Revolutionist carry 118 and The Chosen One gets in with 141 because he has yet to win a race.

Griffith Asks Frick to Void Deal on Loes

ORLANDO — (AP) — President Cal Griffith of the Washington Senators Friday said he will ask Baseball Commissioner Ford Frick to void a deal in which the Baltimore Orioles sent sore-armed Billy Loes to the Nats.

Griffith said the Senators' team physician had found Loes, an out-spoken right-hander, to have an incomplete rupture of the right arm near the shoulder. The physician recommended surgery, but said there is only a 50-50 chance of recovery from the ailment.

Griffith added that Lee MacPhail, Orioles' general manager, had told him Loes' arm was sound before the Tuesday swap which gave Baltimore Right-hander Vito Valentinetti.

Loes was sent to Washington for the examination Thursday, after reporting to the Senators and complaining of a sore arm.

Loes, 29, had a 3-9 record with the Orioles last year, his eighth season in the Majors. He broke in with the Brooklyn Dodgers in 1950 and had his top year in '53 with the Brooks with a 14-8 record.

In New York, Frick offered no comment pending an official request from Griffith.

Decision Monday

Miranda Comes In --But Is He Out?

The status of Baltimore Shortstop Willie Miranda is still very much up in the air and will probably remain that way until at least next Monday.

Miranda arrived here Thursday night — 36 days late in reporting to the O's spring training camp. "Just passing through," the little Cuban said cheerfully. "Maybe I room with Loes (Pitcher Billy Loes, who was traded to Washington Wednesday)."

MIRANDA

If Miranda it'll be as an it'll be as an Oriole. Friday Cal Griffith, Washington owner, said he was going to ask Commissioner Ford Frick to void the deal for Loes because Billy has a sore arm.

And Griffith added that his attempts to obtain a shortstop do not include negotiations for Miranda.

Miranda gave no excuses for his tardiness when greeted in a hotel lobby by a group of Oriole players. "Maybe I tell you later after I talk to Paul Richards," he said.

Richards said he talked to Miranda at length, but reported his status would not be determined until the club returns to Baltimore Monday.

Defending Champ Palmer Forges Ahead in Masters

AUGUSTA — (AP) — Defending Champion Arnold Palmer fired a 2-under-par 70 Friday and held the halfway lead in the Masters Golf Tournament at 141. Stan Leonard, the first round leader with a 69, was even par through nine holes.

The usually fearsome par figure of 36-36—72 for the broad, 6,980-yard course was taking a beating all the way down the list.

There was a traffic jam for the runner-up positions with close to 20 players bunched within three strokes of each other from 144 through 147.

Five pros, including Welshman Dave Thomas, were tied at 144. Others were Ed (Porky) Oliver, Julius Boros, Mike Souchak and Paul Harney.

Arnold Palmer

Dow Finsterwald
. . . fires a 68

Dow Finsterwald shot a four-under 68 over the 6,980-yard par 72 Augusta National lay-out for a 147 total. Julius Boros and Paul Harney had 69's. These, and a number of other sub-par scores Friday, were in sharp contrast to Thursday's round when only four players beat par.

Former PGA Champion Chandler Harper stuck in close with a 74 for 145 and said he actually was playing better golf than when he had a 71 Thursday. But 1956 Masters Champ Jackie Burke, putting miserably, skied to 77 for a 148 total.

Conditions were right for scoring. The gusty winds that marred the first round still persisted and affected some players. But they helped dry the course and the greens.

Shooting 70s were pro Bo Wininger and Billy Joe Patton, the irrepressible amateur. Harper, Jay Hebert and Amateur Bill Hyndman of Philadelphia also had 145 totals.

Finsterwald, U. S. Open champion Tommy Bolt and Ben Hogan, twice Masters winner and four-time Open champion, were clustered at 147 — a score good enough to assure them of playing the last two rounds.

Bolt got off to a bad start and finished with a 75 after an opening 72. Hogan, playing with Souchak and drawing a large part of a gallery estimated as high as 15,000, lingered over short putts, missed a few of them and finished with 73-74—147.

Or Give Up Crown

Robinson Ordered To Fight Basilio

NEW YORK —(AP)— Middleweight Champion Sugar Ray Robinson Friday was ordered to sign for a title fight with Carmen Basilio by noon April 15, or lose his crown.

The latest ultimatum to the 38-year old champion was issued by the New York athletic commission. At the same time the commission rejected Germany's Gustav (Bubi) Scholz, the European champion, as a suitable contender for Robinson at this time.

Scholz and Robinson's attorney, Martin Machat, had advised the commission by letter that negotiations had been completed for a Robinson-Scholz title fight in the U.S. or Germany before September, 1959.

Gen Melvin Krulewitch, commission chairman, pointed out that commission rules require champions to defend their titles every six months. Robinson hasn't defended since he regained the jewels from Basilio in Chicago, March 25, 1958.

New York's warning to Sugar Ray followed the action of the National Boxing Association. On March 30, the NBA indicated it would strip Robinson of his title unless he signed for a defense April 25. The NBA, however, did not name an opponent for Robinson. New York is not a member of the NBA.

Neither Robinson nor any member of his entourage attended the session. Neither could they be reached for comment.

Only last January, when the NBA said it would take drastic action against Robinson, Gainford threatened a suit against each member of the NBA's executive committee. When the committee met, Robinson mollified the members by saying he planned a title defense in either May or June.

Krulewitch said that Basilio, the former champion, was the outstanding challenger and that he had filed a formal challenge backed up with the necessary $2,000 check. He said that Gene Fullmer, another ex-champion, had written the commission asking for a title fight but had not filed a formal challenge.

Scholtz, 29, is ranked fourth contender, by both the NBA and Ring Magazine. He has 54-1-4 win-loss-draw record. The German's only loss was to France's Charles Humez on March 11, 1958. Scholz stopped Humez in the 12th round of a return bout last October to win the European title.

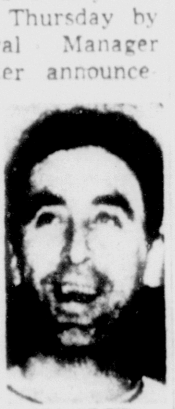
Cardinals Seek Maglie as Coach

ST. PETERSBURG — (AP) — Sal Maglie, who helped pitch the New York Giants, Brooklyn Dodgers and New York Yankees to four pennants, is considering an offer to serve as a pitching coach in the St. Louis Cardinals Farm system.

Maglie revealed Friday the offer was made Thursday by Cardinal General Manager Bing Devine after announcement that the Redbirds were giving the 42-year-old right-hander his unconditional release.



MAGLIE

"I deeply appreciate their offer," Maglie said in the Cardinal clubhouse at Al Lang Field. "But I don' know whether I will accept it. I promised Bing I'd think it over and let him know in two-three days."

A great pitcher with the Giants and Dodgers, Maglie apparently has reached the end of the line. But he thinks he still can win in the majors. The Buffalo native, familiarly known as the Barber, owns one of the best lifetime won-lost records in the majors with 119 victories and 62 defeats.

"I think I would enjoy the job as pitching coach in the Cardinal organization," Sal said. "I like to work with young pitchers and I'd like to remain in baseball. But I still think I can pitch in the major leagues."

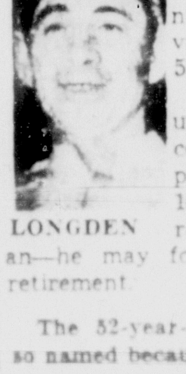
May Give Retiring Second Thought

'Ol' Granddaddy' Longdon Boots in Winner No. 5,279

SAN BRUNO, Calif.—(AP)— Ol'Grandaddy Johnny Longden had a perfect day at Tanforan Race Track Thursday — four winners in four rides.



LONGDEN

That increased the world's winningest rider's victory total to 5,279.

And if his triumphant string continues at its present pace — 10 winners in 34 races at Tanforan—he may forget all about retirement.

The 52-year-old pumper — so named because of his pumping-arm style of riding—said recently he might hang up his tack after the Hollywood Park meeting ends in late summer.

But riding winners is Johnny's greatest thrill . . . and seeming chief interest in life. He's up before dawn most mornings and usually goes right to the track to work out horses.

"What would I do if I quit?" is his consistent reply to queries. Become a trainer? That's for his son, Vance. College-educated Vance trained two of Longden's four winners—Rosy Turf, a $6.80 payoff in the first race, and Royal Run, $13.20 in the fifth. Both are owned, by the way, by Alberta Farms of Canada, in which son Vance has an interest.

Johnny is the first rider to win four races at this meeting.

Johnny, who is deeply-tanned and deeply wrinkled from 32 years of riding in all kinds of weather, seldom smiles.

But he was grinning broadly as he trudged from the winner's circle to the jockeys' room after victory No. 4—or 5,279, if you like big figures, as Johnny does.

'Ailing' Rose Holds AAU Freestyle Title

Reprinted from late Friday editions

NEW HAVEN, Conn. —(AP)— Ailing Murray Rose retained his 1,500-meter freesytle National AAU swimming title Thursday night in the meet. record time of 18:18.4. He was running a 100-degree temperature when he plunged into the pool.

The fabulous Australian star won the metric mile by more than three yards, finishing in front of Alan Somers of Michigan State. George Breen of the Indianapolis A.C. was third.

Breen had held the meet record of 18:20.2 since April 5, 1956, which he registered in this same 50-meter Yale practice pool.

"I feel much better now" he said after the finish. It left a question, however, as to whether he'll be in shape to defend his 220-yard sprint title today.

Murray Rose
. . . in his element

Rose also holds the 440-yard freestyle crown, which is scheduled for Saturday, the final day of the three day meet.

Rose started to run a temperature this afternoon, but kept it a secret until he arrived at Yale's Payne Whitney gym with his parents. He decided to get into his swim suit about 15 minutes before the race was scheduled to start.

As he took his place on the starting platform, there was a commotion which ended only after he assured his mother, and others that he wanted to swim — and to win. He did.

A mild surprise was the failure of Bill Steuart, Michigan State ace from South Africa, who a week ago won the NCAA metric mile in 18:26.2. His time tonight was 19:24.7.

"I just didn't have it," he said.

'Everybody' Goes to the Masters, A Shrine and Mecca for Golfers

AUGUSTA, Ga.—Bobby Jones was a golf legend while he was playing 30 years ago and his name still is magic down here as perpetuated in the Masters Tournament.

Bobby rides in a cart now, instead of walking, and talks a lot of long ago, like a day he played Scotland's famed St. Andrews course.

Off to one side of the historic layout Jones thought he saw a small tombstone and inquired as to what and why.

"Sir Harry Lauder hit a ball over there once," was the explanation, "and his caddy died looking for it."

It is rather impossible to permanently lose a ball on the Augusta National links, although often possible to lose control of it.

The veteran Chick Evans, playing in only his third Masters and first since 1953, came sorrowfully off the first nine with a 46.

"Oh, those great big greens," he sighed.

"They make you dizzy just looking up and down them. Yes, the years are lengthening and so are the courses."

As of today, this Masters labyrinth is exactly what Jones and chairman Cliff Roberts envisioned 25 years ago. "Everybody comes here," said Dick Metz. "It's a shrine, a mecca for golfers."

Gene Sarazen phrased it: "I'd rather come here than go to the Open. You see more people."

* * *

Big Bugaboo

THERE WAS some rain and wind and muggy heat for the opening round and atop a parking station en route to the club was a prophetic sign: "Golf is a game in which the ball always lies poorly and the player well."

But as Billy Joe Patton said: "You can stand anything for a day or two — heat, rain — but then it becomes a strain."

Wind is the big bugaboo for all golfers. "It creates a terrific mental hazard," said Patton. "You have a game to play and the wind won't let you.

"Then you try to fight it and the shots go haywire and even when it dies down or quits entirely, the pattern can be lost."

Dick Mayer, the former Open champ, ad-libbed: "Bob Rosburg can tell you about the wind," and they both had a laugh.

It was a couple of years ago that Rosburg in the early title running, came to the fourth hole, a 230-yard affair ticketed as a par-three. The wind was blowing a gale into the tee and nobody was reaching the green in one.

Rosburg lashed into his drive just as the wind cut out entirely on him, and the ball cleared a fence behind the green. Bob had to shoot again and take a two-stroke penalty for out of bounds.

* * *

What a Round

YES, THIS is the Masters, the time and place where, four years ago, Patton put together one round of a hole-in-one, an eagle, six birdies, a double-bogey, a bogey and eight pars and finished just one stroke shy of winning the title.

"I rather suspect that was one of the greatest rounds I ever got out of my system," he gagged off the final green.

This can be a tricky tournament as to scores. Par is 288 for 72 holes.

Four times it has been done with 279 or under (Ben Hogan's 274 in '53 is the record) and four times the winner has posted 280. Twice 289, one over par, was sufficient to win.

"There's penalty shots on every hole," said Jim Demaret. "You've got to avoid them to do anything."

Shortstop Worries Marlins

Reprinted from late Friday editions

By EDDIE STORIN

Although the 28-year-old shortstop was in the lineup Thursday as the Marlins took another drubbing (17-6) at the hands of Indianapolis, he was still favoring his arm more than somewhat.

Manager Pepper Martin, who is beginning to wonder how long "an ordinary sore arm" takes to get well, has been playing Castleman at second base to avoid the long throw from shortstop. But even at that position, he was unable to make a routine throw Thursday.

There were runners on first and second with one out in the sixth inning when Joe Martin of the Indians grounded to Castleman. Foster fielded the ball in time to make a force play at second, but after starting to throw there decided to take the shorter route and flipped to first base.

"No," said Castleman frankly, "I can't say that the arm is showing much improvement. It still hurts like the devil to throw.

"I can't understand it. I've never had any arm or shoulder trouble in my life. Maybe I can shake it in the warmer weather in Puerto Rico," he added hopefully.

"My timing is off," surmised Castleman. "That layoff didn't do me any good. But it should come around okay."

FSU Promotes Perry Moss And Don Veller

Reprinted from late Friday editions

TALLAHASSEE —(AP)— Florida State University has handed its new head football coach, Perry Moss, the added duties of athletic director.

Dr. Don Veller, assistant athletic director since May, 1958, was promoted to associate director of athletics.

President Robert M. Strozier announced Thursday night that the appointments are effective immediately Moss, former University of Miami aide, will hold down the dual jobs of head football coach and athletic director at his present salary of $14,000. Veller's salary will remain at $9,250.

As director of athletics, Moss succeeds Tom Nugent, who held both jobs until he resigned to accept a head coaching position at University of Maryland last January.

"We have taken quite a bit of time in thinking through the responsibilities of an athletic director at Florida State University," Dr. Strozier said.

"Coach Moss' first interest is football. But he also has a broad interest in the entire program of intercollegiate athletics at the university.

"Dr. Veller has wide experience in athletics and the confidence of the staff. We believe the two of them will make an excellent team, assuring the university a well-balanced program in intercollegiate competition."

Moss, 32, came to Florida State from University of Wisconsin, where he had served two years as backfield coach."

"Our ultimate aim is admission into an athletic conference, preferably the Southeastern Conference," Moss said.

Lakers, Celtics Vie In Pro Cage Finals

BOSTON —(AP)— Giant-killer Minneapolis Friday mapped slowdown tactics to atone for 18 straight losses to the Boston Celtics and regain its onetime rating as the royalty of pro basketball.

The setting will be the finals of the National Basketball Association playoffs which open today at Boston Garden in a nationally televised contest (NBC-TV, Channel 7, 3 p.m. EST).

The Lakers, who finished 17 games back of defending world champion St. Louis in the Western Division only to stun the Hawks in the regional playoffs, aren't going to play dead for the Celts.

On paper, it looks like a colossal mismatch.

Boston has crushed the Lakers in a cross-country victory string that extends back to their final meeting of the 1956-57 campaign. The Celts have won on their own court, at the Minneapolis Auditorium and on neutral floors with equal ease.

In addition, it was Minneapolis that Boston victimized in the record-shattering 173-139 triumph late in February. That mathematical marathon was one of 52 triumphs by the Celts which gave them a single season league mark.

But playoffs are a different matter as St. Louis discovered. Led by the scoring magic of rookie-of-the-year Elgin Baylor, the Lakers wiped out the Hawks in six games. Meanwhile, Boston had to go the full seven contests to eliminate Syracuse in a frantic finish.

"The trick is to knock about 10 or 12 points off the 119-point average the Celtics have been scoring at our expense," explained Minneapolis Coach Johnny Kundla. "I think that would beat them.

"We might be able to do a few things to slow down the Celtics," Kundla continued. "What we really have to avoid, though, is being stampeded when they get three or four fast baskets."

"I think the hard series with the Nats will prove beneficial to the boys in the championship series," Boston Coach Red Auerbach countered in discussing the competition which the Celts squeezed out 130-125 Wednesday night.

"They had to work too hard to beat Syracuse and they've found out they can't overrate themselves," Auerbach continued. "Now they'll want to beat the Lakers and win the championship because they've come this far the hard way."

One thing is sure: the Lakers have a proud tradition behind them.

Minneapolis won the world crown in 1949, 1950, 1952, 1953 and 1954 with the likes of George Mikan, Jim Pollard, Vern Mikkelsen, Slater Martin and Bob Harrison. Mikkelesn is the only survivor of that glory group.

The Celtics took the title in 1957.

The series continues in Boston Sunday afternoon before moving west for Tuesday and Thursday dates.

Leafs Stun Bruins, Take Hockey Lead

Reprinted from late Friday editions

BOSTON — (AP) — The Toronto Maple Leafs, aroused to fever pitch, took command of its Stanley Cup hockey playoff series with Boston, 4-1, Thursday night on Johnny Bower's fine goaltending.

Bert Olmstead, Dick Duff, Frank Mahovlich and Bob Pulford registered the goals which gave the Leafs a 3-2 edge, just one victory shy of wrapping up the best-of-seven semi-final series.

Bower, a 33-year-old veteran playing his first Stanley Cup series, lost his bid for a shutout at 11:25 of the final period when Jerry Toppazzini tipped in a Jim Morrison pass from right in front of him. Bower contributed 32 saves to 22 for Boston's Harry Lumley.

Spurred by two straight overtime triumphs after falling behind 2-0 in the competition, Toronto for once found itself in charge from the start with a superior show of speed, stick-handling and aggressiveness.

How Lama Fled Chinese Reds

NEW DELHI, India —(AP)— Under Chinese pursuit the Dalai Lama made a 300-mile trip on foot across Tibet's mighty mountains in order to reach refuge in India, his joyous followers disclosed Friday

Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru told a wildly applauding Parliament the 23-year-old god-king is in good health and will be given "respectful treatment."

Nehru did not use the word asylum. Informed sources said he considered this an improper term in reference to the only ruler in the world whom his people regard as a god.

The god-king's followers gave this account of his escape:

The Dalai Lama slipped by night from his summer palace of Norbulinka in Lhasa, the Tibetan capital. The party included his 57-year-old mother, his 14-year-old brother Rimpoche Ngeri, his 26-year-old sister Tsering Domme, four cabinet ministers and two tutors.

They had to slip past the guns of the Chinese Communists as they headed toward some of the wildest country in the world. They took the most direct route to India, about 150 air miles away but more than 300 miles through the valleys and snow-clad passes.

The party crossed the Kyi chu River, 25 miles south of Lhasa, and walked on and up through the Che pass, 17,000 feet high. On the other side of the mountain range they passed over the broad Tsangpo River and walked 35 miles to Minden Ming, a rebel stronghold,

All this time the Chinese Communists had spotter planes in the air and parachute troops ready to drop if the fugitives were sighted. The Dalai Lama's party frequently saw the searching planes.

At Minden Ming the Dalai Lama picked up a strong escort of fierce Khampa warriors, who have led the revolt and who have been fighting the Chinese Communists in Tibet for three years. They moved up through the mountains to the rebel stronghold around Lake Trigu and walked south to the Indian border.

Nehru Wednesday night received a secret message from Shillong. The message said an emissary of the Dalai Lama had arrived at Towang to ask for political asylum.

Instructions had gone out previously to India's border checkposts to permit entry, however, and the Dalai Lama actually had already crossed.

Tibetan exiles declared the Dalai Lama still is the ruler of Tibet, making clear he will

New Move to End Dispute

Canada Proposes U.N. Man Berlin Routes

3 Points Presented To NATO

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Canada proposed Friday that the Atlantic Pact allies consider inviting the U.N. to man the access routes between West Berlin and Free Germany.

Canadian Defense Minister George Pearkes put forward the suggestion in discussing new moves to end the East-West dispute with Russia over the future of Berlin.

The plan would require Russian acceptance.

Other delegates at the 15-nation Atlantic Pact Council meeting gave no immediate reaction to the Canadian plan. Pearkes emphasized he proposed a U.N. approach only to reinforce present Allied rights in West Berlin.

He suggested the U.N. might consider a three-point formula as the basis for an agreement with Russia:

1—Verification by the U.N. that the West and the Soviets are living up to the terms of any new agreement.

2—A Soviet pledge binding Russia as well as "its associates" to allow full freedom of access to West Berlin and acceptance of what Pearkes called "a U.N. presence on the lines of communication."

3—A firm understanding that U.N. responsibility for West Berlin would reinforce or back up the present American-British-French right to be there as conquerors of Nazi Germany.

Pearkes did not spell out whether he meant troops or observers to constitute the "United Nations presence" he advocated on the 110-mile route between West Berlin and West Germany.

The Canadian delegate joined foreign ministers from eight other Atlantic Pact nations in urging the Western Big Three nations to adopt a firm negotiating policy in dealing with the Soviets.

The foreign ministers pledged solid backing for a tough Western negotiating policy in East-West talks due to begin in Geneva May 11.

Their unanimous views, expressed during the second day of top-level NATO meetings, coincided with mounting signs the American, British and French governments — the Big Three — would heed the advice.

The Big Three foreign policy chiefs, prodded by West Germany, were reported to have hedged on the concessions they were thinking of offering the Russians.

"The liberty of Berlin is the liberty of Europe — if Berlin

Senate President's Views

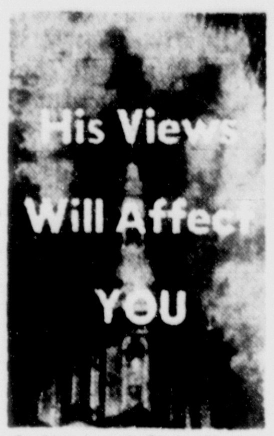
Budget, Race Actions Need Sound Plans

Florida's Legislature, which meets every two years, reassembles next Tuesday in Tallahassee. The eyes of the legislators and the rest of the state will be on three influential men—Speaker of the House Thomas Beasley, Senate President Dewey M. Johnson and Governor LeRoy Collins. How they agree and differ on key issues will affect you. Sen. Johnson explains his views in today's article written especially for The Herald.

By DEWEY M. JOHNSON
President of Florida Senate

TALLAHASSEE — Taxes, segregation and reapportionment are the major problems facing the 1959 legislature convening Tuesday.

I believe we will accomplish much through sound and sensible action in dealing with government spending and race relations.



I am also hopeful that a compromise reapportionment plan can be proposed by constitutional amendment and put before the voters.

In regard to avoiding new taxes, I believe we can eliminate several programs now operated at state expense without curtailing essential public services.

There are some educational benefits offered by the state which I believe adult individuals could pay for themselves.

I think the legislators will go along with reducing adult education expenses to a minimum but they will approve such programs that will enable adult students to earn a livelihood.

I refer to courses which lead to high school diplomas for persons who were not able to complete high school before going to work; manual arts training, typing, shorthand and accounting classes.

Further reductions can be made I believe in the kindergarten and summer enrichment programs.

Tighter Welfare Programs

TIGHTER CONTROL on welfare spending, particularly in the program for aid to illegitimate children, would assist our efforts to hold down the cost of government.

New laws might include forcing both parents—mother and father — to do more on behalf of the child and requiring the mother under oath to disclose the name of the father so he can be held responsible for the child's support.

A majority of the legislators, I believe, realize the taxpayers don't want to be told they are going to have to pay new taxes every two years for additional services many of them personally do not feel are warranted.

As I look at it, while we might cut spending a little too thin and hurt in a few places, I believe that overall we can provide for the absolutely necessary services with low taxes which will be an inducement to new people and new industries.

We won't be a backward state so long as we can live within our existing revenues and provide the essential services.

Ike Talks Today on U.S. Policy

To Spur Fight On Dictators

GETTYSBURG, Pa. —(UPI) — President Eisenhower Friday flew to Gettysburg, Pa., where today he will deliver a major foreign policy speech he hopes will make clear to Americans "the international facts of today's life."

The President, who will speak at a Gettysburg College convocation, plans to emphasize the need for grater individual and collective understanding to maintain freedom's fight against Communist dictatorship

White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty gave newsmen a brief preview of the President's planned speech before the chief executive flew to Gettysburg by helicopter.

He said Eisenhower believes the American people "need to understand our nation's position and role in strengthening the world's free nations which, with us, see our concepts of freedom and human dignity threatened by atheistic dictatorshop."

This indicated the President might take the occasion to put in a new plug for his four-billion-dollar foreign aid program, which is faced with a tough battle in the Democratic-steered Congress.

Argentine Capital Hit By Riots

BUENOS AIRES —(UPI)— Serious rioting broke out in downtown Buenos Aires late Friday as thousands of Peronist and Communist workers demonstrated against the government's austerity and labor control policies.

Massed mounted and foot police fired barrages of tear gas bombs against the demonstrators, who gathered before the congressional building in violation of a police ban.

The demonstrators burned three private cars and overturned several others. They also overturned a police truck six blocks from the Congress Plaza.

Police ordered out nearly 2,000 men around the plaza to keep order along with 5 assault cars, two armored cars and firefighting units.

A Neptune tank spraying colored water was also active. The water was used to facilitate the identification of rioters engaging in criminal activity. At least two persons were hurt by bursting tear gas bombs.

Thousands of Peronist and Communist workers walked out on a six-hour strike intended to permit workers to mass before the labor ministry and the Congressional building.

Frisco Barred To Soviet Ballet

NEW YORK —(AP)— Impresario Sol Hurok says the State Department has declined to permit a San Francisco appearance of the Soviet Union's Bolshoi Theater ballet company.

San Francisco is one of the American cities where Soviet citizens are not permitted to travel. For several years this country has restricted certain areas to Russians in retaliation to Russian travel restrictions on Americans.

Channel 7 Award Is Reopened

WASHINGTON — (UPI) — The Federal Communications Commission Friday reopened the Miami television Channel 7 contest to determine whether any improper influences figured in the award to Biscayne Television Corp.

This is the fourth case the commission has reopened on the basis of charges aired last year before the House influence investigating subcommittee that backstage approaches were made to former FCC Commissioner Richard A. Mack and other commission members while applications for TV awards were pending.

Mack resigned under fire after hearings which involved influence charges against him in the Miami Channel 10 contest. He is scheduled to go on trial with his long-time friend, Thurman A. Whiteside of Miami, Tuesday.

The commission moved Friday on its own motion to reopen the Channel 7 case. The FCC twice voted to grant the channel to Biscayne, which is owned by former NBC President Niles Trammel and principal stockholders of The Miami Herald and The Miami Daily News.

The FCC initially voted to award the channel to Biscayne, for operation of station WCKT at Miami, on Jan. 18, 1956.

Three losing applicants in the four-way contest appealed to courts. After the case was returned to the FCC, the commission on June 21, 1957, reaffirmed the grant to Biscayne by a 4-2 vote.

Those voting in favor of Bixcayne were former FCC Commissioner George C. McConnaughey, John C. Doerfer, Robert E. Lee and Mack.

Commissioners Rosel H. Hyde and Robert T. Bartley dissented. Commissioner T. A. M. Craven abstained.

The losing contestants in the fight were East Coast Television Corp., South Florida Television Corp., and Sunbeam Television Corp.

The commission said it would hold hearings to determine whether any member of the FCC should have disqualified himself from voting in the contest.

The commission said it would consider holding the hearings outside of Washington. The commission set no date for the hearings nor did it name a presiding officer.

7,000 Dodge Duty, Reds Say

BERLIN —(AP)— Communist East Germany claimed Friday that 7,000 young West Germans have fled behind the Iron Curtain within the last seven months to evade military service.

An interior ministry spokesman in East Berlin said the number of West Germans in the draft age, 19 to 25, who have come to East Germany in recent months, equals the strength of seventy 100-man companies in the West German armed forces.

Collier Plan For Airport Gets Boost

NAPLES — Collier County plans to establish the Immokalee Airport as a possible training and test field to aid crowded Miami International Airport have been cleared by federal authorities

Rep. Paul G. Rogers Washington office Friday notified The Herald that the field is being turned back to the county.

County Commission members last June began an intensive effort to obtain the surplus Air Force base after hearing Miami International faced federal action because of heavy air traffic.

Clifford Anderson, realtor and war-time fighter pilot, suggested use of the Immokalee field and pushed plans for its development for test and training flights out of Miami.

County board members conferred with Dade County Port Authority representatives before seeking aid of Rogers and Sens. Spessard Holland and George Smathers.

Rogers' secretary, Nell Howe, said that the congressman had received a letter from the Federal Aviation Agency reporting its Washington office has approved transfer of the field to Collier County for operation as a public airport.

The letter said the General Services Administration will join the FAA in completing the transfer as soon as possible.

The field has two hard-surface 5,000 foot runways. It was one of the satellite fields of the Buckingham Gunnery Base at Fort Myers during World War II.

Floods Drive 2,000 Out of Their Homes

By United Press International

Spring floods, fed by April showers and melting snowbanks, kept more than 2,000 persons homeless in New England and the Midwest Friday.

The floods followed a week-long weather siege of tornadoes in the South, dense fog in the East, and heavy rains in the North. Together, the vile weather combination claimed 20 lives.

Parts of Illinois, Wisconsin and Iowa had been living with their floods for more than a week. A total of 1,700 persons were homeless in the industrial Rockford, Ill., area and 80 families had been driven from their lodgings in Wisconsin.

In contrast, the New England floods swirled up with little warning in Vermont and New Hampshire They were expected to spread rapidly through the six-state New England region.

The New England floods were choked by ice floes so big they snapped a 65-foot metal radio transmitter tower like a matchstick on the Sugar River near Claremont, N.H.

Cold Front Moving Toward N. Florida

A cold front was sweeping southeastward from Texas toward North Florida with cloudiness and rain Friday, but forecasters predicted good weather for at least most of today in the southern part of the state.

"It's hard to tell right now whether the front will keep coming or slow down before it gets to Central and South Florida," Miami Forecaster Phil Ackerman said.

But the front shouldn't really bring much of a temperature drop, even if it gets to South Florida, Ackerman said.

The forecast for today was increasing cloudiness and possible rain in the northern part of the state starting this morning. Sunny skies were predicted for South Florida — with possible increasing cloudiness if the cold front keeps coming.

Ackerman said there was no indication of a squall line traveling with the new weather front, like the one which spawned deadly tornadoes in Central Florida on Thursday.

King Pilots Starfighter

LOS ANGELES —(AP)— King Hussein of Jordan flew for 30 minutes and broke the sound barrier in a Lockheed F104 Starfighter Friday

Capt. R. N. Mercer of the U.S. Air Force was nominally at the controls, but the 23-year-old monarch, a qualified jet flier, did much of the piloting.

"A wonderful flight," he said after the jet fighter returned to Palmdale Airport. "I would like to check out in one of these and fly it alone.

"And I think some of these planes would have considerable influence in the Middle East."

Before the flight demonstration, King Hussein and his party toured the Lockheed factory at Burbank.

U.S. Plastered by Fallout From 'Dirty' Red A-Bombs

Radiation Grows; U.S. Probes Rate

WASHINGTON — (UPI) — Stratospheric fallout from Russia's radioactivity dirty atomic tests in the Arctic last October is now hitting the U.S. with growing intensity.

This was disclosed Friday after preliminary study of new fallout monitoring data by Dr. Willard F. Libby, scientist member of the Atomic Energy Commission.

It is too early to say whether the Soviet fallout will push the Strontium-90 content of any U. S. foods above maximum permissible levels. Libby doubts that it will.

The new information, accumulating with every April shower, tends to support fast fallout theories recently advanced for big nuclear explosions in the polar regions.

Libby hopes to have facts which will settle this issue by May 4 when the Congressional Atomic Energy Committee opens hearings on radioactive fallout.

The new data, from AEC rain sampling and Navy air filtering stations, suggest that U. S. cities in the latitude of Minneapolis, say, are getting the heaviest dose of Soviet fallout.

Fallout comes in three categories:

1—Local, deposited in minutes or hours in the immediate vicinity of the explosion. This is the dreaded scourge of nuclear war.

2—Tropospheric, distributed worldwide in a month or less in latitudes corresponding to those of the blast site. This is a hazard only less immediate than that of local fallout.

3—Stratospheric, worldwide in distribution and consisting of radioactive particles pushed into atmospheric regions above 40,000 feet where they drift for a long time before coming down. Only the longer-lived radioactivities are a menace in this category.

The U.S. has tried—with new manufacturing and testing techniques — to clean up its weapons tests. But the latest fallout information proves decisively that Russian weapons have become dirtier and dirtier.

Ike to Get Special Report

WASHINGTON — (AP) — President Eisenhower has ordered a study of how the government can best evaluate the effect of radioactive fallout on health.

The White House announced Friday that the study already is well under way. The Atomic Energy Commission, the Department of Welfare and the Budget Bureau are carrying it out.

James C. Hagerty, presidential press secretary, said the three agencies expect to report to Eisenhower in a few weeks.

remain a rallying point of the revolt against Red Chinese rule in Tibet.

Informed sources said, however, India will recognize the Dalai Lama only as a spiritual leader of the Buddhists and he will be forbidden to form any government in exile in India. This is to avoid offending Red China.

The Chinese Communist embassy declined to comment on the Dalai Lama's request for refuge in India. Peiping Radio had pictured the Lama as forced by anti-Communist rebels to flee to India.

Reliable Tibetan exile sources in India's frontier town of Kalimpong said the Dalai Lama is heading for Shillong, capital of India's easternmost province of Asam, for a few days rest.

They reported he is being escorted by Indian army and political officers and expects to reach Shillong Sunday. They expect him to come to New Delhi for talks later. The Dalai Lama brought a party of 80 with him from Tibet, crossing into India near Towang Tuesday night.

Tibetan sources in Kalimpong said the Dalai Lama began his hazardous flight the night of March 17, shortly before a revolt erupted against Red rule.

He Prefers Prison to a Payday Job

MURPHYSBORO, Ill. — (AP) — A parolee has gone back to the penitentiary in preference to working for a living outside.

Merdia Hicks, 34, of Pomona, went to the Jackson County jail of his own free will last month and told authorities, "I just can't get along."

The Illinois Pardon and Parole Board disclosed Friday that he has been transferred back to Menard.

Deputy Sheriff Calvin Ellis said Hicks turned down two jobs offered him by a parole officer and declined to look for work himself.

He was paroled in December, 1957, after serving more than 11 years of a one year-to-life sentence for burglary and larceny.

Death Car Is Found In Tampa

By TOM LOWNES
Herald Staff Writer

The bloodstained Meslener murder car was found in Tampa Friday — 40 days after it disappeared in Miami.

While Dade detectives flew to Tampa to comb the car for clues, a second sensational aspect of the baffling, brutal murder came to light in Miami:

Frank Meslener, husband of the pretty murder victim, disclosed that the clothes that his wife was wearing when she was found dead on a Miami River canal bank in Medley were not her own.

Strangely, however, the clothes on the body did bear a striking resemblance to those that Mary Meslener wore to work on the fatal day — Feb. 23. But they differed in color and detail, Meslener said.

Metro homicide detectives, working in Tampa, were close-mouthed as to what either of the case's new clues would prove.

Full contents of the murder car are still to be divulged but the car, which bore the same license plate it carried on the murder date, is known to contain:

Blood stains on the front seat and a puddle of dried blood on the right rear floor.

Three bobby pins in the blood puddle on the rear floor.

A white bottle cap — possibly off a bottle of wine.

Several empty cigarette packs.

A man's English-style black cane-umbrella.

In Miami, Meslener said that neither his wife nor any member of the family ever owned such an umbrella.

falls, who will be next?" asked West Germany's Foreign Minister Heinrich von Brentano as discussion of the Berlin crisis ended.

As the conference in the Inter-Departmental auditorium reached the midway point, authoritative officials reported these signs of a tougher Big Three negotiating policy toward the Soviets:

1. Britain has agreed to link its plan for a military freeze of troops and weapons in Central Europe with progress toward German reunification. The West Germans and French were reported to have insisted on this.

2. A Western plan for a confederation uniting East and West Germany has been shelved. This would have picked up Russia's proposed approach toward German unity but would have included Western ideas for an independent, democratic all-German government.

3. A U.S.-proposed peace treaty draft for all Germany has virtually been scrapped. Instead the West will unveil only a "set of principles" which would guide a later peace pact.

Von Brentano said the Allies must remain united in the face of the Soviet challenge and must not abandon basic principle.

Italy's Foreign Minister Giuseppe Pella firmly supported Von Brentano's no retreat in Berlin stand as did Canada's Pearkes, Denmark's Jens Otto Krag, Norway's Halvard M. Lange, Greece's Panayotis Kanellopoulos, Netherlands Foreign Minister Joseph M. Luns, Turkish Foreign Minister Fatin R. Zorlu, and Belgium's Pierre Wigny.

ASCOLI PICENO, Italy — (UPI)— Authorities said that six persons were killed when a landslide crushed a farmhouse. The slide, triggered by heavy rains in recent days, wiped out a whole family.

Militiamen Organizing In Haiti

PORT AU PRINCE, Haiti—(UPI)—President Francois Duvalier said Friday 25,000 men and women volunteers are ready to take up arms at a moment's notice to defend the government against invasion or rebellion.

But, in an interview in the Presidential Palace, Duvalier minimized the dangers of either external or internal attack.

Duvalier said the civilians did not have their own weapons but were issued them by the army for training. The weapons, he said, were returned to the arsenals but were available immediately in the event of invasion or revolt.

Duvalier explained that the volunteer army was formed after eight men seized the Port-Au-Prince army barracks in an abortive revolt last July 29 and called on his government to surrender. He said he was unaware of the size of the rebel force and appealed by radio to the people for help.

Thousands of civilians responded, he said, and the rebels were killed. Shortly afterward, he added, "volunteer groups were formed throughout the country."

"Haitians love their fatherland and are willing to fight for it," Duvalier said.

I'll Seek U.S. Loans --Castro

American Press Draws New Blast

By Herald Wire Services

HAVANA, Cuba — Prime Minister Fidel Castro says he will be looking for money as well as defending "Cuba and her revolution" on his visit to the U.S. later this month.

The bearded revolutionary told a TV audience he will seek loans from the U.S. Export-Import Bank and "all sources of credit possible."

The Batista government left only 70 million dollars in the treasury, Castro said, adding that Cuba's economic situation was further aggravated by falling sugar prices and increased competition from other sugar countries.

Castro is leaving for Washington April 15 on an unofficial visit as the guest of the American Society of Newspaper Editors. He accepted the invitation before becoming prime minister Feb. 2.

Castro said he was "anxious personally to explain my program to the U.S. press and people."

During a four-hour telecast he charged that American wire services did not quote him correctly and that Time magazine, The Miami Herald and other newspapers were waging a "campaign of lies" against his regime.

Castro also termed former Costa Rican President Jose Figueres a "bad friend" and "false democrat" for having suggested that the Castro regime was influenced by Communists.

Meanwhile revolutionary firing squads Friday shot four more convicted collaborators of former Dictator Fulgencio Batista, bringing to 500 the unofficial total number of "war criminals" executed since Jan. 1.

Three were executed in Santa Clara and one in Santiago. Castro predicted near the beginning of the trials that no more than 400 would be executed.

Revolutionary tribunals nevertheless continued to grind out death sentences. Two more were condemned in the last 24 hours, 10 others sentenced to prison terms ranging up to 15 years, seven were absolved and one death sentence was ratified on appeal.

Ohio Judge Dies Of Heart Attack

LOUISVILLE, Ky. — (AP) — James Garfield Stewart, Ohio Supreme Court judge, suffered a fatal heart attack Friday in a downtown hotel.

He was the father of Associate Justice Potter Stewart of the U.S. Supreme Court.

Stewart came here to address the Kentucky State Bar Association.

Stewart, 78, had been on the Ohio high court since 1947. He also served as mayor of Cincinnati from 1938 to 1947 and once had been a leading trial lawyer in Cincinnati.

The younger Stewart was named to the high court of the U.S. last October.

Johnson's Cautious

JOHNSON

Here are highpoints in Senate President Dewey M. Johnson's legislative outlook:

REAPPORTIONMENT — "Hopeful" for a compromise.

TAXES — Avoid them by eliminating some programs.

WELFARE — "Tighter control" on spending.

SEGREGATION — After every other remedy is exhausted, let voters decide whether schools should be closed rather than integrate.

CONSTITUTIONAL REVISION — "A certain amount" but "I want to retain old, basic 'safety valves' of our present constitution."

Senate President's View

'Legislative Action Needs Sound Plans'

some provisions of the Alabama law and considering such other grounds as would come within recent U.S. Supreme Court decisions.

Some form of parent-option plan is in order. What worries me is that it does not apply until integration is ordered.

A better plan may be offered which would provide for scholarship in tuition granted to any student, white or colored, who enters a private non-sectarian school. The payment would be made from the general revenue fund as distinguished from school funds.

Whenever a child is withdrawn from public school in the county, the county's minimum foundation grant from the state would be reduced by the same amount the state is contributing to the child to attend a private school. The actual expense from tax dollars would be exactly the same.

After every other remedy is exhausted, I think there ought to be a provision to permit qualified voters of a school district to determine whether schools should be closed rather than integrated.

It should call for the closing of all schools in the district both white and colored, not just an isolated school.

The legislature must keep in mind that we are fighting for the rights of the better class colored citizens as well as white.

Keep 'Check and Balances'

REAPPORTIONMENT — My experience from the "give and take" attitude finally reached in 1957 indicates that such an atmosphere again can result in reaching a solution that will be worth letting the people decide for themselves by submitting a constitutional amendment.

We will never reach now, or 50 years from now, a perfect solution that is going to meet 100 per cent approval in the extra-large counties and the exceedingly small counties.

The "check and balance" in the Federal Congress dates back to 1787 and Florida early adopted a similar check and balance in the two houses of our Legislature. The states in the U.S. Senate have the same amount of representation and House is based on population.

I don't recommend that we go quite that far.

With minimum limitations of one representative to a county, I think apportionment in the House should be based strictly on population. In the Senate I believe a number of factors should be considered that will effectively carry out the theory of check and balance.

While the present formula may not be quite equitable and fair, it would definitely be unfair to the smaller counties to determine complete control in both houses by population. If we would adopt the same formula for representation in both Houses then we would no longer need both houses.

In order to give relief to some congested areas, additional senatorial districts seem to be the answer.

Some Revisions Likely

CONSTITUTIONAL REVISION — I believe the legislature will draft a certain amount. Personally I want to retain old basic "safety valves" of our present constitution.

National Summary

High pressure along the Eastern slopes of the Rockies presented a pattern of dry weather from much of the Mississippi Valley to the Pacific coast and sunny mild weather was featured over the Southeast. A vigorous low pressure disturbance over Lake Huron accounted for showers across the Northern Appalachians.

At noon 70 degree temperatures extended from the Gulf coast into the Carolinas and 60's accompanied warming southerly breezes into portions of the Ohio Valley and mid-Atlantic states. In the wake of low pressure off the North Atlantic coast northwesterly winds prevailed along the New England coast but sunshine pushed temperatures into the 50's.

A cold front trailing southward from Lake Huron extended southwestward into Texas. Brisk northwesterly winds pressed cold air southward over most of the midsection of the country with temperatures in the 40's in the northern plains while 80's appeared in southern Texas.

A pattern of fair to partly cloudy skies over the far West found late morning temperatures in the 40's and 50's in the Northern Pacific states while portions of the warm southwest were pushing toward the 90 degree mark.

Twisters New to Florida

By BILL BUNGE
Melbourne Bureau Chief

MELBOURNE — "These tornadoes we've been getting," comments Harry C. Goode, "are something new for us Florida Crackers."

Goode, Melbourne businessman and civic leader, is a pioneer resident. His relatives are credited with the naming and founding of Melbourne.

"The only other tornadoes I can ever remember hitting Brevard were the two that cut a path through a thinly populated area over at Indialantic, on the beach," Goode said. "These were a number of years ago, but they could be called the most recent tornadoes in South Brevard."

BUNGE

He recalled that most of the damage was confined to trees. However, "it seems that V. C. Brownlie's house over there received slight damage," Goode said.

"When I was a boy a tornado hit Titusville. That was back in the days when there wasn't any inside plumbing, and this storm cut a path through backyards and sent those little 'honest john' buildings aflying. Nothing else was damaged badly, as best I can recall."

Goode said he didn't know about the Mims storm of this week, but the Indialantic tornadoes "started as water spouts in the Indian River and then moved east to the island town."

The Fort Pierce tornado in 1958, which did widespread damage, Goode said, caused the local disaster organization to make plans to cope with such situations. In the past, hurricanes were the chief worry of local Red Cross and Civil Defense groups.

When word was received here about the Fort Pierce storm, Goode and Dale Jacobus, both active in Red Cross disaster relief in South Brevard, made a hurried trip to that city.

"Now we have an organization set up that would be able to move as quickly and do as good a job as was done by Fort Pierce officials," said Goode.

But whether Florida — especially Central Florida — is getting more and more tornadoes is a good question, according to Goode.

"Back in the old days, contacts between Brevard and other sections of Florida were slight. Actually, the only thing that linked us with other parts of the state was The Miami Herald," Goode commented.

"It could have been that we didn't get the word on these storms then as we do today. Perhaps that's the reason why we Crackers might think there are more tornadoes now."

Red Cross Rushing Help To Victims of Tornado

By DAN BROWN
Cocoa Bureau Chief

MIMS — Red Cross workers rushed aid to this tornado stricken North Brevard community Friday and estimated they will have 50 storm victims to help.

One man was slightly injured in the early Thursday tornado, but three homes were destroyed and nine others badly damaged.

Red Cross Official T. L. Conn of Fort Lauderdale estimated the charity will spend $10,000 to $20,000 helping the tenants of the damaged and destroyed homes.

Mrs. Beth Quibley of Daytona Beach, a Red Cross disaster worker, set up an office here Friday.

Injured in the brief Thursday tornado was James Wright, a used car dealer, who was blown out of his house and into a tree top. He didn't require hospitalization.

The storm struck from the southwest at about 8:15 a.m. Thursday and tore out a 250-yard wide swath about three quarters of a mile long.

Wright's incomplete home and his car lot office were demolished and the storm also destroyed two Negro homes. Scores of other buildings were damaged.

A church and a bottled gas company office were also damaged by the winds.

In addition to homeowners, citrus growers began clearing up debris Friday, but they said the brief tornado didn't hurt them much.

Sid Carraway, office manager of the Nevins Fruit Co., largest in North Brevard said 50 to 75 trees were uprooted.

But he said most of the trees were only slightly damaged and can be replanted.

Sugar Refineries Involved In $6 Million Mortgage

By THELMA FROSCHER
Herald Correspondent

VERO BEACH — The Fellsmere sugar factory and surrounding cane fields are included in a six-million dollar mortgage between Okeelanta Sugar Refinery Inc. and Connecticut Mutual Life Insurance Co. which has been recorded in the Indian River County courthouse here.

According to County Clerk Douglas Baker, it is the largest mortgage ever recorded in this county. It also is or will be recorded in Palm Beach and Brevard counties. The Fellsmere sugar interest in the mortgage total about a million dollars in this county and a million in Brevard County. The remaining four million is in Palm Beach County.

No deed has been recorded here for the Fellsmere sugar property since rumors began several months ago that Okeelanta was negotiating to buy it.

M. S. McCollum of Vero Beach, who wrote title insurance for Connecticut Mutual the mortgagee, said Friday that, although he did not know the particulars, the mortgage did not necessarily represent a sale, but that it could be a merger with the mortgage refinancing the sugar operations.

The mortgage permits the mortgagor to dismantle and sell machinery at Fellsmere Sugar Co., or to transfer it to the Okeelanta plant or to replace it with new machinery.

Signing the mortgage for the Okeelanta sugar refinery were M. L. Quintana, vice president, and George H. Salley, secretary.

Ruling Delayed In School Suit

Hearing Scheduled April 14

By GENE BURNETT
Herald Correspondent

TITUSVILLE — Action on a motion to quash a mandamus suit which seeks to force the city of Rockledge to grant the county school board permission to construct a Negro school was postponed Friday until April 14.

The motion before Circuit Judge Volie A. Williams of Sanford, made by City Attorney Bill Akridge, argued mainly that the suit was not brought in the name of the state of Florida; it did not name the city building inspector as a defendant; and failed to show that the school board was "empowered" to construct schools.

The suit, filed March 24 by School Board Attorney Edward Trader, Melbourne, called the action of the Rockledge City Council in prohibiting the issuance of a building permit for construction of the Negro elementary school "arbitrary and capricious." The suit also stated that the school, one of four under contract by the school board, was "seriously needed."

School superintendent Woodrow J. Darden said at the hearing that four school contracts were "tied together" and that not one but "a lot of schools" could be delayed in construction.

The board also alleged that no zone ordinances had been violated.

But on the basis of the technicalities, Judge Williams ruled that the suit be amended to include as plaintiff the state of Florida "on the relation of" the board of public instruction, with each school board member named.

Trader said he would also include the building inspector as defendant, though the judge said his job was merely a "ministerial function."

Another amendment would include the word "construct" under the suits clause showing the board's power to "operate and supervise" public schools.

Commenting on the hearing set Tuesday for 10 a.m. Akridge commented, "we'll attempt to prove that the (school) site is unsuitable and also show that an added burden would be placed on the taxpayers in regard to police protection, garbage disposal and other city services."

Canners Ask Delay In Bills

WINTER HAVEN — (UPI) — The Florida Canners Association Friday asked the Florida citrus industry to hold up introduction of two of its legislative bills until it can propose substitutes.

The association said it wanted to offer changes for a proposal that would replace the powerful and controversial concentrators advisory committee and give the Citrus Commission more power to control concentrate manufacture.

The other bill would give the commission the power to regulate freeze-damaged fruit and empower the commission to establish processed product standards.

The two bills are part of a 17-point legislative program which has been endorsed by most Florida citrus groups after months of discussion and compromises.

The association took the action Friday following a meeting of its board of directors. It followed a secret meeting in Orlando Thursday, attended by representatives of the canners and other citrus agencies.

Canners President Frank J. Poitras sent telegrams to Chairman J. R. Graves of the Citrus Commission and President Vernon Conner of Florida Citrus Mutual.

He said "since the legislative committee hearings at Tallahassee are not likely to be held before your next meetings this short delay in the introduction of these two bills will not delay consideration by the Legislature."

Mutual's board meets April 15. The commission meets the next day.

Poitras said details of the canners' proposed revisions would not be disclosed before April 15, the day of Mutual's meeting.

Pruitt to Offer Car Inspection Bill This Year

(In response to a request from The Herald, Brevard County State Representative James H. Pruitt has given his views on the upcoming session of the Legislature.)

By JAMES H. PRUITT
Brevard County State Representative

MELBOURNE — A general bill calling for either an annual or semi-annual motor vehicle inspection in Florida will be introduced during the late days of the coming session of the State Legislature.

This is my pet project, and while I have done considerable work on it already, the actual bill that will be introduced will not be written for several weeks.

I have obtained copies of similar bills from other states, and while I'm in Tallahassee the advice of various agencies — such as the Florida Highway Patrol — will be sought before this proposed bill is put into final form.

There probably will be several co-sponsors.

The need for such legislation is clearly shown by a letter I received from an Orlando driver, who said she "objected" to auto inspections because her car does not have brakes and she can't afford them. My bill, she said, would force her to spend money on getting the brakes fixed.

My bill would provide that there be numerous inspection stations — perhaps garages that already have the equipment. These would be licensed by the state.

By having many stations, it would be impossible for a few people to join hands and make a racket out of inspections. There will be strong provisions in the bill to keep the program honest.

The main purpose of this legislation would be to promote more safety on the highways. In Brevard, as well as throughout Florida, a big percentage of vehicle accidents are attributed to unsafe cars.

This program would be self-supporting, although the state probably would have to put up a small amount of money to get it going. The inspection probably would cost $1—20 cents to the state and 80 cents to the inspection station.

License fee for the inspection stations probably would be $5.

Vehicle owners who passed the safety inspection would be given small windshield stickers so police could easily see that the cars and trucks have passed the safety check without stopping drivers.

Again I'd like to say, the law would carry stiff penalties for inspectors who would use the program to drum up business for themselves. And neither would they be able to enter into deals with motorists that would permit "easy inspections."

For Civil Defense

200-Bed Hospital Sought in Brevard

Hospital and civil defense officials have applied for a 200-bed civil defense emergency hospital for central Brevard, William Laycock of the Wuesthoff Hospital Board said Friday at ROCKLEDGE.

The emergency unit would be available for natural disasters and for treating the victims of an enemy attack, he said.

A similar hospital has already been obtained by Melbourne in South Brevard.

Laycock said Harold Ford, county Civil Defense director, had already applied for the hospital through the Civil Defense administration.

If a suitable storage place can be found for the emergency unit, it could be set up at the Cocoa High School when needed, he said.

Harvesting Of Valencias Nears Peak

LAKELAND — (UPI) — Volume harvest of the late season Valencia orange crop is expected to begin in about two weeks, Florida Citrus Mutual predicted Friday.

General Manager Robert W. Rutledge said "for all practical purposes harvesting operations for Florida's early and midseason oranges are now completed."

He said this means the actual harvest of early and mid-season oranges was about 47 million boxes or two million boxes less than the current government estimate of these varieties.

Concentrators, he said, are using Valencias in limited volume for frozen orange concentrate. But he said it was indiccated that it will takd another week or 10 days for Valencias to attain the desired ratio for volume use by contractors.

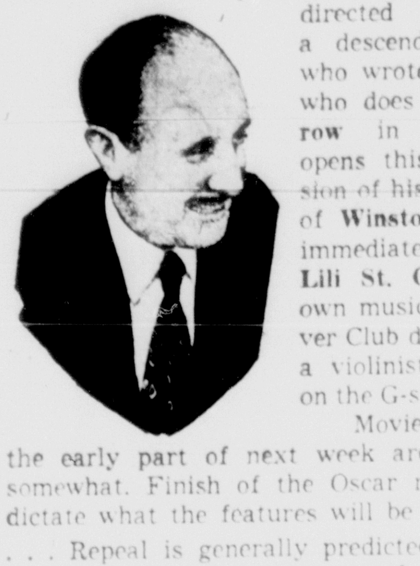
R. L. Stevenson Descendant to Direct Film of His 'Kidnapped'



WALT DISNEY'S filmization of "Kidnapped," which will be made in part at Tobago in Trinidad, will be directed by Robert Stevenson, a descendant of Robert Louis, who wrote it . . . Orson Welles, who does a great Clarence Darrow in "Compulsion," which opens this week, has a compulsion of his own to star in a biopic of Winston Churchill. Project is immediately unlikely, however . . . Lili St. Cyr brought along her own musical director for the Clover Club date here. Naturally, he's a violinist who puts the accent on the G-string.

Movie program listings for the early part of next week are apt to be scrambled somewhat. Finish of the Oscar race Monday night will dictate what the features will be at many movie palaces . . . Repeal is generally predicted for Oklahoma in the votes scheduled later this month but the legalization of liquor sales won't make an immediate difference to night club businesss. Only bottle sales, not single drink sale, will be permitted at first.

Nana to Help Venezuela Celebrate

MORRIS LERNER relates that a Madison Ave. regular told him at the Famous the other night that the coffee breaks at ad agencies now handling cigaret accounts feature book-burnings, with current issue of Reader's Digest the main course . . . Tequilla, who is co-uncover feature with Pat Hobson at Club LaRue, is a cotton-picking Texan. She owns a 20-acre cotton patch down thar.

Manuel Aristegueth, Venezuelan official, is at the McAllister but will journey over to the Americana on the 19th to help celebrate the anniversary of Venezuela's liberation from Spain. Nana Ramon, who is featured in the Americana's Carioca Room, is a native of Venezuela and a friend of the Aristegueth family . . . The Tangier casino syndicate is trying to get approval for erecting a TV studio as part of its casino. That isn't so unusual—there is a casino in the Voice of Dominican Republic TV studio building in Ciudad Trujillo.

Mathis and Monica Win Raves

WHAT DO YOU DO when you are both a nightlife reporter and a part-time (very small part!) actor in Sigma Delta Chi's annual Ribs and Roast lampoon which Sid Casell is whipping (sic) into shape at Miami Springs Villa's for an April 8 showing and there are simultaneous demands for your services as a reporter and an actor? Don't be silly. Hand over that greasepaint!

But you, as a saloon reporter, have a problem because there is a show opening at the Fontainebleau Hotel La Ronde Room. That constitutes the writing demand. You just decide to pass up the opening and catch the post-midnight second show. "But dear," dears your dear wifely RIB, "you need your sleep to stay fit for your rehearsals (the last with just a soupcon of sarcasm), I've done it before — let me cover for you."

"Are you mad!" is our pride-stung retort to her presumption. But we accept the offer.

There was, of course, a distinct Mathis in her madness, for singing sensation Johnny Mathis is the current star at the Fontainebleau — and Mathis, the current madness of the record collecting set, is a treat even to a reviewer.

Mathis, Monica a Bit Marvelous

"Johnny Mathis," reports our Papermate helpmate in her review, "is the answer to those who find themselves too old for Elvis and too young for Sinatra. When he last played here you wrote that there was too much of Nat King Cole in his style. Not so now—he's all Mathis and all the Mathis is terrific.

"Oh, that could be because he has varied his selection of tunes to include more of those identified with singers other than Cole. He opens, for instance, with 'My Funny Valentine,' associated with You-Know-Who, who is the champ of the La Ronde Room. This is not exactly a conventional "opening song" either but Mathis scores with it, and from this moment on—which is another number he does—he's in, like Sinatra, with La Ronde's patrons.

"We made a funny for you at the start of this review about Mathis's between-Presley-and-Sinatra appeal. Just a joke. He did seem to bring out a lot more late teen-agers than the usual cafe act, but don't let this mislead your readers into thinking he's for the adolescents only. I—and the rest of the married girls in my section — were properly impressed. And daddy, even you'd like him — especially in his exciting rendition of 'Lover.' Of course he sings 'When I Fall in Love.' It wouldn't be Mathis without that!

"I don't have to tell YOU about Corbett Monica, who is the 'comedy star of the show' as emcee Murray Schlam puts it. You woke me up one night just to tell me how good he was a couple of years ago. So you were right then and even righter now. He's a smooth worker with stories about his house and his wife and his problem of a name that often gets him mash notes from patrons who think he's the girl on the bill.

"Dagmar, who was looking over my shoulder as I made notes for this review, says you'll understand if I tell you that a comedian with the name of "Corbett" fractured his audience. Was there really a fighter by that name in your day, daddy?

"Opening the bill in the usual dance spot is the unusual dancing of Norton and Patricia. We see a lot of teams—this one is one of the very best in the mood in which they perform. Well, that's it. It was easy."

His Chipmunks on Tape Bring Composer Riches

LOS ANGELES —(AP)— David Seville is a fellow who has done pretty well in the chipmunk and witch doctor business. In the past year Seville — real name Ross Bagdasarian — figures he has sold $6,700,000 in novelty records.

The chipmunks who helped him are named Alvin, Theodore and Simon. They are, of course, the Singing Chipmunks on th records "Chipmunk Song" and "Alvin's Harmonica."

The witch doctor? That was the title of the song which launched Seville's big-time career. Earlier Seville helped his cousin, novelist William Saroyan, write "Come On-a My House." It netted Seville only $17,000.

All his money from the past year didn't come from song royalties or record sales. Seville also cashed in on commercial tie-ins with the Chipmunks, whose pictures appear on wallpaper, T-shirts, and cookies.

He also saved some money by not having to hire singers to take their roles. Seville himself is the chipmunks. A tape recorder enables him to achieve the strange sound attributed to Alvin and his pals.

Three Ballistic Missiles Fired

It's 'Fireworks' Day at Cape

By Herald Wire Services

CAPE CANAVERAL — A powerful Jupiter missile roared skyward Friday, winding up a triple ballistic fireworks display in seven hours.

The 15th blastoff of the reliable Jupiter came on the heels of the highly successful launching of two cape newcomers.

The highly touted Titan and a test model of "Bold Orion," an upcoming air-to-ground missile capable of 1,000-mile range, were fired on spectacular launchings.

The 60-foot Jupiter—triple duty weapon, moon rocket and carrier for huge space probes of the future—climbed aloft with a roar at 7:30 p.m.

The workhorse Jupiter was aimed at an impact area near Antigua Island about 1,500 miles from the launching site.

The highly-touted Titan ICBM arched over a 300-mile span of ocean in the third successful flight test of this super-weapon.

The silver-and-white Titan's short but significant hop down the Atlantic tracking range made veteran rocketeers marvel. The Titan's older brother, the Atlas, did not make a successful flight until its third try, six months after the first Atlas shot.

The Martin Co., which makes the intercontinental ballistic missile at Denver, called the shot a "perfect success."

The Bold Orion—a slim, little solid fuel test rocket — was launched from a high-flying B47 jet bomber in a test series designed to develop an air-launched ballistic missile. The 20-foot missile will have a range of about 1,000 miles.

Probe Ends In Firing Of 14 at UF

GAINESVILLE — Fourteen persons at the University of Florida, including some faculty members, have been dismissed because of homosexual activities exposed by a legislative investigating committee.

Dr. J. Wayne Reitz, university president, announced the action Friday.

"Action has also been taken with respect to the few students involved," Dr. Reitz said.

Names and addresses of those dismissed were withheld.

Dr. Reitz said the 14 dismissals included both academic and non-academic employes.

He said a thorough analysis had been made of the testimony supplied by the legislative committee.

State Sen. Charley Johns of Starke who headed the investigating group said he was "well pleased with the action that has been taken and I have every confidence that Dr. Reitz is going to do everything in his power to keep the situation at a minimum."

He said Dr. Reitz was correct in saying that in all universities a certain amount of homosexuality exists.

At Quincy, chairman James E. Love of the Board of Control said "we concur fully with the manner in which this case has been handled."

All action has been taken by the board that it felt necessary, the chairman said "frankly, the procedures which have been set up to cope with the situation are much better than I thought possible," he added.

Dr. Reitz said "I again want to emphasize that there is no reason to believe that the extent of homosexual conduct at the University of Florida is unique and that other public institutions have any lesser problem.

"This conclusion is expressed in the legislative investigation committee confidential report," he added.

"Certainly this statement neither condones such activity nor alters our firm position in taking action whenever we develop adequate evidence."

The contents of the committee's report were never disclosed.

TWENTY-FIVE WORDS netted Mrs. James S. Sirmans $10,000 Friday. A Marianna school teacher, she wrote her sentiments in a nationwide contest. She said that if the home is the center of every family's life there will be peace in the world. She won the $10,000 prize which was presented to her Friday in Tallahassee by Gov. LeRoy Collins. The contest was sponsored by the Home Improvement Council.

Attorney General Says

Public Entitled To Crime Details

TALLAHASSEE — (AP) — Atty. Gen. Richard W. Ervin said Friday he sees no basis for any added restrictions on releasing of information on crimes as a result of the recent Florida Supreme Court decision in the Phillip Singer case.

Ervin declined to comment directly about action of Palm Beach County Sheriff John F. Kirk in forbidding his deputies to give to newsmen any information on crimes except that available from arrest slips and complaint warrants, which usually is very sketchy.

He said that about a year ago he issued an opinion in which he ruled that law enforcement officers should not release information contained in investigative reports used in developing their cases.

He said that he saw no need for such officers to go beyond this to unduly restrict newsmen from their legitimate news gathering operations.

Ervin said it was his opinion the Florida Supreme Court went too far in its opinion in the Singer case, but that it was his impression the opinion was directed more at trying to discourage sensationalizing on crime stories rather than to restrict news gathering.

"I feel it would be harmful if newspapers are forbidden from carrying out their legitimate functions of coverage of the news," he said.

"Newspaper stories many times have served a very useful purpose to track down criminals. And enterprise by newspapers has resulted in breaking up of rackets and in improving law enforcement generally."

Kirk said he was restricting release of information to newsmen because of a Florida Supreme Court ruling in which a new trial was ordered for Singer, who had been charged with the murder of Mrs. Osee Fagan, wife of the Alachua County prosecuting attorney.

Ervin said it was his opinion each case involving claims of inflamed public opinion could be handled by the presiding judge on the basis of each particular set of facts.

Suit Filed To Foreclose On Hotel

Two New York City mortgage holders have filed a foreclosure suit against the operators of the Biscayne Terrace Hotel.

In Dade Circuit Court Thursday, Morris and Gerald Becker, who hold a $508,000 mortgage, filed suit asking the court to appoint a receiver for the six-year-old, 200-room hotel at 340 Biscayne Blvd.

They said they had to pay an insurance company $56,800 last month to protect their mortgage, and that they also paid $77,032 in taxes to keep the county and city from attaching the property.

The hotel is operated by the Fields Hotels Corp. Sydney Fields, spokesman for the firm, was unavailable for comment Friday.

Warren Freeman, general manager, said he was not familiar with the suit, but so far as he knew business was good.

2 Verdicts In One Case

After a Circuit Court jury returned a $40,000 damage verdict against Thunderbird Motel, Miami Beach, Judge Irving Cypen directed the jury to come again — this time with a verdict finding the motel not liable for damages.

Judge Cypen's order did not specifically set aside the $40,000 award, so it, too, was recorded by the clerk.

The unusual double action came in a suit by Mrs. Modieste Sinopoli who slipped in a motel shower bath, and her husband, Roy H. Sinopoli, of Savannah, Ga. Mrs. Sinopoli was injured three years ago when a suction rubber mat on the floor of the shower bath tub slipped under her feet.

The suit was against Aaron H. Courshon, Albert Pollak and Paul Pollak, operating the motel at 18401 Collins Ave.

GIs Offered Policy Deal

A savings of up to two-thirds in their GI insurance costs can be made by veterans whose policy numbers are preceded by the letters "RS," the Veterans Administration said.

These approximately 500,000 policy holders may exchange their present five-year term policies for new term policies that carry the same face value at a greatly reduced premium cost.

Veterans not wishing to incur the expense at this time of the permanent type plans can save money while waiting by exchanging their original policies for the new low-type.

Full information can be secured by contacting the Miami VA office or by writing the VA office to which premiums have been paid.

Airliner Comes Down on Cushion of Foam

Belly Landing 'Like a Feather'

DETROIT — (AP) — A crippled turbo-prop airliner "came down like a feather" with eight passengers and three crewmen Friday in a safe wheels-up landing at Willow Run airport. No one was hurt.

The four-engine Capital Airlines Viscount skidded in on a cushion of foam spread 2,000 feet along a runway to lower friction and reduce the hazard of fire. It couldn't get one landing wheel down, so it landed without any.

Passengers and crew had more than two hours of anxious waiting in the air before Capt. Earl D. Nygren brought down the 21-ton airliner. Nygren said: "It was just a routine belly-landing. It came down like a feather."

The plane skidded to a stop 1,400 feet down the runway as fire trucks and ambulances stood by, just in case. The plane suffered surprisingly little damage, said Nygren, who had circled for two hours to consume fuel while other crew men struggled to get the balky wheel down. By using up fuel, Nygren hoped to lessen the danger of fire in a crash landing.

Co-Pilot Joseph A. Herbrich, 29, of Plymouth, Mich., cut the engines off the minute the plane touched the ground. Nygren, 41, is from nearby Belleville, Mich. Joan Mitcha, 27, of Ypsilanti, Mich., was the stewardess.

The stuck wheel was noticed as the nonstop New York-Detroit flight was coming in for a landing. It was Capital Flight 63 out of LaGuardia Field.

Hogan on Hogan's 1st Round: 4 Mistakes, 4 Extra Strokes

AUGUSTA, Ga. — The appeal that Ben Hogan maintains with the golfing fans is amazing. Out at the practice area there Friday morning, a spectator called out, "Here Comes Hogan."

The fans shifted to the area where Hogan started warming up with lazy-looking wedge shots. Before turning in succession to a nine-iron, seven and longer range clubs. All of his shots looked good, but you could tell when Ben was displeased. He grimaced.

HOGAN

Hogan started the second round of the Masters with a 73 opposite his name. He was dissatisfied with it, mainly because he figured four mistakes were made in his opening round.

"I've had higher scores," Ben said. "I don't care what everyone else is shooting. The golf I played Thursday wasn't my standard. I wasted four shots. I hit four strokes that I shouldn't have had to hit."

Hogan said he wasn't worried by the windy gales. He thinks a golfer should be able to compensate for the elements.

"All I expect to do is hit good shots," he continued. "If I do that, the scoring will take care of itself."

Hogan has mellowed since his big comeback after the auto-bus collision which almost cost him his life. He is more friendly with the press, but he still sets a high standard for himself on the course. He is not satisfied with anything short of perfection.

Leonard? He Could Hang in to Win

THEY FINALLY came up with Florida weather for the Masters — clear blue skies, warm temperatures and moderate winds which may be expected to gain velocity during the afternoon.

Watching the boys tee off, Willie MacFarlane of Miami came up with the prediction that "The scoring will be much lower today. Someone will have a 67. If I'm wrong, it'll be because the score is lower."

MacFARLANE

MacFarlane refused to venture a guess about the winner. "There are a lot of guys who could win it," he said. "Stan Leonard is one."

This comment came because some were figuring the Canadian's 69 in the opening round was a flash in the pan.

MacFarlane was reminded that Sammy was angry Thursday over the gusty winds, which he blamed for his 74.

"I mean he's got to get mad at the way he's playing," MacFarlane explained. "The long hitters have the advantage on this course. Why, I could take care of myself if they'd let George Bayer drive for me. I'd get on the greens from where George hit the ball."

10th, 11th and 12th Holes the Payoff

WHEN the tournament ends the players in the money will be those who scored well on the 10th, 11th and 12th holes, MacFarlane allowed.

"They are the payoff holes," said Willie. "You can get into the woods on the 10th. You have to be accurate with your approach to the downhill 11th green, backed up by water, and you can't take any chances on the 12th, fronted by a brook.

"The winner and the other leaders will be those who get pars, or birdies, on these holes."

No Kinks in Masters' Setup

THE MASTER'S is not only the best-run golf tournament in the world. It is the best-operated sports event. Down through the years, its handling has been perfected by the trial and error method.

They have scoreboards, refreshment and comfort stations all over the place. Well-trained gallery marshalls handle the crowds.

The opening day turnout was estimated at 15,000. They expect 25,000 today and again Sunday. The admission charge is $3 for each of the first two rounds, five bucks today and $7.50 for the finals. No one complains and other sports promoters might take note of the fact there is no charge for parking. Little things like that irritate fans.

Years ago, when Miami was in the golf tournament business, I tried to persuade some of the officials to come here and observe how this tournament was run. Perhaps if they had, Miami would have developed a classy tournament. As it stands, we've given up tournament sponsorship and have not done anything about increasing facilities for golfers. One of these days we may wake up to discover these are among the reasons why tourists have shunned Florida for Arizona and other vacation spots.

Florida Wheels Lose in Meet

GARDEN GOVE, Calif.—(UPI) — The defending champion Flying Wheels of Long Beach, Calif., beat the Florida Wheels of Tampa, 49-34, Thursday night in the opening round of the National Wheelchair Basketball Tourney.

The Flying Wheels squad was sparked by John Cheeves who racked up 17 points for his team which led by a slim margin of 21-20 at halftime. Earl Ingram was high man for Tampa with 16 points.

Hartack Seeks Third Straight

Easy Spur First Choice In Today's Florida Derby

By RUSS HARRIS
Herald Turf Writer

Racing fans from coast to coast will cast their eyes on Gulfstream Park today for the eighth running of Jimmy Donn's $116,400 added Florida Derby.

A field of nine, including three of the top candidates for Triple Crown honors this season, will clash in the mile-and-one-eighth classic with the winner earning a net prize of $75,300.

Second money is $20,000; third is $10,000; fourth is $7,000, and the fifth horse will get $3,000.

The field, in post position order, includes Easy Spur (Jockey Bill Hartack); Rico Tesio (Walter Blum); McLellan (Logan Batcheller); Rare Rice (Jack Leonard); Revolutionist (Bill Harmatz); The Chosen One (Jimmy Combest); Troilus (Chris Rogers); Master Palynch (Bobby Stevenson); and Sword Dancer (Sam Boulmetis).

A crowd of 25,000 is expected with three bands and a water ski show providing additional entertainment. The spectacle will be televised nationally over CBS (Channel 4) beginning at 4:30 p.m.

Hartack will be seeking his third straight Florida Derby score aboard Spring Hill Farm's Easy Spur. He won last year with Tim Tam and in 1957 with Gen. Duke.

Easy Spur, a gelded son of Crowfoot, earned favoritism in today's contest by an easy victory in the Hutcheson Stakes and a smashing eight-length triumph over Troilus and five other Derby rivals in the Fountain of Youth Stakes.

The Spring Hill runner won twice at Gulfstream as a two-year-old and is now undefeated in four starts at the Hallandale oval.

Bayard Sharp's Troilus and Brookmeade Stable's Sword Dancer are the other members of the Florida Derby's "Big Three."

While Troilus met defeat in the Fountain of Youth, most observers are dismissing that race from their calculations.

Troilus had been given a three-week rest following his success over First Landing in the Flamingo and was obviously a "short" horse. In addition, he did not have the services of his regular rider, Rogers. The latter has been sitting out a 10-day suspension which ended Friday.

With Rogers back in the saddle and Troilus now a fit horse following a brilliant workout last Monday, the Sharp colt figures to be a strong second choice in the wagering.

Sword Dancer could be the under-rated member of the Big Three. In his first start this season, Sword Dancer finished fifth after meeting with interference in the Hutcheson. He came back to rack up an impressive victory at a mile and 70 yards.

Boulmetis will be shooting for his third consecutive "hundred grander" on Sword Dancer. The veteran jockey rode Vertex to victory in the Gulfstream Park Handicap and Bowie's Campbell Memorial the last two Saturdays.

It is interesting to note that in Frank E. Kilroe's 1959 Experimental Free Handicap ratings, Sword Dancer was given 122 pounds with the others in the Florida Derby lineup pegged well below him. Rico Tesio was rated at 116, Easy Spur 113, Troilus 112, Master Palynch 110, Rare Rice 108 and McLellan 105. Revolutionist and The Chosen One were not even listed.

However, Kilroe's ratings were based on 1958 performances and much has happened since then.

As stakes winners, Easy Spur, Troilus, Sword Dancer, Rare Rice and Master Palynch pack 122 pounds today. Rico Tesio, McLellan and Revolutionist carry 118 and The Chosen One gets in with 141 because he has yet to win a race.

Defending Champ Palmer Forges Ahead in Masters

By HUGH FULLERTON JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

AUGUSTA, Ga. — Arnold Palmer, a golfer with little regard for tradition, made his bid to become the first player ever to win two masters tournaments in succession.

Palmer took over the lead at the halfway point with rounds of 71-70—141 on the wind-toughened, 6,980-yard Augusta National Course. Then he calmly said he wasn't concerned about the tradition that a Masters winner never repeats.

"I'm just concerned about winning the tournament," he said.

Palmer flouted one Masters tradition when he won last year with a solid 284. He was the youngest winner in more than 20 years.

Friday more than a half dozen others had cracked par before Palmer, strong-armed son of veteran Latrobe, Pa., professional, finally established himself as the leader.

The result was probably the tightest cluster of players near the top of the scoring list ever seen in the 25-year-old Masters.

Alone in second place at 143 was Canada's Stan Leonard, the first day leader with 69. In spite of better playing conditions, the 45-year-old Leonard couldn't hold his early pace and finished with a 74.

Within two strokes of him were more than a dozen players, including two foreign visitors and two former U.S. Open champions.

Almost any of them was in position to bid for the title in the remaining two rounds and even such old gallery favorites as Ben Hogan and Sam Snead, U.S. Open Champion Tommy Bolt and PGA Champion Dow Finsterwald weren't clear out of it. They were in another big, chummy group at 147.

Only the 40 low scorers and those tied for 40th place will continue in the last two rounds of the tournament today and Sunday.

Friday's playing condisions were made for low scoring and the players were quick to show it.

Finsterwald started with a 68 during the calm early part of the day. Even though the gusty, uncertain wind increased later, the par breaking continued.

Arnold Palmer
. . . can he repeat

Veteran Ed (Porky) Oliver; Julius Boros, former Open Champ, and slender, long-hitting Paul Harney fired three-under-par 69s for 144 totals. They were joined there by Dave Thomas, the big Welshman; Angel Miguel, the tiny Spaniard, and U.S. pros Mike Soucak and Billy Maxwell. Thomas, Souchak and Maxwell all shot 71s.

Miguel had his second 72. Billy Joe Patton, the clouting Morganton, N.C., amateur, and Pro Bo Wininger had 70s for 145 totals.

The close competition was enough to give Palmer some concern about winning and he admitted he didn't have the same kind of confidence he had when he came here last year after a string of tournament successes.

"I haven't been scrambling so well this year, but I made some good chips today," he said.

Palmer started out by getting birdies on the first two holes, but he slipped back even with par at the sixth and stayed there through the 12th in spite of missing a couple of greens.

Or Give Up Crown

Robinson Ordered To Fight Basilio

NEW YORK —(AP)— Middleweight Champion Sugar Ray Robinson Friday was ordered to sign for a title fight with Carmen Basilio by noon April 15, or lose his crown.

The latest ultimatum to the 38-year old champion was issued by the New York athletic commission. At the same time the commission rejected Germany's Gustav (Bubi) Scholz, the European champion, as a suitable contender for Robinson at this time.

Scholz and Robinson's attorney, Martin Machat, had advised the commission by letter that negotiations had been completed for a Robinson-Scholz title fight in the U.S. or Germany before September, 1959.

Gen Melvin Krulewitch, commission chairman, pointed out that commission rules require champions to defend their titles every six months. Robinson hasn't defended since he regained the jewels from Basilio in Chicago, March 25, 1958.

New York's warning to Sugar Ray followed the action of the National Boxing Association. On March 30, the NBA indicated it would strip Robinson of his title unless he signed for a defense April 25. The NBA, however, did not name an opponent for Robinson. New York is not a member of the NBA.

Neither Robinson nor any member of his entourage attended the session. Neither could they be reached for comment.

Only last January, when the NBA said it would take drastic action against Robinson, Gainford threatened a suit against each member of the NBA's executive committee. When the committee met, Robinson mollified the members by saying he planned a title defense in either May or June.

Krulewitch said that Basilio, the former champion, was the outstanding challenger and that he had filed a formal challenge backed up with the necessary $2,000 check. He said that Gene Fullmer, another ex-champion, had written the commission asking for a title fight but had not filed a formal challenge.

Scholtz, 29, is ranked fourth contender, by both the NBA and Ring Magazine. He has 54-1-4 win-loss-draw record. The German's only loss was to France's Charles Humez on March 11, 1958. Scholz stopped Humez in the 12th round of a return bout last October to win the European title.

Cardinals Seek Maglie as Coach

ST. PETERSBURG — (AP) — Sal Maglie, who helped pitch the New York Giants, Brooklyn Dodgers and New York Yankees to four pennants, is considering an offer to serve as a pitching coach in the St. Louis Cardinals Farm system.

Maglie revealed Friday the offer was made Thursday by Cardinal General Manager Bing Devine after announcement that the Redbirds were giving the 42-year-old right-hander his unconditional release.

MAGLIE

"I deeply appreciate their offer," Maglie said in the Cardinal clubhouse at Al Lang Field. "But I don't know whether I will accept it. I promised Bing I'd think it over and let him know in two-three days."

A great pitcher with the Giants and Dodgers, Maglie apparently has reached the end of the line. But he thinks he still can win in the majors. The Buffalo native, familiarly known as the Barber, owns one of the best lifetime won-lost records in the majors with 119 victories and 62 defeats.

"I think I would enjoy the job as pitching coach in the Cardinal organization," Sal said. "I like to work with young pitchers and I'd like to remain in baseball. But I still think I can pitch in the major leagues."

Sanford Goes Nine, Giants Win

PHOENIX, Ariz. — (AP) — Jack Sanford Friday became the first San Francisco Giants pitcher to go the full nine innings this spring as he survived a rough start to beat Cleveland, 6-4.

Sanford, traded to the Giants by Philadelphia in a winter deal, gave up a two-run homer to Rocky Colavito in the first inning and four hits and two runs in the second.

Then he settled down and blanked the Tribe the rest of the way.

Sanford got help from the home run hitting of Eddie Bressoud, Orlando Cepeda and Leon Wagner. Bressoud slammed a two-run homer in the first inning; Cepeda, a three-run smash in the third; and Wagner, a solo homer, also in the third.

Griffith Asks Frick to Void Deal on Loes

ORLANDO — (AP) — President Cal Griffith of the Washington Senators Friday said he will ask Baseball Commissioner Ford Frick to void a deal in which the Baltimore Orioles sent sore-armed Billy Loes to the Nats.

Griffith said the Senators' team physician had found Loes, an out-spoken right-hander, to have an incomplete rupture of the right arm near the shoulder. The physician recommended surgery, but said there is only a 50-50 chance of recovery from the ailment.

Griffith added that Lee MacPhail, Orioles' general manager, had told him Loes' arm was sound before the Tuesday swap which gave Baltimore Right-hander Vito Valentinetti.

Loes was sent to Washington for the examination Thursday, after reporting to the Senators and complaining of a sore arm.

Loes, 29, had a 3-9 record with the Orioles last year, his eighth season in the Majors. He broke in with the Brooklyn Dodgers in 1950 and had his top year in '53 with the Brooks with a 14-8 record.

In New York, Frick offered no comment pending an official request from Griffith.

Decision Monday

Miranda Comes In --But Is He Out?

The status of Baltimore Shortstop Willie Miranda is still very much up in the air and will probably remain that way until at least next Monday.

Miranda arrived here Thursday night — 36 days late in reporting to the O's spring training camp. "Just passing through," the little Cuban said cheerfully. "Maybe I room with Loes (Pitcher Billy Loes, who was traded to Washington Wednesday)."

MIRANDA

If Miranda it'll be as an it'll be as an Oriole. Friday Cal Griffith, Washington owner, said he was going to ask Commissioner Ford Frick to void the deal for Loes because Billy has a sore arm.

And Griffith added that his attempts to obtain a shortstop do not include negotiations for Miranda.

Miranda gave no excuses for his tardiness when greeted in a hotel lobby by a group of Oriole players. "Maybe I tell you later after I talk to Paul Richards," he said.

Richards said he talked to Miranda at length, but reported his status would not be determined until the club returns to Baltimore Monday.

Wins Scholarship for Play

Dave Bludworth Sparkles In Gator Spring Grid Fray

GAINESVILLE —(AP)— Dave Bludworth, a 155-pound halfback who enrolled at the University of Florida without a football scholarship, was the star runner of the annual Orange and Blue intrasquad game ending spring practice Friday.

Coach Bob Woodruff said Bludworth, of De Funiak Springs, and Jim Eadons, another halfback from Sarasota, will go on scholarship for the way they played in spring drills.

Bludworth set up the first touchdown for the Orange team — winner of the game 13-6—with a 68-yard run in the second quarter. He was the top runner with 78 yards on four carries.

The Orange team had the best running, best passing and best kicking. Jack Jones, a junior college transfer from Commerce, Okla., turned in the best quarterbacking. He completed 5 of 11 passes, one of them to Gene Page of Tallahassee producing the second Orange touchdown.

Wayne Nalls of Ocala got off a punt that travelled 93 yards, though 20 of them didn't count when the ball trickled into the end zone.

One of Jones' passes that went astray resulted in the only Blue touchdown. Henry Farmer intercepted and ran 51 yards for the score.

The wider goal posts didn't improve the extra point kicking. Bludworth booted one for the Orange. Page tried the other, which was blocked. Paul White's attempted conversion after the Blue score missed.

Because heavy rains interferred with the practice schedule, play was ragged. Coach Woodruff said the layoffs had spoiled the timing but the players hustled and scrapped well.

Most of the senior lettermen were excused from spring practice, so a Tulane scout who appeared didn't get much of a line on what the Gators will do when they open the 1959 season in New Orleans Sept. 19.

'Ailing' Rose Holds AAU Freestyle Title

Reprinted from late Friday editions

NEW HAVEN, Conn. —(AP)— Ailing Murray Rose retained his 1,500-meter freesytle National AAU swimming title Thursday night in the meet. record time of 18:18.4. He was running a 100-degree temperature when he plunged into the pool.

The fabulous Australian star won the metric mile by more than three yards, finishing in front of Alan Somers of Michigan State. George Breen of the Indianapolis A.C. was third.

Breen had held the meet record of 18:20.2 since April 5, 1956, which he registered in this same 50-meter Yale practice pool.

"I feel much better now" he said after the finish. It left a question, however, as to whether he'll be in shape to defend his 220-yard sprint title today.

Murray Rose
. . . in his element

Rose also holds the 440-yard freestyle crown, which is scheduled for Saturday, the final day of the three day meet.

Rose started to run a temperature this afternoon, but kept it a secret until he arrived at Yale's Payne Whitney gym with his parents. He decided to get into his swim suit about 15 minutes before the race was scheduled to start.

As he took his place on the starting platform, there was a commotion which ended only after he assured his mother, and others that he wanted to swim — and to win. He did.

A mild surprise was the failure of Bill Steuart, Michigan State ace from South Africa, who a week ago won the NCAA metric mile in 18:26.2. His time tonight was 19:24.7.

"I just didn't have it," he said.

'Everybody' Goes to the Masters, A Shrine and Mecca for Golfers

AUGUSTA, Ga.—Bobby Jones was a golf legend while he was playing 30 years ago and his name still is magic down here as perpetuated in the Masters Tournament.

Bobby rides in a cart now, instead of walking, and talks a lot of long ago, like a day he played Scotland's famed St. Andrews course.

Off to one side of the historic layout Jones thought he saw a small tombstone and inquired as to what and why.

"Sir Harry Lauder hit a ball over there once," was the explanation, "and his caddy died looking for it."

It is rather impossible to permanently lose a ball on the Augusta National links, although often possible to lose control of it.

The veteran Chick Evans, playing in only his third Masters and first since 1953, came sorrowfully off the first nine with a 46.

"Oh, those great big greens," he sighed.

"They make you dizzy just looking up and down them. Yes, the years are lengthening and so are the courses."

As of today, this Masters labyrinth is exactly what Jones and chairman Cliff Roberts envisioned 25 years ago. "Everybody comes here," said Dick Metz. "It's a shrine, a mecca for golfers."

Gene Sarazen phrased it: "I'd rather come here than go to the Open. You see more people."

* * *

Big Bugaboo

THERE WAS some rain and wind and muggy heat for the opening round and atop a parking station en route to the club was a prophetic sign: "Golf is a game in which the ball always lies poorly and the player well."

But as Billy Joe Patton said: "You can stand anything for a day or two — heat, rain — but then it becomes a strain."

Wind is the big bugaboo for all golfers. "It creates a terrific mental hazard," said Patton. "You have a game to play and the wind won't let you.

"Then you try to fight it and the shots go haywire and even when it dies down or quits entirely, the pattern can be lost."

Dick Mayer, the former Open champ, ad-libbed: "Bob Rosburg can tell you about the wind," and they both had a laugh.

It was a couple of years ago that Rosburg in the early title running, came to the fourth hole, a 230-yard affair ticketed as a par-three. The wind was blowing a gale into the tee and nobody was reaching the green in one.

Rosburg lashed into his drive just as the wind cut out entirely on him, and the ball cleared a fence behind the green. Bob had to shoot again and take a two-stroke penalty for out of bounds.

* * *

What a Round

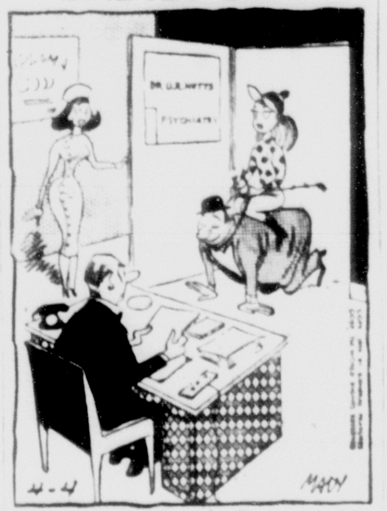
YES, THIS is the Masters, the time and place where, four years ago, Patton put together one round of a hole-in-one, an eagle, six birdies, a double-bogey, a bogey and eight pars and finished just one stroke shy of winning the title.

"I rather suspect that was one of the greatest rounds I ever got out of my system," he gagged off the final green.

This can be a tricky tournament as to scores. Par is 288 for 72 holes.

Four times it has been done with 279 or under (Ben Hogan's 274 in '53 is the record) and four times the winner has posted 280. Twice 289, one over par, was sufficient to win.

"There's penalty shots on every hole," said Jim Demaret. "You've got to avoid them to do anything."



"It's my husband, Doctor! He keeps thinking he's a racehorse!"

Shortstop Worries Marlins

Reprinted from late Friday editions

By EDDIE STORIN
Herald Sports Writer

Although the 28-year-old shortstop was in the lineup Thursday as the Marlins took another drubbing (17-6) at the hands of Indianapolis, he was still favoring his arm more than somewhat.

Manager Pepper Martin, who is beginning to wonder how long "an ordinary sore arm" takes to get well, has been playing Castleman at second base to avoid the long throw from shortstop. But even at that position, he was unable to make a routine throw Thursday.

There were runners on first and second with one out in the sixth inning when Joe Martin of the Indians grounded to Castleman. Foster fielded the ball in time to make a force play at second, but after starting to throw there decided to take the shorter route and flipped to first base.

"No," said Castleman frankly, "I can't say that the arm is showing much improvement. It still hurts like the devil to throw.

"I can't understand it. I've never had any arm or shoulder trouble in my life. Maybe I can shake it in the warmer weather in Puerto Rico," he added hopefully.

"My timing is off," surmised Castleman. "That layoff didn't do me any good. But it should come around okay."

Willie Jones Hustles Phillies Past Orioles

Baltimore and Philadelphia, a couple of first division aspirants with what has been assayed as second division muscle, whanged away at one another for three hours and thirty hits at Miami Stadium Thursday night. The Phillies won, 8-6.

A practically unnoticeable assemblage of 876 sat in on the war fought with clubs.

FSU Promotes Perry Moss And Don Veller

Reprinted from late Friday editions

TALLAHASSEE —(AP)— Florida State University has handed its new head football coach, Perry Moss, the added duties of athletic director.

Dr. Don Veller, assistant athletic director since May, 1958, was promoted to associate director of athletics.

President Robert M. Strozier announced Thursday night that the appointments are effective immediately. Moss, former University of Miami aide, will hold down the dual jobs of head football coach and athletic director at his present salary of $14,000. Veller's salary will remain at $9,250.

As director of athletics, Moss succeeds Tom Nugent, who held both jobs until he resigned to accept a head coaching position at University of Maryland last January.

"We have taken quite a bit of time in thinking through the responsibilities of an athletic director at Florida State University," Dr. Strozier said.

"Coach Moss' first interest is football. But he also has a broad interest in the entire program of intercollegiate athletics at the university.

"Dr. Veller has wide experience in athletics and the confidence of the staff. We believe the two of them will make an excellent team, assuring the university a well-balanced program in intercollegiate competition."

Moss, 32, came to Florida State from University of Wisconsin, where he had served two years as backfield coach."

"Our ultimate aim is admission into an athletic conference, preferably the Southeastern Conference," Moss said.

Lakers, Celtics Vie In Pro Cage Finals

BOSTON —(AP)— Giant-killer Minneapolis Friday mapped slowdown tactics to atone for 18 straight losses to the Boston Celtics and regain its onetime rating as the royalty of pro basketball.

The setting will be the finals of the National Basketball Association playoffs which open today at Boston Garden in a nationally televised contest (NBC-TV, Channel 7, 3 p.m. EST).

The Lakers, who finished 17 games back of defending world champion St. Louis in the Western Division only to stun the Hawks in the regional playoffs, aren't going to play dead for the Celts.

On paper, it looks like a colossal mismatch.

Boston has crushed the Lakers in a cross-country victory string that extends back to their final meeting of the 1956-57 campaign. The Celts have won on their own court, at the Minneapolis Auditorium and on neutral floors with equal ease.

In addition, it was Minneapolis that Boston victimized in the record-shattering 173-139 triumph late in February. That mathematical marathon was one of 52 triumphs by the Celts which gave them a single season league mark.

But playoffs are a different matter as St. Louis discovered. Led by the scoring magic of rookie-of-the-year Elgin Baylor, the Lakers wiped out the Hawks in six games. Meanwhile, Boston had to go the full seven contests to eliminate Syracuse in a frantic finish.

"The trick is to knock about 10 or 12 points off the 119-point average the Celtics have been scoring at our expense," explained Minneapolis Coach Johnny Kundla. "I think that would beat them.

"We might be able to do a few things to slow down the Celtics," Kundla continued. "What we really have to avoid, though, is being stampeded when they get three or four fast baskets."

"I think the hard series with the Nats will prove beneficial to the boys in the championship series," Boston Coach Red Auerbach countered in discussing the competition which the Celts squeezed out 130-125 Wednesday night.

"They had to work too hard to beat Syracuse and they've found out they can't overrate themselves," Auerbach continued. "Now they'll want to beat the Lakers and win the championship because they've come this far the hard way."

One thing is sure: the Lakers have a proud tradition behind them.

Minneapolis won the world crown in 1949, 1950, 1952, 1953 and 1954 with the likes of George Mikan, Jim Pollard, Vern Mikkelsen, Slater Martin and Bob Harrison. Mikkelesn is the only survivor of that glory group.

The Celtics took the title in 1957.

The series continues in Boston Sunday afternoon before moving west for Tuesday and Thursday dates.

Leafs Stun Bruins, Take Hockey Lead

Reprinted from late Friday editions

BOSTON — (AP) — The Toronto Maple Leafs, aroused to fever pitch, took command of its Stanley Cup hockey playoff series with Boston, 4-1, Thursday night on Johnny Bower's fine goaltending.

Bert Olmstead, Dick Duff, Frank Mahovlich and Bob Pulford registered the goals which gave the Leafs a 3-2 edge, just one victory shy of wrapping up the best-of-seven semi-final series.

Bower, a 33-year-old veteran playing his first Stanley Cup series, lost his bid for a shutout at 11:25 of the final period when Jerry Toppazzini tipped in a Jim Morrison pass from right in front of him. Bower contributed 32 saves to 22 for Boston's Harry Lumley.

Spurred by two straight overtime triumphs after falling behind 2-0 in the competition, Toronto for once found itself in charge from the start with a superior show of speed, stick-handling and aggressiveness.

Florida Camps Start Break-Up Sunday

Don't Look Now, But Baseball Openers at Hand

By ARTHUR DALEY

Copyright, The New York Times Company, 1959

NEW YORK—This has been a strangely subdued and unspectacular spring training period.

It's drawing to a close in the same plodding fashion and an observer finds himself blinking in surprise to discover how near it is to the end. Don't look now, but the season formally opens in less than a week.

The Baltimore Orioles visit the Washington Senators and the Pittsburgh Pirates drop into Cincinnati on Thursday with all others swinging into line Friday.

If the proximity of the openers startles you, don't feel embarrassed.. They really have sneaked up this year. There are two reasons.

One is that the major league campaigns will be getting under way earlier than at any time in history. It was jammed down American League throats by the Nationals who are geographically spread across the continent and need the extra time for travel purposes. Besides, it gives the club owners an additional weekend, a financial windfall no magnate would have the conscience to oppose.

The second reason is that the ball clubs have pretty well abandoned their extensive tours through the sticks with a new whistle-stop every day. Television has blunted the novelty appeal of such junkets to such an extent that not even a Babe Ruth, who drew overflow crowds wherever he went, could exert the same magic in the present day market.

These were explorations into greed anyway. So extensive were the tours into the deepest bush that much of the good of spring training itself was nullified by a fortnight of playing on cow-pasture diamonds, living out of suitcases and having both eating and sleeping habits disrupted on jerky train-rides over the countryside.

One year Bill Terry rigged up a Giant-Indian jaunt that brought civilization—if major league baseball represents civilization—to hamlets no gazeteer had ever heard of.

* * *

BUT HERE WE ARE, a week before the opener, and not a team has budged from its training base.

Today, however, the four Arizona clubs will shake the desert dust from their britches and head toward adventure.

The Boston Red Sox and Chicago Cubs will tour Texas. The Giants and Indians, who still prefer to do things the hard way, will brave the climate of Salt Lake, Denver, Topeka, Des Moines and Omaha.

The Florida contingent begins the break-up on Sunday when the White Sox and Senators go to Charleston, S.C. On Tuesday the Yankees and Reds perform in Savannah while the Phils whisk all the way to Baltimore that day with the Orioles.

The remaining six teams will remain in Florida until it's time to fly their separate ways home. Nothing like that ever happened before.

Back in the old days any eagle-eyed scout could almost watch his favorite ball club wend its way slowly north, getting ever closer to home with each succeeding dateline. There was one historic year when Dodger fans watched with growing apprehension as the Brooks left Florida with the Yankees. With the swaggering Babe Ruth showing the way, the Yanks beat 'em 13 straight.

* * *

There is no transition period this year, at least none of any consequence. But perhaps that's fitting because this has been essentially a run-of-the-mill spring.

Most of the rookie wonders are re-treads, fellows who caught headlines a year ago via either spectacular performances or spectacular press-agentry or both. Among them are such as Vada Pinson of the Reds, John Callison of the White Sox or Jim O'Toole of the Reds. Then, too, are lesser whiz bangs like Willie Tasby of the Orioles, Pumpsie Green of the Red Sox, George Anderson of the Phils or Ron Fairly of the Dodgers.

* * *

THE MOST EXCITEMENT of the spring was generated, of all things, by almost a week of unremitting rain. It doused all of Florida while Arizona folks sneered condescendingly. This had its ludicrous moments, too.

The rain-bound Cardinals and Reds tried to charter a plane to get to Havana. They couldn't arrange it. Then the Reds attempted to play the Dodgers there but visibility was nil and they couldn't even leave Tampa. The next day the ex-Brooks sent their own plane back for their Cincinnati sparring partners. But there was no sunshine in Havana. They landed amid pelting rain.

"Just a shower," gasped Gabe Paul, the general manager.

"It will clear," said Mayo Smith, lending moral support somewhat unconvincingly.

Jeering players drowned them out. But it was only a shower. It did clear. What's more, they played that night to 7,655 customers, an extraordinary turnout for an impromptu hastily-scheduled exhibition.

What the rains did was to force all managers to give the work to varsity stars instead of experimenting with rookies in accordance with normal procedure. So the kids got shortchanged. Maybe that's what took so much zing and zip out of the operation. But all this will be forgotten once the season begins. And it will begin sooner than you ever suspected.

Fronton OK Near Dog Track

TALLAHASSEE —(AP)— The Florida Supreme Court ruled in effect Friday that a jai alai fronton lawfully can be established next door to a racing plant.

The court said the racing law provision that a new race track cannot be located within 100 miles of an existing racing plant does not apply to frontons.

The only distance restriction applying to jai alai is that a new fronton must be at least 20 miles from an existing fronton. But the court said the 20 mile limitation applies only to frontons and does not affect the proximity of a new fronton to an existing race track.

The court, in a unanimous five-judge opinion written by Justice T. Frank Hobson, ordered the state racing commission to issue a permit to Florida Jai Alai, Inc., for a new fronton in Seminole County on the Sanford-Orlando highway. The proposed fronton would be just across the highway from the Sanford-Orlando kennel club's dog racing track.

The racing commission denied the jai alai permit last June on the ground that the proposed fronton would not be 20 miles away from the dog track.

Florida Jai Alai, Inc., appealed to the Supreme Court. Dog track interests, entering the case as friends of the court, contended that actually any new fronton should not be within 100 miles of an existing race track.

The court, however, said that the legislature had exempted jai alai from the 100-mile limit when it wrote into the racing laws the special provision that no new fronton should be located within 20 miles of an existing fronton. The 20-mile limit applies only to frontons, the court said.

The court said a new election to approve jai alai would not be required in Seminole because the county's voters twice have endorsed more than one legal betting plant in the county.

Opponents had claimed the racing commission's denial of the jai alai permit had nullified the more recent election.

57-Inch Margin

They Win Close In Florida Derby

By GENE PLOWDEN

Associated Press Writer

The winner of today's Florida Derby at Gulfstream Park will be no more than 57 inches closer to the finish line than the second horse at the end of the mile and a furlong run, according to past performances.

Close finishes always have featured this $100,000 added event—the last big race for Derby age colts in Florida.

Sky Ship won the 1952 Inaugural by a head and Money Broker won by the same margin in 1953. Correlation triumphed by a length in 1954 and Nashua scored by a neck in 1955.

Florida-bred Needles won by three quarters of a length in 1956 and the next year Gen. Duke beat Bold Ruler by a length and a half—biggest margin of them all.

Last year Tim Tam whipped Lincoln Road by half a length to take first money.

Gen. Duke holds the record for the Derby at 1:46 4-5, which equals the world record for this distance.

Houtteman Sent Back To Detroit

WEST PALM BEACH—(AP)—The Kansas City Athletics sent three pitchers back to the minors Friday and returned veteran Art Houtteman to the Detroit organization to trim their roster to the opening day limit of 28.

Howard Reed and Ken Johnson were optioned to the A's Portland farm club of the Pacific Coast League. Dave Hill was sent to the Kansas City minor league camp at Pensacola for reassignment.

Houtteman, 31, was purchased conditionally during the winter from Charleston, W. Va., a Detroit farm club. The Athletics reportedly would have paid $25,000 for his contract had they kept him. Houtteman pitched 12 innings this spring in which he gave up seven hits and one run.

The Athletics also sent Nini Tornay, a catcher, back to Portland. He was not on the Kansas City roster.

Flood Homers, Cardinals Snap 6-Game Skid

ST. PETERSBURG — (AP) — Curt Flood's fourth-inning, none-on home run enabled the St. Louis Cardinals to nip the Chicago White Sox, 2-1, here Friday and snap a six-game losing streak.

The game ended the Cards' exhibition season at Lang Field. They move into Miami today for a two-game go at the Baltimore Orioles.

The Cardinals had only five hits, but Flood's homer off Bob Shaw was the difference. The first St. Louis run came in the third on Don Blasingame's triple and Bill White's sacrifice fly off Turk Lown.

Chicago collected seven hits, two each by Nellie Fox and Norm Cash, but were shut out for eight innings by Lindy McDaniel and Howie Nunn. The White Sox got to Marv Grissom for a run in the ninth on singles by Fox, Cash and Al Smith.

The Cards, 8-14 for the spring, won only six of 15 games at Lang Field, which they share with the New York Yankees.

Yanks Nip LA On Homer, 1-0

SARASOTA — (AP) — The New York Yankee pitching staff continued to shine brilliantly Friday as rookies John Gabler and Zack Monroe blanked the Los Angeles Dodgers, 1-0.

Second Baseman Gil McDougald homered for the only run. The 390-footer over the left field wall in the second inning was one of three hits the Bombers made off Don Drysdale who worked eight innings, and veteran Art Fowler.

The Dodgers made only two hits. Junior Gilliam led off the game with a double down the right field line and Catcher John Roseboro beat out a bunt after one out in the ninth.

Gabler, a 19-game winner in the American Association with Denver last year, walked three batters in the fourth but fanned Duke Snider and retired Roseboro on a soft hopper to squeeze out of that jam.

The Yankee pitching staff, which was believed to be the club's weakest link, has allowed only nine runs in the last six games.

Yanks Rush Treatments For Skowron

SARASOTA —(AP)— Bill Skowron, the New York Yankees' injured first baseman, will be flown to New York Sunday for further treatment of the strained sacroiliac muscle in the lower left portion of his back.

Skowron injured himself while reaching for a ground ball Thursday in St. Petersburg. He will receive ultrasonic treatment and massage here until he leaves for New York. The treatments will be continued in New York next week under Dr. Sidney Gaynor, team physician.

It is still doubtful Skowron will be ready to open the season on April 10. The Yankees break camp Monday and play in Savannah Tuesday and Richmond Wednesday.

1958 Surprise Bob Cerv Says Hitting No Accident

WEST PALM BEACH — (AP) — Was 1958 a freak year for big Bob Cerv?

The Kansas City outfielder says not and thinks he can prove it this year by doing better.

For the record, Cerv — despite a broken jaw, broken toe and cracked bone in his hand, all suffered successively — wound up 1958 with a .305 batting average, 38 home runs and 104 runs batted in. He had never shown anything like that power before.

During the current spring training season, Cerv has grabbed a minimum of publicity, being neither exceptionally good or bad. He explains that he has been working deliberately to ready himself for the regular season.

"I haven't been swinging too hard," he told Kansas City Star Sports Writer Joe McGuff. I'm not trying to hit home runs now. I'm just trying to bring myslef along so that I'll be ready when the season starts. I feel good and I think I'm hitting better than I did lst year."

The exhibition records bear him out. Through games of Wednesday, Cerv was batting .356. His 21 hits in 59 trips include four doubles, two triples and a homer. He is leading the Athletics in RBI's with 15.

Lincoln Special Called Off

LINCOLN, R. I. — (AP) — The $50,000-added Lincoln Special scheduled for April 18 at Lincoln Downs was canceled Friday because of a lack of nominations.

Managing Director B. A. Dario canceled the rich race for 3-year-olds and up with only three nominations in hand and the deadline set for tonight.

The only nominees were Babu, a Chilean-bred colt who had raced in this country only three times, and Roman Romeo and Admiral's Joy, a pair of New England-owned campaigners.

Louisville Slugger Due Here Today

Rudell Stitch, a Louisville product who lugged home some of boxing's biggest scalps in his first big time fling last year, arrives today to begin final drills for his Miami Beach Auditorium outing against Jimmy Beecham Tuesday night.

Stitch, with victories over Charlie Cotton, Isaac Logart, Luther Rawlings, Yama Bahama and Chico Vejar last year, is considered the latest "darling" of national television.

Beecham, determined to prove a boast that "I'll be stronger than most welterweights," pulled out all the stops in his Friday drills, throwing punches in what amounted to non-stop action.

Beecham's workout indicated that he'd be faster and more durable around the 150-pound mark than when he "slopped up" to meet middleweights on nearly equal terms at 160.

Jamaica, Laurel Card $25,000ers

By the Associated Press

While most of the nation's racing fans focus on Gulfstream Park and today's $100,000-added Florida Derby, the show goes on at four other horse tracks.

In two cases, it's a show with a $25,000-plus feature.

Jamaica offers the $25,000 added Paumonok Handicap, while Laurel has the $25,000-added Wilwyn Handicap. Tanforan is topped by its $15,000-added California Oaks for three-year-old fillies, and Lincoln Downs offers the $10,000 Bill McAuley Memorial Handicap for three-year-olds.

Nine sprinters were named for the 50th running of the six-furlong Paumonok, with Calumet Farm's Kentucky Pride, Brookfield Farm's Isendu and Mrs. Joe W. Brown's Tenacious expected to fight it out for the winner's share.

Kentucky Pride, ridden by Steve Brooks, and Isendu, ridden by Willie Shoemaker, were top-weighted with 123 pounds. Tenacious, handicap star at New Orleans' Fair Grounds, was to carry 122 pounds. Isendu, with a pull in the weights, whipped the favored Kentucky Pride in the opening day feature at Jamaica.

How Lama Fled Chinese Reds

NEW DELHI, India —(AP)— Under Chinese pursuit the Dalai Lama made a 300-mile trip on foot across Tibet's mighty mountains in order to reach refuge in India, his joyous followers disclosed Friday.

Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru told a wildly applauding Parliament the 23-year-old god-king is in good health and will be given "respectful treatment."

Nehru did not use the word asylum. Informed sources said he considered this an improper term in reference to the only ruler in the world whom his people regard as a god.

The god-king's followers gave this account of his escape:

The Dalai Lama slipped by night from his summer palace of Norbulinka in Lhasa, the Tibetan capital. The party included his 57-year-old mother, his 14-year-old brother Rimpoche Ngeri, his 26-year-old sister Tsering Domme, four cabinet ministers and two tutors.

They had to slip past the guns of the Chinese Communists as they headed toward some of the wildest country in the world. They took the most direct route to India, about 150 air miles away but more than 300 miles through the valleys and snow-clad passes.

The party crossed the Kyichu River, 25 miles south of Lhasa, and walked on and up through the Che pass, 17,000 feet high. On the other side of the mountain range they passed over the broad Tsangpo River and walked 35 miles to Minden Ming, a rebel stronghold.

All this time the Chinese Communists had spotter planes in the air and parachute troops ready to drop if the fugitives were sighted. The Dalai Lama's party frequently saw the searching planes.

At Minden Ming the Dalai Lama picked up a strong escort of fierce Khampa warriors, who have led the revolt and who have been fighting the Chinese Communists in Tibet for three years. They moved up through the mountains to the rebel stronghold around Lake Trigu and walked south to the Indian border.

Nehru Wednesday night received a secret message from Shillong. The message said an emissary of the Dalai Lama had arrived at Towang to ask for political asylum.

Instructions had gone out previously to India's border checkposts to permit entry, however, and the Dalai Lama actually had already crossed.

Tibetan exiles declared the Dalai Lama still is the ruler of Tibet, making clear he will

Senate President's Views

Budget, Race Actions Need Sound Plans

Florida's Legislature, which meets every two years, reassembles next Tuesday in Tallahassee. The eyes of the legislators and the rest of the state will be on three influential men—Speaker of the House Thomas Beasley, Senate President Dewey M. Johnson and Governor LeRoy Collins. How they agree and differ on key issues will affect you. Sen. Johnson explains his views in today's article written especially for The Herald.

By DEWEY M. JOHNSON
President of Florida Senate

TALLAHASSEE — Taxes, segregation and reapportionment are the major problems facing the 1959 legislature convening Tuesday.

I believe we will accomplish much through sound and sensible action in dealing with government spending and race relations.

His Views
Will Affect
YOU

I am also hopeful that a compromise reapportionment plan can be proposed by constitutional amendment and put before the voters.

In regard to avoiding new taxes, I believe we can eliminate several programs now operated at state expense without curtailing essential public services.

There are some educational benefits offered by the state which I believe adult individuals could pay for themselves.

I think the legislators will go along with reducing adult education expenses to a minimum but they will approve such programs that will enable adult students to earn a livelihood.

I refer to courses which lead to high school diplomas for persons who were not able to complete high school before going to work; manual arts training, typing, shorthand and accounting classes.

Further reductions can be made I believe in the kindergarten and summer enrichment programs.

Tighter Welfare Programs

TIGHTER CONTROL on welfare spending, particularly in the program for aid to illegitimate children, would assist our efforts to hold down the cost of government.

New laws might include forcing both parents—mother and father — to do more on behalf of the child and requiring the mother under oath to disclose the name of the father so he can be held responsible for the child's support.

A majority of the legislators, I believe, realize the taxpayers don't want to be told they are going to have to pay new taxes every two years for additional services many of them personally do not feel are warranted.

As I look at it, while we might cut spending a little too thin and hurt in a few places, I believe that overall we can provide for the absolutely necessary services with low taxes which will be an inducement to new people and new industries.

We won't be a backward state so long as we can live within our existing revenues and provide the essential services.

Who's The No. 1 Democrat Today?

The Gallup Poll answers a question that has the politicians staying awake nights: Who's the No. 1 Democrat today?

It will tell you how Sen. John Kennedy is doing in his fight to become the Democrats' presidential candidate and whether Adlai Stevenson, Estes Kefauver, Lyndon Johnson and Stuart Symington still have a chance.

Ike Talks Today on U.S. Policy

To Spur Fight On Dictators

GETTYSBURG, Pa. —(UPI) — President Eisenhower Friday flew to Gettysburg, Pa., where today he will deliver a major foreign policy speech he hopes will make clear to Americans "the international facts of today's life."

The President, who will speak at a Gettysburg College convocation, plans to emphasize the need for grater individual and collective understanding to maintain freedom's fight against Communist dictatorship.

The President will spend the weekend at his farm nearby.

White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty gave newsmen a brief preview of the President's planned speech before the chief executive flew to Gettysburg by helicopter.

He said Eisenhower believes the American people "need to understand our nation's position and role in strengthening the world's free nations which, with us, see our concepts of freedom and human dignity threatened by atheistic dictatorship."

This indicated the President might take the occasion to put in a new plug for his four-billion-dollar foreign aid program, which is faced with a tough battle in the Democratic-steered Congress.

Argentine Capital Hit By Riots

BUENOS AIRES —(UPI)— Serious rioting broke out in downtown Buenos Aires late Friday as thousands of Peronist and Communist workers demonstrated against the government's austerity and labor control policies.

Massed mounted and foot police fired barrages of tear gas bombs against the demonstrators, who gathered before the congressional building in violation of a police ban.

The demonstrators burned three private cars and overturned several others. They also overturned a police truck six blocks from the Congress Plaza.

Police ordered out nearly 2,000 men around the plaza to keep order along with 5 assault cars, two armored cars and firefighting units.

A Neptune tank spraying colored water was also active. The water was used to facilitate the identification of rioters engaging in criminal activity. At least two persons were hurt by bursting tear gas bombs.

Thousands of Peronist and Communist workers walked out on a six-hour strike intended to permit workers to mass before the labor ministry and the Congressional building.

Frisco Barred To Soviet Ballet

NEW YORK —(AP)— Impresario Sol Hurok says the State Department has declined to permit a San Francisco appearance of the Soviet Union's Bolshoi Theater ballet company.

San Francisco is one of the American cities where Soviet citizens are not permitted to travel. For several years this country has restricted certain areas to Russians in retaliation to Russian travel restrictions on Americans.

Channel 7 Award Is Reopened

WASHINGTON — (UPI) — The Federal Communications Commission Friday reopened the Miami television Channel 7 contest to determine whether any improper influences figured in the award to Biscayne Television Corp.

This is the fourth case the commission has reopened on the basis of charges aired last year before the House influence investigating subcommittee that backstage approaches were made to former FCC Commissioner Richard A. Mack and other commission members while applications for TV awards were pending.

Mack resigned under fire after hearings which involved influence charges against him in the Miami Channel 10 contest. He is scheduled to go on trial with his long-time friend, Thurman A. Whiteside of Miami, Tuesday.

The commission moved Friday on its own motion to reopen the Channel 7 case. The FCC twice voted to grant the channel to Biscayne, which is owned by former NBC President Niles Trammel and principal stockholders of The Miami Herald and The Miami Daily News.

The FCC initially voted to award the channel to Biscayne, for operation of station WCKT at Miami, on Jan. 18, 1956.

Three losing applicants in the four-way contest appealed to courts. After the case was returned to the FCC, the commission on June 21, 1957, reaffirmed the grant to Biscayne by a 4-2 vote.

Those voting in favor of Biscayne were former FCC Commissioner George C. McConnaughey, John C. Doerfer, Robert E. Lee and Mack.

Commissioners Rosel H. Hyde and Robert T. Bartley dissented. Commissioner T. A. M. Craven abstained.

The losing contestants in the fight were East Coast Television Corp., South Florida Television Corp., and Sunbeam Television Corp.

The commission said it would hold hearings to determine whether any member of the FCC should have disqualified himself from voting in the contest.

The commission said it would consider holding the hearings outside of Washington. The commission set no date for the hearings nor did it name a presiding officer.

7,000 Dodge Duty, Reds Say

BERLIN —(AP)— Communist East Germany claimed Friday that 7,000 young West Germans have fled behind the Iron Curtain within the last seven months to evade military service.

An interior ministry spokesman in East Berlin said the number of West Germans in the draft age, 19 to 25, who have come to East Germany in recent months, equals the strength of seventy 100-man companies in the West German armed forces.

Collier Plan For Airport Gets Boost

NAPLES — Collier County plans to establish the Immokalee Airport as a possible training and test field to aid crowded Miami International Airport have been cleared by federal authorities.

Rep. Paul G. Rogers' Washington office Friday notified The Herald that the field is being turned back to the county.

County Commission members last June began an intensive effort to obtain the surplus Air Force base after hearing Miami International faced federal action because of heavy air traffic.

Clifford Anderson, realtor and war-time fighter pilot, suggested use of the Immokalee field and pushed plans for its development for test and training flights out of Miami.

County board members conferred with Dade County Port Authority representatives before seeking aid of Rogers and Sens. Spessard Holland and George Smathers.

Rogers' secretary, Nell Howe, said that the congressman had received a letter from the Federal Aviation Agency reporting its Washington office has approved transfer of the field to Collier County for operation as a public airport.

The letter said the General Services Administration will join the FAA in completing the transfer as soon as possible.

The field has two hard-surface 5,000-foot runways. It was one of the satellite fields of the Buckingham Gunnery Base at Fort Myers during World War II.

Floods Drive 2,000 Out of Their Homes

By United Press International

Spring floods, fed by April showers and melting snowbanks, kept more than 2,000 persons homeless in New England and the Midwest Friday.

The floods followed a week-long weather siege of tornadoes in the South, dense fog in the East, and heavy rains in the North. Together, the vile weather combination claimed 20 lives.

Parts of Illinois, Wisconsin and Iowa had been living with their floods for more than a week. A total of 1,700 persons were homeless in the industrial Rockford, Ill., area and 80 families had been driven from their lodgings in Wisconsin.

In contrast, the New England floods swirled up with little warning in Vermont and New Hampshire. They were expected to spread rapidly through the six-state New England region.

The New England floods were choked by ice floes so big they snapped a 65-foot metal radio transmitter tower like a matchstick on the Sugar River near Claremont, N.H.

Cold Front Moving Toward N. Florida

A cold front was sweeping southeastward from Texas toward North Florida with cloudiness and rain Friday, but forecasters predicted good weather for at least most of today in the southern part of the state.

"It's hard to tell right now whether the front will keep coming or slow down before it gets to Central and South Florida," Miami Forecaster Phil Ackerman said.

But the front shouldn't really bring much of a temperature drop, even if it gets to South Florida, Ackerman said.

The forecast for today was increasing cloudiness and possible rain in the northern part of the state starting this morning. Sunny skies were predicted for South Florida — with possible increasing cloudiness if the cold front keeps coming.

Ackerman said there was no indication of a squall line traveling with the new weather front, like the one which spawned deadly tornadoes in Central Florida on Thursday.

King Pilots Starfighter

LOS ANGELES —(AP)— King Hussein of Jordan flew for 30 minutes and broke the sound barrier in a Lockheed F104 Starfighter Friday.

Capt. R. N. Mercer of the U.S. Air Force was nominally at the controls, but the 23-year-old monarch, a qualified jet flier, did much of the piloting.

"A wonderful flight," he said after the jet fighter returned to Palmdale Airport. "I would like to check out in one of these and fly it alone.

"And I think some of these planes would have considerable influence in the Middle East."

Before the flight demonstration, King Hussein and his party toured the Lockheed factory at Burbank.

3 Points Presented To NATO

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Canada proposed Friday that the Atlantic Pact allies consider inviting the U.N. to man the access routes between West Berlin and Free Germany.

Canadian Defense Minister George Pearkes put forward the suggestion in discussing new moves to end the East-West dispute with Russia over the future of Berlin.

The plan would require Russian acceptance.

Other delegates at the 15-nation Atlantic Pact Council meeting gave no immediate reaction to the Canadian plan. Pearkes emphasized he proposed a U.N. approach only to reinforce present Allied rights in West Berlin.

He suggested the U.N. might consider a three-point formula as the basis for an agreement with Russia:

1—Verification by the U.N. that the West and the Soviets are living up to the terms of any new agreement.

2—A Soviet pledge binding Russia as well as "its associates" to allow full freedom of access to West Berlin and acceptance of what Pearkes called "a U.N. presence on the lines of communication."

3—A firm understanding that U.N. responsibility for West Berlin would reinforce or back up the present American-British-French right to be there as conquerors of Nazi Germany.

Pearkes did not spell out whether he meant troops or observers to constitute the "United Nations presence" he advocated on the 110-mile route between West Berlin and West Germany.

The Canadian delegate joined foreign ministers from eight other Atlantic Pact nations in urging the Western Big Three nations to adopt a firm negotiating policy in dealing with the Soviets.

The foreign ministers pledged solid backing for a tough Western negotiating policy in East-West talks due to begin in Geneva May 11.

Their unanimous views, expressed during the second day of top-level NATO meetings, coincided with mounting signs the American, British and French governments — the Big Three — would heed the advice.

The Big Three foreign policy chiefs, prodded by West Germany, were reported to have hedged on the concessions they were thinking of offering the Russians.

U.S. Plastered by Fallout From 'Dirty' Red A-Bombs

Radiation Grows; U.S. Probes Rate

WASHINGTON — (UPI) — Stratospheric fallout from Russia's radioactivity dirty atomic tests in the Arctic last October is now hitting the U.S. with growing intensity.

This was disclosed Friday after preliminary study of new fallout monitoring data by Dr. Willard F. Libby, scientist member of the Atomic Energy Commission.

Ike to Get Special Report

WASHINGTON — (AP) — President Eisenhower has ordered a study of how the government can best evaluate the effect of radioactive fallout on health.

The White House announced Friday that the study already is well under way. The Atomic Energy Commission, the Department of Welfare and the Budget Bureau are carrying it out.

James C. Hagerty, presidential press secretary, said the three agencies expect to report to Eisenhower in a few weeks.

It is too early to say whether the Soviet fallout will push the Strontium-90 content of any U. S. foods above maximum permissible levels. Libby doubts that it will.

The new information accumulating with every April shower tends to support fast fallout theories recently advanced for big nuclear explosions in the polar regions.

Libby hopes to have facts which will settle this issue by May 4 when the Congressional Atomic Energy Committee opens hearings on radioactive fallout.

The new data from AEC rain sampling and Navy air filtering stations suggest that U. S. cities in the latitude of Minneapolis, say, are getting the heaviest dose of Soviet fallout.

Fallout comes in three categories:

1—Local, deposited in minutes or hours in the immediate vicinity of the explosion. This is the dreaded scourge of nuclear war.

2—Tropospheric, distributed worldwide in a month or less in latitudes corresponding to those of the blast site. This is a hazard only less immediate than that of local fallout.

3—Stratospheric, worldwide in distribution and consisting of radioactive particles pushed into atmospheric regions above 40,000 feet where they drift for a long time before coming down. Only the longer-lived radioactivities are a menace in this category.

The U.S. has tried—with new manufacturing and testing techniques — to clean up its weapons tests. But the latest fallout information proves decisively that Russian weapons have become dirtier and dirtier.

remain a rallying point of the revolt against Red Chinese rule in Tibet.

Informed sources said, however, India will recognize the Dalai Lama only as a spiritual leader of the Buddhists and he will be forbidden to form any government in exile in India. This is to avoid offending Red China.

The Chinese Communist embassy declined to comment on the Dalai Lama's request for refuge in India. Peiping Radio had pictured the Lama as forced by anti-Communist rebels to flee to India.

Reliable Tibetan exile sources in India's frontier town of Kalimpong said the Dalai Lama is heading for Shillong, capital of India's easternmost province of Asam, for a few days rest.

They reported he is being escorted by Indian army and political officers and expects to reach Shillong Sunday. They expect him to come to New Delhi for talks later. The Dalai Lama brought a party of 80 with him from Tibet, crossing into India near Towang Tuesday night.

Tibetan sources in Kalimpong said the Dalai Lama began his hazardous flight the night of March 17, shortly before a revolt erupted against Red rule.

Death Car Is Found In Tampa

By TOM LOWNES
Herald Staff Writer

The bloodstained Meslener murder car was found in Tampa Friday — 40 days after it disappeared in Miami.

While Dade detectives flew to Tampa to comb the car for clues, a second sensational aspect of the baffling, brutal murder came to light in Miami:

Frank Meslener, husband of the pretty murder victim, disclosed that the clothes that his wife was wearing when she was found dead on a Miami River canal bank in Medley were not her own.

Strangely, however, the clothes on the body did bear a striking resemblance to those that Mary Meslener wore to work on the fatal day — Feb. 23. But they differed in color and detail, Meslener said.

Metro homicide detectives, working in Tampa, were close-mouthed as to what either of the case's new clues would prove.

Full contents of the murder car are still to be divulged but the car, which bore the same license plate it carried on the murder date, is known to contain:

Blood stains on the front seat and a puddle of dried blood on the right rear floor.

Three bobby pins in the blood puddle on the rear floor.

A white bottle cap — possibly off a bottle of wine.

Several empty cigarette packs.

A man's English-style black cane-umbrella.

In Miami, Meslener said that neither his wife nor any member of the family ever owned such an umbrella.

Back Behind Bars

He Prefers Prison to a Payday Job

MURPHYSBORO, Ill. — (AP) — A parolee has gone back to the penitentiary in preference to working for a living outside.

Merdia Hicks, 34, of Pomona, went to the Jackson County jail of his own free will last month and told authorities, "I just can't get along."

The Illinois Pardon and Parole Board disclosed Friday that he has been transferred back to Menard.

Deputy Sheriff Calvin Ellis said Hicks turned down two jobs offered him by a parole officer and declined to look for work himself.

He was paroled in December, 1957, after serving more than 11 years o a one year-to-life sentence for burglary and larceny.

falls, who will be next?" asked West Germany's Foreign Minister Heinrich von Brentano as discussion of the Berlin crisis ended.

As the conference in the Inter-Departmental auditorium reached the midway point, authoritative officials reported these signs of a tougher Big Three negotiating policy toward the Soviets:

1. Britain has agreed to link its plan for a military freeze of troops and weapons in Central Europe with progress toward German reunification. The West Germans and French were reported to have insisted on this.

2. A Western plan for a confederation uniting East and West Germany has been shelved. This would have picked up Russia's proposed approach toward German unity but would have included Western ideas for an independent, democratic all-German government.

3. A U.S.-proposed peace treaty draft for all Germany has virtually been scrapped. Instead the West will unveil only a "set of principles" which would guide a later peace pact.

Von Brentano said the Allies must remain united in the face of the Soviet challenge and must not abandon basic principle.

Italy's Foreign Minister Giuseppe Pella firmly supported Von Brentano's no retreat in Berlin stand as did Canada's Pearkes, Denmark's Jens Otto Krag, Norway's Halvard M. Lange, Greece's Panayotis Kanellopoulos, Netherlands Foreign Minister Joseph M. Luns, Turkish Foreign Minister Fatin R. Zorlu, and Belgium's Pierre Wigny.

Militiamen Organizing In Haiti

PORT AU PRINCE, Haiti—(UPI)—President Francois Duvalier said Friday 25,000 men and women volunteers are ready to take up arms at a moment's notice to defend the government against invasion or rebellion.

But, in an interview in the Presidential Palace, Duvalier minimized the dangers of either external or internal attack.

Duvalier said the civilians did not have their own weapons but were issued them by the army for training. The weapons, he said, were returned to the arsenals but were available immediately in the event of invasion or revolt.

Duvalier explained that the volunteer army was formed after eight men seized the Port-Au-Prince army barracks in an abortive revolt last July 29 and called on his government to surrender. He said he was unaware of the size of the rebel force and appealed by radio to the people for help.

Thousands of civilians responded, he said, and the rebels were killed. Shortly afterward, he added, "volunteer groups were formed throughout the country."

"Haitians love their fatherland and are willing to fight for it," Duvalier said.

I'll Seek U.S. Loans --Castro

American Press Draws New Blast

By Herald Wire Services

HAVANA, Cuba — Prime Minister Fidel Castro says he will be looking for money as well as defending "Cuba and her revolution" on his visit to the U.S. later this month.

The bearded revolutionary told a TV audience he will seek loans from the U.S. Export-Import Bank and "all sources of credit possible."

The Batista government left only 70 million dollars in the treasury, Castro said, adding that Cuba's economic situation was further aggravated by falling sugar prices and increased competition from other sugar countries.

Castro is leaving for Washington April 15 on an unofficial visit as the guest of the American Society of Newspaper Editors. He accepted the invitation before becoming prime minister Feb. 2.

Castro said he was "anxious personally to explain my program to the U.S. press and people."

During a four-hour telecast he charged that American wire services did not quote him correctly and that Time magazine, The Miami Herald and other newspapers were waging a "campaign of lies" against his regime.

Castro also termed former Costa Rican President Jose Figueres a "bad friend" and "false democrat" for having suggested that the Castro regime was influenced by Communists.

Meanwhile revolutionary firing squads Friday shot four more convicted collaborators of former Dictator Fulgencio Batista, bringing to 500 the unofficial total number of "war criminals" executed since Jan. 1.

Three were executed in Santa Clara and one in Santiago. Castro predicted near the beginning of the trials that no more than 400 would be executed.

Revolutionary tribunals nevertheless continued to grind out death sentences. Two more were condemned in the last 24 hours, 10 others sentenced to prison terms ranging up to 15 years, seven were absolved and one death sentence was ratified on appeal.

Ohio Judge Dies Of Heart Attack

LOUISVILLE, Ky. — (AP) — James Garfield Stewart, Ohio Supreme Court judge, suffered a fatal heart attack Friday in a downtown hotel.

He was the father of Associate Justice Potter Stewart of the U.S. Supreme Court.

Stewart came here to address the Kentucky State Bar Association.

Stewart, 78, had been on the Ohio high court since 1947. He also served as mayor of Cincinnati from 1938 to 1947 and once had been a leading trial lawyer in Cincinnati.

The younger Stewart was named to the high court of the U.S. last October.

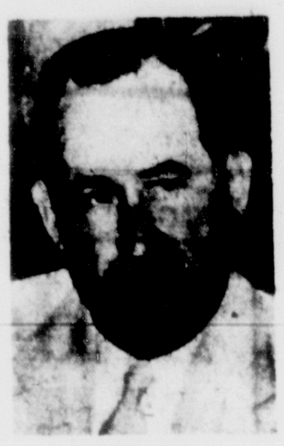
Johnson's Cautious

Here are highpoints in Senate President Dewey M. Johnson's legislative outlook:



JOHNSON

REAPPORTIONMENT — "Hopeful" for a compromise.

TAXES — Avoid them by eliminating some programs.

WELFARE — "Tighter control" on spending.

SEGREGATION — After every other remedy is exhausted, let voters decide whether schools should be closed rather than integrate.

CONSTITUTIONAL REVISION — "A certain amount" but "I want to retain old, basic 'safety valves' of our present constitution."

some provisions of the Alabama law and considering such other grounds as would come within recent U.S. Supreme Court decisions.

Some form of parent-option plan is in order. What worries me is that it does not apply until integration is ordered.

A better plan may be offered which would provide for scholarship in tuition granted to any student, white or colored, who enters a private non-sectarian school. The payment would be made from the general revenue fund as distinguished from school funds.

Whenever a child is withdrawn from public school in the county, the county's minimum foundation grant from the state would be reduced by the same amount the state is contributing to the child to attend a private school. The actual expense from tax dollars would be exactly the same.

After every other remedy is exhausted, I think there ought to be a provision to permit qualified voters of a school district to determine whether schools should be closed rather than integrated.

It should call for the closing of all schools in the district both white and colored, not just an isolated school.

The legislature must keep in mind that we are fighting for the rights of the better class colored citizens as well as white.

Keep 'Check and Balances'

REAPPORTIONMENT — My experience from the "give and take" attitude finally reached in 1957 indicates that such an atmosphere again can result in reaching a solution that will be worth letting the people decide for themselves by submitting a constitutional amendment.

We will never reach now, or 50 years from now, a perfect solution that is going to meet 100 per cent approval in the extra-large counties and the exceedingly small counties.

The "check and balance" in the Federal Congress dates back to 1787 and Florida early adopted a similar check and balance in the two houses of our Legislature. The states in the U.S. Senate have the same amount of representation and House is based on population.

I don't recommend that we go quite that far.

With minimum limitations of one representative to a county, I think apportionment in the House should be based strictly on population. In the Senate I believe a number of factors should be considered that will effectively carry out the theory of check and balance.

While the present formula may not be quite equitable and fair, it would definitely be unfair to the smaller counties to determine complete control in both houses by population. If we would adopt the same formula for representation in both Houses then we would no longer need both houses.

In order to give relief to some congested areas, additional senatorial districts seem to be the answer.

CONSTITUTIONAL REVISION — I believe the legislature will draft a certain amount. Personally I want to retain old basic "safety valves" of our present constitution.

National Summary

High pressure along the Eastern slopes of the Rockies presented a pattern of dry weather from much of the Mississippi Valley to the Pacific coast and sunny mild weather was featured over the Southeast. A vigorous low pressure disturbance over Lake Huron accounted for showers across the Northern Appalachians.

At noon 70 degree temperatures extended from the Gulf coast into the Carolinas and 60's accompanied warming southerly breezes into portions of the Ohio Valley and mid-Atlantic states. In the wake of low pressure off the North Atlantic coast northwesterly winds prevailed along the New England coast but sunshine pushed temperatures into the 50's.

A cold front trailing southward from Lake Huron extended southwestward into Texas. Brisk northwesterly winds pressed cold air southward over most of the midsection of the country with temperatures in the 40's in the northern plains while 80's appeared in southern Texas.

A pattern of fair to partly cloudy skies over the far West found late morning temperatures in the 40's and 50's in the Northern Pacific states while portions of the warm southwest were pushing toward the 90 degree mark.

Switch Proposed

School Boss 'Not Consulted' On New Status

By TOM MORGAN
Naples Bureau Chief

NAPLES — A constitutional amendment making the Collier County school superintendent's job appointive instead of elective, proposed by Rep. Lorenzo Walker, is "news" to Superintendent W. D. Reynolds.

"Rep. Walker never discussed it with the School Board or with me," Reynolds said Friday. "I have no opinion about it because I haven't been consulted."

Walker said the change would "take the job out of politics" and that the appointive status has been adopted in other counties. There has been no great public discussion of the proposal although it was mentioned at a "hearing" on proposed legislation attended by 10 persons in Naples.

Walker has approved a bill raising Reynolds' pay from $7,500 to $9,000 in a year effective Oct. 1, 1960, but rejected a pay increase to $10,000 asked by Reynolds and other county officers.

Two referendums, one of them statewide, would be required for the change to an appointed superintendent but Walker said no referendum would be held on the pay increase.

An informal poll on the salary raise brought answers from 123 person out of the county's approximately 4,500 voters saying raises should not be given at this time. A fourth of those ballotting favored a referendum.

The first referendum on the change to an appointed status would have to be approved by a constitutional amendment question. Then a county referendum would decide if it should pass.

ARE FUND drives about to reach the saturation point in Naples?

MORGAN

The United Fund, in its second month of a planned one week campaign, is still short several thousand dollars and not moving fast.

A $2,700 cancer fund drive is beginning.

Naples Community Hospital, which launched a "membership campaign" at the same time it began its United Fund drive, would rather not discuss results.

The hospital will get its $24,000 from United Fund since some contributors, as they may, specified their gifts would go to the hospital. But other groups are still worrying.

Several churches are conducting, plan or have just finished fund campaigns, some with poor success. There remain the usual groups offering advertising space to merchants.

Shaping up now is a campaign for the Recreation Center, which the mayor has pledged will be built by private gifts. Cost estimates range from $125,000 to $250,000.

It's easy to see why fund campaigns are getting tougher, partly because money isn't as readily forthcoming when there are so many drains.

In Bunches

TROUBLE COMES in bunches. As if Port Royal didn't have enough problems with the Beach Club on which a private settlement may still be reached. Now a fellow plans a do-it-yourself house there.

According to rumor this fellow would have a contractor build and prime the outer shell and he would finish it.

Incidentally, the Beach Club, first planned to cost $200,000, then $250,000, finally brought a low bid of $311,000—reason enough to pull the wings off.

In reporting the Council-Beach Club hearing I quoted Attorney W. A. Sheppard that the Zoning Board "was indiscreet" in withholding its report when he actually said, and the tape shows, the Board "was within its discretion."

The error came between his soft voice and my soft pencil but I hope this soft soap will clear it up.

THE CITY of Naples is interested in baseball clubs coming here to train but it's somewhat lacking in ready cash for facilities. A four-diamond training setup would cost $25,000 alone. Housing would be more, possibly a total $100,000—maybe less if city-county men and machines can help.

That's a lot for the city to handle now with its heavy revenue certificate debt load and the planned sewer expansion. But it would be a fine project for Naples Improvement Plan financing, perhaps by a large group of citizens.

However the airport, mentioned as a site, is also being considered for industrial use and there's only so much land to use. Why not tie up several projects in one?

Put the proposed Courthouse in centrally-located Cambier Park and the ball players out on one of the East Naples Courthouse sites, perhaps that of B. W. Morris Jr. next to the Swamp Buggy grounds where a general recreation area for the city might be placed. Finance the job through the Naples Plan.

We can dream, can't we?

Canners Ask Delay In Bills

WINTER HAVEN —(UPI)— The Florida Canners Association Friday asked the Florida citrus industry to hold up introduction of two of its legislative bills until it can propose substitutes.

The association said it wanted to offer changes for a proposal that would replace the powerful and controversial concentrators advisory committee and give the Citrus Commission more power to control concentrate manufacture.

The other bill would give the commission the power to regulate freeze-damaged fruit and empower the commission to establish processed product standards.

The two bills are part of a 17-point legislative program which has been endorsed by most Florida citrus groups after months of discussion and compromises.

The association took the action Friday following a meeting of its board of directors. It followed a secret meeting in Orlando Thursday, attended by representatives of the canners and other citrus agencies.

Canners President Frank J. Poitras sent telegrams to Chairman J. R. Graves of the Citrus Commission and President Vernon Conner of Florida Citrus Mutual.

He said "since the legislative committee hearings at Tallahassee are not likely to be held before your next meetings this short delay in the introduction of these two bills will not delay consideration by the Legislature."

Mutual's board meets April 15. The commission meets the next day.

Poitras said details of the canners' proposed revisions would not be disclosed before April 15, the day of Mutual's meeting.

GOP Chiefs To Confer

FORT LAUDERDALE — Republican state chairmen of 12 southern states will meet here today and Sunday to discuss party rebuilding and the southern Republican position on a 1960 party platform.

C. Harold Alaxander, Florida GOP chairman and chairman of the Southern Association, said sessions will be aimed at implementing the "Road to Victory" plan approved by the national committee in January.

Naples Airport Plant Proposal Reviewed

Herald Bureau

NAPLES — A proposal to move an airplane attachment manufacturer's plant for a new product here from Miami International Airport was given a sympathetic reception Thursday at a joint informal meeting of city and Chamber of Commerce representatives.

The company, still unidentified, after several weeks of discussions, now services reciprocating and jet engine planes but proposes to expand into production of a new type oil filter for which facilities are sought here.

It would require 10,000 square feet of building space and employ 25 to 35 workers, the representatives were told.

Although the firm would have an aluminum foundry, "there'll be no smoke or grime," said John Crichton, chamber secretary, discussing a possible Naples-America Airport location.

Still to be determined are possible conflicts with present airport lessees and naming of a citizens' committee to handle negotiations and perhaps raise funds for constructing the building.

The firm is understood to desire a lease up to 25 years.

Developer Paves Four City Blocks

Herald Bureau

NAPLES — Paving of four blocks of Naples city streets at a cost of $13,000 has been completed by Dudley R. Gallahue. The streets border Gallahue's apartment project, stalled for eight months, and the rear and side of the Naples High School campus.

Archie Turner, vice president of Gallahue's Naples Real Estate and Development Corp., said Gallahue is assuming the $3,300 cost of the school share of streets bordering the school "as a civic duty and to aid in moving traffic away from the Post Office."

The paving runs from Sixth to Eighth Streets on First Ave., South, and from Central to Second Avenues on Eighth St.

It provides an alternate route away from the sometimes crowded Post Office section for which Gallahue previously contributed a parking lot.

Turner would not say if the street paving bordering two sides of the apartment site meant the project will be resumed at any time soon. Bids on the job were re-submitted last month but rejected.

Tot Rescued From Pond

Herald Bureau

NAPLES—Vicki Lynn Lowe, 15-month-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Lowe Shadowlawn, East Naples, nearly drowned Friday afternoon when she tumbled into a pond near her home. An older unidentified girl fished out the toddler.

Mrs. Lowe rushed the child to Naples Community Hospital aided by officers Bob Alexander and George McRae. The child was taken home, reportedly in good condition, after further treatment at a doctor's office.

Wires Cheer Ailing Dulles At Jupiter

Herald Service

JUPITER ISLAND — A telegram from the North Atlantic Council ministers meeting in Washington and a telephone talk with President Eisenhower cheered Secretary of State John Foster Dulles Friday.

Dulles had sent a letter to the council which was read by Acting Secretary of State Christian A. Herter before the opening session Thursday.

NATO Secretary General Paul Henri Spaak wired a reply saying the council was "deeply moved" by Dulles' letter.

Spaak's message said the Western foreign ministers "have asked me to tell you how very greatly we regret your absence from among us today. Gathered as we are in Washington in our common task, our heart felt thoughts go out to you and we send you our sincerest good wishes for a peaceful convalescence and for an early and full recovery to good health."

Dulles, convalescing here, also talked by telephone to President Eisenhower at Gettysburg about 10 minutes late this morning.

The secretary's staff said Dulles appeared in very good spirits as a result of the two incidents which broke up the ordinary routine of his recuperation visit to exclusive Jupiter Island.

Dulles, his wife and a small staff, are staying at the vacation home of Undersecretary of State C. Douglas Dillon.

Exceptionally fair and mild weather enabled Dulles to take a couple of swims and walk in the garden.

Advisors Push Plan For Needs

By HARRY CAICEDO
Key West Bureau Chief

KEY WEST — The Citizens Capital Improvement and Development Advisory Commission has decided to go ahead with preparing recommendations for practical new community facilities despite uncertain financial resources to pay for any projects.

Members accepted that big "strike" Thursday night when their usefulness was questioned because "there's no money available to finance any improvements."

The challenge was laid down by Melvin Levitt, motel owner and president of the Monroe County Taxpayers Association. He reminded members that State Rep. Bernie C. Papy has announced he will seek legislation denying Key West's authority to levy a utility tax which was originally earmarked by the city for improvements

Levitt said that other financing proposals, such as a bond issue against state cigaret tax rebates, would also require action by the Legislature, which convenes Tuesday.

"That means we just have 60 days in which to work," he said.

Chairman Ed Knight and Sam Golan felt that it would be wrong for the commission to give up now.

"Once we come up with our final program, it may be so much cheaper than expected that it will open up new channels of financing," Knight declared.

Golan, noting that the commission has earned considerable public respect, predicted that "any city, county or state official would be very loathe to kick this committee in the teeth."

"I'm convinced we have a good chance to do some good for Key West," Knight added.

Committees assigned to study various projects under consideration presented preliminary reports on their findings.

Golan and Sam Silberman reported that William Langford, one of the country's foremost golf course architects, visited Key West this week.

His survey of the present nine-hole course concluded that it could be enlarged to an irrigated, 18-hole, self-sustaining course for a maximum expenditure of $350,000.

The convention hall committee's report sparked spirited discussion on possible location for such a facility.

"Duval St. merchants merit primary consideration in getting this hall downtown," Golan said. Others felt that a less congested site would be more desirable.

Publisher Norman Artman thought the possibility of swapping the city parking lot for the present county courthouse and jail rated consideration.

"If the county doesn't build a new courthouse in Key West now, we may find they move it up the Keys in a few years," Artman warned.

The convention hall committee was instructed to obtain more information on facilities with a maximum seating capacity of 1,200 and to consider parking areas, convenience of location and other factors.

St. Pete College Planning Starts

A local architectural firm said Friday it has begun preliminary planning for the new 12 million dollar Florida Presbyterian College at St. Petersburg.

Maurice H. Connell, head of the firm of Connell, Pierce, Garland and Friedman, Architects-Engineers of Miami, said work on the architectural and engineering plans began this week.

He said plans call for a coed college which will accommodate 1,200 students. A freshman class of 400 be received in the fall of 1960.

His Lot's 'Special'

Turn Down Bernie? Not This Session

Herald Bureau

KEY WEST—Three-and-a-half months after Rep. Bernie C. Papy was turned down by the Key West commission on a rezoning request, he has apparently come through with his reaction.

The senior representative from Monroe County is arranging to take care of the matter through the Legislature.

A proposed special bill published by Papy Friday will open up an area along North Roosevelt Blvd. in which a lot may be used for any of the purposes designated in business districts "A", "A-1" and "B" zoning rules.

Papy's request to the city commission last Dec. 17 was to have his plot of land on the boulevard rezoned from residence "B" to business "A" in order to build a real estate office.

One of the reasons for the commission's turndown, was that business "A" zoning makes no provisions for setbacks. The commissioners said they thought the required 40-foot setback along the boulevard lent to its appearance.

Papy's proposed bill would require that the area have a minimum setback of 20 feet instead of 40. His bill calls for the repeal of all city ordinances in conflict with the proposed change.

KW Voters May Have to Re-Register

Herald Bureau

KEY WEST — Electors of this city will have to re-register after July 1, if a local bill proposed by Rep. B. C. Papy is passed in the upcoming session of the Legislature.

Papy's bill proposes to nullify all voter registration in the City of Key West after that date, and to amend existing law so that re-registration is required every fourth year instead of the present eight.

The bill also creates the office of assistant city clerk, who would be designated the "registration officer." He would have "exclusive authority and power to appoint as many as two deputies to assist in the performance of the duties . . ."

The bill fixes the salary of the assistant and designates him as a member of the city's Civil Service board.

74 Per Cent Population Growth Seen

Herald Service

STUART — W. F. Kiplinger of Sewall's Point, near Jensen Beach, and Washington, D.C., predicts that Martin County will be fourth in the fast growing areas in Florida in the next ten years.

Editors of the Florida Kiplinger Letter, said that Florida's population will zoom 74 per cent in 10 years, while the average growth of the nation will be just 20 per cent during that period.

Kiplinger has had his winter home here for a number of years and has invested heavily in real estate in Martin and St. Lucie counties and is currently making plans for a large residential development in Jensen Beach.

He gave an entire block of land on East Fourth St. for the building sites of the Martin County Library and the Stuart Woman's Club building.

Florida counties with the greatest rate of population growth are

St. Lucie (Ft. Pierce), 181 per cent; Charlotte (Punta Gorda) 163 per cent; Collier (Naples), 159 per cent; Martin (Stuart), 150 per cent.

SECRET AGENT: The man who holds his job as long as he holds his tongue.

Jet Fires Big Rocket 700 Miles

CAPE CANAVERAL —(AP)— A B47 jet bomber streaked in over the cape Friday and blasted a highly secret "Bold Orion" test missile toward a target some 700 miles out over the Atlantic.

The new air-to-ground weapon, actually an intermediate range ballistic missile which can be launched from a plane, left a curly smoke trail as it roared from beneath the B47.

Air Force officials declined comment other than to confirm that "a research and development test rocket was fired at the Atlantic missile range."

The two-stage solid fuel missile, about 25 feet long, was developed by the Martin Co., one of three firms vieing for the "Bold Orion" contract.

It was learned this was the eighth launching of the Martin test rocket from a jet bomber over the cape. One of the sleek weapons traveled more than 1,000 miles to an ocean target.

The B47 Friday was trailed by a smaller jet which probably carried camera equipment to record the airborne blast-off.

Air Force experts believe that when developed, the "Bold Orion" program could lengthen the lifetime of such strategic bombers as the B47 and B52. The planes will be capable of firing the missile from well outside an enemy radar screen.

McDonnell Aircraft and Lockheed, the other two companies developing "Bold Orion" models, also have conducted shoots from the cape, both from plane and ground launching sites.

In one instance, the new B58 Hustler bomber fired an air-to-ground missile just after the plane broke the sound barrier.

Harvesting Of Valencias Nears Peak

LAKELAND —(UPI)— Volume harvest of the late season Valencia orange crop is expected to begin in about two weeks, Florida Citrus Mutual predicted Friday.

General Manager Robert W. Rutledge said "for all practical purposes harvesting operations for Florida's early and midseason oranges are now completed."

Concentrators, he said, are using Valencias in limited volume for frozen orange concentrate. But he said it was indicated that it will take another week or 10 days for Valencias to attain the desired ratio for volume use by concentrators.

Local Bill Would Clip 3-Boards

By HARRY CAICEDO
Key West Bureau Chief

KEY WEST—Creation of a "Board of Public Works" for Key West, with broad zoning, improvement-making and financial powers, has been proposed by State Rep. Bernie C. Papy.

The suggested board's authority and functions, as described in a special bill notice published Friday by Papy, will also further whittle down the powers of the Key West City Commission, already the target of several power-clipping bills proposed by the senior representative from Monroe County.

The proposed five-man agency would supplant the city's planning board and the departments of public service and public welfare, all three of which would be abolished as presently constituted.

The board's financial powers would permit it "to issue all bonds of the city . . . except to refunding bonds previously issued by said city and bonds issued by the utility board . . ."

The public works board would also have the "exclusive power and authority to determine what public improvements shall be made by the City of Key West . . ."

To exercise this power, Papy's bill authorizes the board to employ necessary personnel for preparing plans and specifications and to prepare an annual operating budget to be submitted to the city commission for inclusion in the general city budget.

In addition, the board would be authorized to "issue and sell bonds in the name of the city" for any improvement projects, apparently without consultation with the city commission.

In connection with zoning and planning, the city commission is specifically "prohibited from appointing any city plan board, city planning commission or other officer or body with any zoning powers . . ."

Abolishment of the public service and public welfare departments includes divesting the city manager, according to the bill, of all authority to "appoint personnel and the exercise of the functions" of these departments.

These "privileges and authorities" are "deemed exclusive to the board of public works," the bill specifies.

Papy's proposed act also gives the board "sole and exclusive supervision, direction, management and control of the building official, building inspector, electric inspector, plumbing inspector and the sanitary inspector . . ."

These employes are presently responsible to the city manager.

The proposal also provides for naming the first members to the board and fixing their terms of office and the method of appointing successors. The bill stipulates that the "board shall not receive any compensation."

Last week, Papy made public notice of intention to bring before the legislative session convening next week another series of bills which will cut the city government's money-raising powers.

Mathis and Monica Win Raves

WHAT DO YOU DO when you are both a nightlife reporter and a part-time (very small part!) actor in Sigma Delta Chi's annual Ribs and Roast lampoon which Sid Casell is whipping (sic) into shape at Miami Springs Villa's for an April 8 showing and there are simultaneous demands for your services as a reporter and an actor? Don't be silly. Hand over that greasepaint!

But you, as a saloon reporter, have a problem because there is a show opening at the Fontainebleau Hotel La Ronde Room. That constitutes the writing demand. You just decide to pass up the opening and catch the post-midnight second show. "But dear," dears your dear wifely RIB, "you need your sleep to stay fit for your rehearsals (the last with just a soupcon of sarcasm), I've done it before — let me cover for you."

"Are you mad!" is our pride-stung retort to her presumption. But we accept the offer.

There was, of course, a distinct Mathis in her madness, for singing sensation Johnny Mathis is the current star at the Fontainebleau — and Mathis, the current madness of the record collecting set, is a treat even to a reviewer.

Mathis, Monica a Bit Marvelous

"Johnny Mathis," reports our Papermate helpmate in her review, "is the answer to those who find themselves too old for Elvis and too young for Sinatra. When he last played here you wrote that there was too much of Nat King Cole in his style. Not so now—he's all Mathis and all the Mathis is terrific.

"Oh, that could be because he has varied his selection of tunes to include more of those identified with singers other than Cole. He opens, for instance, with 'My Funny Valentine,' associated with You-Know-Who, who is the champ of the La Ronde Room. This is not exactly a conventional "opening song" either but Mathis scores with it, and from this moment on—which is another number he does—he's in, like Sinatra, with La Ronde's patrons.

"We made a funny for you at the start of this review about Mathis's between-Presley-and-Sinatra appeal. Just a joke. He did seem to bring out a lot more late teen-agers than the usual cafe act, but don't let this mislead your readers into thinking he's for the adolescents only. I—and the rest of the married girls in my section — were properly impressed. And daddy, even you'd like him — especially in his exciting rendition of 'Lover.' Of course he sings 'When I Fall in Love.' It wouldn't be Mathis without that!

"I don't have to tell YOU about Corbett Monica, who is the 'comedy star of the show' as emcee Murray Schlam puts it. You woke me up one night just to tell me how good he was a couple of years ago. So you were right then and even righter now. He's a smooth worker with stories about his house and his wife and his problem of a name that often gets him mash notes from patrons who think he's the girl on the bill.

"Dagmar, who was looking over my shoulder as I made notes for this review, says you'll understand if I tell you that a comedian with the name of "Corbett" fractured his audience. Was there really a fighter by that name in your day, daddy?

"Opening the bill in the usual dance spot is the unusual dancing of Norton and Patricia. We see a lot of teams—this one is one of the very best in the mood in which they perform. Well, that's it. It was easy."

His Chipmunks on Tape Bring Composer Riches

LOS ANGELES —(AP)— David Seville is a fellow who has done pretty well in the chipmunk and witch doctor business. In the past year Seville — real name Ross Bagdasarian — figures he has sold $6,700,000 in novelty records.

The chipmunks who helped him are named Alvin, Theodore and Simon. They are, of course, the Singing Chipmunks on th records "Chipmunk Song" and "Alvin's Harmonica."

The witch doctor? That was the title of the song which launched Seville's big-time career. Earlier Seville helped his cousin, novelist William Saroyan, write "Come On-a My House." It netted Seville only $17,000.

All his money from the past year didn't come from song royalties or record sales. Seville also cashed in on commercial tie-ins with the Chipmunks, whose pictures appear on wallpaper, T-shirts, and cookies.

He also saved some money by not having to hire singers to take their roles. Seville himself is the chipmunks. A tape recorder enables him to achieve the strange sound attributed to Alvin and his pals.

Senate President's Views

Budget, Race Actions Need Sound Plans

Florida's Legislature, which meets every two years, reassembles next Tuesday in Tallahassee. The eyes of the legislators and the rest of the state will be on three influential men—Speaker of the House Thomas Beasley, Senate President Dewey M. Johnson and Governor LeRoy Collins. How they agree and differ on key issues will affect you. Sen. Johnson explains his views in today's article written especially for The Herald.

By DEWEY M. JOHNSON
President of Florida Senate

TALLAHASSEE — Taxes, segregation and reapportionment are the major problems facing the 1959 legislature convening Tuesday.

I believe we will accomplish much through sound and sensible action in dealing with government spending and race relations.

His Views
Will Affect
YOU

I am also hopeful that a compromise reapportionment plan can be proposed by constitutional amendment and put before the voters.

In regard to avoiding new taxes, I believe we can eliminate several programs now operated at state expense without curtailing essential public services.

There are some educational benefits offered by the state which I believe adult individuals could pay for themselves.

I think the legislators will go along with reducing adult education expenses to a minimum but they will approve such programs that will enable adult students to earn a livelihood.

I refer to courses which lead to high school diplomas for persons who were not able to complete high school before going to work; manual arts training, typing, shorthand and accounting classes.

Further reductions can be made I believe in the kindergarten and summer enrichment programs.

Tighter Welfare Programs

TIGHTER CONTROL on welfare spending, particularly in the program for aid to illegitimate children, would assist our efforts to hold down the cost of government.

New laws might include forcing both parents—mother and father — to do more on behalf of the child and requiring the mother under oath to disclose the name of the father so he can be held responsible for the child's support.

A majority of the legislators, I believe, realize the taxpayers don't want to be told they are going to have to pay new taxes every two years for additional services many of them personally do not feel are warranted.

As I look at it, while we might cut spending a little too thin and hurt in a few places, I believe that overall we can provide for the absolutely necessary services with low taxes which will be an inducement to new people and new industries.

We won't be a backward state so long as we can live within our existing revenues and provide the essential services.

Broward Teeners To Rally Today

By HENRY KINNEY
Herald Staff Writer

FORT LAUDERDALE — The county's teenagers will converge on Fort Lauderdale in force this afternoon to attend the second annual Youth Rally at War Memorial Auditorium.

A list of nine entertainment acts for the occasion shaped up Friday, as the song team, the McCormicks, the comedy duo of Dedi and Bill, the Southern Colonels Trio and the Punchinellos Duo were added to the bill.

The Stranahan High School chorus of 35 voices will open the program at 2 p.m. before an anticipated audience of 2,500 gathered for the combined inspiration and free entertainment presentation arranged by the Key Club of Fort Lauderdale High School and The Miami Herald.

Robert K. Gray, secretary to the U. S. Cabinet, arrived Friday night from Washington to speak at the rally, along with Congressman Paul Rogers of this district. Gray's next stop will be Geneva, Switzerland. He is staying here at the Ocean Manor Hotel.

Gray, a young Nebraska businessman with a degree from the Harvard University Graduate School, was acting secretary to the President before taking his present position last year. He is a former professor at Hastings College, has been a guest lecturer at the University of Southern California, and is the author of several articles in the fields of business and government.

The teenagers will take a Good Citizenship pledge led by Juvenile Judge Dorr Davis. Mayor John Russell will address them briefly. Key Club President Dave Henry and Rally Chairman George Bonham are to conduct the opening ceremonies, which will include presentation of the colors by a Civil Air Patrol squad.

Jerry Wichner, disc jockey from radio station WGMA in Hollywood, chosen one of the nation's top 15 DJ's by Steve Allen in 1956, will be master of ceremonies for the entertainment.

Former Heavyweight Boxing Champion Rocky Marciano will talk to the teenagers. Robert Lewis, president of the Student Council of Fort Lauderdale High School, will deliver a welcome.

Other entertainers will include Singer Wee Bonnie Baker, Comics Woody Woodbury and Bill Carty, Bea Morley and the Berj Vaughan Quartet, and Wild Bill Davison's jazz combo.

Doors of the auditorium will be opened at 1:15 p.m. A limited number of tickets will be available at the box office.

How Lama Fled Chinese Reds

NEW DELHI, India — (AP) — Under Chinese pursuit the Dalai Lama made a 300-mile trip on foot across Tibet's mighty mountains in order to reach refuge in India, his joyous followers disclosed Friday.

Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru told a wildly applauding Parliament the 23-year-old god-king is in good health and will be given "respectful treatment."

Nehru did not use the word asylum. Informed sources said he considered this an improper term in reference to the only ruler in the world whom his people regard as a god.

The god-king's followers gave this account of his escape:

The Dalai Lama slipped by night from his summer palace of Norbulinka in Lhasa, the Tibetan capital. The party included his 57-year-old mother, his 14-year-old brother Rimpoche Ngeri, his 26-year-old sister Tsering Domme, four cabinet ministers and two tutors.

They had to slip past the guns of the Chinese Communists as they headed toward some of the wildest country in the world. They took the most direct route to India, about 150 air miles away but more than 300 miles through the valleys and snow-clad passes.

The party crossed the Kyichu River, 25 miles south of Lhasa, and walked on and up through the Che pass, 17,000 feet high. On the other side of the mountain range they passed over the broad Tsangpo River and walked 35 miles to Minden Ming, a rebel stronghold.

All this time the Chinese Communists had spotter planes in the air and parachute troops ready to drop if the fugitives were sighted. The Dalai Lama's party frequently saw the searching planes.

At Minden Ming the Dalai Lama picked up a strong escort of fierce Khampa warriors, who have led the revolt and who have been fighting the Chinese Communists in Tibet for three years. They moved up through the mountains to the rebel stronghold around Lake Trigu and walked south to the Indian border.

Nehru Wednesday night received a secret message from Shillong. The message said an emissary of the Dalai Lama had arrived at Towang to ask for political asylum.

Instructions had gone out previously to India's border checkposts to permit entry, however, and the Dalai Lama actually had already crossed.

Tibetan exiles declared the Dalai Lama still is the ruler of Tibet, making clear he will

Ike Talks Today on U.S. Policy

To Spur Fight On Dictators

GETTYSBURG, Pa. —(UPI) — President Eisenhower Friday flew to Gettysburg, Pa., where today he will deliver a major foreign policy speech he hopes will make clear to Americans "the international facts of today's life."

The President, who will speak at a Gettysburg College convocation, plans to emphasize the need for grater individual and collective understanding to maintain freedom's fight against Communist dictatorship

White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty gave newsmen a brief preview of the President's planned speech before the chief executive flew to Gettysburg by helicopter.

He said Eisenhower believes the American people "need to understand our nation's position and role in strengthening the world's free nations which, with us, see our concepts of freedom and human dignity threatened by atheistic dictatorshop."

This indicated the President might take the occasion to put in a new plug for his four-billion-dollar foreign aid program, which is faced with a tough battle in the Democratic-steered Congress.

Argentine Capital Hit By Riots

BUENOS AIRES —(UPI)— Serious rioting broke out in downtown Buenos Aires late Friday as thousands of Peronist and Communist workers demonstrated against the government's austerity and labor control policies.

Massed mounted and foot police fired barrages of tear gas bombs against the demonstrators, who gathered before the congressional building in violation of a police ban.

The demonstrators burned three private cars and overturned several others. They also overturned a police truck six blocks from the Congress Plaza.

Police ordered out nearly 2,000 men around the plaza to keep order along with 5 assault cars, two armored cars and firefighting units.

A Neptune tank spraying colored water was also active. The water was used to facilitate the identification of rioters engaging in criminal activity. At least two persons were hurt by bursting tear gas bombs.

Thousands of Peronist and Communist workers walked out on a six-hour strike intended to permit workers to mass before the labor ministry and the Congressional building.

Frisco Barred To Soviet Ballet

NEW YORK — (AP) — Impresario Sol Hurok says the State Department has declined to permit a San Francisco appearance of the Soviet Union's Bolshoi Theater ballet company.

San Francisco is one of the American cities where Soviet citizens are not permitted to travel. For several years this country has restricted certain areas to Russians in retaliation to Russian travel restrictions on Americans.

New Move to End Dispute

Canada Proposes U.N. Man Berlin Routes

Channel 7 Award Is Reopened

WASHINGTON — (UPI) — The Federal Communications Commission Friday reopened the Miami television Channel 7 contest to determine whether any improper influences figured in the award to Biscayne Television Corp.

This is the fourth case the commission has reopened on the basis of charges aired last year before the House influence investigating subcommittee that backstage approaches were made to former FCC Commissioner Richard A. Mack and other commission members while applications for TV awards were pending.

Mack resigned under fire after hearings which involved influence charges against him in the Miami Channel 10 contest. He is scheduled to go on trial with his long-time friend, Thurman A. Whiteside of Miami, Tuesday.

The commission moved Friday on its own motion to reopen the Channel 7 case. The FCC twice voted to grant the channel to Biscayne, which is owned by former NBC President Niles Trammel and principal stockholders of The Miami Herald and The Miami Daily News.

The FCC initially voted to award the channel to Biscayne, for operation of station WCKT at Miami, on Jan. 18, 1956.

Three losing applicants in the four-way contest appealed to courts. After the case was returned to the FCC, the commission on June 21, 1957, reaffirmed the grant to Biscayne by a 4-2 vote.

Those voting in favor of Bixcayne were former FCC Commissioner George C. McConnaughey, John C. Doerfer, Robert E. Lee and Mack.

Commissioners Rosel H. Hyde and Robert T. Bartley dissented. Commissioner T. A. M. Craven abstained.

The losing contestants in the fight were East Coast Television Corp., South Florida Television Corp., and Sunbeam Television Corp.

The commission said it would hold hearings to determine whether any member of the FCC should have disqualified himself from voting in the contest.

The commission said it would consider holding the hearings outside of Washington. The commission set no date for the hearings nor did it name a presiding officer.

7,000 Dodge Duty, Reds Say

BERLIN — (AP) — Communist East Germany claimed Friday that 7,000 young West Germans have fled behind the Iron Curtain within the last seven months to evade military service.

An interior ministry spokesman in East Berlin said the number of West Germans in the draft age, 19 to 25, who have come to East Germany in recent months, equals the strength of seventy 100-man companies in the West German armed forces.

2,000 Flee Floods in Wide Area

By United Press International

Spring floods, fed by April showers and melting snowbanks, kept more than 2,000 persons homeless in New England and the Midwest Friday.

The floods followed a weeklong weather siege of tornadoes in the South, dense fog in the East; and heavy rains in the North. Together, the vile weather combination claimed 20 lives.

Parts of Illinois, Wisconsin and Iowa had been living with their floods for more than a week. A total of 1,700 persons were homeless in the industrial Rockford, Ill., area and 80 families had been driven from their lodgings in Wisconsin.

In contrast, the New England floods swirled up with little warning in Vermont and New Hampshire. They were expected to spread rapidly through the six-state New England region.

The New England floods were choked by ice floes so big they snapped a 65-foot metal radio transmitter tower like a matchstick on the Sugar River near Claremont, N. H.

Cold Front Moving Toward N. Florida

A cold front was sweeping southeastward from Texas toward North Florida with cloudiness and rain Friday, but forecasters predicted good weather for at least most of today in the southern part of the state.

"It's hard to tell right now whether the front will keep coming or slow down before it gets to Central and South Florida," Miami Forecaster Phil Ackerman said.

Hollywood Paraders Cheered by Crowds

HOLLYWOOD — Over 40,000 spectators jammed the sidewalks Friday night as the three-hour Fiesta Tropicale parade boomed down Hollywood Blvd.

A record 35 floats rolled smoothly beneath the strings of colored lights, as 20 bands and drum and bugle corps set the pace past the reviewing stand on the boulevard.

The crowd applauded Fiesta Queen Carole Johnson, a 16-year-old blonde high school beauty "who never won anything," as she smiled and waved from her orange and white float and her eyes sparkled with excitement.

There was a 13-foot stiltman and seven-foot John Ropeter of the Hollywood Oriental Shrine Band, rocket floats, and balloons, popcorn and peanut salesmen, five-year-old baton twirlers and Cub Scouts, but mostly there were beautiful girls.

One kindergarten had 20 "spacemen" carrying rockets. Red lights in their helmets flashed off and on.

The bands and the floats came from Broward, Dade and Palm Beach Counties. It was the 17th annual parade.

Spectators who weren't lining the sidewalks looked down from buildings.

One tiny baton twirler brought cheers from the crowd when she strutted away from the rest of her troop. She stopped 30 yards ahead, looked back, and giggled.

A Spanish dancer jumped down from a float and whirled around a grinning motorcycle cop. He flashed his red lights and someone yelled "Yer gonna get a ticket."

She didn't.

Ropeter has been parading with the Shrine Band for seven years. He weighs 300 pounds and leads the outfit with a four-foot sword. The units in front of him march rapidly.

There were 148 units in all —and all were splendid.

3 Points Presented To NATO

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Canada proposed Friday that the Atlantic Pact allies consider inviting the U.N. to man the access routes between West Berlin and Free Germany.

Canadian Defense Minister George Pearkes put forward the suggestion in discussing new moves to end the East-West dispute with Russia over the future of Berlin.

The plan would require Russian acceptance.

Other delegates at the 15-nation Atlantic Pact Council meeting gave no immediate reaction to the Canadian plan. Pearkes emphasized he proposed a U.N. approach only to reinforce present Allied rights in West Berlin.

He suggested the U.N. might consider a three-point formula as the basis for an agreement with Russia:

1—Verification by the U.N. that the West and the Soviets are living up to the terms of any new agreement.

2—A Soviet pledge binding Russia as well as "its associates" to allow full freedom of access to West Berlin and acceptance of what Pearkes called "a U.N. presence on the lines of communication."

3—A firm understanding that U.N. responsibility for West Berlin would reinforce or back up the present American-British-French right to be there as conquerors of Nazi Germany.

Pearkes did not spell out whether he meant troops or observers to constitute the "United Nations presence" he advocated on the 110-mile route between West Berlin and West Germany.

The Canadian delegate joined foreign ministers from eight other Atlantic Pact nations in urging the Western Big Three nations to adopt a firm negotiating policy in dealing with the Soviets.

The foreign ministers pledged solid backing for a tough Western negotiating policy in East-West talks due to begin in Geneva May 11.

Their unanimous views, expressed during the second day of top-level NATO meetings, coincided with mounting signs the American, British and French governments — the Big Three — would heed the advice.

The Big Three foreign policy chiefs, prodded by West Germany, were reported to have hedged on the concessions they were thinking of offering the Russians.

U.S. Plastered by Fallout From 'Dirty' Red A-Bombs

Radiation Grows; U.S. Probes Rate

WASHINGTON — (UPI) — Stratospheric fallout from Russia's radioactivity dirty atomic tests in the Arctic last October is now hitting the U.S. with growing intensity.

This was disclosed Friday after preliminary study of new fallout monitoring data by Dr. Willard F. Libby, scientist member of the Atomic Energy Commission.

Ike to Get Special Report

WASHINGTON — (AP) — President Eisenhower has ordered a study of how the government can best evaluate the effect of radioactive fallout on health.

The White House announced Friday that the study already is well under way. The Atomic Energy Commission, the Department of Welfare and the Budget Bureau are carrying it out.

James C. Hagerty, presidential press secretary, said the three agencies expect to report to Eisenhower in a few weeks.

It is too early to say whether the Soviet fallout will push the Strontium-90 content of any U. S. foods above maximum permissible levels. Libby doubts that it will.

The new information accumulating with every April shower tends to support fast fallout theories recently advanced for big nuclear explosions in the polar regions.

Libby hopes to have facts which will settle this issue by May 4 when the Congressional Atomic Energy Committee opens hearings on radioactive fallout.

The new data, from AEC rain sampling and Navy air filtering stations, suggest that U. S. cities in the latitude of Minneapolis, say, are getting the heaviest dose of Soviet fallout.

Fallout comes in three categories:

1—Local, deposited in minutes or hours in the immediate vicinity of the explosion. This is the dreaded scourge of nuclear war.

2—Tropospheric, distributed worldwide in a month or less in latitudes corresponding to those of the blast site. This is a hazard only less immediate than that of local fallout.

3—Stratospheric, worldwide in distribution and consisting of radioactive particles pushed into atmospheric regions above 40,000 feet where they drift for a long time before coming down. Only the longer-lived radioactivities are a menace in this category.

The U.S. has tried—with new manufacturing and testing techniques — to clean up its weapons tests. But the latest fallout information proves decisively that Russian weapons have become dirtier and dirtier.

How Lama Walked to Freedom

Informed sources said, however, India will recognize the Dalai Lama only as a spiritual leader of the Buddhists and he will be forbidden to form any government in exile in India. This is to avoid offending Red China.

The Chinese Communist embassy declined to comment on the Dalai Lama's request for refuge in India. Peiping Radio had pictured the Lama as forced by anti-Communist rebels to flee to India.

Reliable Tibetan exile sources in India's frontier town of Kalimpong said the Dalai Lama is heading for Shillong, capital of India's easternmost province of Asam, for a few days rest.

They reported he is being escorted by Indian army and political officers and expects to reach Shillong Sunday. They expect him to come to New Delhi for talks later. The Dalai Lama brought a party of 80 with him from Tibet, crossing into India near Towang Tuesday night.

Tibetan sources in Kalimpong said the Dalai Lama began his hazardous flight the night of March 17, shortly before a revolt erupted against Red rule.

VATICAN CITY—(AP)—Vatican radio, commenting on Tibet, said Friday Islam and the religions of Asia have joined Christianity in opposing communism.

Back Behind Bars

He Prefers Prison to a Payday Job

MURPHYSBORO, Ill. — (AP) — A parolee has gone back to the penitentiary in preference to working for a living outside.

Merdia Hicks, 34, of Pomona, went to the Jackson County jail of his own free will last month and told authorities, "I just can't get along."

The Illinois Pardon and Parole Board disclosed Friday that he has been transferred back to Menard.

Deputy Sheriff Calvin Ellis said Hicks turned down two jobs offered him by a parole officer and declined to look for work himself.

He was paroled in December, 1957, after serving more than 11 years of a one year-to-life sentence for burglary and larceny.

The bloodstained Meslener murder car was found in Tampa Friday — 40 days after it disappeared in Miami.

While Dade detectives flew to Tampa to comb the car for clues, a second sensational aspect of the baffling, brutal murder came to light in Miami:

Frank Meslener, husband of the pretty murder victim, disclosed that the clothes that his wife was wearing when she was found dead on a Miami River canal bank in Medley were not her own.

Strangely, however, the clothes on the body did bear a striking resemblance to those that Mary Meslener wore to work on the fatal day — Feb. 23. But they differed in color and detail, Meslener said.

Metro homicide detectives, working in Tampa, were close-mouthed as to what either of the case's new clues would prove.

Full contents of the murder car are still to be divulged but the car, which bore the same license plate it carried on the murder date, is known to contain:

Blood stains on the front seat and a puddle of dried blood on the right rear floor.

Three bobby pins in the blood puddle on the rear floor.

A white bottle cap — possibly off a bottle of wine.

Several empty cigarette packs.

A man's English-style black cane-umbrella.

In Miami, Meslener said that neither his wife nor any member of the family ever owned such an umbrella.

falls, who will be next?" asked West Germany's Foreign Minister Heinrich von Brentano as discussion of the Berlin crisis ended.

As the conference in the Inter-Departmental auditorium reached the midway point, authoritative officials reported these signs of a tougher Big Three negotiating policy toward the Soviets:

1. Britain has agreed to link its plan for a military freeze of troops and weapons in Central Europe with progress toward German reunification. The West Germans and French were reported to have insisted on this.

2. A Western plan for a confederation uniting East and West Germany has been shelved. This would have picked up Russia's proposed approach toward German unity but would have included Western ideas for an independent, democratic all-German government.

3. A U.S.-proposed peace treaty draft for all Germany has virtually been scrapped. Instead the West will unveil only a "set of principles" which would guide a later peace pact.

Von Brentano said the Allies must remain united in the face of the Soviet challenge and must not abandon basic principle.

Italy's Foreign Minister Giuseppe Pella firmly supported Von Brentano's no retreat in Berlin stand as did Canada's Pearkes, Denmark's Jens Otto Krag, Norway's Halvard M. Lange, Greece's Panayotis Kanellopoulos, Netherlands Foreign Minister Joseph M. Luns, Turkish Foreign Minister Fatin R. Zorlu, and Belgium's Pierre Wigny.

ASCOLI PICENO, Italy — (UPI) — Authorities said that six persons were killed when a landslide crushed a farmhouse. The slide, triggered by heavy rains in recent days, wiped out a whole family.

Militiamen Organizing In Haiti

PORT AU PRINCE, Haiti—(UPI)—President Francois Duvalier said Friday 25,000 men and women volunteers are ready to take up arms at a moment's notice to defend the government against invasion or rebellion.

But, in an interview in the Presidential Palace, Duvalier minimized the dangers of either external or internal attack.

Duvalier said the civilians did not have their own weapons but were issued them by the army for training. The weapons, he said, were returned to the arsenals but were available immediately in the event of invasion or revolt.

Duvalier explained that the volunteer army was formed after eight men seized the Port-Au-Prince army barracks in an abortive revolt last July 29 and called on his government to surrender. He said he was unaware of the size of the rebel force and appealed by radio to the people for help.

Thousands of civilians responded, he said, and the rebels were killed. Shortly afterward, he added, "volunteer groups were formed throughout the country."

"Haitians love their fatherland and are willing to fight for it," Duvalier said.

I'll Seek U.S. Loans --Castro

American Press Draws New Blast

By Herald Wire Services

HAVANA, Cuba — Prime Minister Fidel Castro says he will be looking for money as well as defending "Cuba and her revolution" on his visit to the U.S. later this month.

The bearded revolutionary told a TV audience he will seek loans from the U.S. Export-Import Bank and "all sources of credit possible."

The Batista government left only 70 million dollars in the treasury, Castro said, adding that Cuba's economic situation was further aggravated by falling sugar prices and increased competition from other sugar countries.

Castro is leaving for Washington April 15 on an unofficial visit as the guest of the American Society of Newspaper Editors. He accepted the invitation before becoming prime minister Feb. 2.

Castro said he was "anxious personally to explain my program to the U.S. press and people."

During a four-hour telecast he charged that American wire services did not quote him correctly and that Time magazine, The Miami Herald and other newspapers were waging a "campaign of lies" against his regime.

Castro also termed former Costa Rican President Jose Figueres a "bad friend" and "false democrat" for having suggested that the Castro regime was influenced by Communists.

Meanwhile revolutionary firing squads Friday shot four more convicted collaborators of former Dictator Fulgencio Batista, bringing to 500 the unofficial total number of "war criminals" executed since Jan. 1.

Three were executed in Santa Clara and one in Santiago. Castro predicted near the beginning of the trials that no more than 400 would be executed.

Revolutionary tribunals nevertheless continued to grind out death sentences. Two more were condemned in the last 24 hours, 10 others sentenced to prison terms ranging up to 15 years, seven were absolved and one death sentence was ratified on appeal.

Ohio Judge Dies Of Heart Attack

LOUISVILLE, Ky. — (AP) — James Garfield Stewart, Ohio Supreme Court judge, suffered a fatal heart attack Friday in a downtown hotel.

He was the father of Associate Justice Potter Stewart of the U.S. Supreme Court.

Stewart came here to address the Kentucky State Bar Association.

Stewart, 78, had been on the Ohio high court since 1947. He also served as mayor of Cincinnati from 1938 to 1947 and once had been a leading trial lawyer in Cincinnati.

The younger Stewart was named to the high court of the U.S. last October.

Johnson's Cautious

Here are highpoints in Senate President Dewey M. Johnson's legislative outlook:

JOHNSON

REAPPORTIONMENT — "Hopeful" for a compromise.

TAXES — Avoid them by eliminating some programs.

WELFARE — "Tighter control" on spending.

SEGREGATION — After every other remedy is exhausted, let voters decide whether schools should be closed rather than integrate.

CONSTITUTIONAL REVISION — "A certain amount" but "I want to retain old, basic 'safety valves' of our present constitution."

Senate President's View

'Legislative Action Needs Sound Plans'

some provisions of the Alabama law and considering such other grounds as would come within recent U.S. Supreme Court decisions.

Some form of parent-option plan is in order. What worries me is that it does not apply until integration is ordered.

A better plan may be offered which would provide for scholarship in tuition granted to any student, white or colored, who enters a private non-sectarian school. The payment would be made from the general revenue fund as distinguished from school funds.

Whenever a child is withdrawn from public school in the county, the county's minimum foundation grant from the state would be reduced by the same amount the state is contributing to the child to attend a private school. The actual expense from tax dollars would be exactly the same.

After every other remedy is exhausted, I think there ought to be a provision to permit qualified voters of a school district to determine whether schools should be closed rather than integrated.

It should call for the closing of all schools in the district both white and colored, not just an isolated school.

The legislature must keep in mind that we are fighting for the rights of the better class colored citizens as well as white.

Keep 'Check and Balances'

REAPPORTIONMENT — My experience from the "give and take" attitude finally reached in 1957 indicates that such an atmosphere again can result in reaching a solution that will be worth letting the people decide for themselves by submitting a constitutional amendment.

We will never reach now, or 50 years from now, a perfect solution that is going to meet 100 per cent approval in the extra-large counties and the exceedingly small counties.

The "check and balance" in the Federal Congress dates back to 1787 and Florida early adopted a similar check and balance in the two houses of our Legislature. The states in the U.S. Senate have the same amount of representation and House is based on population.

I don't recommend that we go quite that far.

With minimum limitations of one representative to a county, I think apportionment in the House should be based strictly on population. In the Senate I believe a number of factors should be considered that will effectively carry out the theory of check and balance.

While the present formula may not be quite equitable and fair, it would definitely be unfair to the smaller counties to determine complete control in both houses by population. If we would adopt the same formula for representation in both Houses then we would no longer need both houses.

In order to give relief to some congested areas, additional senatorial districts seem to be the answer.

Some Revisions Likely

CONSTITUTIONAL REVISION — I believe the legislature will draft a certain amount. Personally I want to retain old basic "safety valves" of our present constitution.

A vigorous low pressure disturbance over Lake Huron accounted for showers across the Northern Appalachians.

At noon 70 degree temperatures extended from the Gulf coast into the Carolinas and 60's accompanied warming southerly breezes into portions of the Ohio Valley and mid-Atlantic states. In the wake of low pressure off the North Atlantic coast northwesterly winds prevailed along the New England coast but sunshine pushed temperatures into the 50's.

A cold front trailing southward from Lake Huron extended southwestward into Texas. Brisk northwesterly winds pressed cold air southward over most of the midsection of the country with temperatures in the 40's in the northern plains while 80's appeared in southern Texas.

A pattern of fair to partly cloudy skies over the far West found late morning temperatures in the 40's and 50's in the Northern Pacific states while portions of the warm southwest were pushing toward the 90 degree mark.

Eastern Given Edge In Airport Space Race

Eastern returned, signed, a lease form sent it by L. E. Wagener, airport manager. National Airlines, which has inquired about space, has not returned a similar form.

The County Commission will probably decide Tuesday whether to approve Eastern's lease.

Eastern and National have been authorized to serve Broward International. Delta and Northwest Orient have applied for permission.

AROUND BROWARD

All for Naught

Burglars took a lot of trouble to break into the Kwik-Chek at 1117 S. Federal Hwy. in FORT LAUDERDALE early Friday.

They stacked up cartons outside, climbed to a 10-foot roof on a storage room. From there they shinnied up to another roof eight feet higher.

There they pried up plywood and tarpaper covering an unused skylight. They clambered in onto some cartons in a storage room.

The burglars found no money in the cash registers and despite hammering a pay telephone with a meat cleaver, couldn't get into the coin box.

So — they stole two bags of nuts . . . pecans and pistachios.

Just What's Kneeded; City's Name on Bread

Herald Bureau

HOLLYWOOD — The woman who added diet bread to the American shopping list is opening up shop here.

Mrs. Eleanor R. Hansberry, 46, whose low-calorie Hollywood Bread hit the market 21 years ago, said she will move her headquarters here from Chicago.

"I will bring only key personnel with me and employ about 25 persons here," said Mrs. Hansberry. The move will be made in October, she said.

An architect is working on the building plans, details of which will be announced later. Negotiations are under way for the purchase of the office site, said Mrs. Hansberry.

Hollywood bread, franchised to 262 bakeries throughout the U.S. and Canada, has brought a small fortune to its inventor.

"I was on a diet and wanted toast for breakfast," said Mrs. Hansberry, explaining how she first got the idea.

The idea for moving to Hollywood came pretty naturally too. Mrs. Hansberry has a home at 900 N. Lake Dr., and "Hollywood is a natural for Hollywood Bread." Her product originally was named after that other Hollywood.

Builder Says Tax Mixup Won't Hurt Home Owners

By CLARENCE ZAITZ
North Broward Bureau

POMPANO BEACH — Home owners in Pompano Beach Highlands "won't be stuck" for unpaid property taxes stemming from a special assessment in 1927, a spokesman for the Mackle Co. said Friday.

The firm's attorney couldn't be reached, but Tom Ferris, public relations director, said:

"Our company is too big to pull a stunt like that. We're taking care of the matter. No property owner will be stuck."

The issue involved a special assessment levied when the area was part of Deerfield Beach in 1927.

When property owners bought their homes from the Mackle Co. they received warranty deeds showing that the land was clear of any incumberance.

Walter Hearn, tax collector in Deerfield Beach, said Mackle has paid taxes predating 1955, but none since.

"It's not the money," one property owner reported. "My share is only $15 to $20. It's the principle. We bought our homes believing that the land was clear of any debt."

Hearn and Clarence Landsittel, city manager at Deerfield Beach, said property owners are being held responsible for the debt and that foreclosure action will be taken June 1 if delinquent taxes aren't paid.

Phone Listing Protest Raised at Pompano

Herald Bureau

POMPANO BEACH — Telephone company officials here said Friday they haven't been instructed to include all Broward County listings in a metropolitan directory next fall.

Subscribers who live north of 48th St. here, while having Pompano Beach mailing addresses, are listed in the Boca Raton - Deerfield Beach exchange.

The Pompano Beach Highlands Civic Association was told Thursday the State Railroad and Public Utilities Commission had ordered the metropolitan directory.

"That's news to me," said Ralph Loos, manager of the telephone company's North Broward operation. "I'll look into it, but we haven't received any instructions."

Subscribers living north of 48th St. are required to pay a 30-cent toll to call Fort Lauderdale.

"It's not right," complained Albert Nute, 5249 NE 18th Ave. "We're in the county and if I need to call the sheriff's office or some other county office it costs me 30 cents."

Loos said exchange boundaries are determined by population centers and added that he knew of no plan to change the present setup.

They were Robert Talley, 17, of 7200 Taft St., and Edward Russell, 19, Harry Rever, 21, and Rudolph di Giorgio, 24, all of the Sevine Motel.

SERTAPEDIC*-'59 SLEEP SET
with the first new sleep "Angle" for the home in 7,000 recorded years!

When head end is raised, Sertapedic mattress and box spring rest at the angle found useful for asthma victims, cardiac sufferers, or for those with other respiratory ailments, including the common cold.

When foot end is raised, Sertapedic mattress and box spring rest at the angle frequently prescribed in circulatory disturbances, pregnancy and post-surgical conditions.

When both ends are raised, the labor of bed making is reduced. The hospital bed height is convenient for home care.

If you have any symptoms of illness, consult your physician for the Tilt-A-Bed position best suited to you.

Tilt-A-Bed is the first home unit with beneficial sleep angle

Now . . . after 7,000 years . . . man has discovered a new "angle" on sleep for the home . . . an angle that will change the habits of centuries . . . make all old-fashioned mattresses and beds obsolete.

Doctors have long recommended the useful effects of sleeping at an angle. And now, Serta presents the '59 Sleep Set with Tilt-A-Bed action that will bring this new angle to your home.

Come in and see the Sertapedic-'59 Sleep Set with Tilt-A-Bed action . . . the most revolutionary kind of sleep equipment existing. You can own it for little more than the cost of an ordinary mattress and box spring.

Remarks on Religion

Bible In the Schools

By ADON TAFT
Herald Religion Editor

The threat this week of a lawsuit to halt the reading of the Bible in Miami's public schools has focused attention here on a national problem of growing dimensions.

And in the light of these developments, it seems to me that some remarks made by Dr. James M. Godard, executive vice president of the University of Miami, at the meeting Thursday night of the Texas Association of Church Related Colleges in Houston, deserve a wider audience.

Dr. Godard began by noting that, "Until teaching is accomplished by automation, the impact of a professor's teaching will be influenced by the pattern of beliefs which he holds. Even though the teacher may not directly present these beliefs in his teaching, in the interaction between himself and his students there is a subtle transmission of more than course material."

He went on to say that, "The church-related college has no monopoly on faculty who believe in God, but it does have an opportunity for the deliberate selection of faculty who do possess this quality."

* * *

Result: Excellence

Belief in God produces a high regard for excellence, said Dr. Godard. "When excellence is considered as an attribute of divine perfection, it is not only admired and respected, it is also loved as a part of the dynamics of the love of God."

The love of God produces a compassion in the educator which makes the individual student sacred to him, Dr. Godard said. "Each student is an important person. Even when he fails your course he is important."

Dr. Godard concluded by saying that if belief in God functions in a school's program, "the graduate should have developed a faith in the existence of a cosmic pattern and in a process which we might call destiny."

"Our God is not a God of chaos but a God of order. This faith should be so apparent in the personalities of the president, the deans, the faculty and the staff that the student will have the opportunity of seeing its validity."

* * *

Practices His Belief

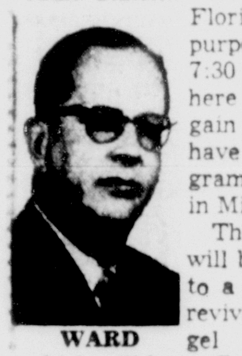
Admittedly Dr. Goddard was addressing educators from church-related colleges, but he made it clear he felt that Christianity enhances education in any school because of the very nature of our faith.

And Dr. Godard believes what he said to the point of practicing it, for he is an active member of the Coral Gables Congregational Church and encourages student religious activities on the campus at the University of Miami.

C. M. Ward To Talk At Assemblies Rally

A sectional rally of the Assemblies of God from Key West to West Palm Beach will be addressed next Friday at Evangel Temple by a national radio preacher.

He is the Rev. C. M. Ward, speaker on the denomination's "Revivaltime" heard over 330 radio stations—10 of them in Florida. The purpose of the 7:30 p.m. rally here will be to gain support to have the program broadcast in Miami.



WARD

The rally also will be a prelude to a three-week revival at Evangel Temple which will begin Sunday, April 12.

Evangelist for the campaign will be the 22-year-old British preacher, the Rev. Philip Jackson, of London. He has just concluded what started out to be a two-week revival that ended up as a 34-week campaign in New York City.

He will return to England from here.

College Choir Concert Set

The Presbyterian College Choir will present a concert in the sanctuary of Miami Shores Presbyterian Church at 7:45 p.m. Tuesday. The choir is composed of 28 men under the direction of Dr. Edward Patte.

Scenes of what are described as actual demon possession on the Island of Bali will be shown in the missionary film "A Cry in the Night" slated at 7:30 p.m. Sunday at the Key Biscayne Presbyterian Church, which meets in the elementary school.

* * *

"The Challenge of the Cross," directed by Mrs. Charles Alford, will be presented at the 8:45 and 11 a.m. Sunday services at Fulford Methodist Church. Barbara Boen, Joyce Boyer, Patty Gail Keifer, Patricia Wellner, Ann Robertson, Kay Lape and Karen Barnfather have parts.

* * *

The Greater Miami Council of Churches drama department will give another performance of "Christ in the Concrete City" at 7:45 p.m. Sunday at the Miami Shores Presbyterian Church.

Gables To Host Meet

The 76th annual meeting of the Florida Congregational Christian Conference will be held Wednesday through Friday at the Coral Gables Congregational Church.

Some 44 churches from over the state will be represented at the sessions where Dr. Arthur W. Newell and Dr. Earle H. Ballou will be the featured speakers.

Dr. Newell has been pastor of St. John's Evangelical and Reformed Church in Richmond, Va., since 1938. He has headed his denomination's commission on higher education and been moderator of the General Synod.

He will be the 8 p.m. Wednesday speaker.

Dr. Ballou, is executive secretary of the Congregational Christian service committee and has been in charge of relief activities since 1950. Before that he was a missionary to China.

He will speak at the 12:30 p.m. Thursday luncheon of the Women's Fellowship.

More than 200 delegates are expected to be on hand when the conference opens with a report by Dr. Arthur Stanley Wheelock on the progress of the fund-raising program for the expansion of facilities of the conference center in Avon Park.

Sunday School Clinic Draws National Baptist Leaders

The biggest Sunday school training and expansion program in Florida history will be launched here today and continue for one week under the direction of 52 of the nation's top religious education workers from 10 states.

Only program of its kind to be held in the nation during 1959, the Sunday school clinic will open with briefing at Central Baptist Church at 2:30 this afternoon and then spread to more than 60 cooperating churches of the Miami Baptist Association on Sunday.

WASHBURN BARNETTE

Dr. A. V. Washburn, Sunday school department secretary of the Southern Baptist Convention, from Nashville, will head the team of experts who will lead classes and workshops on the purpose of Sunday schools, laws of school growth, provision of space, adopting a program of work, visitation and training programs.

At the briefing session this afternoon final plans will be made for the most extensive religious census ever taken in this area which will be conducted Sunday when Baptists workers will attempt to reach 400,000 homes.

Special cards in Spanish will be used in the census in areas where Puerto Rican and Cuban-background residents live.

And two missionaries from Cuba — Dr. Herbert Caudill and Dr. Jose M. Sanchez — will work with the nine Baptist Spanish missions in the enlargement campaign.

Some 2,000 Sunday school teachers and officers are expected to attend the 9 a.m. to noon daily classes at Central Baptist beginning Monday and then go back to their own churches, under the direction of 300 pastors and educational workers here for the clinic, to put the theories into practice each night.

INGRAHAM HOWSE

A feature of this phase of the program will be a daily "airlift" of workers from Key Largo, Marathon and Key West. J. P. Wallace and Robert Farmer will pilot the planes provided by the Kendall Flying School.

The first major address in the clinic will be given Monday morning by Dr. J. N. Barnette, former secretary of the Southern Baptist Sunday School Board. His topic will be "Reach the People for Bible Teaching." He was head of the Sunday school work for 30 years before he retired in 1957.

LACKEY HOWELL

Other major speakers will be Dr. Harold E. Ingraham, director of the board's service division, "Teach To Win the Lost," on Wednesday; Dr. W. L. Howse, education division director, "Teach To Develop the Saved" Thursday; and Dr. Homer Lindsay, of Jacksonville's First Baptist Church, "Teach to Build Strong Churches," on Friday.

Additional leaders from Nashville will include Lawson Hatfield, superintendent of new Sunday school work; Mrs. Will S. McCraw, superintendent of extension work; John T. Sisemore, superintendent of adult work; James V. Lackey, superintendent of young people's work; William A. Cox, superintendent of intermediate work; Mrs. Lillian M. Rice, superintendent of junior work; Robert A. Dowdy, superintendent of primary work; Miss Helen Young, superintendent of beginner work; Mrs. Douglas Hills, superintendent of cradle roll work.

H. Taylor Bowers, education director at Central Baptist, is general chairman for the clinic.

'Talk Back' TV Series Readied

One of the most talked about series of religious programs in television history will be presented by the Greater Miami Council of Churches over Channel 10 beginning at 1 p.m. Sunday.

"Talk Back," a series of programs based on the 13 problems that a national poll says trouble Americans most, will give viewers an opportunity to take part, as the title indicates.

Each problem will be presented in a 12 minute filmed drama featuring top professional actors.

This will be followed by a live discussion from the studios of Channel 10, where the Rev. Dale H. Ratliff, director of the Protestant Service Bureau, will be the host and moderator.

Viewing groups are being organized at various churches in the area where each group will carry on its own discussion in an effort to encourage individual solutions to the problems rather than pat or pious answers.

In the half dozen cities where it has been tried, the program has gone over exceptionally well, according to the Rev. William C. Swygert, program coordinator for the Council of Churches.

The first show Sunday will dramatize a family situation in which the pressures of modern day living explode.

Making up the panel which will discuss possible solutions on the air will be Mrs. H. D. Freeman, president of the Woman's Society of Christian Service in the Miami District of the Methodist Church; Larry Zeibarph, a Lutheran insurance man; and Ellen Severson, a student at the University of Miami.

Discussion groups already have been organized at White Temple Methodist Church, Wesley Methodist Church, Granada Presbyterian Church and Palmetto Presbyterian Church. Others are being formed and you may find the one closest to you by calling MO 1-8333.

To Study Migrants

First-hand information on the needs of migrant families as well as work being done by the Florida Christian Ministry to Migrants and other agencies will be heard by the Greater Miami United Church Women when they meet at 9:30 a.m. Thursday at Wesley Methodist Church.

Speakers will include leaders in this work throughout the state, headed by the Rev. Paul M. Cassen of West Palm Beach.

The Rev. Julius Scipio, of Pompano, the Rev. Isaac Henerson, of South Dade, Bryan Page, of the state employment service, and Mrs. Sarah Abrisch, Dade public health nurse, will discuss why migrants are not self-supporting, why they need child care and housing aid.

ST. AUGUSTINE — Blindness since birth has proved no handicap to Lillian Carole Snow, 14, and Carol Tompkins, 13, as far as spelling prowess is concerned.

Winner and runner-up in the Spelling Bee at their school, Florida State School for the Deaf and the Blind, they'll compete in the St. Johns County finals here on April 8 with 20 top spellers from 10 other schools in the county. St. Johns is the northernmost county participating in the Miami Herald Spelling Bee.

Lillian, a winner from State School last year, finished third in the county finals then, just missing the trip to Miami. This will be Carol's first year in the county finals.

Lillian, a seventh grader, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Snow, Eau Gallie. Sixth grader Carol's parents are Mr. and Mrs. T. Tompkins of Jacksonville.

Both pupils are vivacious teenagers with a zest for life and learning. They like "cool" clothes, have hobbies and dance with a strong preference for rock and roll.

Blond Lillian and brunette Carol swim in the school pool, participate in athletics and enjoy playing the piano.

Also they would like to collect autographs of rock and roll artists, but so far have been able to collect only the signatures of the Everly Brothers, singers. Now there is an Everly Brother's fan club at the school.

In addition to using braille writers, and they're not called typewriters, they also use the conventional typewriter. Their teachers say that it is because of their excellency in spelling that typing comes so easy for them.

Both girls read braille efficiently, and it is with amazing rapidity that their fingers run over the raised dots as they study their textbooks or read braille magazines. The average braille student reads silently about as fast as the sight reader reads aloud.

Rough Draft Ready

Bill Would Aid Segregation in Florida Schools

TALLAHASSEE — (UPI) — A bill to encourage public support of private schools in the event of forced integration was drafted Friday by Rep. Gordon Frederick of Seminole County.

Frederick said he will introduce the bill Wednesday, the day after the 1959 legislature opens. He sent a rough draft to the attorney general's office with instructions to eliminate any legal kinks.

The bill would give taxpayers who contribute to private schools a credit on the taxes they would normally pay for support of the public schools.

The credit would be limited to one-half of the contribution, but could not exceed the individual's total annual school tax bill.

Frederick said the restrictions probably would limit an individual to an annual tax credit of no more than $60 or $80. He said he intended the credit to cover only the county property taxes collected for school operations.

The rough draft referred to state taxes, which might have included sales taxes earmarked for school operations, but Frederick said that will be removed.

School Superintendent Thomas Bailey said he has not seen the bill, but offhand he sees some administrative and legal problems and fears it might jeopardize the already shaky county school financial structure.

Atty. Gen. Richard Ervin declined to comment, and said he will stick to the private school tuition plan he and Bailey previously proposed.

The Bailey-Ervin plan was offered as "pop off valve" for parents who refuse to send their children to an integrated school and cannot afford to educate them privately.

Frederick said his bill would offer no relief of this type.

People who pay no real estate taxes for school support would get nothing under his bill. Nor would the tax credit apply on tuition paid to private schools.

It would operate only if a taxpayer made a financial contribution toward the private school, in addition to the regular tuition for his child's education.

Teamster School Move Hit

TALLAHASSEE — (UPI) — State School Superintendent Thomas D. Bailey spoke out Friday against unionization of teachers by outside labor organizations.

Bailey's statement was prompted by a request from a Broward County school official for an opinion on whether teachers could legally affiliate with the Teamsters union.

The opinion was asked by D. A. Dessenberger. Bailey said he has asked Dessenberger for more details so he can seek a legal ruling from Atty. Gen. Richard Ervin.

He did not advocate any union for teachers, he said, but would vigorously oppose any attempt to sign them up in an organization they do not themselves control.

Tampa Area Telephone Rates Going Up 10 Pct.

TALLAHASSEE —(AP)— The Florida Railroad and Public Utilities Commission in a split decision Friday authorized General Telephone Co. to increase its rates effective April 6 to bring in an additional $1,620,495 a year.

The company, which operates in Tampa, St. Petersburg and other areas around Tampa Bay, had asked a rate hike of four million dollars a year.

Commissioners Alan Boyd and Wilbur King voted for the increase. The commission chairman, Jerry W. Carter, said the policies and operations of the company and the case it presented to the commission did not justify the increases granted.

General Telephone Co. had asked the higher rates on the ground that it had to have a greater return on its investment to attract capital for a proposed 25 million dollar expansion program.

Cities in its service area include Tampa, St. Petersburg, Winter Haven, Sarasota, Clearwater, Bartow, Bradenton, Auburndale, Lake Wales, Mulberry, Tarpon Springs, Plant City, New Port Richey and Venice.

Of the $1,620,495 the company will net only about $765,457, the commission said. The remainder will go to pay federal income tax and the state's 1½ per cent utility tax.

The overall rate increase is about 10 per cent, instead of the 40 per cent increase the company had sought.

A one-party business telephone in Tampa now costs $9.75 a month, a two-party business telephone $7.75 and a four-party business telephone $6.25.

She Gets 10 Years In Burning of 2 Tots

BARTOW —(UPI)— Juanita Irene Hamil, 21, who tried to burn her two young children to death last January, was sentenced to 10 years in prison Friday.

Mrs. Hamil pleaded guilty before Criminal Court Judge Roy H. Amidon on two counts of trying to commit murder, arson and adultery.

She got 10 years for attempting two murders, the sentence to run concurrently with five years for arson and two years for adultery.

She was charged with splashing gasoline on her two children at their Polk City home, locking them in a bathroom and setting them afire. Sharon Key, 4, was badly burned, but Olin Vivian, 3, escaped with only minor burns.

Mrs. Hamil, divorced from the father of the children said at the time she did it because the children were "getting on my nerves."

After she had set their clothes afire and locked the bathroom door, however, she lost her nerve and went screaming for help. Two men, neighbors, battered down the bathroom door and saved the lives of the children.

The little girl, Sharon Kay, is now taking skin grafts in a Lakeland hospital. The three-year-old boy has been living in a Lakeland childrens home.

Both will be put in the custody of their maternal grandmother, Mrs. Marguerite Highbargin of Iola, Kan.

William Ernest Clabo, who was living with Mrs. Hamil at the time of the incident, also pleaded guilty to adultery. He was sentenced to one year in jail or a $500 fine.

'Conflict' Plan Issued By Larson

TALLAHASSEE — (AP) — State Insurance Commissioner J. Edwin Larson Friday released a proposed revision of Florida insurance laws which would ban certain conflicts of interest.

A new section would prohibit the insurance commissioner or any employes of his department from being financially interested in any insurance company or agency.

It also would prohibit the commissioner or any employe from receiving any "fee, compensation, loan, gift or other thing of value" in addition to his regular pay for any service rendered.

The section would not prohibit an insurer from making a loan to the commissioner or a department employe through regular channels if the loan was adequately secured. Nor would it prevent the insurance company from acquiring or holding such a loan or investment originally made by others.

Larson announced early last year he would propose such a law after The Miami Herald reported he borrowed money from insurance companies under his supervision and owned stock in two Florida companies.

Production Rising But Number of Jobs Shrinking

Economists say the recession is about over. Then why is unemployment falling behind rising production? And how much is automation to blame for current joblessness? Here is a report in depth on what is happening in fast-changing America, and why.

By ROGER GREENE
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON — The business recession in the U.S. may be about over, but it has left a painful paradox in its wake.

Reduced to simplest terms: Unemployment hasn't melted fast enough in an economy once again moving into high gear.

Industry has been accelerating the trend to push-button factories, robot production lines and automatic offices. And in the labor market, a broad band of vanished jobs appears.

The transition is far-reaching, and not directly connected with the recession, but today's lagging re-employment serves to focus attention afresh on what labor leaders call "the silent revolution."

As yet, the full story is only beginning to emerge. Day-by-day changes in the vast U.S. industrial and business complex are far too numerous to be accurately tabulated. And automation, in itself, is no longer new.

One thing, however, is clear: the lifting of the 1957-58 recession has disclosed a broad wake of vanished jobs. Some have disappeared forever.

Part of the answer, at least, lies in automation.

Despite a steadily growing labor force — increasing at the rate of nearly a million a year — automation-equipped factories, farms, mines, railroads and business offices manage to keep the economy humming with fewer and fewer workers.

To the army of jobless, averaging $30.62 a week in unemployment compensation, the situation is fraught with tragedy.

Yet there is a grain of humor, as well as truth, in the tart comment by Mrs. Effie Blackard, 56, wife of a jobless Roanoke, Va., textile worker:

"With automatic machines taking over so many jobs, it looks like the men have finally outsmarted themselves."

James B. Carey, president of the International Union of Electrical Workers, puts it this way:

"The spread of automation poses for American industry one of the greatest challenges we will have to meet.

"If it is handled humanely and wisely, it can be a boon not only to industry but to all mankind. If handled greedily, with emphasis on profits, it can be a disaster of the first magnitude."

Two men in a Chicago radio plant assemble 1,000 radios a day using automation; the same job once took 200 workers. A skeleton staff of technicians now runs an entire 40-million-dollar oil refinery by remote control from a panel of instruments.

And in some food plants, the entire canning process, including the manufacture of cans and shipping cartons, is completely automatic, untouched by human hands.

AFL-CIO President George Meany says industry is now producing more goods with a million fewer workers than in 1942.

U.S. production, he says, has recovered about three-fourths of what it lost in the slump, but only one-fourth of the recession-idled workers have got their jobs back.

"Industry squeezed a lot of water out of the work force during the recession," says a Boston industrialist, who asked his name be withheld.

By "water," he meant excess or inefficient workers who were dropped when the economy faltered.

Seymour L. Wolfbein, chief of the Labor Department's manpower division, says there are about 212,000 fewer factory production workers on the job today than a year ago. But in mid-January these fewer employes worked six million more man-hours per week than did the larger force a year ago.

Wolfbein cited figures showing a steady downward employment trend in some of the nation's major industries where automation has taken root:

1 — Manufacturing — 15,700,000 employes at the end of 1958 compared with 17,200,000 in 1953, down 1½ million.

2 — Autos — 627,000 average in 1958 vs. 929,000 in 1953, down 302,000.

3 — Railroads — Except in World War II, railroad jobs have been dwindling steadily since 1920 under the double-barreled impact of mechanization and growing competition from trucks, planes and private cars. In 1951, the railroads employed 1,400,000; 1,200,000 in 1956; 950,000 in 1958.

4 — Textiles — In trouble for a long time, the industry employed 1,271,000 in 1951 vs. 959,000 late in 1958, a drop of 312,000.

Government economists say three per cent nationwide unemployment is normal — due to seasonal layoffs, temporary factory shutdowns and other factors — whereas anything over six per cent is classified as distressed.

Officially, then, the nation as a whole is distressed on the job front. March figures show 4,700,000 jobless — nearly seven per cent of the total U.S. labor force of 67,400,000.

President Walter P. Reuther of the United Auto Workers says that in addition to the 4,700,000 officially listed as jobless, at least 1½ million others are too discouraged to seek work and don't show on the unemployed rolls.

Management says that with union demands for ever higher wages, it must turn to labor-saving devices in order to survive. In other words: Automate or die.

Reuther has his own answer to that. He tells of visiting a newly automated Ford plant and having an official ask him:

"How are you going to collect union dues from those robot machines?"

"And how," retorted Reuther, "are you going to get the robots to buy Fords?"

The solution to the problem as advocated by most union leaders — and strongly opposed by most management officials — is a shorter work week, longer vacations and earlier retirement.

The unions argue that this would spread the work among the steadily increasing labor force, and at the same time maintain the level of consumer purchasing power needed to keep the economy rolling smoothly.

The AFL-CIO executive council, meeting in San Juan, Puerto Rico, in February, called on Congress to enact a mandatory 35-hour work week for some 28 million American workers this year.

Some government economists and industry spokesmen insist the unions are over-emphasizing the threat of automation.

James X. Ryan, Philadelphia, regional manager of the National Association of Manufacturers, declares:

"Testimony before the Senate-House economic committee indicates that automation is applicable in the near future to less than eight per cent of the industries of America.

"Since these industries utilize about one-quarter of the labor force, apparently less than 25 per cent of the labor force will be affected by automation.

"Technological advances have always made more jobs."

Wolfbein predicts automation will help create 10 million new jobs and bring about a 50 per cent increase in gross national product from 450 billion to 675 billion dollars by 1965.

For millions of jobless Americans, however, the immediate outlook is etched in gloom.

On Capitol Hill, lawmakers in both the Senate and House have risen in increasing numbers lately to paint a black picture of suffering by thousands of jobless families in their states.

Sen. Robert C. Byrd (D., W. Va.), for example, told the Senate that 278,000 West Virginians are subsisting on meager handouts of government surplus food — known as "Molligrub" — and 89,700 have lost their jobs in the hard-hit coal mining areas.

In a survey covering the worst-hit areas, Associated Press reporters found much the same story, endlessly repeated.

Take the sparkling clean city of Roanoke, Va., "The Star City of the South," nestled between the Alleghenies and the Blue Ridge Mountains at the southern end of the rich Shenandoah Valley.

With 6,800 jobless out of a 69,000 working force, Roanoke qualifies as a heavily distressed area, though by no means one of the worst.

Washington Ready for Cultural Center But Needs 'Angel' With $25 Million

No Money Available

The richest nation in the world, with billions to give away to its allies, is about to go around hat-in-hand in an effort to build a national cultural center in Washington so that visiting Soviet artists will have a place in which to exchange their culture.

The dream of a center that will compare with that in Moscow has been in being for a long time but so far all that has materialized is a nine-acre site on the Potomac.

Uncle Sam hasn't got the money for the center though he did give the land. So the 25 million dollars will be raised by donations. Just how this all happened is explained in this article.

WASHINGTON —(AP)— The stage is set for a national cultural center. All it needs is angels with about 25 million dollars and wings to get it off the ground.

In the culture cold war, Washington rates badly. It's one of the few major capitals of the world that doesn't have an opera house. Now it's down to one legitimate theater.

When Russia's famed Moiseyev Dancers came here, they performed in a movie house.

The U.S., anxious to increase cultural exchange with the Soviet, doesn't have anything in its capital city to compare with the showcase Moscow has for theatrical arts.

The idea of building a splendid center for the performing arts has been kicking around Washington practically since Congress began sitting here.

Now, thanks to the 85th Congress, there's a law on the books that provides a scenic nine-acre site overlooking the Potomac—not far from the White House—for "music, opera, drama, dance and poetry." The government will provide the land, but the money has to come from donations.

President Eisenhower has named a 30-member board of trustees headed by Arthur S. Flemming, secretary of health, education and welfare, to raise the money and build the center.

But if the omney—tentatively estimated at 25 million dollars—isn't on hand by Sept. 2, 1963, the whole deal may be off.

That time deadline is what has advocates of the cultural center champing at the bit to get a nationwide fund raising drive going.

So far, though, nothing much has happened and almost six months of the precious time is gone.

Rep. Frank Thompson Jr. (D., N.J.), chief sponsor of the center in Congress, said he feels the project has been "clearly harmed" by what he said were Republican politics in selection of the 15 public members of the board. There are nine Republicans, four Democrats and two independents in the group.

Though the policy-making board has no members from the world of theater and the performing arts, it has a number of persons of wealth, which helps in fund-raising campaigns.

Thompson said the President overlooked naming to the policy-making board "someone deeply versed in the theater, in fund raising and in government."

He suggested Robert Dowling, already head of the American National Theater and Academy, a congressionally-sponsored group to promote the theater.

Dowling, 63, a New York City real estate operator long active in theater, was a leader in setting up New York City's Lincoln Center for the Arts and has offered to help do the same for the national cultural center.

Thompson said he feared Dowling was left off the board because he is a Democrat.

When it came to estimating how much the cultural center would cost, Thompson says he just pulled the 25 million dollar figure "out of a hat," but he feels it is probably a fair figure.

He predicted the funds can be raised in two or three years.

The cultural center, result of a long struggle, already has cost some $94,000—the sum spent by the now defunct District of Columbia auditorium commission in looking for a site and plans.

Misslemen Promotions Proposed

WASHINGTON — (UPI) — President Eisenhower has tapped two of the nation's leading military missile officers for promotion.

Eisenhower announced his intention to nominate Maj. Gen. Bernard A. Schriever to be a lieutenant general and Rear Adm. John T. Hayward to be a vice admiral.

Schriever is now commander of the Air Force Ballistic Missiles Division at Inglewood, Calif. He will become commander of the Air Force Air Research and Development Command at Andrews Air Force Base, Md., succeeding Lt. Gen. Samuel E. Anderson. Anderson was assigned commander of air materiel on March 1.

Hayward, now assistant chief of naval operations for research and development, will be moving into a new job created by a pending Navy reorganization. The new title will be deputy chief of naval operations for development and will add to his present responsibilities management of the Navy's guided missile division as well as other modern weapons development. The naval air arm now handles guided missiles.

Schriever will be succeeded by his deputy, Brig. Gen. Osmond Ritland.

Governor Says

No Fancy Car for Him

DES MOINES —(AP)— The Iowa House has passed a bill to buy a fancy official car for the governor, but Gov. Herschel Loveless says he would be happy driving a low-priced auto.

State law limits the amount spent on a car for the governor to $2,000. Many Iowans say the state's chief executive should drive a prestige automobile.

Loveless said he has ordered a new state car. It will be the same as those driven by the highway patrol — either a Ford, Chevrolet or Plymouth, black with standard transmission.

"I don't care what kind of car I drive," the Democratic governor said. "Cadillacs are for Republicans." He now drives an Oldsmobile handed down from his predecessor.

Icebreaker Limps Back

BOSTON —(AP)— Reputed to be the world's mightiest icebreaker, the U.S. Navy's ship Glacier returned from five months in the Antarctic on one propeller and a prayer. She had lost three in the tremendous South Polar ice fields.

Parking Kick Costs a Buck

SOMEWHERE IN THE AREA there probably is a motorist who parked beside Fort Lauderdale High School last Saturday afternoon and got an unusual parking ticket. It contained a dollar.

Here's the story:

The day before, a young housewife drove downtown and parked beside the high school on SE Second St. (It was Good Friday and there was no school). When she returned to her car she found she'd been given a ticket for parking on a crosswalk which she felt was not clearly defined.

Next day, Saturday, she had occasion to come into town again, to the office of a dentist on Second St. across from the high school. She parked on the south side of the street, directly across from the spot where she had received the ticket the day before. Noticing a car parked in the identical spot where she had got the ticket, she thought, "Ah, ha," and kept an eye on it.

By and by the girl meter checker came along. She passed up the other car without putting a ticket on it, turned at the end of the street and came back the other side. As she passed the car of the watching housewife, the lady stopped her and asked why her car should have gotten a ticket the day before but not the other car parked now in the same spot.

The discussion that ensued was, as can be imagined, indeterminate. Eventually the checker rode on her way, circled the block a time or two, then came back and put a ticket on the other car.

Our lady, still watching from the other side of the street, suffered a pang at having caused the other motorist, whoever he might be, to get a ticket. She slipped across the street and put a dollar in it . . .

Rally's Jazzman Well-traveled

JAZZ TRUMPETER WILD BILL DAVISON, who with his three sidekicks will play for the Herald-Key Club Youth Rally here this afternoon, came back recently from a tour of Europe during which he played for youth groups all through Switzerland, Austria and other countries. He got a big reception everywhere, says the charming Mrs. D., and found it a very rewarding experience.

The Russians, however, gave him a bit of trouble. He was held under technical arrest in East Berlin for a short time for taking pictures. When the Reds found out who he was, the officer who made the arrest got a rough chewing out from his superior.

Entertainers from local spots have been extremely cooperative about taking part in the rallies, which began last year; the teenagers of the county owe a round of applause to Musicians Union Local 655 and its president, Frank Casciola. Hotel and restaurant owners likewise have been very helpful: Fred Muller at the Ocean Manor, Bea Morley, Jimmy Fazio, Ralph Bowler at the Bahama, Tom Stilwell at the Lauderdale Beach, Jack Seymour at the Sea Shore, the fellows at the Surf Lounge, Jimmy Franklin at the Jolly Roger, Harold Gardner at the Diplomat, Howard Sunshine at the Barefoot Mailman, and others . . .

Our Debt for Charmed Existence

THE WINDS PASSED OVER and South Florida again escaped damage. Truly we're leading a charmed existence these days.

This area should be the first with the most anytime a relief appeal comes out of a stricken section of this country. Since every region but ours seems to be hit periodically by floods, tornadoes, fires, drought, blizzards or something, we owe our countrymen a certain debt for our good fortune . . .

Tot Still Critical

HOLLYWOOD — A three-year-old Hallandale girl struck by a car Thursday was still in critical condition at Memorial Hospital Friday.

Lottie M. Isler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Boyd Isler, 202 E. Hallandale Beach Blvd., suffered a concussion, hospital officials said. The driver of the car, Peter P. Reinarz, 25, of 17 SE 10th St., Fort Lauderdale, told police the child darted in front of his car.

Godfrey Joins Starts In 3 New Businesses

By HENRY KINNEY
Herald Staff Writer

FORT LAUDERDALE — Al Starts, Fort Lauderdale's colorful sightseeing boat captain, said Friday that he and TV star Arthur Godfrey have gone into business here with three corporations.

They will manufacture Starts' antique auto, his gasoline engine and his "Pogo Banjo," and build a Mississippi River type showboat.

The firms are the Rollsmobile Corp., the Starts Manufacturing Co. and the Godfrey and Starts Showboat Corp. Starts is president of all three. Two associates of Godfrey also are officers.

Godfrey became interested in the car when Starts demonstrated it at the recent opening of the new Miami International Airport terminal, Starts said.

Production of it will be stepped up shortly from 50 cars a month to about 100, he announced.

The gasoline engine, a small three-quarter horsepower unit, was developed by Starts a number of years ago for bicycles. It has been tested by the Armed Forces as a field generator.

Starts made the Pogo-Banjo from a fruit cake tin, a slat of wood and a pogo-stick mechanism for his "Washboard Band," which performed at his Barbecue Ranch on New River.

He has reason to believe now, he said, that it "can become another hula hoop."

The new boat, Starts said, will be similar to the New River Queen, which he operated here for several years and later sold, but will have three decks.

Starts began operating the sightseeing boat "Jungle Queen" here in 1934, and made it a Fort Lauderdale institution. He sold it last year in protest against a seat tax imposed by the city, after unsuccessfully fighting the tax in the courts.

He put the Rollsmobile, a two-passenger replica of a 1901 model Oldsmobile, into production last year in a plant at 234 SW 29th St.

'Aussie' Teacher Wins Free Cruise

FORT LAUDERDALE — An Australian schoolteacher, Mrs. Shirley Breadmore, will get a free trip in the United States because she wrote effectively about how the study of other countries can improve international relations.

Mrs. Breadmore, 29, who teaches at Oakland Park School, won first prize in an essay contest for teachers conducted by the television show, Bold Journey. In addition to the essay, she was required to take a general information quiz.

Her award was the choice of visiting a ranch in Montana, a ranch in Colorado, taking a 14-day bus trip to California or a schooner cruise off New England.

She chose the cruise, but her husband, James, can't go with her and "he's afraid it will be romantic," she said.

However, Mrs. Breadmore said the historic points of call on the cruise are what decided her on that trip. She will go this summer or next.

The Breadmores have been in Florida six months. They moved from Australia to Canada to be near his parents who live in Vancouver, but "we couldn't stand the climate, so we moved to the warmest spot we could find in the United States.

"I love it here and I love teaching at this school," Mrs. Breadmore said in her clipped, Australian speech.

Her husband teaches at Rock Island Elementary School.

City Balks At Airport Request

Herald Bureau

FORT LAUDERDALE — County commissioners are going to have to give if they want to get, say city commissioners.

The county asked Fort Lauderdale to withdraw its city limits in order that all of Broward International Airport may come under county control. The matter will be discussed Tuesday afternoon.

More than a third of the airport lies within the city.

City commissioners say they're not likely to give up that much of the city willy-nilly.

They might think about it, they said, if county commissioners will think about assuming the full cost of providing ferry service to the county beach and for providing ambulance service to the indigent.

The city now pays half the cost of the ferry service and picks up the tab for emergency service for those who can't pay themselves.

City Commissioner Charles E. Knight has very strong feelings about the ferry service. He goes further. He believes the county should pay for the lifeguards on the beach, since the beach is used by county residents.

Correction

FORT LAUDERDALE — The Rev. F. E. Sneed, of the Mount Herman Church, said he was incorrectly identified in Friday's Herald as the Rev. H. W. Sweeting. Rev. Sneed said the reported quote — that the Negro people's patience has "about run out"—was correct.

Produce Prices Take Further Dip

Herald Bureau

POMPANO BEACH — Average farm produce prices dipped another 20 cents during March as month end totals show 1,038,297 bushels of produce were sold at the State Farmers Market for an average price of $3.06 a bushel, or a total of $3,173,719.

During February, the average price was $3.26, on a total volume of 1,078,610 bushels.

In March 1958, prices averaged $5.71 a bushel, but there was considerably less produce — only 406,257 bushels for the month.

The only commodity to increase in average price was tomatoes, which went from a $1.15 average price per carton in February, to $1.31 in March.

Biggest price depreciation was in cucumbers which averaged $1.96 lower in March than February; they dropped from a $6.99 average to $5.03.

County Bar Unveils New Court Plan

Students Eye Loophole

Use Cafeteria? Guess Again!

By GEORGE LARDNER
Herald Staff Writer

FORT LAUDERDALE — Some high schoolers plan to stick by off-campus snack shops no matter what the School Board does about a proposal for compulsory lunching in school cafeterias.

Freedom, fresh air and fast service were reasons many gave Friday for passing up the cafeteria.

The board will consider Wednesday a recommendation by its Cafeteria Advisory Committee that all junior and senior high students be required to eat in school cafeterias. The policy, if approved, would take effect in September.

The proposal has a loophole, however. Students polled at lunch Friday near Fort Lauderdale High School said they'd squeeze right through.

The recommendation reads: "All students of junior and senior high schools who do not bring their lunch to school will be required to eat at the cafeterias unless they are excused by parents."

"I'd get an excuse," said Pat Snyder, a junior, as she took her lunch at an A & W Drive-In. 'My mother doesn't mind." Other students chorused agreement.

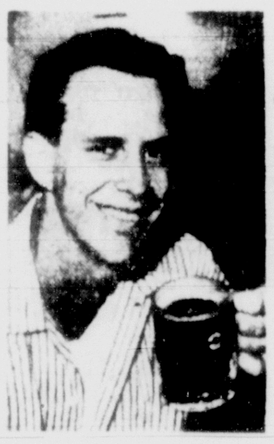
MAC MARTIN



JOE KON

JERRY WELLS

CHUCK DAHLGREN

Restrictions, longer lines and less time to eat were the principal objections to school cafeterias.

"I'd just as soon get out of this cage," said Joe Kon, another junior. "Going out to lunch gives you more time and a little freedom," he said, puffing on a cigaret. He eats in the cafeteria only "when it rains."

Lunch "hour" at Fort Lauderdale High is 35 minutes long. The more than 1,700 students go out in two shifts. Several students estimated the cafeteria will seat between 400 and 500.

"If they tried to get everyone to eat there, they'd need a lunch hour all day long," said Jerry Wells, a junior. "Most students go out to eat and still the cafeteria is packed."

Tom Van Allen, sophomore, "wouldn't be caught dead" in the cafeteria for the same reason. "It takes a year to go in and a year to get out."

A classmate, Roy King, figured that those who get stuck at the end of the cafeteria lines have "only 10 minutes to eat."

"Looks like they're trying to change us into machines," Mac Martin, a junior, remarked with a grin.

Chuck Dahlgren, a graduate of Fort Lauderdale High, said teachers often used to tell students to use the cafeteria when he was in school.

"But lunch-stand food is better," he claimed. "Besides anybody in junior or senior high school is old enough to eat where he wants."

Students at the lunch stands agreed that cafeteria food is inexpensive and fairly good. At the snack shops, however, "your spend a little more BUT you get what you want," said Kon.

The advisory committee said youngsters get healthful meals at the lowest possible cost in cafeterias instead of the "inadequate" meals, such as hamburgers, they get at snack shops.

Proposed Pay Hikes Key Issue

By PETER LAINE
Herald Staff Writer

FORT LAUDERDALE — The Broward County Bar Association recommended legislation Friday to create a new Court of Record manned by four judges and a county solicitor at $15,000-a-year salaries.

It would replace the existing Court of Crimes and the Criminal Court of Record, whose respective judges — Thomas Thompkins and Lois Weissing —would sit in the new court.

Two new judges would be appointed by the governor on the association's recommendation. All four judges would serve until the 1960 election.

The new court would also have jurisdiction over civil cases under 10,000, thereby taking some of the legal burden from Circuit Court.

If passed by the Legislature, the new bill will take effect Aug. 1.

But two county commissioners, Chairman George Petersen and John Bell, expressed concern over the proposed salary increases shortly before the association adopted them.

The raises would boost Judge Thompkins' salary from $9,500 to $15,000, Judge Weissing's from $10,000 to $15,000, County Solicitor Tom Coker's from $11,500 to $15,000, and Court Clerk W. E. Bunch Jr.'s from $10,000 to $12,000.

Assistant County Attorney Joe Easthrope said: "We expect a lot of opposition from taxpayers. Three $15,000-a-year judges could be bogged down in traffic and misdemeanor cases. It may be of great concern to the public."

Eastrope and Sandstrom were among the few objectors as the bill was adopted by a majority show of hands.

County Commissioner Herbert Burke said: "We might as well face it. The higher salaries will induce many very good lawyers to seek office."

The bill would keep the county solicitor's office on the fee system, raising the misdemeanor fee from $6.25 to $8.25. The felony fee would stay at $15.

But the solicitor's salary would be paid by the County Commission, not taken from fee receipts. The commission is authorized to allocate $17,000 a year for the office.

Burke agreed with Petersen and Bell that the office should be taken off the fee system, and run as a budget operation.

The proposed new court would have three divisions — civil, traffic and misdemeanor, and criminal. The civil division judge — one of the two to be appointed — would hear only civil cases.

His three colleagues, however, could hear both civil and criminal actions. The presiding judge would rotate their duties, providing that at least one judge would be assigned at all times to the traffic and misdemeanor division.

All four judges would be required to have at least five years' membership in the Florida Bar.

In separate action, the association recommended increasing the Small Claims Court jurisdiction from $250 to $500.

Deerfield Beach Crash Sends Five to Hospital

DEERFIELD BEACH—Five persons were hospitalized following a two-car crash on Federal Hwy. at SE 10th St., Friday afternoon.

Hospitalized were Anne Ruth Wilkins, 32, of 1410 SE First St., Pompano, driver of one car; and her passenger, Hattie M. Cole, of 1201 NE First St.

The driver of the other auto, Kendall M. Knowlton, 76, of 4510 NE 14th Ave., Pompano, and his passengers, David Livingston, 71, and Stanley Livingston, 12, of 4510 NE 14th Ave., were also taken to Holy Cross Hospital.

No charges had been filed. Police said it appeared the Knowlton car failed to yield the right of way as it entered Federal Hwy.

Mathis and Monica Win Raves

WHAT DO YOU DO when you are both a nightlife reporter and a part-time (very small part!) actor in Sigma Delta Chi's annual Ribs and Roast lampoon which Sid Casell is whipping (sic) into shape at Miami Springs Villa's for an April 8 showing and there are simultaneous demands for your services as a reporter and an actor? Don't be silly. Hand over that greasepaint!

But you, as a saloon reporter, have a problem because there is a show opening at the Fontainebleau Hotel La Ronde Room. That constitutes the writing demand. You just decide to pass up the opening and catch the post-midnight second show. "But dear," dears your dear wifely RIB, "you need your sleep to stay fit for your rehearsals (the last with just a soupcon of sarcasm), I've done it before — let me cover for you."

"Are you mad!" is our pride-stung retort to her presumption. But we accept the offer.

There was, of course, a distinct Mathis in her madness, for singing sensation Johnny Mathis is the current star at the Fontainebleau — and Mathis, the current madness of the record collecting set, is a treat even to a reviewer.

Mathis, Monica a Bit Marvelous

"Johnny Mathis," reports our Papermate helpmate in her review, "is the answer to those who find themselves too old for Elvis and too young for Sinatra. When he last played here you wrote that there was too much of Nat King Cole in his style. Not so now—he's all Mathis and all the Mathis is terrific.

"Oh, that could be because he has varied his selection of tunes to include more of those identified with singers other than Cole. He opens, for instance, with 'My Funny Valentine,' associated with You-Know-Who, who is the champ of the La Ronde Room. This is not exactly a conventional "opening song" either but Mathis scores with it, and from this moment on—which is another number he does—he's in, like Sinatra, with La Ronde's patrons.

"We made a funny for you at the start of this review about Mathis's between-Presley-and-Sinatra appeal. Just a joke. He did seem to bring out a lot more late teen-agers than the usual cafe act, but don't let this mislead your readers into thinking he's for the adolescents only. I—and the rest of the married girls in my section — were properly impressed. And daddy, even you'd like him – especially in his exciting rendition of 'Lover.' Of course he sings 'When I Fall in Love.' It wouldn't be Mathis without that!

"I don't have to tell YOU about Corbett Monica, who is the 'comedy star of the show' as emcee Murray Schlam puts it. You woke me up one night just to tell me how good he was a couple of years ago. So you were right then and even righter now. He's a smooth worker with stories about his house and his wife and his problem of a name that often gets him mash notes from patrons who think he's the girl on the bill.

"Dagmar, who was looking over my shoulder as I made notes for this review, says you'll understand if I tell you that a comedian with the name of "Corbett" fractured his audience. Was there really a fighter by that name in your day, daddy?

"Opening the bill in the usual dance spot is the unusual dancing of Norton and Patricia. We see a lot of teams—this one is one of the very best in the mood in which they perform. Well, that's it. It was easy."

His Chipmunks on Tape Bring Composer Riches

LOS ANGELES —(AP)— David Seville is a fellow who has done pretty well in the chipmunk and witch doctor business. In the past year Seville — real name Ross Bagdasarian — figures he has sold $6,700,000 in novelty records.

The chipmunks who helped him are named Alvin, Theodore and Simon. They are, of course, the Singing Chipmunks on th records "Chipmunk Song" and "Alvin's Harmonica."

The witch doctor? That was the title of the song which launched Seville's big-time career. Earlier Seville helped his cousin, novelist William Saroyan, write "Come On-a My House." It netted Seville only $17,000.

All his money from the past year didn't come from song royalties or record sales. Seville also cashed in on commercial tie-ins with the Chipmunks, whose pictures appear on wallpaper, T-shirts, and cookies.

He also saved some money by not having to hire singers to take their roles. Seville himself is the chipmunks. A tape recorder enables him to achieve the strange sound attributed to Alvin and his pals.

Tipoff On Perfection: Palmer Goes Right to Work on Errors

AUGUSTA, Ga.—Defending champions are never satisfied, as Arnold Palmer demonstrated Friday after the second round of the Masters Golf Tournament. He had scrambled to a 36-34—141, three under par, to lead by two strokes at the halfway mark.

Instead of exulting over displacing Canadian Stan Leonard, first day leader who slumped to a 74, Palmer hastened to the practice area to straighten out his iron shots. In puffing over the hills behind Palmer and Sammy Snead, who added a 73 or 147, I saw Palmer's irons time and again get him into trouble. However, he was like Houdini in making escapes.

MacFARLANE

"Arnold is like the rabbit with the dogs chasing him," said Miamian Willie MacFarlane, a former National Open champion. Willie now agrees with Miami Shores' Jim MacLaughlin that Arnold is likely to become the first repeat champion in the 23 years of this golfing classic.

Before they teed off in the second round, MacFarlane had predicted the golfers who survived the hazards of the 10th, 11th and 12th holes would do well. Palmer played these holes in par, while Leonard, who led opening day with a 69, was two over on the three key holes.

Palmer concedes he's learned some big lessons on the tour. He says, "I used to get disgusted when I didn't play well. I picked up in some tournaments. I wouldn't ever do that now. I have learned not to let bad shots or holes upset me. I have learned never to think I'm out of the running."

"I still play boldly where the situation warrants it," Palmer said. He could have been referring to the 10th, where he had to make a beautiful pitch to salvage a par four after being short with his second. It could have applied to the 11th, where he made a closed wedge recovery from a side-hill lie for a par four. Or the 12th, where he had to pitch from the rough to get his par three.

Previewing the Florida Derby

1. Troilus 2. Easy Spur 3. Sword Dancer

The true story of Palmer's greatness was reflected from him practicing while others were telling about their good shots and trying to forget their poor ones.

Palmer is not afraid of his weaknesses. He tries to correct 'em.

Our Guys Still Struggling

WITH THE exception of Ed Furgol (156), the South Florida contingent was included among the 42 who scored 149, or better, to stick in the scramble.

Dow Finsterwald of Tequesta had a 68 for a 147. He chopped 11 strokes from his opening round of 79. Julius Boros of Fort Lauderdale added a 69 for a 144. Cary Middlecoff of Diplomat made it with a 71 for a 145 and Snead, floundering to a 73, was in with 147.

Finsterwald

"I don't putt well enough to win the Masters," said Boros, but Ed (Porky) Oliver, who also had a 69, gave him an argument on that, remarking, "You are one of the better putters year in and out."

Boris dropped a 15-footer for an eagle three on the 15th and scored three birdies on putts from 15 to 40 feet. He had to settle for a double-bogey five on the 12th, where he drove into the water. It seems duffers are not alone in making splashes. Boros, who tied for fourth in the 1955 Masters, thinks Tom Day's Plantation course is the best in South Florida.

Sam Slays Ben--With Humor

THE THIRD ROUND was played under clear blue skies, warm temperatures and moderate winds — which put one in mind of Florida weather. Perhaps this was why Snead chose to be humorous rather than complaining about his scoring.

In the lockerroom with an appreciative audience, Sammy even had Ben Hogan, who survived the cutoff with his 147, laugh aloud. Once it was difficult even to make Pokerface Ben smile.

HOGAN

Hogan cackled and almost choked on his sandwich when Snead described how he hit far to the right of the 11th to avoid going into the brook back of the green.

"I almost pitched over the green into the water," Hogan said and laughed again when Sammy told of finding his drive in the woods off the 13th tee, "in a hole, in a rut."

77 Reasons for Sadness

JACKIE BURKE came in looking more disconsolate than Clure (Scrooge) Mosher after one of his "sure things" has run out at Gulfstream.

"I got along beautifully," Jackie retorted when asked how he did.

BURKE

"What was the happy score?" Hogan persisted and Jackie ruefully answered, "A 77."

"Jackie," said Snead, "you're only 32 years old. You'll have a lot more seventy sevens."

"Maybe," Burke agreed. "But why did it have to come today?"

Burke's sadness was not contagious, because Sammy was in a good humor and allowed he expects to shoot a 67 in the third round. He made one qualification.

"I'll do it, if I can get past the 10th, 11th and 12th. Those holes murder me."

Florida Derby Line: Easy Spur vs. Field

By RUSS HARRIS
Herald Turf Writer

Racing fans from coast to coast will cast their eyes on Gulfstream Park today for the eighth running of Jimmy Donn's $116,400 Florida Derby.

A field of nine, including three of the top candidates for Triple Crown honors this season, will clash in the mile-and-one-eighth classic with the winner earning a net prize of $75,300.

Second money is $20,000; third is $10,000; fourth is $7,000, and the fifth horse will get $3,000.

Hartack Boulmetis Rogers

. . . which one will win Derby?

The field, in post position order, includes Easy Spur (Jockey Bill Hartack); Rico Tesio (Walter Blum); McLellan (Logan Batcheller); Rare Rice (Jack Leonard); Revolutionist (Bill Harmatz); The Chosen One (Jimmy Combest); Troilus (Chris Rogers); Master Palynch (Bobby Stevenson); and Sword Dancer (Sam Boulmetis).

A crowd of 25,000 is expected with three bands and a water ski show providing additional entertainment. The spectacle will be televised nationally over CBS (Channel 4) beginning at 4:30 p.m.

Hartack will be seeking his third straight Florida Derby score aboard Spring Hill Farm's Easy Spur. He won last year with Tim Tam and in 1957 with Gen. Duke.

Easy Spur, a gelded son of Crowfoot, earned favoritism in today's contest by an easy victory in the Hutcheson Stakes and a smashing eight-length triumph over Troilus and five other Derby rivals in the Fountain of Youth Stakes.

The Spring Hill runner won twice at Gulfstream as a two-year-old and is now undefeated in four starts at the Hallandale oval.

Bayard Sharp's Troilus and Brookmeade Stable's Sword Dancer are the other members of the Florida Derby's "Big Three."

While Troilus met defeat in the Fountain of Youth, most observers are dismissing that race from their calculations.

Troilus had been given a three-week rest following his success over First Landing in the Flamingo and was obviously a "short" horse. In addition, he did not have the services of his regular rider, Rogers. The latter has been sitting out a 10-day suspension which ended Friday.

With Rogers back in the saddle and Troilus now a fit horse following a brilliant workout last Monday, the Sharp colt figures to be a

Scrambles Past Leonard; Pursuit Hot

Palmer Back in Control, Leads Masters With 141

By HUGH FULLERTON JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

AUGUSTA, Ga. — Arnold Palmer, a golfer with little regard for tradition, made his bid to become the first player ever to win two masters tournaments in succession.

Palmer took over the lead at the halfway point with rounds of 71-70—141 on the wind-toughened, 6,980-yard Augusta National Course. Then he calmly said he wasn't concerned about the tradition that a Masters winner never repeats.

"I'm just concerned about winning the tournament," he said.

Palmer flouted one Masters tradition when he won last year with a solid 284. He was the youngest winner in more than 20 years.

Friday more than a half dozen others had cracked par before Palmer, strong-armed son of veteran Latrobe, Pa., professional, finally established himself as the leader.

The result was probably the tightest cluster of players near the top of the scoring list ever seen in the 25-year-old Masters.

Alone in second place at 143 was Canada's Stan Leonard, the first day leader with 69. In spite of better playing conditions, the 45-year-old Leonard couldn't hold his early pace and finished with a 74.

Within two strokes of him were 15 players, including two foreign visitors and three former U.S. Open champions.

Almost any of them was in position to bid for the title in the remaining two rounds and even such old gallery favorites as Ben Hogan and Sam Snead, U.S. Open Champion Tommy Bolt and PGA Champion Dow Finsterwald weren't clear out of it. They were in another big, chummy group at 147.

Only the 40 low scorers and those tied for 40th place will continue in the last two rounds of the tournament today and Sunday.

With such a cluster of talent at the top, it took a score of 149 or better to survive the cutoff. Among those who failed to make it were Jimmy Demaret, a three-time Masters champion, Horton Smith, who has won twice, and former winners Claude Harmon, Herman Keiser, Craig Wood, and Gene Sarazen.

Friday's playing condisions were made for low scoring and the players were quick to show it.

Finsterwald started with a 68 during the calm early part of the day. Even though the gusty, uncertain wind increased later, the par breaking continued.

Veteran Ed (Porky) Olliver; Julius Boros, former Open Champ, and slender, long-hitting Paul Harney fired three-under-par 69s for 144 totals. They were joined there by Dave Thomas, the big Welshman; Angel Miguel, the tiny Spaniard, and U.S. pros Mike Soucak and Billy Maxwell. Thomas, Souchak and Maxwell all shot 71s.

Miguel had his second 72. Billy Joe Patton, the clouting Morganton, N.C., amateur, and Pro Bo Wininger had 70s for 145 totals.

Palmer started out by getting birdies on the first two holes, but he slipped back even with par at the sixth and stayed there through the 12th in spite of missing a couple of greens.

On the 475-yard 13th he fired an iron shot to the green for a birdie and on the 520-yard 15th he got another bird with a good chip after overshooting the green. He deuced the short 16th but lost a stroke at the 18th green.

In This Chase, They Win Close

By GENE PLOWDEN
Associated Press Writer

The winner of today's Florida Derby at Gulfstream Park will be no more than 57 inches closer to the finish line than the second horse at the end of the mile and a furlong run, according to past performances.

Close finishes always have featured this $100,000 added event—the last big race for Derby age colts in Florida.

Sky Ship won the 1952 Inaugural by a head and Money Broker won by the same margin in 1953. Correlation triumphed by a length in 1954 and Nashua scored by a neck in 1955.

Florida-bred Needles won by three quarters of a length in 1956 and the next year Gen. Duke beat Bold Ruler by a length and a half—biggest margin of them all.

Last year Tim Tam whipped Lincoln Road by half a length to take first money.

Gen. Duke holds the record for the Derby at 1:46 4-5, which equals the world record for this distance.

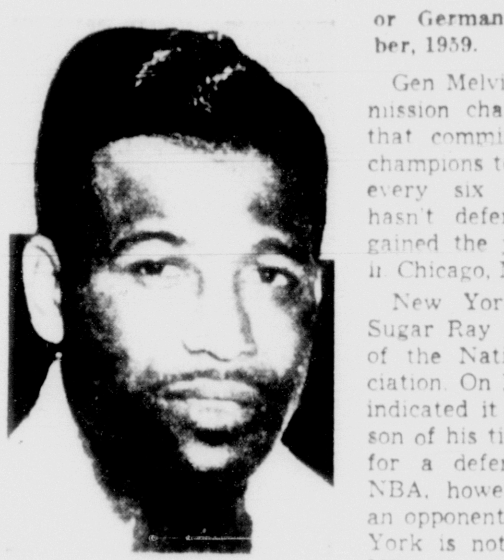
New York to Robinson: Fight Basilio or Git!

NEW YORK —(P)— Middleweight Champion Sugar Ray Robinson Friday was ordered to sign for a title fight with Carmen Basilio by noon April 15, or lose his crown.

The latest ultimatum to the 38-year old champion was issued by the New York athletic commission. At the same time the commission rejected Germany's Gustav (Bubi) Scholz, the European champion, as a suitable contender for Robinson at this time.

Scholz and Robinson's attorney, Martin Machat, had advised the commission by letter that negotiations had been completed for a Robinson-Scholz title fight in the U.S. or Germany before September, 1959.



Ray Robinson
. . . throne threatened

Gen Melvin Krulewitch, commission chairman, pointed out that commission rules require champions to defend their titles every six months. Robinson hasn't defended since he regained the jewels from Basilio in Chicago, March 25, 1958.

New York's warning to Sugar Ray followed the action of the National Boxing Association. On March 30, the NBA indicated it would strip Robinson of his title unless he signed for a defense April 25. The NBA, however, did not name an opponent for Robinson. New York is not a member of the NBA.

Neither Robinson nor any member of his entourage attended the session. Neither could they be reached for comment.

Only last January, when the NBA said it would take drastic action against Robinson, Gainford threatened a suit against each member of the NBA's executive committee. When the committee met, Robinson mollified the members by saying he planned a title defense in either May or June.

Krulewitch said that Basilio, the former champion, was the outstanding challenger and that he had filed a formal challenge backed up with the necessary $2,000 check. He said that Gene Fullmer, another ex-champion, had written the commission asking for a title fight but had not filed a formal challenge.

Scholtz, 29, is ranked fourth contender, by both the NBA and Ring Magazine. He has 54-1-4 win-loss-draw record. The German's only loss was to France's Charles Humez on March 11, 1958. Scholz stopped Humez in the 12th round of a return bout last October to win the European title.

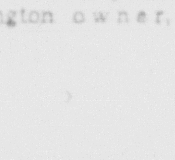
Miranda Comes In --But Is He Out?

The status of Baltimore Shortstop Willie Miranda is still very much up in the air and will probably remain that way until at least next Monday.

Miranda arrived here Thursday night — 36 days late in reporting to the O's spring training camp. "Just passing through," the little Cuban said cheerfully. "Maybe I room with Loes (Pitcher Billy Loes, who was traded to Washington Wednesday)."



MIRANDA

If Miranda it'll be as an It'll be as an Oriole. Friday Cal Griffith, Washington owner, said he was going to ask Commissioner Ford Frick to void the deal for Loes because Billy has a sore arm.

And Griffith added that his attempts to obtain a shortstop do not include negotiations for Miranda.

Miranda gave no excuses for his tardiness when greeted in a hotel lobby by a group of Oriole players.

Richards said he talked to Miranda at length, but reported his status would not be determined until the club returns to Baltimore Monday.

'Ailing' Rose Holds AAU Freestyle Title

Reprinted from late Friday editions

NEW HAVEN, Conn. —(AP)— Ailing Murray Rose retained his 1,500-meter freesytle National AAU swimming title Thursday night in the meet. record time of 18:18.4. He was running a 100-degree temperature when he plunged into the pool.

The fabulous Australian star won the metric mile by more than three yards, finishing in front of Alan Somers of Michigan State. George Breen of the Indianapolis A.C. was third.

Breen had held the meet record of 18:20.2 since April 5, 1956, which he registered in this same 50-meter Yale practice pool.

"I feel much better now" he said after the finish. It left a question, however, as to whether he'll be in shape to defend his 220-yard sprint title today.

Murray Rose
. . . in his element

Rose also holds the 440-yard freestyle crown, which is scheduled for Saturday, the final day of the three day meet.

Rose started to run a temperature this afternoon, but kept it a secret until he arrived at Yale's Payne Whitney gym with his parents. He decided to get into his swim suit about 15 minutes before the race was scheduled to start.

As he took his place on the starting platform, there was a commotion which ended only after he assured his mother, and others that he wanted to swim — and to win. He did.

A mild surprise was the failure of Bill Steuart, Michigan State ace from South Africa, who a week ago won the NCAA metric mile in 18:26.2. His time tonight was 19:24.7.

"I just didn't have it," he said.

Sword Dancer could be the under-rated member of the Big Three. In his first start this season, Sword Dancer finished fifth after meeting with interference in the Hutcheson. He came back to rack up an impressive victory at a mile and 70 yards.

Boulmetis will be shooting for his third consecutive "hundred grander" on Sword Dancer. The veteran jockey rode Vertex to victory in the Gulfstream Park Handicap and Bowie's Campbell Memorial the last two Saturdays.

It is interesting to note that in Frank E. Kilroe's 1959 Experimental Free Handicap ratings, Sword Dancer was given 122 pounds with the others in the Florida Derby lineup pegged well below him. Rico Tesio was rated at 116, Easy Spur 113, Troilus 112; Master Palynch 110, Rare Rice 108 and McLellan 105. Revolutionist and The Chosen One were not even listed.

However, Kilroe's ratings were based on 1958 performances and much has happened since then.

As stakes winners, Easy Spur, Troilus, Sword Dancer, Rare Rice and Master Palynch pack 122 pounds today. Rico Tesio, McLellan and Revolutionist carry 118 and The Chosen One gets in with 114 because he has yet to win a race.

Lauderdale's Little Jumps 6-4 in Meet

By RAY CRAWFORD
Herald Sports Writer

While North Miami and Miami Edison were battling for the team championship, Fort Lauderdale's Jeff Little and South Broward's Alan Wright ran away with individual honors Friday night in the Coral Gables Invitational Track Meet at the University of Miami.

Little set a meet record of six feet, four inches in winning the high jump. It's one of the greatest jumps ever recorded in Florida high school circles.

Wright set a meet record of 10 seconds flat in the 100 yard dash. He also won the 220 (22.3) and broad jump (22¼) and ran on the winning sprint medley relay.

Winter Haven's Harold Williams set a 2:03.5 record in the 880 run. Edison and North Miami were leading the 19-team field entering the final event, the pole vault.

Griffith Asks Frick to Void Deal on Loes

ORLANDO — (AP) — President Cal Griffith of the Washington Senators Friday said he will ask Baseball Commissioner Ford Frick to void a deal in which the Baltimore Orioles sent sore-armed Billy Loes to the Nats.

Griffith said the Senators' team physician had found Loes, an out-spoken right-hander, to have an incomplete rupture of the right arm near the shoulder. The physician recommended surgery, but said there is only a 50-50 chance of recovery from the ailment.

Griffith added that Lee MacPhail, Orioles' general manager, had told him Loes' arm was sound before the Tuesday swap which gave Baltimore Right-hander Vito Valentinetti.

Loes was sent to Washington for the examination Thursday, after reporting to the Senators and complaining of a sore arm.

Loes, 29, had a 3-9 record with the Orioles last year, his eighth season in the Majors. He broke in with the Brooklyn Dodgers in 1950 and had his top year in '53 with the Brooks with a 14-8 record.

In New York, Frick offered no comment pending an official request from Griffith.

Leafs Stun Bruins, Take Hockey Lead

Reprinted from late Friday editions

BOSTON — (AP) — The Toronto Maple Leafs, aroused to fever pitch, took command of its Stanley Cup hockey playoff series with Boston, 4-1, Thursday night on Johnny Bower's fine goaltending.

Bert Olmstead, Dick Duff, Frank Mahovlich and Bob Pulford registered the goals which gave the Leafs a 3-2 edge, just one victory shy of wrapping up the best-of-seven semi-final series.

Bower, a 33-year-old veteran playing his first Stanley Cup series, lost his bid for a shutout at 11:25 of the final period when Jerry Toppazzini tipped in a Jim Morrison pass from right in front of him. Bower contributed 32 saves to 22 for Boston's Harry Lumley.

Spurred by two straight overtime triumphs after falling behind 2-0 in the competition, Toronto for once found itself in charge from the start with a superior show of speed, stickhandling and aggressiveness.

Unser Hospitalized—Observation

2 Cars Spin Out At Daytona Beach

DAYTONA BEACH — (AP) — Two spectacular spinouts added unscheduled excitement Friday as Indianapolis-type cars ended their qualifying for today's 100-mile race at the Daytona International Speedway.

Jerry Unser of Lakewood, Calif., one of the drivers involved, was taken to a hospital to spend the night under observation after complaining of a twisted back.

The other driver, Al Keller of Green Acres City, Fla., escaped unscathed. He later qualified the Central Excavating Special in which he narrowly escaped disaster.

The two incidents slowed up qualifying procedure. It was late in the afternoon before the last six of the 19 or 20 cars which will start recorded their times. It was too late to hold qualifying for Sundays' 1,000-kilometer race, so the tests were canceled.

A second 100-mile race for USAC-FIA formula libre cars also is on today's program. But, as the Indianapolis-type cars come under that classification, the event is expected to be practically a duplicate of the first race's entry list.

A. J. Foyt of Houston, Tex., driving a Dean Van Lines Special, turned in the best time of the six qualifiers Friday. His best of two laps over the two and one - half mile steeply banked course was 168.91 miles an hour.

Dick Rathman of Daytona Beach previously won the pole position with a speed of 173.21 mph, with his brother Jim, from Miami, taking the No. 2 spot.

Dick Rathman said he expected a 40-lap average of 172 mph would win today's race, an opinion shared by other drivers.

There was a question as to whether the Greenman-Casale Special driven by Jimmy Davies of Pocoima, Calif., would be ready to start because of a dropped valve. It did not qualify, but would be permitted to go to the post in last position. Should it start it would bring the field to 20.

Neither of the spinouts was during a trial. Keller's started in a practice run just before he entered the curve at the west end of the track. His car spun and looped on the track once and then three times on the slick infield grass. He was traveling more than 165 miles an hour at the time. The car remained upright and was undamaged.

Unser's machine spun into the top rail of the east turn, shot down to the apron, then up to the rail again, the rear tire hitting the fence. It, too, remained upright.

Phillies Bounce Birds, 7-2

By EDDIE STORIN
Herald Sports Writer

Ex-Marlin Jim Owens hurled three-hit baseball for seven innings Friday night as the Philadelphia Phillies downed Baltimore, 7-2, in an exhibition game before 1,154 at Miami Stadium.

Ed Bouchee's three singles and homers by Harry Anderson and Carl Sawatski paced the Philadelphia attack.

The Orioles jumped on Owens for two runs in the first inning on three singles and a pair of walks. A single by Gus Triandos, and Al Pilarcik's bases-loaded walk accounted for the runs.

Ownes got the Phils' two-run deadlocking rally going in the third by drawing a walk off Starter Milt Pappas. Richie Ashburn followed with a double and Bouchee sent both runs home with his first single.

The Phillies moved ahead in the fourth. Successive singles by Gene Freese and Joe Koppe, plus a Pappas wild pitch, did the trick.

Harry Anderson's fourth home run of the spring, with Bouchee aboard, made it 5-2 in the Philadelphia seventh. The blow, which cleared the right wall at the 340 mark, came off Reliefer Wes Stock.

Hialeah Nips Gables

Senate President's Views

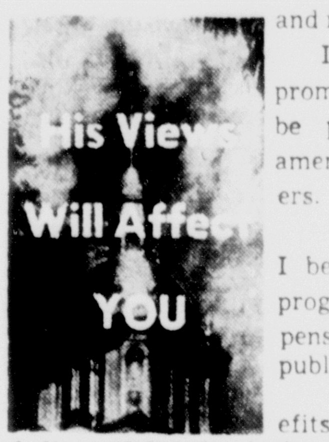
Budget, Race Actions Need Sound Plans

Florida's Legislature, which meets every two years, reassembles next Tuesday in Tallahassee. The eyes of the legislators and the rest of the state will be on three influential men—Speaker of the House Thomas Beasley, Senate President Dewey M. Johnson and Governor LeRoy Collins. How they agree and differ on key issues will affect you. Sen. Johnson explains his views in today's article written especially for The Herald.

By DEWEY M. JOHNSON
President of Florida Senate

TALLAHASSEE — Taxes, segregation and reapportionment are the major problems facing the 1959 legislature convening Tuesday.

I believe we will accomplish much through sound and sensible action in dealing with government spending and race relations.



I am also hopeful that a compromise reapportionment plan can be proposed by constitutional amendment and put before the voters.

In regard to avoiding new taxes, I believe we can eliminate several programs now operated at state expense without curtailing essential public services.

There are some educational benefits offered by the state which I believe adult individuals could pay for themselves.

I think the legislators will go along with reducing adult education expenses to a minimum but they will approve such programs that will enable adult students to earn a livelihood.

I refer to courses which lead to high school diplomas for persons who were not able to complete high school before going to work; manual arts training, typing, shorthand and accounting classes.

Further reductions can be made I believe in the kindergarten and summer enrichment programs.

Tighter Welfare Programs

TIGHTER CONTROL on welfare spending, particularly in the program for aid to illegitimate children, would assist our efforts to hold down the cost of government.

New laws might include forcing both parents—mother and father — to do more on behalf of the child and requiring the mother under oath to disclose the name of the father so he can be held responsible for the child's support.

A majority of the legislators, I believe, realize the taxpayers don't want to be told they are going to have to pay new taxes every two years for additional services many of them personally do not feel are warranted.

As I look at it, while we might cut spending a little too thin and hurt in a few places, I believe that overall we can provide for the absolutely necessary services with low taxes which will be an inducement to new people and new industries.

We won't be a backward state so long as we can live within our existing revenues and provide the essential services.

It will tell you how Sen. John Kennedy is doing in his fight to become the Democrats' presidential candiate and whether Adlai Stevenson, Estes Kefauver, Lyndon Johnson and Stuart Symington still have a chance.

Are We Spoiling Our Children?

How Lama Fled Chinese Reds

NEW DELHI, India —(AP)— Under Chinese pursuit the Dalai Lama made a 300-mile trip on foot across Tibet's mighty mountains in order to reach refuge in India, his joyous followers disclosed Friday.

Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru told a wildly applauding Parliament the 23-year-old god-king is in good health and will be given "respectful treatment."

Nehru did not use the word asylum. Informed sources said he considered this an improper term in reference to the only ruler in the world whom his people regard as a god.

The god-king's followers gave this account of his escape:

The Dalai Lama slipped by night from his summer palace of Norbulinka in Lhasa, the Tibetan capital. The party included his 57-year-old mother, his 14-year-old brother Rimpoche Ngeri, his 26-year-old sister Tsering Domme, four cabinet ministers and two tutors.

They had to slip past the guns of the Chinese Communists as they headed toward some of the wildest country in the world. They took the most direct route to India, about 150 air miles away but more than 300 miles through the valleys and snow-clad passes.

The party crossed the Kyichu River, 25 miles south of Lhasa, and walked on and up through the Che pass, 17,000 feet high. On the other side of the mountain range they passed over the broad Tsangpo River and walked 35 miles to Minden Ming, a rebel stronghold.

All this time the Chinese Communists had spotter planes in the air and parachute troops ready to drop if the fugitives were sighted. The Dalai Lama's party frequently saw the searching planes.

At Minden Ming the Dalai Lama picked up a strong escort of fierce Khampa warriors, who have led the revolt and who have been fighting the Chinese Communists in Tibet for three years. They moved up through the mountains to the rebel stronghold around Lake Trigu and walked south to the Indian border.

Nehru Wednesday night received a secret message from Shillong. The message said an emissary of the Dalai Lama had arrived at Towang to ask for political asylum.

Instructions had gone out previously to India's border checkpoints to permit entry, however, and the Dalai Lama actually had already crossed.

Tibetan exiles declared the Dalai Lama still is the ruler of Tibet, making clear he will

Ike Talks Today on U.S. Policy

To Spur Fight On Dictators

GETTYSBURG, Pa. —(UPI) — President Eisenhower Friday flew to Gettysburg, Pa., where today he will deliver a major foreign policy speech he hopes will make clear to Americans "the international facts of today's life."

The President, who will speak at a Gettysburg College convocation, plans to emphasize the need for grater individual and collective understanding to maintain freedom's fight against Communist dictatorship.

The President will spend the weekend at his farm nearby.

White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty gave newsmen a brief preview of the President's planned speech before the chief executive flew to Gettysburg by helicopter.

He said Eisenhower believes the American people "need to understand our nation's position and role in strengthening the world's free nations which, with us, see our concepts of freedom and human dignity threatened by atheistic dictatorshop."

This indicated the President might take the occasion to put in a new plug for his four-billion-dollar foreign aid program, which is faced with a tough battle in the Democratic-steered Congress.

Argentine Capital Hit By Riots

BUENOS AIRES —(UPI)— Serious rioting broke out in downtown Buenos Aires late Friday as thousands of Peronist and Communist workers demonstrated against the government's austerity and labor control policies.

Massed mounted and foot police fired barrages of tear gas bombs against the demonstrators, who gathered before the congressional building in violation of a police ban.

The demonstrators burned three private cars and overturned several others. They also overturned a police truck six blocks from the Congress Plaza.

Police ordered out nearly 2,000 men around the plaza to keep order along with 5 assault cars, two armored cars and firefighting units.

A Neptune tank spraying colored water was also active. The water was used to facilitate the identification of rioters engaging in criminal activity. At least two persons were hurt by bursting tear gas bombs.

Thousands of Peronist and Communist workers walked out on a six-hour strike intended to permit workers to mass before the labor ministry and the Congressional building.

Frisco Barred To Soviet Ballet

NEW YORK —(AP)— Impresario Sol Hurok says the State Department has declined to permit a San Francisco appearance of the Soviet Union's Bolshoi Theater ballet company.

San Francisco is one of the American cities where Soviet citizens are not permitted to travel. For several years this country has restricted certain areas to Russians in retaliation to Russian travel restrictions on Americans.

Channel 7 Award Is Reopened

WASHINGTON — (UPI) — The Federal Communications Commission Friday reopened the Miami television Channel 7 contest to determine whether any improper influences figured in the award to Biscayne Television Corp.

This is the fourth case the commission has reopened on the basis of charges aired last year before the House influence investigating subcommittee that backstage approaches were made to former FCC Commissioner Richard A. Mack and other commission members while applications for TV awards were pending.

Mack resigned under fire after hearings which involved influence charges against him in the Miami Channel 10 contest. He is scheduled to go on trial with his long-time friend, Thurman A. Whiteside of Miami, Tuesday.

The commission moved Friday on its own motion to reopen the Channel 7 case. The FCC twice voted to grant the channel to Biscayne, which is owned by former NBC President Niles Trammel and principal stockholders of The Miami Herald and The Miami Daily News.

The FCC initially voted to award the channel to Biscayne, for operation of station WCKT at Miami, on Jan. 18, 1956.

Three losing applicants in the four-way contest appealed to courts. After the case was returned to the FCC, the commission on June 21, 1957, reaffirmed the grant to Biscayne by a 4-2 vote.

Those voting in favor of Biscayne were former FCC Commissioner George C. McConnaughey, John C. Doerfer, Robert E. Lee and Mack.

Commissioners Rosel H. Hyde and Robert T. Bartley dissented. Commissioner T. A. M. Craven abstained.

The losing contestants in the fight were East Coast Television Corp., South Florida Television Corp., and Sunbeam Television Corp.

The commission said it would hold hearings to determine whether any member of the FCC should have disqualified himself from voting in the contest.

The commission said it would consider holding the hearings outside of Washington. The commission set no date for the hearings nor did it name a presiding officer.

An interior ministry spokesman in East Berlin said the number of West Germans in the draft age, 19 to 25, who have come to East Germany in recent months, equals the strength of seventy 100-man companies in the West German armed forces.

Word Due In Mid-May On Airport

More Palm Beach News P 15A, 1B, 1C

By ROSE ALLEGATO
Herald Staff Writer

WEST PALM BEACH — A survey which will tell Palm Beach County how, when, and if it can build a jet age airport will be finished in mid-May.

Kenneth Foster, chairman of the County Commission's aviation committee, said Friday he and County Engineer Steve Middleton will be in New York City May 4 to confer with Coverdale and Colpitts, consulting engineers hired to make the study.

The New York conference will be the final confab before the report is delivered to the county, Foster said.

The county hopes to build its multi-million-dollar jet airport 15 miles west of the city near the Pratt and Whitney plant. Remote from thickly populated areas, the jet port would be four miles long.

Constructed to Civil Aeronautics Administration standards, it will serve civil and industrial aviation.

The survey, now almost complete, includes an economic study of the county, a projection of passenger traffic and air activity, and a resume on the county's future growth potential.

The county is asking federal aid for the project and hopes to help build the multi-million-dollar jet age airport with funds from the sale of the 17,000-acre air base property. The property, after red tape, will revert to the county.

The county thinks it can sell the deactivated air base, which also serves as a commercial airport, for $8.5 million.

Floods Drive 2,000 Out of Their Homes

By United Press International

Spring floods, fed by April showers and melting snowbanks, kept more than 2,000 persons homeless in New England and the Midwest Friday.

The floods followed a week-long weather siege of tornadoes in the South, dense fog in the East, and heavy rains in the North. Together, the vile weather combination claimed 20 lives.

Parts of Illinois, Wisconsin and Iowa had been living with their floods for more than a week. A total of 1,700 persons were homeless in the industrial Rockford, Ill., area and 80 families had been driven from their lodgings in Wisconsin.

In contrast, the New England floods swirled up with little warning in Vermont and New Hampshire. They were expected to spread rapidly through the six-state New England region.

The New England floods were choked by ice floes so big they snapped a 65-foot metal radio transmitter tower like a matchstick on the Sugar River near Claremont, N. H.

Cold Front Moving Toward N. Florida

A cold front was sweeping southeastward from Texas toward North Florida with cloudiness and rain Friday, but forecasters predicted good weather for at least most of today in the southern part of the state.

"It's hard to tell right now whether the front will keep coming or slow down before it gets to Central and South Florida," Miami Forecaster Phil Ackerman said.

But the front shouldn't really bring much of a temperature drop, even if it gets to South Florida, Ackerman said.

The forecast for today was increasing cloudiness and possible rain in the northern part of the state starting this morning. Sunny skies were predicted for South Florida — with possible increasing cloudiness if the cold front keeps coming.

Ackerman said there was no indication of a squall line traveling with the new weather front, like the one which spawned deadly tornadoes in Central Florida on Thursday.

King Pilots Starfighter

LOS ANGELES — (AP) — King Hussein of Jordan flew for 30 minutes and broke the sound barrier in a Lockheed F104 Starfighter Friday.

Capt. R. N. Mercer of the U.S. Air Force was nominally at the controls, but the 23-year-old monarch, a qualified jet flier, did much of the piloting.

"A wonderful flight," he said after the jet fighter returned to Palmdale Airport. "I would like to check out in one of these and fly it alone.

"And I think some of these planes would have considerable influence in the Middle East."

Before the flight demonstration, King Hussein and his party toured the Lockheed factory at Burbank.

3 Points Presented To NATO

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Canada proposed Friday that the Atlantic Pact allies consider inviting the U.N. to man the access routes between West Berlin and Free Germany.

Canadian Defense Minister George Pearkes put forward the suggestion in discussing new moves to end the East-West dispute with Russia over the future of Berlin.

The plan would require Russian acceptance.

Other delegates at the 15-nation Atlantic Pact Council meeting gave no immediate reaction to the Canadian plan. Pearkes emphasized he proposed a U.N. approach only to reinforce present Allied rights in West Berlin.

He suggested the U.N. might consider a three-point formula as the basis for an agreement with Russia:

1—Verification by the U.N. that the West and the Soviets are living up to the terms of any new agreement.

2—A Soviet pledge binding Russia as well as "its associates" to allow full freedom of access to West Berlin and acceptance of what Pearkes called "a U.N. presence on the lines of communication."

3—A firm understanding that U.N. responsibility for West Berlin would reinforce or back up the present American-British-French right to be there as conquerors of Nazi Germany.

Pearkes did not spell out whether he meant troops or observers to constitute the "United Nations presence" he advocated on the 110-mile route between West Berlin and West Germany.

The Canadian delegate joined foreign ministers from eight other Atlantic Pact nations in urging the Western Big Three nations to adopt a firm negotiating policy in dealing with the Soviets.

The foreign ministers pledged solid backing for a tough Western negotiating policy in East-West talks due to begin in Geneva May 11.

Their unanimous views, expressed during the second day of top-level NATO meetings, coincided with mounting signs the American, British and French governments — the Big Three — would heed the advice.

The Big Three foreign policy chiefs, prodded by West Germany, were reported to have hedged on the concessions they were thinking of offering the Russians.

U.S. Plastered by Fallout From 'Dirty' Red A-Bombs

Radiation Grows; U.S. Probes Rate

WASHINGTON — (UPI) — Stratospheric fallout from Russia's radioactivity dirty atomic tests in the Arctic last October is now hitting the U.S. with growing intensity.

This was disclosed Friday after preliminary study of new fallout monitoring data by Dr. Willard F. Libby, scientist member of the Atomic Energy Commission.

It is too early to say whether the Soviet fallout will push the Strontium-90 content of any U.S. foods above maximum permissible levels. Libby doubts that it will.

The new information accumulating with every April shower, tends to support fast fallout theories recently advanced for big nuclear explosions in the polar regions.

Libby hopes to have facts which will settle this issue by May 4 when the Congressional Atomic Energy Committee opens hearings on radioactive fallout.

The new data from AEC rain sampling and Navy air filtering stations, suggest that U.S. cities in the latitude of Minneapolis, say, are getting the heaviest dose of Soviet fallout.

Fallout comes in three categories:

1—Local, deposited in minutes or hours in the immediate vicinity of the explosion. This is the dreaded scourge of nuclear war.

2—Tropospheric, distributed worldwide in a month or less in latitudes corresponding to those of the blast site. This is a hazard only less immediate than that of local fallout.

3—Stratospheric, worldwide in distribution and consisting of radioactive particles pushed into atmospheric regions above 40,000 feet where they drift for a long time before coming down. Only the longer-lived radioactivities are a menace in this category.

The U.S. has tried—with new manufacturing and testing techniques — to clean up its weapons tests. But the latest fallout information proves decisively that Russian weapons have become dirtier and dirtier.

Ike to Get Special Report

WASHINGTON — (AP) — President Eisenhower has ordered a study of how the government can best evaluate the effect of radioactive fallout on health.

The White House announced Friday that the study already is well under way. The Atomic Energy Commission, the Department of Welfare and the Budget Bureau are carrying it out.

James C. Hagerty, presidential press secretary, said the three agencies expect to report to Eisenhower in a few weeks.

remain a rallying point of the revolt against Red Chinese rule in Tibet.

Informed sources said, however, India will recognize the Dalai Lama only as a spiritual leader of the Buddhists and he will be forbidden to form any government in exile in India. This is to avoid offending Red China.

The Chinese Communist embassy declined to comment on the Dalai Lama's request for refuge in India. Peiping Radio had pictured the Lama as forced by anti-Communist rebels to flee to India.

Reliable Tibetan exile sources in India's frontier town of Kalimpong said the Dalai Lama is heading for Shillong, capital of India's easternmost province of Assam, for a few days rest.

They reported he is being escorted by Indian army and political officers and expects to reach Shillong Sunday. They expect him to come to New Delhi for talks later. The Dalai Lama brought a party of 80 with him from Tibet, crossing into India near Towang Tuesday night.

Tibetan sources in Kalimpong said the Dalai Lama began his hazardous flight the night of March 17, shortly before a revolt erupted against Red rule.

MURPHYSBORO, Ill. — (AP) — A parolee has gone back to the penitentiary in preference to working for a living outside.

Merdia Hicks, 34, of Pomona, went to the Jackson County jail of his own free will last month and told authorities, "I just can't get along."

The Illinois Pardon and Parole Board disclosed Friday that he has been transferred back to Menard.

Deputy Sheriff Calvin Ellis said Hicks turned down two jobs offered him by a parole officer and declined to look for work himself.

He was paroled in December, 1957, after serving more than 11 years o a one year-to-life sentence for burglary and larceny.

Death Car Is Found In Tampa

By TOM LOWNES
Herald Staff Writer

The bloodstained Meslener murder car was found in Tampa Friday — 40 days after it disappeared in Miami.

While Dade detectives flew to Tampa to comb the car for clues, a second sensational aspect of the baffling, brutal murder came to light in Miami.

Frank Meslener, husband of the pretty murder victim, disclosed that the clothes that his wife was wearing when she was found dead on a Miami River canal bank in Medley were not her own.

Strangely, however, the clothes on the body did bear a striking resemblance to those that Mary Meslener wore to work on the fatal day — Feb. 23. But they differed in color and detail, Meslener said.

Metro homicide detectives, working in Tampa, were close-mouthed as to what either of the case's new clues would prove.

Full contents of the murder car are still to be divulged but the car, which bore the same license plate it carried on the murder date, is known to contain:

Blood stains on the front seat and a puddle of dried blood on the right rear floor.

Three bobby pins in the blood puddle on the rear floor.

A white bottle cap — possibly off a bottle of wine.

Several empty cigarette packs.

A man's English-style black cane-umbrella.

In Miami, Meslener said that neither his wife nor any member of the family ever owned such an umbrella.

falls, who will be next?" asked West Germany's Foreign Minister Heinrich von Brentano as discussion of the Berlin crisis ended.

As the conference in the Inter-Departmental auditorium reached the midway point, authoritative officials reported these signs of a tougher Big Three negotiating policy toward the Soviets:

1. Britain has agreed to link its plan for a military freeze of troops and weapons in Central Europe with progress toward German reunification. The West Germans and French were reported to have insisted on this.

2. A Western plan for a confederation uniting East and West Germany has been shelved. This would have picked up Russia's proposed approach toward German unity but would have included Western ideas for an independent, democratic all-German government.

3. A U.S.-proposed peace treaty draft for all Germany has virtually been scrapped. Instead the West will unveil only a "set of principles" which would guide a later peace pact.

Von Brentano said the Allies must remain united in the face of the Soviet challenge and must not abandon basic principle.

Italy's Foreign Minister Giuseppe Pella firmly supported Von Brentano's no retreat in Berlin stand as did Canada's Pearkes, Denmark's Jens Otto Krag, Norway's Halvard M. Lange, Greece's Panayotis Kanellopoulos, Netherlands Foreign Minister Joseph M. Luns, Turkish Foreign Minister Fatin R. Zorlu, and Belgium's Pierre Wigny.

Militiamen Organizing In Haiti

PORT AU PRINCE, Haiti—(UPI)—President Francois Duvalier said Friday 25,000 men and women volunteers are ready to take up arms at a moment's notice to defend the government against invasion or rebellion.

But, in an interview in the Presidential Palace, Duvalier minimized the dangers of either external or internal attack.

Duvalier said the civilians did not have their own weapons but were issued them by the army for training. The weapons, he said, were returned to the arsenals but were available immediately in the event of invasion or revolt.

Duvalier explained that the volunteer army was formed after eight men seized the Port-Au-Prince army barracks in an abortive revolt last July 29 and called on his government to surrender. He said he was unaware of the size of the rebel force and appealed by radio to the people for help.

Thousands of civilians responded, he said, and the rebels were killed. Shortly afterward, he added, "volunteer groups were formed throughout the country."

"Haitians love their fatherland and are willing to fight for it," Duvalier said.

I'll Seek U.S. Loans --Castro

American Press Draws New Blast

By Herald Wire Services

HAVANA, Cuba — Prime Minister Fidel Castro says he will be looking for money as well as defending "Cuba and her revolution" on his visit to the U.S. later this month.

The bearded revolutionary told a TV audience he will seek loans from the U.S. Export-Import Bank and "all sources of credit possible."

The Batista government left only 70 million dollars in the treasury, Castro said, adding that Cuba's economic situation was further aggravated by falling sugar prices and increased competition from other sugar countries.

Castro is leaving for Washington April 15 on an unofficial visit as the guest of the American Society of Newspaper Editors. He accepted the invitation before becoming prime minister Feb. 2.

Castro said he was "anxious personally to explain my program to the U.S. press and people."

During a four-hour telecast he charged that American wire services did not quote him correctly and that Time magazine, The Miami Herald and other newspapers were waging a "campaign of lies" against his regime.

Castro also termed former Costa Rican President Jose Figueres a "bad friend" and "false democrat" for having suggested that the Castro regime was influenced by Communists.

Meanwhile revolutionary firing squads Friday shot four more convicted collaborators of former Dictator Fulgencio Batista, bringing to 500 the unofficial total number of "war criminals" executed since Jan. 1.

Three were executed in Santa Clara and one in Santiago. Castro predicted near the beginning of the trials that no more than 400 would be executed.

Revolutionary tribunals nevertheless continued to grind out death sentences. Two more were condemned in the last 24 hours, 10 others sentenced to prison terms ranging up to 15 years, seven were absolved and one death sentence was ratified on appeal.

Ohio Judge Dies Of Heart Attack

LOUISVILLE, Ky. — (AP) — James Garfield Stewart, Ohio Supreme Court judge, suffered a fatal heart attack Friday in a downtown hotel.

He was the father of Associate Justice Potter Stewart of the U.S. Supreme Court.

Stewart came here to address the Kentucky State Bar Association.

Stewart, 78, had been on the Ohio high court since 1947. He also served as mayor of Cincinnati from 1938 to 1947 and once had been a leading trial lawyer in Cincinnati.

The younger Stewart was named to the high court of the U.S. last October.

Johnson's Cautious

Here are highpoints in Senate President Dewey M. Johnson's legislative outlook:

JOHNSON

REAPPORTIONMENT — "Hopeful" for a compromise.

TAXES — Avoid them by eliminating some programs.

WELFARE — "Tighter control" on spending.

SEGREGATION — After every other remedy is exhausted, let voters decide whether schools should be closed rather than integrate.

CONSTITUTIONAL REVISION — "A certain amount" but "I want to retain old, basic 'safety valves' of our present constitution."

Senate President's View

'Legislative Action Needs Sound Plans'

some provisions of the Alabama law and considering such other grounds as would come within recent U.S. Supreme Court decisions.

Some form of parent-option plan is in order. What worries me is that it does not apply until integration is ordered.

A better plan may be offered which would provide for scholarship in tuition granted to any student, white or colored, who enters a private non-sectarian school. The payment would be made from the general revenue fund as distinguished from school funds.

Whenever a child is withdrawn from public school in the county, the county's minimum foundation grant from the state would be reduced by the same amount the state is contributing to the child to attend a private school. The actual expense from tax dollars would be exactly the same.

After every other remedy is exhausted, I think there ought to be a provision to permit qualified voters of a school district to determine whether schools should be closed rather than integrated.

It should call for the closing of all schools in the district both white and colored, not just an isolated school.

The legislature must keep in mind that we are fighting for the rights of the better class colored citizens as well as white.

Keep 'Check and Balances'

REAPPORTIONMENT — My experience from the "give and take" attitude finally reached in 1957 indicates that such an atmosphere again can result in reaching a solution that will be worth letting the people decide for themselves by submitting a constitutional amendment.

We will never reach now, or 50 years from now, a perfect solution that is going to meet 100 per cent approval in the extra-large counties and the exceedingly small counties.

The "check and balance" in the Federal Congress dates back to 1787 and Florida early adopted a similar check and balance in the two houses of our Legislature. The states in the U.S. Senate have the same amount of representation and House is based on population.

I don't recommend that we go quite that far.

With minimum limitations of one representative to a county, I think apportionment in the House should be based strictly on population. In the Senate I believe a number of factors should be considered that will effectively carry out the theory of check and balance.

While the present formula may not be quite equitable and fair, it would definitely be unfair to the smaller counties to determine complete control in both houses by population. If we would adopt the same formula for representation in both Houses then we would no longer need both houses.

In order to give relief to some congested areas, additional senatorial districts seem to be the answer.

Some Revisions Likely

CONSTITUTIONAL REVISION — I believe the legislature will draft a certain amount. Personally I want to retain old basic "safety valves" of our present constitution.

National Summary

High pressure along the Eastern slopes of the Rockies presented a pattern of dry weather from much of the Mississippi Valley to the Pacific coast and sunny mild weather was featured over the Southeast. A vigorous low pressure disturbance over Lake Huron accounted for showers across the Northern Appalachians.

At noon 70 degree temperatures extended from the Gulf coast into the Carolinas and 60's accompanied warming southerly breezes into portions of the Ohio Valley and mid-Atlantic states. In the wake of low pressure off the North Atlantic coast northwesterly winds prevailed along the New England coast but sunshine pushed temperatures into the 50's.

A cold front trailing southward from Lake Huron extended southwestward into Texas. Brisk northwesterly winds pressed cold air southward over most of the midsection of the country with temperatures in the 40's in the northern plains while 80's appeared in southern Texas.

A pattern of fair to partly cloudy skies over the far West found late morning temperatures in the 40's and 50's in the Northern Pacific states while portions of the warm southwest were pushing toward the 90 degree mark.

Blind Girls to Compete in County Finals

Sure Touch on Braille Keys Spells Success

Herald Service

ST. AUGUSTINE — Blindness since birth has proved no handicap to Lillian Carole Snow, 14, and Carol Tompkins, 13, as far as spelling prowess is concerned.

Winner and runner-up in the Spelling Bee at their school, Florida State School for the Deaf and the Blind, they'll compete in the St. Johns County finals here on April 8 with 20 top spellers from 10 other schools in the county. St. Johns is the northernmost county participating in the Miami Herald Spelling Bee.

Lillian, a winner from State School last year, finished third in the county finals then, just missing the trip to Miami. This will be Carol's first year in the county finals.

Lillian, a seventh grader, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Snow, Eau Gallie. Sixth grader Carol's parents are Mr. and Mrs. T. Tompkins of Jacksonville.

Both pupils are vivacious teenagers with a zest for life and learning. They like "cool" clothes, have hobbies and dance with a strong preference for rock and roll.

Blond Lillian and brunette Carol swim in the school pool, participate in athletics and enjoy playing the piano.

Also they would like to collect autographs of rock and roll artists, but so far have been able to collect only the signatures of the Everly Brothers, singers. Now there is an Everly Brother's fan club at the school.

In addition to using braille writers, and they're not called typewriters, they also use the conventional typewriter. Their teachers say that it is because of their excellency in spelling that typing comes so easy for them.

Both girls read braille efficiently, and it is with amazing rapidity that their fingers run over the raised dots as they study their textbooks or read braille magazines. The average braille student reads silently about as fast as the sight reader reads aloud.

Rough Draft Ready

Bill Would Aid Segregation in Florida Schools

TALLAHASSEE — (UPI) — A bill to encourage public support of private schools in the event of forced integration was drafted Friday by Rep. Gordon Frederick of Seminole County.

Frederick said he will introduce the bill Wednesday, the day after the 1959 legislature opens. He sent a rough draft to the attorney general's office with instructions to eliminate any legal kinks.

The bill would give taxpayers who contribute to private schools a credit on the taxes they would normally pay for support of the public schools.

The credit would be limited to one-half of the contribution, but could not exceed the individual's total annual school tax bill.

Frederick said the restrictions probably would limit an individual to an annual tax credit of no more than $60 or $80. He said he intended the credit to cover only the county property taxes collected for school operations.

The rough draft referred to state taxes, which might have included sales taxes earmarked for school operations, but Frederick said that will be removed.

School Superintendent Thomas Bailey said he has not seen the bill, but offhand he sees some administrative and legal problems and fears it might jeopardize the already shaky county school financial structure.

Atty. Gen. Richard Ervin declined to comment, and said he will stick to the private school tuition plan he and Bailey previously proposed.

The Bailey-Ervin plan was offered as "pop off valve" for parents who refuse to send their children to an integrated school and cannot afford to educate them privately.

Frederick said his bill would offer no relief of this type.

People who pay no real estate taxes for school support would get nothing under his bill. Nor would the tax credit apply on tuition paid to private schools.

It would operate only if a taxpayer made a financial contribution toward the private school, in addition to the regular tuition for his child's education.

Teamster School Move Hit

TALLAHASSEE — (UPI) — State School Superintendent Thomas D. Bailey spoke out Friday against unionization of teachers by outside labor organizations.

Bailey's statement was prompted by a request from a Broward County school official for an opinion on whether teachers could legally affiliate with the Teamsters union.

The opinion was asked by D. A. Dessenberger. Bailey said he has asked Dessenberger for more details so he can seek a legal ruling from Atty. Gen. Richard Ervin.

He did not advocate any union for teachers, he said, but would vigorously oppose any attempt to sign them up in an organization they do not themselves control.

Tampa Area Telephone Rates Going Up 10 Pct.

TALLAHASSEE —(AP)— The Florida Railroad and Public Utilities Commission in a split decision Friday authorized General Telephone Co. to increase its rates effective April 6 to bring in an additional $1,620,495 a year.

The company, which operates in Tampa, St. Petersburg and other areas around Tampa Bay, had asked a rate hike of four million dollars a year.

Commissioners Alan Boyd and Wilbur King voted for the increase. The commission chairman, Jerry W. Carter, said the policies and operations of the company and the case it presented to the commission did not justify the increases granted.

General Telephone Co. had asked the higher rates on the ground that it had to have a greater return on its investment to attract capital for a proposed 25 million dollar expansion program.

Cities in its service area include Tampa, St. Petersburg, Winter Haven, Sarasota, Clearwater, Bartow, Bradenton, Auburndale, Lake Wales, Mulberry, Tarpon Springs, Plant City, New Port Richey and Venice.

Of the $1,620,495 the company will net only about $765,457, the commission said. The remainder will go to pay federal income tax and the state's 1½ per cent utility tax.

The overall rate increase is about 10 per cent, instead of the 40 per cent increase the company had sought.

A one-party business telephone in Tampa now costs $9.75 a month, a two-party business telephone $7.75 and a four-party business telephone $6.25.

She Gets 10 Years In Burning of 2 Tots

BARTOW —(UPI)— Juanita Irene Hamil, 21, who tried to burn her two young children to death last January, was sentenced to 10 years in prison Friday.

Mrs. Hamil pleaded guilty before Criminal Court Judge Roy H. Amidon on two counts of trying to commit murder, arson and adultery.

She got 10 years for attempting two murders, the sentence to run concurrently with five years for arson and two years for adultery.

She was charged with splashing gasoline on her two children at their Polk City home, locking them in a bathroom and setting them afire. Sharon Key, 4, was badly burned, but Olin Vivian, 3, escaped with only minor burns.

Mrs. Hamil, divorced from the father of the children said at the time she did it because the children were "getting on my nerves."

After she had set their clothes afire and locked the bathroom door, however, she lost her nerve and went screaming for help. Two men, neighbors, battered down the bathroom door and saved the lives of the children.

The little girl, Sharon Kay, is now taking skin grafts in a Lakeland hospital. The three-year-old boy has been living in a Lakeland childrens home.

Both will be put in the custody of their maternal grandmother, Mrs. Marguerite Highbargin of Iola, Kan.

William Ernest Clabo, who was living with Mrs. Hamil at the time of the incident, also pleaded guilty to adultery. He was sentenced to one year in jail or a $500 fine.

'Conflict' Plan Issued By Larson

TALLAHASSEE — (AP) — State Insurance Commissioner J. Edwin Larson Friday released a proposed revision of Florida insurance laws which would ban certain conflicts of interest.

A new section would prohibit the insurance commissioner or any employes of his department from being financially interested in any insurance company or agency.

It also would prohibit the commissioner or any employe from receiving any "fee, compensation, loan, gift or other thing of value" in addition to his regular pay for any service rendered.

The section would not prohibit an insurer from making a loan to the commissioner or a department employe through regular channels if the loan was adequately secured. Nor would it prevent the insurance company from acquiring or holding such a loan or [illegible] ment originally made by others.

Larson announced early last year he would propose such a law after The Miami Herald reported he borrowed money from insurance companies under his supervision and owned stock in two Florida companies.

Production Rising But Number of Jobs Shrinking

Economists say the recession is about over. Then why is unemployment falling behind rising production? And how much is automation to blame for current joblessness? Here is a report in depth on what is happening in fast-changing America, and why.

By ROGER GREENE
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON — The business recession in the U.S. may be about over, but it has left a painful paradox in its wake.

Reduced to simplest terms: Unemployment hasn't melted fast enough in an economy once again moving into high gear.

Industry has been accelerating the trend to push-button factories, robot production lines and automatic offices. And in the labor market, a broad band of vanished jobs appears.

The transition is far-reaching, and not directly connected with the recession, but today's lagging re-employment serves to focus attention afresh on what labor leaders call "the silent revolution."

As yet, the full story is only beginning to emerge. Day-by-day changes in the vast U.S. industrial and business complex are far too numerous to be accurately tabulated. And automation, in itself, is no longer new.

One thing, however, is clear: the lifting of the 1957-58 recession has disclosed a broad wake of vanished jobs. Some have disappeared forever.

Part of the answer, at least, lies in automation.

Despite a steadily growing labor force — increasing at the rate of nearly a million a year — automation-equipped factories, farms, mines, railroads and business offices manage to keep the economy humming with fewer and fewer workers.

Automation Does the Job in a Metal Plant
. . . one engineer and a battery of machines replace many hands

To the army of jobless, averaging $30.62 a week in unemployment compensation, the situation is fraught with tragedy.

Yet there is a grain of humor, as well as truth, in the tart comment by Mrs. Effie Blackard, 56, wife of a jobless Roanoke, Va., textile worker:

"With automatic machines taking over so many jobs, it looks like the men have finally outsmarted themselves."

James B. Carey, president of the International Union of Electrical Workers, puts it this way:

"The spread of automation poses for American industry one of the greatest challenges we will have to meet.

"If it is handled humanely and wisely, it can be a boon not only to industry but to all mankind. If handled greedily, with emphasis on profits, it can be a disaster of the first magnitude."

Two men in a Chicago radio plant assemble 1,000 radios a day using automation; the same job once took 200 workers. A skeleton staff of technicians now runs an entire 40-million-dollar oil refinery by remote control from a panel of instruments.

And in some food plants, the entire canning process, including the manufacture of cans and shipping cartons, is completely automatic, untouched by human hands.

AFL-CIO President George Meany says industry is now producing more goods with a million fewer workers than in 1942.

U.S. production, he says, has recovered about three-fourths of what it lost in the slump, but only one-fourth of the recession-idled workers have got their jobs back.

"Industry squeezed a lot of water out of the work force during the recession," says a Boston industrialist, who asked his name be withheld.

By "water," he meant excess or inefficient workers who were dropped when the economy faltered.

Seymour L. Wolfbein, chief of the Labor Department's manpower division, says there are about 212,000 fewer factory production workers on the job today than a year ago. But in mid-January these fewer employes worked six million more man-hours per week than did the larger force a year ago.

Wolfbein cited figures showing a steady downward employment trend in some of the nation's major industries where automation has taken root:

1 — Manufacturing — 15,700,000 employes at the end of 1958 compared with 17,200,000 in 1953, down 1½ million.

2 — Autos — 627,000 average in 1958 vs. 929,000 in 1953, down 302,000.

3 — Railroads — Except in World War II, railroad jobs have been dwindling steadily since 1920 under the double-barreled impact of mechanization and growing competition from trucks, planes and private cars. In 1951, the railroads employed 1,400,000; 1,200,000 in 1956; 950,000 in 1958.

4 — Textiles — In trouble for a long time, the industry employed 1,271,000 in 1951 vs. 959,000 late in 1958, a drop of 312,000.

Government economists say three per cent nationwide unemployment is normal — due to seasonal layoffs, temporary factory shutdowns and other factors — whereas anything over six per cent is classified as distressed.

Officially, then, the nation as a whole is distressed on the job front. March figures show 4,700,000 jobless — nearly seven per cent of the total U.S. labor force of 67,400,000.

President Walter P. Reuther of the United Auto Workers says that in addition to the 4,700,000 officially listed as jobless, at least 1½ million others are too discouraged to seek work and don't show on the unemployed rolls.

Management says that with union demands for ever higher wages, it must turn to labor-saving devices in order to survive. In other words: Automate or die.

Reuther has his own answer to that. He tells of visiting a newly automated Ford plant and having an official ask him:

"How are you going to collect union dues from those robot machines?"

"And how," retorted Reuther, "are you going to get the robots to buy Fords?"

The solution to the problem as advocated by most union leaders — and strongly opposed by most management officials — is a shorter work week, longer vacations and earlier retirement.

The unions argue that this would spread the work among the steadily increasing labor force, and at the same time maintain the level of consumer purchasing power needed to keep the economy rolling smoothly.

The AFL-CIO executive council, meeting in San Juan, Puerto Rico, in February, called on Congress to enact a mandatory 35-hour work week for some 28 million American workers this year.

Some government economists and industry spokesmen insist the unions are over-emphasizing the threat of automation.

James X. Ryan, Philadelphia, regional manager of the National Association of Manufacturers, declares:

"Testimony before the Senate-House economic committee indicates that automation is applicable in the near future to less than eight per cent of the industries of America.

"Since these industries utilize about one-quarter of the labor force, apparently less than 25 per cent of the labor force will be affected by automation.

"Technological advances have always made more jobs."

Wolfbein predicts automation will help create 10 million new jobs and bring about a 50 per cent increase in gross national product from 450 billion to 675 billion dollars by 1965.

For millions of jobless Americans, however, the immediate outlook is etched in gloom.

On Capitol Hill, lawmakers in both the Senate and House have risen in increasing numbers lately to paint a black picture of suffering by thousands of jobless families in their states.

Sen. Robert C. Byrd (D., W. Va.), for example, told the Senate that 278,000 West Virginians are subsisting on meager handouts of government surplus food — known as "Molligrub" — and 89,700 have lost their jobs in the hard-hit coal mining areas.

In a survey covering the worst-hit areas, Associated Press reporters found much the same story, endlessly repeated.

Take the sparkling clean city of Roanoke, Va., "The Star City of the South," nestled between the Alleghenies and the Blue Ridge Mountains at the southern end of the rich Shenandoah Valley.

With 6,800 jobless out of a 69,000 working force, Roanoke qualifies as a heavily distressed area, though by no means one of the worst.

Idea Is Not New

Washington Ready for Cultural Center But Needs 'Angel' With $25 Million

No Money Available

The richest nation in the world, with billions to give away to its allies, is about to go around hat-in-hand in an effort to build a national cultural center in Washington so that visiting Soviet artists will have a place in which to exchange their culture.

The dream of a center that will compare with that in Moscow has been in being for a long time but so far all that has materialized is a nine-acre site on the Potomac.

Uncle Sam hasn't got the money for the center though he did give the land. So the 25 million dollars will be raised by donations. Just how this all happened is explained in this article.

WASHINGTON —(AP)— The stage is set for a national cultural center. All it needs is angels with about 25 million dollars and wings to get it off the ground.

In the culture cold war, Washington rates badly. It's one of the few major capitals of the world that doesn't have an opera house. Now it's down to one legitimate theater.

When Russia's famed Moiseyev Dancers came here, they performed in a movie house.

The U.S., anxious to increase cultural exchange with the Soviet, doesn't have anything in its capital city to compare with the showcase Moscow has for theatrical arts.

The idea of building a splendid center for the performing arts has been kicking around Washington practically since Congress began sitting here.

Now, thanks to the 85th Congress, there's a law on the books that provides a scenic nine-acre site overlooking the Potomac—not far from the White House—for "music, opera, drama, dance and poetry." The government will provide the land, but the money has to come from donations.

President Eisenhower has named a 30-member board of trustees headed by Arthur S. Flemming, secretary of health, education and welfare, to raise the money and build the center.

But if the omney—tentatively estimated at 25 million dollars—isn't on hand by Sept. 2, 1963, the whole deal may be off.

That time deadline is what has advocates of the cultural center champing at the bit to get a nationwide fund raising drive going.

So far, though, nothing much has happened and almost six months of the precious time is gone.

Rep. Frank Thompson Jr. (D., N.J.), chief sponsor of the center in Congress, said he feels the project has been "clearly harmed" by what he said were Republican politics in selection of the 15 public members of the board. There are nine Republicans, four Democrats and two independents in the group.

Though the policy-making board has no members from the world of theater and the performing arts, it has a number of persons of wealth, which helps in fund-raising campaigns.

Thompson said the President overlooked naming to the policy-making board "someone deeply versed in the theater, in fund raising and in government."

He suggested Robert Dowling, already head of the American National Theater and Academy, a congressionally-sponsored group to promote the theater.

Dowling, 63, a New York City real estate operator long active in theater, was a leader in setting up New York City's Lincoln Center for the Arts and has offered to help do the same for the national cultural center.

Thompson said he feared Dowling was left off the board because he is a Democrat.

When it came to estimating how much the cultural center would cost, Thompson says he just pulled the 25 million dollar figure "out of a hat," but he feels it is probably a fair figure.

He predicted the funds can be raised in two or three years.

The cultural center, result of a long struggle, already has cost some $94,000—the sum spent by the now defunct District of Columbia auditorium commission in looking for a site and plans.

Misslemen Promotions Proposed

WASHINGTON — (UPI) — President Eisenhower has tapped two of the nation's leading military missile officers for promotion.

Eisenhower announced his intention to nominate Maj. Gen. Bernard A. Schriever to be a lieutenant general and Rear Adm. John T. Hayward to be a vice admiral.

Schriever is now commander of the Air Force Ballistic Missiles Division at Inglewood, Calif. He will become commander of the Air Force Air Research and Development Command at Andrews Air Force Base, Md., succeeding Lt. Gen. Samuel E. Anderson. Anderson was assigned commander of air materiel on March 1.

Hayward, now assistant chief of naval operations for research and development, will be moving into a new job created by a pending Navy reorganization. The new title will be deputy chief of naval operations for development and will add to his present responsibilities management of the Navy's guided missile division as well as other modern weapons development. The naval air arm now handles guided missiles.

Schriever will be succeeded by his deputy, Brig. Gen. Osmond Ritland.

Icebreaker Limps Back

BOSTON —(AP)— Reputed to be the world's mightiest icebreaker, the U.S. Navy's ship Glacier returned from five months in the Antarctic on one propeller and a prayer. She had lost three in the tremendous South Polar ice fields.

Governor Says

No Fancy Car for Him

DES MOINES —(AP)— The Iowa House has passed a bill to buy a fancy official car for the governor, but Gov. Herschel Loveless says he would be happy driving a low-priced auto.

State law limits the amount spent on a car for the governor to $2,000. Many Iowans say the state's chief executive should drive a prestige automobile.

Loveless said he has ordered a new state car. It will be the same as those driven by the highway patrol — either a Ford, Chevrolet or Plymouth, black with standard transmission.

"I don't care what kind of car I drive," the Democratic governor said. "Cadillacs are for Republicans." He now drives an Oldsmobile handed down from his predecessor.

Costumed in finery of 50 years ago, members of the West Palm Beach Woman's Club curl a mean little finger as they lift tea cups and eyebrows in dual honor of Palm Beach County's having reached the half century mark Friday and of the upcoming Seminole Sun Dance. They are (from left) Mrs. J. R. Vrooman, Mrs. A. T. Langford, Mrs. Austin Allen and Mrs. Vincent J. Welp. In years past the Woman's Club was the first organization in the city to show an active interest in the once annual Sun Dance, which Jaycees are reviving this year from April 20-26.

PB Port Taking Tank Ban to Court

Decision On Riviera Act Sought

By NORVAN ROGGEN
Herald Staff Writer

RIVIERA BEACH — Irked by the refusal of Riviera Beach Town Council to allow liquid petroleum storage tanks to be constructed on port land, the Port of Palm Beach commissioners Friday decided to take the issue to court.

Commissioners authorized Attorney Charles Fulton to file a suit against Riviera Beach to determine if it had the right to block construction of the tanks.

Meanwhile, the port was informed by the Southeastern Natural Gas Co. that in view of the council's action it was terminating the contract.

The port had entered an agreement with the gas company to lease land for the installation of nine 63,000 gallon tanks, with a 30-day time limit to obtain a building permit.

Wednesday night Riviera Beach turned down the permit request after a hearing had been held on the issue and the Board of Adjustments had recommended the permit be denied.

"I'm astonished at the council's action," Chairman C. Markham Langham said. "They passed an ordinance recently giving Florida Public Utilities Co. a franchise for natural gas, which seems inconsistent with the action on our case."

Langham said the ordinance passed last October gave the utilities company the right, without the town's supervision, to install equipment and manufacture natural gas in Riviera Beach.

The ordinance also stipulates the company can do this without paying taxes, Commissioner Billy Burns said.

Langham said the port has a responsibility to taxpayers, and the gas tank lease was a move to put the port on a self-sustaining basis so taxes would not be needed.

The port will lose around $300,000 over the 30-year period of the contract, and the town will lose about $126,000 in tax revenue if the port cannot carry out the lease, commissioners pointed out.

The contract called for a fee of $6,600 per year for use of the land, but commissioners said the port would lose more on docking fees from tankers bringing in the gas.

Langham said the port had exhausted all administrative remedies to get the building permit, and its only remaining recourse was legal action.

"I want litigation brought against Riviera Beach to decide once and for all what rights and responsibilities it has in regard to the port," he said.

In recommending the denial of the building permit, the Board of Adjustments cited these reasons: contrary to safety, welfare and peace of mind of the people; would adversely affect the economy of the community; would overburden traffic on U. S. Hwy 1; and no public necessity exists for the facility.

Okeelanta, Fellsmere Included

By THELMA FROSCHER
Herald Correspondent

VERO BEACH — The Fellsmere sugar factory and surrounding cane fields are included in a six-million dollar mortgage between Okeelanta Sugar Refinery Inc. and Connecticut Mutual Life Insurance Co. which has been recorded in the Indian River County courthouse here.

According to County Clerk Douglas Baker, it is the largest mortgage ever recorded in this county. It also is or will be recorded in Palm Beach and Brevard counties. The Fellsmere sugar interest in the mortgage total about a million dollars in this county and a million in Brevard County. The remaining four million is in Palm Beach County.

No deed has been recorded here for the Fellsmere sugar property since rumors began several months ago that Okeelanta was negotiating to buy it.

M. S. McCollum of Vero Beach, who wrote title insurance for Connecticut Mutual the mortgagee, said Friday that, although he did not know the particulars, the mortgage did not necessarily represent a sale, but that it could be a merger with the mortgage refinancing the sugar operations.

The mortgage permits the mortgagor to dismantle and sell machinery at Fellsmere Sugar Co., or to transfer it to the Okeelanta plant or to replace it with new machinery.

Signing the mortgage for the Okeelanta sugar refinery were M. L. Quintana, vice president, and George H. Salley, secretary.

King-Size Headache

Wanted! Solution To PB County's Juvenile Problem

By ED PFISTER
Herald Bureau Chief

WEST PALM BEACH—The juvenile problem is creating a king-size headache for the Palm Beach County Commission, Chairman Lake Lytal indicated Friday.

He said it was his "feeling that not any one connected with the Juvenile Department knows exactly what is needed."

The chairman added, "It seems to me that we have had more of a problem with operation of the juvenile facilities in the last seven or eight months than we had in the preceding 15 years."

Lytal's comment came in the wake of an appeal by Alton Murray, chief juvenile counsellor, for public support in obtaining detention facilities for juvenile delinquents to keep them out of county jail."

Those which the Juvenile Department regard as needing more security than the county juvenile home provides are placed in jail, with special guards on duty.

Lytal said, "About a year ago we opened a new County Children's Home that was long in planning and cost close to $399,000. Everybody connected with the Juvenile Department agreed at that time that it was just what was needed.

"But now," he said, "we are told that additional facilities are needed. I don't know what the answer is and in my opinion those connected with the juvenile situation don't know either."

He said the County Commission has no plans or funds available now for detention facilities for children and in any event, could not consider such a proposal until the budget sessions in July.

Lytal said that the children's home, which everybody endorses, "has one whole floor devoted to detention facilities."

He took the view that if special guards can be posted in county jail to take care of juveniles, it was difficult to understand why those same guards couldn't supervise the children in the County Home.

Lytal said, "I realize that the people take the view we should provide special facilities for handling children but that is exactly what we thought we were doing, and we were happy to fill the requirement."

Lake Lytal
. . . queries department

The chairman said that he has been unable to understand the operation of the Juvenile Department since the departure of Mrs. Nelle Smith as chief juvenile counsellor.

Mrs. Smith retired last November.

Divorce Granted

CHICAGO —(P)— A Florida mother Friday obtained a $341,000 cash divorce settlement, one of the largest in Superior Court history.

Judge Harry G. Hershenson approved the divorce and settlement between Mrs. Mary Crowson, 49, of 930 N. Pine St., Lake Worth, Fla., and Robert L. Crowson, 54, of suburban Dolton. Crowson, plant superintendent of the Chain Belt Co., Milwaukee, also agreed to put his sons, Robert Jr., 20, and William, 14, through college and pay $250 a month support for William until he reaches college age. The couple married April 12, 1935.

Bus Lines Asks Suit Dismissal

Herald Bureau

WEST PALM BEACH — The Florida Cities Bus Co. Friday asked Circuit Court to dismiss a suit brought against itself, its president, Mrs. Helen E. Combes and two of its subsidiaries.

The suit was filed March 23 by William Goodfriend, of Miami, who forced the local public transportation system into a receivership by a previous foreclosure suit.

The latest Goodfriend action to foreclose against the transit company, its president and the West Gage Transit Co. and the Palm Beach Truck Maintenance Corp. for the non payment of $47,200 for four buses.

The motion to dismiss by the defendant holds that the suit fails to state a claim on which the relief sought can be granted.

Circuit Judge Joseph S. White three weeks ago named former City Manager Keith R. Chinn here as receiver for the bus lines as an aftermath of a suit brought by Goodfriend to foreclose against the transportation system for non payment of $187,500 for 25 buses.

Clewiston CAP Slates Fish Fry

Herald Service

CLEWISTON — The newly organized Civil Air Patrol flight will hold its first public fish fry and air lift Sunday at the Clewiston City Airport and Country Club. William H. Doane, flight commander said that starting at 11:30 a.m. the old fashioned fish fry and get together would feature airlifts, at a penny a pound, up to 200 pounds, conducted by local flyers.

The trip aloft will take the passengers around the Lake Okeechobee area.

At a meeting Wednesday eight new members were accepted into the unit, which hopes to become a squadron in the near future, but which now is operating under the guidance of the Naples Civil Air Patrol.

Members accepted included: Rev. R. L. Beavers, Mrs. Rose Doane, R. B. Farmer, Thomas E. Markette, Curtis Pullen, Ernest Simmons, Doug Pearey and William Scoggins.

The Clewiston Civil Air Patrol regularly flies a "dusk patrol" covering the Lake Okeechobee area from Bare Beach to Liberty Point, most of the flights leaving the Clewiston Airport at 6 p.m. Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays looking for fishermen who may be lost or broken down.

Oceanfront Land Sold at Boca

WEST PALM BEACH — An oceanfront tract in Boca Raton was sold for $120,000, according to a warranty deed filed in Circuit Court Friday.

The property, which runs from Boca Raton Lake to the Atlantic with 100 feet of ocean frontage was sold by Mr. and Mrs. Guy Haygood to Regina W. Spence. The land is subject to a $38,000 mortgage.

Little Green Boat Mystery Lingers

Herald Bureau

BOCA RATON—The mystery of the little green skiff remained a mystery Friday, but there wasn't anybody who didn't have a theory.

The principal character in this whodunit is a 16-foot outboard that was found floating six miles offshore Tuesday.

Nobody knew how it got there, who it belonged to or what happened to its occupants, if there were any.

The fact that the boat contained skin diving gear has led some to speculate that it drifted away while its owners were diving under water.

The police and Coast Guard were doing no better than the amateur Perry Masons. As of Friday, no one had been reported missing at sea in this general area.

Police were currently toying with the idea that maybe the boat contained out-of-state vacationers. In that case, they explained, it would take longer before they were reported missing.

The skiff is green and silver and has a 10-horsepower Mercury engine. It contained a fishing pole and gas can, along with the snorkel tubes and flippers.

If you have the answer, please step forward before someone suggests that the Lock Ness monster is behind the mystery.

Sheriff Denies News Ban

See Attorney General's opinion page 1C.

Herald Bureau

WEST PALM BEACH — Sheriff John F. Kirk said Friday there is no basis for reports he had imposed a "news blackout" or any "added restrictions" on information involving crimes.

The charge was leveled by local newspapers which claimed Kirk issued an order forbidding his deputies to go beyond "the release of arrest slips and preliminary complaints" to the public.

The sheriff blamed the local press for trying to "create an uproar" because he had denied them access to information contained in investigative reports used in developing cases.

"These reports," the sheriff said, "have always been regarded as confidential because they contain possible evidence, but whose use, if not admitted at a trial, might be prejudicial to a defendant."

He pointed out that this type of an investigative report is not usually made out until long after details of any given case have been released to the public.

The sheriff said that the reports had not been kept under lock and key and "persons not using good judgment have made everything in them public.

"There is no restriction whatsoever," he added, "on the normal flow of news information from the Sheriff's Department."

Trailer Park Request For Juno Is Refused

Herald Bureau

WEST PALM BEACH — Palm Beach County commissioners Friday turned down a request for a mobile home rental park in Juno after a mass protest by surrounding area residents.

Sitting as a zoning board, commissioners denied the petition of Clarence D. Hawkins to establish the trailer park in an unincorporated area near Juno. Residents claimed it would depreciate property values.

In other zoning business, commissioners:

GRANTED a zoning change to commerical from agricultural to allow the construction of a printing equipment plant a half mile south of West Boynton Rd.

ELIMINATED the fee charged companies for laying water mains and utility lines along road rights-of-way.

APPROVED meter sites along Loxahatchee Rd. and Shwane Rd. plus Lake Worth Rd. and Buffalo Rd. for Houston, Tex., Gas and Oil Corp.

Mott Orders Old Heave-Ho

Crumbling Bus Benches Have Got to Go

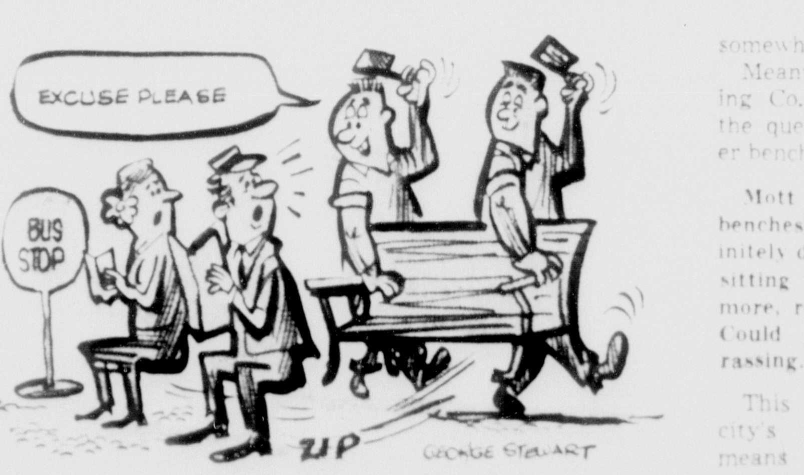
By ROSE ALLEGATO
Herald Staff Writer

WEST PALM BEACH — Look before you sit. That bus-stop bench may not be there any more.

City Manager James L. Mott is ordering the Public Works Department to haul away benches so antique they're tumbling apart. The benches, ancient though they be, won't go into any museum. A bonfire, for them.

Meanwhile, the city wants residents to stand up and be brave about it until there's some spare change for new roadside settees.

In a memo to city commissioners, Mott points out that the settees along commercial bus routes are "not very satisfactory."



Not satisfactory? Well, in fact, he adds, "Many of the wooden benches around town are falling apart." Those not quite ready to wave the white flag or holler timber are long overdue for paint.

The splintery wooden seats are the property of the City of West Palm Beach. These, of course, will be the only ones retired from their now somewhat dubious service.

Meanwhile, Bench Advertising Co. has been briefed on the questionable state of other benches.

Mott says some of the benches in the city are definitely dangerous. You could be sitting for a fall. What's more, remember the splinters. Could prove most embarrassing.

This is the middle of the city's budget year. That means the budget is almost as bad off as the bench.

"We have no money for replacements," Mott said. Then he asked for the public's cooperation in putting up with standing up. Come budget time, maybe the benches can make a come-back.

R. L. Stevenson Descendant to Direct Film of His 'Kidnapped'

WALT DISNEY'S filmization of "Kidnapped,' which will be made in part at Tobago in Trinidad, will be directed by Robert Stevenson, a descendant of Robert Louis, who wrote it . . . Orson Welles, who does a great Clarence Darrow in "Compulsion," which opens this week, has a compulsion of his own to star in a biopic of Winston Churchill. Project is immediately unlikely, however . . . Lili St. Cyr brought along her own musical director for the Clover Club date here. Naturally, he's a violinist who puts the accent on the G-string.

Movie program listings for the early part of next week are apt to be scrambled somewhat. Finish of the Oscar race Monday night will dictate what the features will be at many movie palaces . . . Repeal is generally predicted for Oklahoma in the votes scheduled later this month but the legalization of liquor sales won't make an immediate difference to night club businesss. Only bottle sales, not single drink sale, will be permitted at first.

She owns a 20-acre cotton patch down thar.

Mathis and Monica Win Raves

WHAT DO YOU DO when you are both a nightlife reporter and a part-time (very small part!) actor in Sigma Delta Chi's annual Ribs and Roast lampoon which Sid Casell is whipping (sic) into shape at Miami Springs Villa's for an April 8 showing and there are simultaneous demands for your services as a reporter and an actor? Don't be silly. Hand over that greasepaint!

But you, as a saloon reporter, have a problem because there is a show opening at the Fontainebleau Hotel La Ronde Room. That constitutes the writing demand. You just decide to pass up the opening and catch the post-midnight second show. "But dear," dears your dear wifely RIB, "you need your sleep to stay fit for your rehearsals (the last with just a soupcon of sarcasm), I've done it before — let me cover for you."

"Are you mad!" is our pride-stung retort to her presumption. But we accept the offer.

There was, of course, a distinct Mathis in her madness, for singing sensation Johnny Mathis is the current star at the Fontainebleau — and Mathis, the current madness of the record collecting set, is a treat even to a reviewer.

Mathis, Monica a Bit Marvelous

"Johnny Mathis," reports our Papermate helpmate in her review, "is the answer to those who find themselves too old for Elvis and too young for Sinatra. When he last played here you wrote that there was too much of Nat King Cole in his style. Not so now—he's all Mathis and all the Mathis is terrific.

"Oh, that could be because he has varied his selection of tunes to include more of those identified with singers other than Cole. He opens, for instance, with 'My Funny Valentine,' associated with You-Know-Who, who is the champ of the La Ronde Room. This is not exactly a conventional "opening song" either but Mathis scores with it, and from this moment on—which is another number he does—he's in, like Sinatra, with La Ronde's patrons.

"We made a funny for you at the start of this review about Mathis's between-Presley-and-Sinatra appeal. Just a joke. He did seem to bring out a lot more late teen-agers than the usual cafe act, but don't let this mislead your readers into thinking he's for the adolescents only. I—and the rest of the married girls in my section — were properly impressed. And daddy, even you'd like him — especially in his exciting rendition of 'Lover.' Of course he sings 'When I Fall in Love.' It wouldn't be Mathis without that!

"I don't have to tell YOU about Corbett Monica, who is the 'comedy star of the show' as emcee Murray Schlam puts it. You woke me up one night just to tell me how good he was a couple of years ago. So you were right then and even righter now. He's a smooth worker with stories about his house and his wife and his problem of a name that often gets him mash notes from patrons who think he's the girl on the bill.

"Dagmar, who was looking over my shoulder as I made notes for this review, says you'll understand if I tell you that a comedian with the name of "Corbett" fractured his audience. Was there really a fighter by that name in your day, daddy?

"Opening the bill in the usual dance spot is the unusual dancing of Norton and Patricia. We see a lot of teams—this one is one of the very best in the mood in which they perform. Well, that's it. It was easy."

His Chipmunks on Tape Bring Composer Riches

LOS ANGELES —(AP)— David Seville is a fellow who has done pretty well in the chipmunk and witch doctor business. In the past year Seville — real name Ross Bagdasarian — figures he has sold $6,700,000 in novelty records.

The chipmunks who helped him are named Alvin, Theodore and Simon. They are, of course, the Singing Chipmunks on th records "Chipmunk Song" and "Alvin's Harmonica."

The witch doctor? That was the title of the song which launched Seville's big-time career. Earlier Seville helped his cousin, novelist William Saroyan, write "Come On-a My House." It netted Seville only $17,000.

All his money from the past year didn't come from song royalties or record sales. Seville also cashed in on commercial tie-ins with the Chipmunks, whose pictures appear on wallpaper, T-shirts, and cookies.

He also saved some money by not having to hire singers to take their roles. Seville himself is the chipmunks. A tape recorder enables him to achieve the strange sound attributed to Alvin and his pals.

Senate President's Views

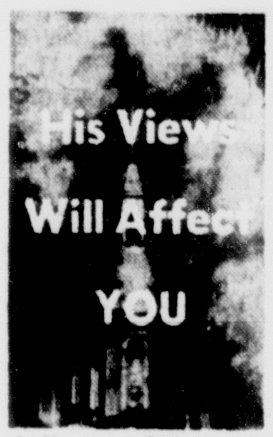
Budget, Race Actions Need Sound Plans

Florida's Legislature, which meets every two years, reassembles next Tuesday in Tallahassee. The eyes of the legislators and the rest of the state will be on three influential men—Speaker of the House Thomas Beasley, Senate President Dewey M. Johnson and Governor LeRoy Collins. How they agree and differ on key issues will affect you. Sen. Johnson explains his views in today's article written especially for The Herald.

By DEWEY M. JOHNSON
President of Florida Senate

TALLAHASSEE — Taxes, segregation and reapportionment are the major problems facing the 1959 legislature convening Tuesday.

I believe we will accomplish much through sound and sensible action in dealing with government spending and race relations.



I am also hopeful that a compromise reapportionment plan can be proposed by constitutional amendment and put before the voters.

In regard to avoiding new taxes, I believe we can eliminate several programs now operated at state expense without curtailing essential public services.

There are some educational benefits offered by the state which I believe adult individuals could pay for themselves.

I think the legislators will go along with reducing adult education expenses to a minimum but they will approve such programs that will enable adult students to earn a livelihood.

I refer to courses which lead to high school diplomas for persons who were not able to complete high school before going to work; manual arts training, typing, shorthand and accounting classes.

Further reductions can be made I believe in the kindergarten and summer enrichment programs.

Tighter Welfare Programs

TIGHTER CONTROL on welfare spending, particularly in the program for aid to illegitimate children, would assist our efforts to hold down the cost of government.

New laws might include forcing both parents—mother and father — to do more on behalf of the child and requiring the mother under oath to disclose the name of the father so he can be held responsible for the child's support.

A majority of the legislators, I believe, realize the taxpayers don't want to be told they are going to have to pay new taxes every two years for additional services many of them personally do not feel are warranted.

As I look at it, while we might cut spending a little too thin and hurt in a few places, I believe that overall we can provide for the absolutely necessary services with low taxes which will be an inducement to new people and new industries.

We won't be a backward state so long as we can live within our existing revenues and provide the essential services.

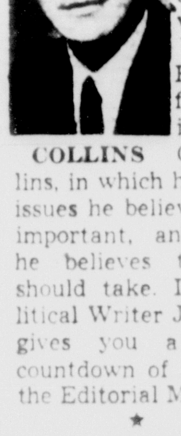
Gov. Collins Writes Exclusively for You

Dear Reader:

One of the most important state legislative sessions in years will begin Tuesday. Our representatives in Tallahassee must decide on questions that will affect every one of us, with school integration looming as the most controversial issue.



COLLINS

In Sunday's Herald you'll find an exclusive article by Gov. LeRoy Collins, in which he lists the eight issues he believes will be most important, and what action he believes the Legislature should take. In addition, Political Writer John McDermott gives you a point-by-point countdown of all the issues in the Editorial Magazine.

The Gallup Poll answers a question that has the politicians staying awake nights: Who's the No. 1 Democrat today?

It will tell you how Sen. John Kennedy is doing in his fight to become the Democrats' presidential candiate and whether Adlai Stevenson, Estes Kefauver, Lyndon Johnson and Stuart Symington still have a chance.

Are We Spoiling Our Children?

ANOTHER question which has bedeviled most of us gets a good going-over in the Women's Section: Are we spoiling our children? We invited a panel of eight people from various walks of life to discuss the question, and they came up with some interesting observations.

How Lama Fled Chinese Reds

NEW DELHI, India —(AP)— Under Chinese pursuit the Dalai Lama made a 300-mile trip on foot across Tibet's mighty mountains in order to reach refuge in India, his joyous followers disclosed Friday

Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru told a wildly applauding Parliament the 23-year-old god-king is in good health and will be given "respectful treatment."

Nehru did not use the word asylum. Informed sources said he considered this an improper term in reference to the only ruler in the world whom his people regard as a god.

The god-king's followers gave this account of his escape:

The Dalai Lama slipped by night from his summer palace of Norbulinka in Lhasa, the Tibetan capital. The party included his 57-year-old mother, his 14-year-old brother Rimpoche Ngeri, his 26-year-old sister Tsering Domme, four cabinet ministers and two tutors.

They had to slip past the guns of the Chinese Communists as they headed toward some of the wildest country in the world. They took the most direct route to India, about 150 air miles away but more than 300 miles through the valleys and snow-clad passes.

The party crossed the Kyi chu River, 25 miles south of Lhasa, and walked on and up through the Che pass, 17,000 feet high. On the other side of the mountain range they passed over the broad Tsangpo River and walked 35 miles to Minden Ming, a rebel stronghold.

All this time the Chinese Communists had spotter planes in the air and parachute troops ready to drop it the fugitives were sighted. The Dalai Lama's party frequently saw the searching planes.

At Minden Ming the Dalai Lama picked up a strong escort of fierce Khampa warriors, who have led the revolt and who have been fighting the Chinese Communists in Tibet for three years. They moved up through the mountains to the rebel stronghold around Lake Trigu and walked south to the Indian border.

Nehru Wednesday night received a secret message from Shillong. The message said an emissary of the Dalai Lama had arrived at Towang to ask for political asylum.

Instructions had gone out previously to India's border checkposts to permit entry, however, and the Dalai Lama actually had already crossed.

Tibetan exiles declared the Dalai Lama still is the ruler of Tibet, making clear he will

Ike Talks Today on U.S. Policy

To Spur Fight On Dictators

GETTYSBURG, Pa. —(UPI) — President Eisenhower Friday flew to Gettysburg, Pa., where today he will deliver a major foreign policy speech he hopes will make clear to Americans "the international facts of today's life."

The President, who will speak at a Gettysburg College convocation, plans to emphasize the need for grater individual and collective understanding to maintain freedom's fight against Communist dictatorship

White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty gave newsmen a brief preview of the President's planned speech before the chief executive flew to Gettysburg by helicopter.

He said Eisenhower believes the American people "need to understand our nation's position and role in strengthening the world's free nations which, with us, see our concepts of freedom and human dignity threatened by atheistic dictatorshop."

This indicated the President might take the occasion to put in a new plug for his four-billion-dollar foreign aid program, which is faced with a tough battle in the Democratic-steered Congress.

Argentine Capital Hit By Riots

BUENOS AIRES —(UPI)— Serious rioting broke out in downtown Buenos Aires late Friday as thousands of Peronist and Communist workers demonstrated against the government's austerity and labor control policies.

Massed mounted and foot police fired barrages of tear gas bombs against the demonstrators, who gathered before the congressional building in violation of a police ban.

The demonstrators burned three private cars and overturned several others. They also overturned a police truck six blocks from the Congress Plaza.

Police ordered out nearly 2,000 men around the plaza to keep order along with 5 assault cars, two armored cars and firefighting units.

A Neptune tank spraying colored water was also active. The water was used to facilitate the identification of rioters engaging in criminal activity. At least two persons were hurt by bursting tear gas bombs.

Thousands of Peronist and Communist workers walked out on a six-hour strike intended to permit workers to mass before the labor ministry and the Congressional building.

Frisco Barred To Soviet Ballet

NEW YORK —(AP)— Impresario Sol Hurok says the State Department has declined to permit a San Francisco appearance of the Soviet Union's Bolshoi Theater ballet company.

San Francisco is one of the American cities where Soviet citizens are not permitted to travel. For several years this country has restricted certain areas to Russians in retaliation to Russian travel restrictions on Americans.

New Move to End Dispute

Canada Proposes U.N. Man Berlin Routes

Channel 7 Award Is Reopened

WASHINGTON — (UPI) — The Federal Communications Commission Friday reopened the Miami television Channel 7 contest to determine whether any improper influences figured in the award to Biscayne Television Corp.

This is the fourth case the commission has reopened on the basis of charges aired last year before the House influence investigating subcommittee that backstage approaches were made to former FCC Commissioner Richard A. Mack and other commission members while applications for TV awards were pending.

Mack resigned under fire after hearings which involved influence charges against him in the Miami Channel 10 contest. He is scheduled to go on trial with his long-time friend, Thurman A. Whiteside of Miami, Tuesday.

The commission moved Friday on its own motion to reopen the Channel 7 case. The FCC twice voted to grant the channel to Biscayne, which is owned by former NBC President Niles Trammel and principal stockholders of The Miami Herald and The Miami Daily News.

The FCC initially voted to award the channel to Biscayne, for operation of station WCKT at Miami, on Jan. 18, 1956.

Three losing applicants in the four-way contest appealed to courts. After the case was returned to the FCC, the commission on June 21, 1957, reaffirmed the grant to Biscayne by a 4-2 vote.

Those voting in favor of Bixcayne were former FCC Commissioner George C. McConnaughey, John C. Doerfer, Robert E. Lee and Mack.

Commissioners Rosel H Hyde and Robert T. Bartley dissented. Commissioner T. A. M. Craven abstained.

The losing contestants in the fight were East Coast Television Corp., South Florida Television Corp., and Sunbeam Television Corp.

The commission said it would hold hearings to determine whether any member of the FCC should have disqualified himself from voting in the contest.

The commission said it would consider holding the hearings outside of Washington. The commission set no date for the hearings nor did it name a presiding officer.

7,000 Dodge Duty, Reds Say

BERLIN —(AP)— Communist East Germany claimed Friday that 7,000 young West Germans have fled behind the Iron Curtain within the last seven months to evade military service.

An interior ministry spokesman in East Berlin said the number of West Germans in the draft age, 19 to 25, who have come to East Germany in recent months, equals the strength of seventy 100-man companies in the West German armed forces.

Collier Plan For Airport Gets Boost

NAPLES — Collier County plans to establish the Immokalee Airport as a possible training and test field to aid crowded Miami International Airport have been cleared by federal authorities

Rep. Paul G. Rogers Washington office Friday notified The Herald that the field is being turned back to the county.

County Commission members last June began an intensive effort to obtain the surplus Air Force base after hearing Miami International faced federal action because of heavy air traffic.

Clifford Anderson, realtor and war-time fighter pilot, suggested use of the Immokalee field and pushed plans for its development for test and training flights out of Miami.

County board members conferred with Dade County Port Authority representatives before seeking aid of Rogers and Sens. Spessard Holland and George Smathers.

Rogers' secretary, Nell Howe, said that the congressman had received a letter from the Federal Aviation Agency reporting its Washington office has approved transfer of the field to Collier County for operation as a public airport.

The letter said the General Services Administration will join the FAA in completing the transfer as soon as possible.

The field has two hard-surface 5,000 foot runways. It was one of the satellite fields of the Buckingham Gunnery Base at Fort Myers during World War II.

Floods Drive 2,000 Out of Their Homes

By United Press International

Spring floods, fed by April showers and melting snowbanks, kept more than 2,000 persons homeless in New England and the Midwest Friday.

The floods followed a week-long weather siege of tornadoes in the South, dense fog in the East, and heavy rains in the North. Together, the vile weather combination claimed 20 lives.

Parts of Illinois, Wisconsin and Iowa had been living with their floods for more than a week. A total of 1,700 persons were homeless in the industrial Rockford, Ill., area and 80 families had been driven from their lodgings in Wisconsin.

In contrast, the New England floods swirled up with little warning in Vermont and New Hampshire. They were expected to spread rapidly through the six-state New England region.

The New England floods were choked by ice floes so big they snapped a 65-foot metal radio transmitter tower like a matchstick on the Sugar River near Claremont, N. H.

Cold Front Moving Toward N. Florida

A cold front was sweeping southeastward from Texas toward North Florida with cloudiness and rain Friday, but forecasters predicted good weather for at least most of today in the southern part of the state.

"It's hard to tell right now whether the front will keep coming or slow down before it gets to Central and South Florida," Miami Forecaster Phil Ackerman said.

But the front shouldn't really bring much of a temperature drop, even if it gets to South Florida, Ackerman said.

The forecast for today was increasing cloudiness and possible rain in the northern part of the state starting this morning. Sunny skies were predicted for South Florida — with possible increasing cloudiness if the cold front keeps coming.

Ackerman said there was no indication of a squall line traveling with the new weather front, like the one which spawned deadly tornadoes in Central Florida on Thursday.

King Pilots Starfighter

LOS ANGELES — (AP) — King Hussein of Jordan flew for 30 minutes and broke the sound barrier in a Lockheed F104 Starfighter Friday.

Capt. R. N. Mercer of the U.S. Air Force was nominally at the controls, but the 23-year-old monarch, a qualified jet flier, did much of the piloting.

"A wonderful flight," he said after the jet fighter returned to Palmdale Airport. "I would like to check out in one of these and fly it alone.

"And I think some of these planes would have considerable influence in the Middle East."

Before the flight demonstration, King Hussein and his party toured the Lockheed factory at Burbank.

3 Points Presented To NATO

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Canada proposed Friday that the Atlantic Pact allies consider inviting the U.N. to man the access routes between West Berlin and Free Germany.

Canadian Defense Minister George Pearkes put forward the suggestion in discussing new moves to end the East-West dispute with Russia over the future of Berlin.

The plan would require Russian acceptance.

Other delegates at the 15-nation Atlantic Pact Council meeting gave no immediate reaction to the Canadian plan. Pearkes emphasized he proposed a U.N. approach only to reinforce present Allied rights in West Berlin.

He suggested the U.N. might consider a three-point formula as the basis for an agreement with Russia:

1—Verification by the U.N. that the West and the Soviets are living up to the terms of any new agreement.

2—A Soviet pledge binding Russia as well as "its associates" to allow full freedom of access to West Berlin and acceptance of what Pearkes called "a U.N. presence on the lines of communication."

3—A firm understanding that U.N. responsibility for West Berlin would reinforce or back up the present American-British-French right to be there as conquerors of Nazi Germany.

Pearkes did not spell out whether he meant troops or observers to constitute the "United Nations presence" he advocated on the 110-mile route between West Berlin and West Germany.

The Canadian delegate joined foreign ministers from eight other Atlantic Pact nations in urging the Western Big Three nations to adopt a firm negotiating policy in dealing with the Soviets.

The foreign ministers pledged solid backing for a tough Western negotiating policy in East-West talks due to begin in Geneva May 11.

Their unanimous views, expressed during the second day of top-level NATO meetings, coincided with mounting signs the American, British and French governments — the Big Three — would heed the advice.

The Big Three foreign policy chiefs, prodded by West Germany, were reported to have hedged on the concessions they were thinking of offering the Russians.

U.S. Plastered by Fallout From 'Dirty' Red A-Bombs

Radiation Grows; U.S. Probes Rate

WASHINGTON — (UPI) — Stratospheric fallout from Russia's radioactivity dirty atomic tests in the Arctic last October is now hitting the U.S. with growing intensity.

This was disclosed Friday after preliminary study of new fallout monitoring data by Dr. Willard F. Libby, scientist member of the Atomic Energy Commission.

It is too early to say whether the Soviet fallout will push the Strontium-90 content of any U. S. foods above maximum permissible levels. Libby doubts that it will.

The new information, accumulating with every April shower, tends to support fast fallout theories recently advanced for big nuclear explosions in the polar regions.

Libby hopes to have facts which will settle this issue by May 4 when the Congressional Atomic Energy Committee opens hearings on radioactive fallout.

The new data, from AEC rain sampling and Navy air filtering stations, suggest that U. S. cities in the latitude of Minneapolis, say, are getting the heaviest dose of Soviet fallout.

Fallout comes in three categories:

1—Local, deposited in minutes or hours in the immediate vicinity of the explosion. This is the dreaded scourge of nuclear war.

2—Tropospheric, distributed worldwide in a month or less in latitudes corresponding to those of the blast site. This is a hazard only less immediate than that of local fallout.

3—Stratospheric, worldwide in distribution and consisting of radioactive particles pushed into atmospheric regions above 40,000 feet where they drift for a long time before coming down. Only the longer-lived radioactivities are a menace in this category.

The U.S. has tried—with new manufacturing and testing techniques — to clean up its weapons tests. But the latest fallout information proves decisively that Russian weapons have become dirtier and dirtier.

Ike to Get Special Report

WASHINGTON — (AP) — President Eisenhower has ordered a study of how the government can best evaluate the effect of radioactive fallout on health.

The White House announced Friday that the study already is well under way. The Atomic Energy Commission, the Department of Welfare and the Budget Bureau are carrying it out.

James C. Hagerty, presidential press secretary, said the three agencies expect to report to Eisenhower in a few weeks.

remain a rallying point of the revolt against Red Chinese rule in Tibet.

Informed sources said, however, India will recognize the Dalai Lama only as a spiritual leader of the Buddhists and he will be forbidden to form any government in exile in India. This is to avoid offending Red China.

The Chinese Communist embassy declined to comment on the Dalai Lama's request for refuge in India. Peiping Radio had pictured the Lama as forced by anti-Communist rebels to flee to India.

Reliable Tibetan exile sources in India's frontier town of Kalimpong said the Dalai Lama is heading for Shillong, capital of India's easternmost province of Asam, for a few days rest.

They reported he is being escorted by Indian army and political officers and expects to reach Shillong Sunday. They expect him to come to New Delhi for talks later. The Dalai Lama brought a party of 80 with him from Tibet, crossing into India near Towang Tuesday night.

Tibetan sources in Kalimpong said the Dalai Lama began his hazardous flight the night of March 17, shortly before a revolt erupted against Red rule.

He Prefers Prison to a Payday Job

MURPHYSBORO, Ill. — (AP) — A parolee has gone back to the penitentiary in preference to working for a living outside.

Merdia Hicks, 34, of Pomona, went to the Jackson County jail of his own free will last month and told authorities, "I just can't get along."

The Illinois Pardon and Parole Board disclosed Friday that he has been transferred back to Menard.

Deputy Sheriff Calvin Ellis said Hicks turned down two jobs offered him by a parole officer and declined to look for work himself.

He was paroled in December, 1957, after serving more than 11 years o. a one year-to-life sentence for burglary and larceny.

Death Car Is Found In Tampa

By TOM LOWNES
Herald Staff Writer

The bloodstained Meslener murder car was found in Tampa Friday — 40 days after it disappeared in Miami.

While Dade detectives flew to Tampa to comb the car for clues, a second sensational aspect of the baffling, brutal murder came to light in Miami:

Frank Meslener, husband of the pretty murder victim, disclosed that the clothes that his wife was wearing when she was found dead on a Miami River canal bank in Medley were not her own.

Strangely, however, the clothes on the body did bear a striking resemblance to those that Mary Meslener wore to work on the fatal day — Feb. 23. But they differed in color and detail, Meslener said.

Metro homicide detectives, working in Tampa, were close-mouthed as to what either of the case's new clues would prove.

Full contents of the murder car are still to be divulged but the car, which bore the same license plate it carried on the murder date, is known to contain:

Blood stains on the front seat and a puddle of dried blood on the right rear floor.

Three bobby pins in the blood puddle on the rear floor.

A white bottle cap — possibly off a bottle of wine.

Several empty cigarette packs.

A man's English-style black cane-umbrella.

falls, who will be next?" asked West Germany's Foreign Minister Heinrich von Brentano as discussion of the Berlin crisis ended.

As the conference in the Inter-Departmental auditorium reached the midway point, authoritative officials reported these signs of a tougher Big Three negotiating policy toward the Soviets:

1. Britain has agreed to link its plan for a military freeze of troops and weapons in Central Europe with progress toward German reunification. The West Germans and French were reported to have insisted on this.

2. A Western plan for a confederation uniting East and West Germany has been shelved. This would have picked up Russia's proposed approach toward German unity but would have included Western ideas for an independent, democratic all-German government.

3. A U.S.-proposed peace treaty draft for all Germany has virtually been scrapped. Instead the West will unveil only a "set of principles" which would guide a later peace pact.

Von Brentano said the Allies must remain united in the face of the Soviet challenge and must not abandon basic principle.

Italy's Foreign Minister Giuseppe Pella firmly supported Von Brentano's no retreat in Berlin stand as did Canada's Pearkes, Denmark's Jens Otto Krag, Norway's Halvard M. Lange, Greece's Panayotis Kanellopoulos, Netherlands Foreign Minister Joseph M. Luns, Turkish Foreign Minister Fatin R. Zorlu, and Belgium's Pierre Wigny.

Militiamen Organizing In Haiti

PORT AU PRINCE, Haiti—(UPI)—President Francois Duvalier said Friday 25,000 men and women volunteers are ready to take up arms at a moment's notice to defend the government against invasion or rebellion.

But, in an interview in the Presidential Palace, Duvalier minimized the dangers of either external or internal attack.

Duvalier said the civilians did not have their own weapons but were issued them by the army for training. The weapons, he said, were returned to the arsenals but were available immediately in the event of invasion or revolt.

Duvalier explained that the volunteer army was formed after eight men seized the Port-Au-Prince army barracks in an abortive revolt last July 29 and called on his government to surrender. He said he was unaware of the size of the rebel force and appealed by radio to the people for help.

Thousands of civilians responded, he said, and the rebels were killed. Shortly afterward, he added, "volunteer groups were formed throughout the country."

"Haitians love their fatherland and are willing to fight for it," Duvalier said.

I'll Seek U.S. Loans --Castro

American Press Draws New Blast

By Herald Wire Services

HAVANA, Cuba — Prime Minister Fidel Castro says he will be looking for money as well as defending "Cuba and her revolution" on his visit to the U.S. later this month.

The bearded revolutionary told a TV audience he will seek loans from the U.S. Export-Import Bank and "all sources of credit possible."

The Batista government left only 70 million dollars in the treasury, Castro said, adding that Cuba's economic situation was further aggravated by falling sugar prices and increased competition from other sugar countries.

Castro is leaving for Washington April 15 on an unofficial visit as the guest of the American Society of Newspaper Editors. He accepted the invitation before becoming prime minister Feb. 2.

Castro said he was "anxious personally to explain my program to the U.S. press and people."

During a four-hour telecast he charged that American wire services did not quote him correctly and that Time magazine, The Miami Herald and other newspapers were waging a "campaign of lies" against his regime.

Castro also termed former Costa Rican President Jose Figueres a "bad friend" and "false democrat" for having suggested that the Castro regime was influenced by Communists.

Meanwhile revolutionary firing squads Friday shot four more convicted collaborators of former Dictator Fulgencio Batista, bringing to 500 the unofficial total number of "war criminals" executed since Jan. 1.

Three were executed in Santa Clara and one in Santiago. Castro predicted near the beginning of the trials that no more than 400 would be executed.

Revolutionary tribunals nevertheless continued to grind out death sentences. Two more were condemned in the last 24 hours, 10 others sentenced to prison terms ranging up to 15 years, seven were absolved and one death sentence was ratified on appeal.

Ohio Judge Dies Of Heart Attack

He was the father of Associate Justice Potter Stewart of the U.S. Supreme Court.

Stewart came here to address the Kentucky State Bar Association.

Stewart, 78, had been on the Ohio high court since 1947. He also served as mayor of Cincinnati from 1938 to 1947 and once had been a leading trial lawyer in Cincinnati.

The younger Stewart was named to the high court of the U.S. last October.

Johnson's Cautious

Here are highpoints in Senate President Dewey M. Johnson's legislative outlook:

JOHNSON

REAPPORTIONMENT — "Hopeful" for a compromise.

TAXES — Avoid them by eliminating some programs.

WELFARE — "Tighter control" on spending.

SEGREGATION — After every other remedy is exhausted, let voters decide whether schools should be closed rather than integrate.

CONSTITUTIONAL REVISION — "A certain amount" but "I want to retain old, basic 'safety valves' of our present constitution."

Senate President's View

'Legislative Action Needs Sound Plans'

some provisions of the Alabama law and considering such other grounds as would come within recent U.S. Supreme Court decisions.

Some form of parent-option plan is in order. What worries me is that it does not apply until integration is ordered.

A better plan may be offered which would provide for scholarship in tuition granted to any student, white or colored, who enters a private non-sectarian school. The payment would be made from the general revenue fund as distinguished from school funds.

Whenever a child is withdrawn from public school in the county, the county's minimum foundation grant from the state would be reduced by the same amount the state is contributing to the child to attend a private school. The actual expense from tax dollars would be exactly the same.

After every other remedy is exhausted, I think there ought to be a provision to permit qualified voters of a school district to determine whether schools should be closed rather than integrated.

It should call for the closing of all schools in the district both white and colored, not just an isolated school.

The legislature must keep in mind that we are fighting for the rights of the better class colored citizens as well as white.

* * *

Keep 'Check and Balances'

REAPPORTIONMENT — My experience from the "give and take" attitude finally reached in 1957 indicates that such an atmosphere again can result in reaching a solution that will be worth letting the people decide for themselves by submitting a constitutional amendment.

We will never reach now, or 50 years from now, a perfect solution that is going to meet 100 per cent approval in the extra-large counties and the exceedingly small counties.

The "check and balance" in the Federal Congress dates back to 1787 and Florida early adopted a similar check and balance in the two houses of our Legislature. The states in the U.S. Senate have the same amount of representation and House is based on population.

I don't recommend that we go quite that far.

With minimum limitations of one representative to a county, I think apportionment in the House should be based strictly on population. In the Senate I believe a number of factors should be considered that will effectively carry out the theory of check and balance.

While the present formula may not be quite equitable and fair, it would definitely be unfair to the smaller counties to determine complete control in both houses by population. If we would adopt the same formula for representation in both Houses then we would no longer need both houses.

In order to give relief to some congested areas, additional senatorial districts seem to be the answer.

Some Revisions Likely

CONSTITUTIONAL REVISION — I believe the legislature will draft a certain amount. Personally I want to retain old basic "safety valves" of our present constitution.

A vigorous low pressure disturbance over Lake Huron accounted for showers across the Northern Appalachians.

At noon 70 degree temperatures extended from the Gulf coast into the Carolinas and 60's accompanied warming southerly breezes into portions of the Ohio Valley and mid-Atlantic states. In the wake of low pressure off the North Atlantic coast northwesterly winds prevailed along the New England coast but sunshine pushed temperatures into the 50's.

A cold front trailing southward from Lake Huron extended southwestward into Texas. Brisk northwesterly winds pressed cold air southward over most of the midsection of the country with temperatures in the 40's in the northern plains while 80's appeared in southern Texas.

A pattern of fair to partly cloudy skies over the far West found late morning temperatures in the 40's and 50's in the Northern Pacific states while portions of the warm southwest were pushing toward the 90 degree mark.

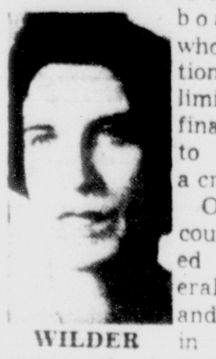
Marine Antics Cited

By ANNE WILDER
Herald Correspondent

FORT PIERCE — Coast Guard officials here, as well as experienced boatmen, are becoming increasingly alarmed over the marine antics of new boat owners, whose qualifications are often limited to the financial ability to buy or rent a craft.



WILDER

One elderly couple purchased a boat several weeks ago and have been in trouble twice, apparently through inability to handle the craft and ignorance of tides and winds.

Fortunately, the trouble was limited to discomfort and damage to their boat, rather than injury to the occupants. Coast Guard Chief W. B. Sparks told The Herald, after the second episode, this is the kind of situation that gives the Coast Guard nightmares.

Both the local Power Squadron, and the Coast Guard Auxiliary, offer excellent training in boat handling and the classes have been well attended. But the problem of the untrained boatman continues to increase.

Disagreement

THERE IS PLENTY of discussion and disagreement about the JayCee-sponsored drive for fluoridation of the public water supply. There is also a difference of opinion on spelling. Bumper strips, boosting the project, have appeared urging "flouridation" of the city water.

* * *

'Donations'

SOME JUVENILE AUTHORITIES feel that the present juvenile court law gives the juvenile judge little choice between dismissing offenders, on one hand, or sending them to trade school.

St. Lucie County Juvenile Judge Flem C. Dame employs two effective penalties. One is confiscation of the young driver's license for one to three months.

Half a dozen teenagers will be walking or riding bicycles for three months after this week's juvenile court session. And while no fines can be levied, the judge often "suggests" a contribution to some local charity, such as the Police Benevolent Association youth recreation project.

The power of suggestion in juvenile court has proved highly effective, and several $50 "donations" have been received.

The advantage of having a city purchasing agent, and resulting bulk purchasing, was graphically illustrated this week when the city commission received bids for a year's supply of gasoline, fuel and motor oil. After the bids were opened, City Manager Floyd Glisson said the savings of $4,800 on this group of items alone will more than cover the year's salary of the city purchasing agent.

Erosion

EXPECTED SOON IS A campaign to have erosion control taken over by the city, or by some portion of the county. The present small Erosion District, comprising the South Beach, is considered too small to carry the half million dollar burden of erosion control.

First problem will be, however, to get the beach property owners together on just what they want done.

A local man, who has worked with erosion problems for many years, commented that the influx of new residents makes it difficult to get owners together. "First," he said, "the new people don't believe there is really any serious erosion problem. So you have to wait until there is a storm, and you can see the damage. Then you have to start explaining control measures, and costs. Then a few months without erosion, and interest dies down, and you repeat the cycle."

As far as a larger taxing unit taking over the erosion problem, some missionary work will have to be done on the value of the beach to the whole economic picture of the community.

Mayor James L. Howe told the beach residents several weeks ago that the first requirement is that they themselves agree on a program.

At least three county commissioners want to keep the county far far away from the problem.

St. Johns River Flood Control Fight Prepared

By ZOLA SWARTHOUT
Herald Correspondent

STUART — Martin County is ready to fight appropriations for Central and Southern Flood Control and will take their case to the courts to stop the FCD's present plan to drain St. Johns River headwaters into the St. Lucie River, said Capt. Bruce Leighton, chairman of the county's flood and water conservation board.

The FCD denies that it is going to turn the St. Johns River floods into the St. Lucie River. They point to paper plans for a huge reservoir in the St. Johns Marsh north of Fort Pierce, where they say they are going to store the water.

But, according to Leighton, they (FCD) has not purchased one inch of land for the "reservoir."

Leighton added that the Minute Maid Corporation has announced plans for a 5,000 acre citrus grove in the heart of the "reservoir."

The FCD also, according to Leighton, say they are going to divert excess water from the St. Johns marshes out of Canal 25 at Fort Pierce.

But, there are no appropriations with which to dig C-25.

"Instead, first on FCD's priority is a million dollars to dig a deep ditch in the North Fork of the St. Lucie River and to put up a structure at the mouth of Canal 24 near Burt Pruitt's Fishing Camp, with a similar structure at Canal 23 at Bessey Creek north of Stuart," said Leighton.

"Next," Leighton continued, "FCD intends to widen and deepen both canals to a capacity of 10,000 cubic feet a second, which is more than we get of the St. Lucie Canal opened at full blast."

For years, Martin County has taken a beating when the U.S. Engineers drain excess flood waters off Lake Okeechobee through the St. Lucie Canal and into the South Fork of the St. Lucie River.

Martin County's plea is,

"Please change your priorities. Buy the St. Johns marsh resevoir lands first. Protect us by giving the reservoir first priority and buy the land before it all is in orange groves."

"Then widen and deepen the safety valve from the St. Johns into Fort Pierce Harbor."

"The way you are setting the project up, with direct drainage into the St. Lucie River first, we will be the 'fall guy' with all drainage coming into our river."

Capt. Leighton said the FCD board has been adamant, arrogant and arbitrary in refusing to consider Martin County's pleas and plans.

The Martin County Commission supported Leighton's committee report and passed a resolution several weeks ago asking Gov. LeRoy Collins to call for an investigation of the FCD.

The County Commission, the water conservation committee and the St. Lucie-Indian Rivers Restoration League have tried negotiations with FCD with no results.

"Our gloves are off now," said Leighton, negotiations have failed, and to survive we must seek redress in the courts and demand that the state and Congress knock out the 12-million-dollar appropriation that FCD is seeking for a plan that will greatly damage us."

Hospital Fund Pledgees Asked to Give Cash

By DOUG SILVER
Herald Correspondent

FORT PIERCE — With the Fort Pierce Memorial Hospital expansion plans threatened for lack of matching funds for loans and government help, the campaign to redeem pledges, is short $18,000. April 6 is the last day on which some 260 pledges can make good their promises.

E. W. Lins, chairman of the committee for "Keep Your Promise Week" said:

"I just wish some of the people who could well afford to make good on their pledges could read the letter I got from one of our Lincoln Park residents. It would do them good."

The letter reads:

"Dear Sirs. Sorry of the delay in my paying of my pledge. Was ill last of '57 all of '58. Not working any more much now.

"But am taking bread out of the family's mouth to do as I pledged. I could not know then, this was coming on me.

"Enclosed please find check for $15 as completing the payment of my pledge.

"May God bless you in your undertaking."

Hospital Auxiliary personnel manned tables at the three Fort Pierce banks Friday and will do so again today, for the convenience of those wishing to make good their pledges so that hospital facilities can be increased from the present 20 beds to 110.

Twenty eight persons have made good their pledges in the amount of $2,256.83. A minimum of $20,000 is needed.

Okeelanta, Fellsmere Included

By THELMA FROSCHER
Herald Correspondent

VERO BEACH — The Fellsmere sugar factory and surrounding cane fields are included in a six-million dollar mortgage between Okeelanta Sugar Refinery Inc. and Connecticut Mutual Life Insurance Co. which has been recorded in the Indian River County courthouse here.

According to County Clerk Douglas Baker, it is the largest mortgage ever recorded in this county. It also is or will be recorded in Palm Beach and Brevard counties. The Fellsmere sugar interest in the mortgage total about a million dollars in this county and a million in Brevard County. The remaining four million is in Palm Beach County.

No deed has been recorded here for the Fellsmere sugar property since rumors began several months ago that Okeelanta was negotiating to buy it.

M. S. McCollum of Vero Beach, who wrote title insurance for Connecticut Mutual the mortgagee, said Friday that, although he did not know the particulars, the mortgage did not necessarily represent a sale, but that it could be a merger with the mortgage refinancing the sugar operations.

The mortgage permits the mortgagor to dismantle and sell machinery at Fellsmere Sugar Co., or to transfer it to the Okeelanta plant or to replace it with new machinery.

Signing the mortgage for the Okeelanta sugar refinery were M. L. Quintana, vice president, and George H. Salley, secretary.

Water Fluoridation Debated at Ft. Pierce

By ANNE WILDER
Herald Correspondent

FORT PIERCE — Both proponents and opponents of fluoridation of the city water supply made presentations on the subject Friday night before the city commission, at a special meeting called at the request of the Fort Pierce Jaycees who have adopted fluoridation of the water supply as their No. 1 civic project.

Each side made a 45 minute presentation, and each gave the commissioners dossiers of information for their own study. Mayor James L. Howe stated at the end of the hearing that the city commission would give the matter careful study and announce its decision as soon as possible.

Proponents outlined the dental decay problem, and stated it will grow more serious as the population increases; they stated that there is an ample margin of safety in fluoridation; that adding fluoride to drinking water is the only effective method; that the legality of fluoridation has been upheld; and that it has been approved by medical and dental organizations.

Speaking in behalf of fluoridation were Jaycee Don Fuller, who was in charge of the pro's presentation, Dr. William Donnehower, Jaycee president and dentist; Dr. Lloyd Young, and St. Lucie County Health Officer Dr. Neal Miller. Special guest who spoke briefly was Dr. Floyd DeKamp of Tampa, dental director of the State Board of Health, who commended the Jaycees on their presentation.

Speaking for the opponents was Sam Lawder, who is president of the Fort Pierce Committee on Fluoridation Facts. Lawder said there are a number of qualified medical men in good standing who are not convinced of the safety of fluoridation; reported on the number of cities which had stopped fluoridation after it was put in; reported on the success of oral hygiene and dietary measures in cutting down tooth decay. He commented that neither he nor the proponents had done personal research on fluoridation, and each had to quote from research done by others.

A statement was ready by Mrs. Claire Keshka of Fort Pierce from the Florida Committee on Publication of the Christian Science Church, stating the church's objection to mass fluoridation as mass medication and a violation of individual rights.

At the conclusion of the presentations, Fuller asked that the commission take positive action on fluoridation, in view of the facts presented. Lawder asked that the request be denied on lack of conclusive evidence and on the grounds of individual rights.

Prediction Is Made

Martin to Grow Fourth Fastest

Herald Service

STUART — W. F. Kiplinger of Sewall's Point, near Jensen Beach, and Washington, D.C., predicts that Martin County will be fourth in the fast growing areas in Florida in the next ten years.

Editors of the Florida Kiplinger Letter, said that Florida's population will zoom 74 per cent in 10 years, while the average growth of the nation will be just 20 per cent during that period.

Kiplinger has had his winter home here for a number of years and has invested heavily in real estate in Martin and St. Lucie counties and is currently making plans for a large residential development in Jensen Beach.

He gave an entire block of land on East Fourth St. for the building sites of the Martin County Library and the Stuart Woman's Club building.

Florida counties with the greatest rate of population growth are:

St. Lucie (Ft. Pierce), 181 per cent; Charlotte (Punta Gorda) 163 per cent; Collier (Naples), 159 per cent; Martin (Stuart), 150 per cent.

Broward (Fort Lauderdale) 149 per cent; Orange (Orlando) 141 per cent; Brevard (Cocoa-Melbourne) 111 per cent; Sarasota (Sarasota) 111 per cent; Palm Beach (West Palm Beach) 110 per cent; Lee (Ft. Myers) 105 per cent; Indian River (Vero Beach) 103 per cent.

Santa Rosa (Milton) 100 per cent; Pasco (Dade City), 75 per cent; Manatee, (Bradenton) 73 per cent; Monroe (Key West) 73 per cent.

Some cities will add more total population but not grow as fast percentage wise.

Martin county is probably typical of other small county's fast growth problems . . . not enough money for additional schools, roads and other improvements to take care of not only immediate needs but to keep pace with growing demands.

The county commission at one time could dispense with county business in a two hour session, twice a month.

Just this week, Commission Chairman Marvin H. Rowell asked the commission to meet every Tuesday at 9 a.m., hoping to clear county business by noon.

They have urged Martin County Tax Assessor to "up" valuations, which are the lowest in the state, hoping to tap property owners who pay no county operating taxes.

Tax Assessor A. C. Courson said he would up valuations, but only if the commission promised to lower millages.

The million and a half dollar school bond issue failed to get approval from the voters. A large influx of children has forced the school board to use churches, civic centers and portable classrooms for students' classes.

As the new residents move in, county and city officials have a full-sized headache of trying to keep pace in furnishing facilities.

2 Boys Held in Gas Case

Herald Service

FORT PIERCE — A 16-year-old boy is in juvenile detention after a gas-buying binge with a credit card which he said he found in a wallet.

The boy and an 18-year-old companion, Fred Schley of 310 N. 17th St., weere arrested Thursday after a gas station attendant told police that they were attempting to buy gas with a credit card with the name of Darby M. Cook of Fort Pierce. Cook had reported the credit car as either lost or stolen.

Police said Friday the juvenile stated he had found a wallet containing the credit card and had used it to purchase gas from a number of Fort Pierce gas stations and one in Vero Beach. The credit card was also used to purchase gas for boat tanks.

Police said that at time of the attempted gas purchase, the car owned by Schley had a tag reported as stolen. Schley was charged in city court with having an improper tag and the case was continued Friday.

The youths told police that the tag was placed on the car when gas purchases were made.

City Detective Vernon Christianson said Friday the investigation has not been completed and the exact amount of gas obtained with the credit card is not yet known.

NATO Council Wires Greetings to Dulles

Herald Service

JUPITER ISLAND — A telegram from the North Atlantic Council ministers meeting in Washington and a telephone talk with President Eisenhower cheered Secretary of State John Foster Dulles Friday.

Dulles had sent a letter to the council which was read by Acting Secretary of State Christian A. Herter before the opening session Thursday.

NATO Secretary General Paul Henri Spaak wired a reply saying the council was "deeply moved" by Dulles' letter.

Spaak's message said the Western foreign ministers "have asked me to tell you how very greatly we regret your absence from among us today. Gathered as we are in Washington in our common task, our heart felt thoughts go out to you and we send you our sincerest good wishes for a peaceful convalescence and for an early and full recovery to good health."

Dulles, convalescing here, also talked by telephone to President Eisenhower at Gettysburg about 10 minutes late this morning.

The secretary's staff said Dulles appeared in very good spirits as a result of the two incidents which broke up the ordinary routine of his recuperation visit to exclusive Jupiter Island.

Dulles, his wife and a small staff, are staying at the vacation home of Undersecretary of State C. Douglas Dillon.

Exceptionally fair and mild weather enabled Dulles to take a couple of swims and walk in the garden.

Mathis and Monica Win Raves

WHAT DO YOU DO when you are both a nightlife reporter and a part-time (very small part!) actor in Sigma Delta Chi's annual Ribs and Roast lampoon which Sid Casell is whipping (sic) into shape at Miami Springs Villa's for an April 8 showing and there are simultaneous demands for your services as a reporter and an actor? Don't be silly. Hand over that greasepaint!

But you, as a saloon reporter, have a problem because there is a show opening at the Fontainebleau Hotel La Ronde Room. That constitutes the writing demand. You just decide to pass up the opening and catch the post-midnight second show. "But dear," dears your dear wifely RIB, "you need your sleep to stay fit for your rehearsals (the last with just a soupcon of sarcasm), I've done it before — let me cover for you."

"Are you mad!" is our pride-stung retort to her presumption. But we accept the offer.

There was, of course, a distinct Mathis in her madness, for singing sensation Johnny Mathis is the current star at the Fontainebleau — and Mathis, the current madness of the record collecting set, is a treat even to a reviewer.

Mathis, Monica a Bit Marvelous

"Johnny Mathis," reports our Papermate helpmate in her review, "is the answer to those who find themselves too old for Elvis and too young for Sinatra. When he last played here you wrote that there was too much of Nat King Cole in his style. Not so now—he's all Mathis and all the Mathis is terrific.

"Oh, that could be because he has varied his selection of tunes to include more of those identified with singers other than Cole. He opens, for instance, with 'My Funny Valentine,' associated with You-Know-Who, who is the champ of the La Ronde Room. This is not exactly a conventional "opening song" either but Mathis scores with it, and from this moment on—which is another number he does—he's in, like Sinatra, with La Ronde's patrons.

"We made a funny for you at the start of this review about Mathis's between-Presley-and-Sinatra appeal. Just a joke. He did seem to bring out a lot more late teen-agers than the usual cafe act, but don't let this mislead your readers into thinking he's for the adolescents only. I—and the rest of the married girls in my section — were properly impressed. And daddy, even you'd like him - especially in his exciting rendition of 'Lover.' Of course he sings 'When I Fall in Love.' It wouldn't be Mathis without that!

"I don't have to tell YOU about Corbett Monica, who is the 'comedy star of the show' as emcee Murray Schlam puts it. You woke me up one night just to tell me how good he was a couple of years ago. So you were right then and even righter now. He's a smooth worker with stories about his house and his wife and his problem of a name that often gets him mash notes from patrons who think he's the girl on the bill.

"Dagmar, who was looking over my shoulder as I made notes for this review, says you'll understand if I tell you that a comedian with the name of "Corbett" fractured his audience. Was there really a fighter by that name in your day, daddy?

"Opening the bill in the usual dance spot is the unusual dancing of Norton and Patricia. We see a lot of teams—this one is one of the very best in the mood in which they perform. Well, that's it. It was easy."

His Chipmunks on Tape Bring Composer Riches

LOS ANGELES —(AP)— David Seville is a fellow who has done pretty well in the chipmunk and witch doctor business. In the past year Seville — real name Ross Bagdasarian — figures he has sold $6,700,000 in novelty records.

The chipmunks who helped him are named Alvin, Theodore and Simon. They are, of course, the Singing Chipmunks on th records "Chipmunk Song" and "Alvin's Harmonica."

The witch doctor? That was the title of the song which launched Seville's big-time career. Earlier Seville helped his cousin, novelist William Saroyan, write "Come On-a My House." It netted Seville only $17,000.

All his money from the past year didn't come from song royalties or record sales. Seville also cashed in on commercial tie-ins with the Chipmunks, whose pictures appear on wallpaper, T-shirts, and cookies.

He also saved some money by not having to hire singers to take their roles. Seville himself is the chipmunks. A tape recorder enables him to achieve the strange sound attributed to Alvin and his pals.

Hogan on Hogan's 1st Round: 4 Mistakes, 4 Extra Strokes

AUGUSTA, Ga. — The appeal that Ben Hogan maintains with the golfing fans is amazing. Out at the practice area there Friday morning, a spectator called out, "Here Comes Hogan."

The fans shifted to the area where Hogan started warming up with lazy-looking wedge shots. Before turning in succession to a nine-iron, seven and longer range clubs. All of his shots looked good, but you could tell when Ben was displeased. He grimaced.

HOGAN

Hogan started the second round of the Masters with a 73 opposite his name. He was dissatisfied with it, mainly because he figured four mistakes were made in his opening round.

"I've had higher scores," Ben said. "I don't care what everyone else is shooting. The golf I played Thursday wasn't my standard. I wasted four shots. I hit four strokes that I shouldn't have had to hit."

Hogan said he wasn't worried by the windy gales. He thinks a golfer should be able to compensate for the elements.

"All I expect to do is hit good shots," he continued. "If I do that, the scoring will take care of itself."

Hogan has mellowed since his big comeback after the auto-bus collision which almost cost him his life. He is more friendly with the press, but he still sets a high standard for himself on the course. He is not satisfied with anything short of perfection.

Leonard? He Could Hang in to Win

THEY FINALLY came up with Florida weather for the Masters — clear blue skies, warm temperatures and moderate winds which may be expected to gain velocity during the afternoon.

Watching the boys tee off, Willie MacFarlane of Miami came up with the prediction that "The scoring will be much lower today. Someone will have a 67. If I'm wrong, it'll be because the score is lower."

MacFARLANE

MacFarlane refused to venture a guess about the winner. "There are a lot of guys who could win it," he said. "Stan Leonard is one."

This comment came because some were figuring the Canadian's 69 in the opening round was a flash in the pan.

"Sammy Snead could win this tournament, if he'd get mad," MacFarlane continued

MacFarlane was reminded that Sammy was angry Thursday over the gusty winds, which he blamed for his 74.

"I mean he's got to get mad at the way he's playing," MacFarlane explained. "The long hitters have the advantage on this course. Why, I could take care of myself if they'd let George Bayer drive for me. I'd get on the greens from where George hit the ball."

10th, 11th and 12th Holes the Payoff

WHEN the tournament ends the players in the money will be those who scored well on the 10th, 11th and 12th holes, MacFarlane allowed.

"They are the payoff holes," said Willie. "You can get into the woods on the 10th. You have to be accurate with your approach to the downhill 11th green, backed up by water, and you can't take any chances on the 12th, fronted by a brook.

"The winner and the other leaders will be those who get pars, or birdies, on these holes."

No Kinks in Masters' Setup

THE MASTER'S is not only the best-run golf tournament in the world. It is the best-operated sports event. Down through the years, its handling has been perfected by the trial and error method.

They have scoreboards, refreshment and comfort stations all over the place. Well-trained gallery marshalls handle the crowds.

The opening day turnout was estimated at 15,000. They expect 25,000 today and again Sunday. The admission charge is $3 for each of the first two rounds, five bucks today and $7.50 for the finals. No one complains and other sports promoters might take note of the fact there is no charge for parking. Little things like that irritate fans.

Years ago, when Miami was in the golf tournament business, I tried to persuade some of the officials to come here and observe how this tournament was run. Perhaps if they had, Miami would have developed a classy tournament. As it stands, we've given up tournament sponsorship and have not done anything about increasing facilities for golfers. One of these days we may wake up to discover these are among the reasons why tourists have shunned Florida for Arizona and other vacation spots.

Florida Wheels Lose in Meet

GARDEN GOVE, Calif.—(UPI) — The defending champion Flying Wheels of Long Beach, Calif., beat the Florida Wheels of Tampa, 49-34, Thursday night in the opening round of the National Wheelchair Basketball Tourney.

The Flying Wheels squad was sparked by John Cheeves who racked up 17 points for his team which led by a slim margin of 21-20 at halftime. Earl Ingram was high man for Tampa with 16 points.

Hartack Seeks Third Straight

Easy Spur First Choice In Today's Florida Derby

By RUSS HARRIS
Herald Turf Writer

Racing fans from coast to coast will cast their eyes on Gulfstream Park today for the eighth running of Jimmy Donn's $116,400 added Florida Derby.

A field of nine, including three of the top candidates for Triple Crown honors this season, will clash in the mile-and-one-eighth classic with the winner earning a net prize of $75,300.

Second money is $20,000; third is $10,000; fourth is $7,000, and the fifth horse will get $3,000.

The field, in post position order, includes Easy Spur (Jockey Bill Hartack); Rico Tesio (Walter Blum); McLellan (Logan Batcheller); Rare Rice (Jack Leonard); Revolutionist (Bill Harmatz); The Chosen One (Jimmy Combest); Troilus (Chris Rogers); Master Palynch (Bobby Stevenson); and Sword Dancer (Sam Boulmetis).

A crowd of 25,000 is expected with three bands and a water ski show providing additional entertainment. The spectacle will be televised nationally over CBS (Channel 4) beginning at 4:30 p.m.

Hartack will be seeking his third straight Florida Derby score aboard Spring Hill Farm's Easy Spur. He won last year with Tim Tam and in 1957 with Gen. Duke.

Easy Spur, a gelded son of Crowfoot, earned favoritism in today's contest by an easy victory in the Hutcheson Stakes and a smashing eight-length triumph over Troilus and five other Derby rivals in the Fountain of Youth Stakes.

Bayard Sharp's Troilus and Brookmeade Stable's Sword Dancer are the other members of the Florida Derby's "Big Three."

Troilus had been given a three-week rest following his success over First Landing in the Flamingo and was obviously a "short" horse. In addition, he did not have the services of his regular rider, Rogers. The latter has been sitting out a 10-day suspension which ended Friday.

With Rogers back in the saddle and Troilus now a fit horse following a brilliant workout last Monday, the Sharp colt figures to be a strong second choice in the wagering.

Sword Dancer could be the under-rated member of the Big Three. In his first start this season, Sword Dancer finished fifth after meeting with interference in the Hutcheson. He came back to rack up an impressive victory at a mile and 70 yards.

Boulmetis will be shooting for his third consecutive "hundred grander" on Sword Dancer. The veteran jockey rode Vertex to victory in the Gulfstream Park Handicap and Bowie's Campbell Memorial the last two Saturdays.

It is interesting to note that in Frank E. Kilroe's 1959 Experimental Free Handicap ratings, Sword Dancer was given 122 pounds with the others in the Florida Derby lineup pegged well below him. Rico Tesio was rated at 116, Easy Spur 113, Troilus 112; Master Palynch 110, Rare Rice 108 and McLellan 105. Revolutionist and The Chosen One were not even listed

However, Kilroe's ratings were based on 1958 performances and much has happened since then.

As stakes winners, Easy Spur, Troilus, Sword Dancer, Rare Rice and Master Palynch pack 122 pounds today. Rico Tesio, McLellan and Revolutionist carry 118 and The Chosen One gets in with 141 because he has yet to win a race.

Defending Champ Palmer Forges Ahead in Masters

By HUGH FULLERTON JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

AUGUSTA, Ga. — Arnold Palmer, a golfer with little regard for tradition, made his bid to become the first player ever to win two masters tournaments in succession.

Palmer took over the lead at the halfway point with rounds of 71-70—141 on the wind-toughened, 6,980-yard Augusta National Course. Then he calmly said he wasn't concerned about the tradition that a Masters winner never repeats.

"I'm just concerned about winning the tournament," he said.

Palmer flouted one Masters tradition when he won last year with a solid 284. He was the youngest winner in more than 20 years.

Friday more than a half dozen others had cracked par before Palmer, strong-armed son of veteran Latrobe, Pa., professional, finally established himself as the leader.

The result was probably the tightest cluster of players near the top of the scoring list ever seen in the 25-year-old Masters.

Alone in second place at 143 was Canada's Stan Leonard, the first day leader with 69. In spite of better playing conditions, the 45-year-old Leonard couldn't hold his early pace and finished with a 74.

Within two strokes of him were more than a dozen players, including two foreign visitors and two former U.S. Open champions.

Almost any of them was in position to bid for the title in the remaining two rounds and even such old gallery favorites as Ben Hogan and Sam Snead, U.S. Open Champion Tommy Bolt and PGA Champion Dow Finsterwald weren't clear out of it. They were in another big, chummy group at 147.

Only the 40 low scorers and those tied for 40th place will continue in the last two rounds of the tournament today and Sunday.

Friday's playing condisions were made for low scoring and the players were quick to show it.

Finsterwald started with a 68 during the calm early part of the day. Even though the gusty, uncertain wind increased later, the par breaking continued.

Arnold Palmer
. . . can he repeat

Veteran Ed (Porky) Oliver; Julius Boros, former Open Champ, and slender, long-hitting Paul Harney fired three-under-par 69s for 144 totals. They were joined there by Dave Thomas, the big Welshman; Angel Miguel, the tiny Spaniard, and U.S. pros Mike Soucak and Billy Maxwell. Thomas, Souchak and Maxwell all shot 71s.

Miguel had his second 72. Billy Joe Patton, the clouting Morganton, N.C., amateur, and Pro Bo Wininger had 70s for 145 totals.

The close competition was enough to give Palmer some concern about winning and he admitted he didn't have the same kind of confidence he had when he came here last year after a string of tournament successes.

"I haven't been scrambling so well this year, but I made some good chips today," he said.

Palmer started out by getting birdies on the first two holes, but he slipped back even with par at the sixth and stayed there through the 12th in spite of missing a couple of greens.

Or Give Up Crown

Robinson Ordered To Fight Basilio

NEW YORK —(AP)— Middleweight Champion Sugar Ray Robinson Friday was ordered to sign for a title fight with Carmen Basilio by noon April 15, or lose his crown.

The latest ultimatum to the 38-year old champion was issued by the New York athletic commission. At the same time the commission rejected Germany's Gustav (Bubi) Scholz, the European champion, as a suitable contender for Robinson at this time.

Scholz and Robinson's attorney, Martin Machat, had advised the commission by letter that negotiations had been completed for a Robinson-Scholz title fight in the U.S. or Germany before September, 1959.

Gen Melvin Krulewitch, commission chairman, pointed out that commission rules require champions to defend their titles every six months. Robinson hasn't defended since he regained the jewels from Basilio in Chicago, March 25, 1958.

New York's warning to Sugar Ray followed the action of the National Boxing Association. On March 30, the NBA indicated it would strip Robinson of his title unless he signed for a defense April 25. The NBA, however, did not name an opponent for Robinson. New York is not a member of the NBA.

Neither Robinson nor any member of his entourage attended the session. Neither could they be reached for comment.

Only last January, when the NBA said it would take drastic action against Robinson, Gainford threatened a suit against each member of the NBA's executive committee. When the committee met, Robinson mollified the members by saying he planned a title defense in either May or June.

Krulewitch said that Basilio, the former champion, was the outstanding challenger and that he had filed a formal challenge backed up with the necessary $2,000 check. He said that Gene Fullmer, another ex-champion, had written the commission asking for a title fight but had not filed a formal challenge.

Scholtz, 29, is ranked fourth contender, by both the NBA and Ring Magazine. He has 54-1-4 win-loss-draw record. The German's only loss was to France's Charles Humez on March 11, 1958. Scholz stopped Humez in the 12th round of a return bout last October to win the European title.

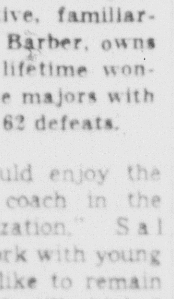
Cardinals Seek Maglie as Coach

ST. PETERSBURG — (AP) — Sal Maglie, who helped pitch the New York Giants, Brooklyn Dodgers and New York Yankees to four pennants, is considering an offer to serve as a pitching coach in the St. Louis Cardinals Farm system.

Maglie revealed Friday the offer was made Thursday by Cardinal General Manager Bing Devine after announcement that the Redbirds were giving the 42-year-old right-hander his unconditional release.



MAGLIE

"I deeply appreciate their offer," Maglie said in the Cardinal clubhouse at Al Lang Field. "But I don' know whether I will accept it. I promised Bing I'd think it over and let him know in two-three days."

A great pitcher with the Giants and Dodgers, Maglie apparently has reached the end of the line. But he thinks he still can win in the majors. The Buffalo native, familiarly known as the Barber, owns one of the best lifetime won-lost records in the majors with 119 victories and 62 defeats.

"I think I would enjoy the job as pitching coach in the Cardinal organization," Sal said. "I like to work with young pitchers and I'd like to remain in baseball. But I still think I can pitch in the major leagues."

Sanford Goes Nine, Giants Win

PHOENIX, Ariz. — (AP) — Jack Sanford Friday became the first San Francisco Giants pitcher to go the full nine innings this spring as he survived a rough start to beat Cleveland, 6-4.

Sanford, traded to the Giants by Philadelphia in a winter deal, gave up a two-run homer to Rocky Colavito in the first inning and four hits and two runs in the second.

Then he settled down and blanked the Tribe the rest of the way.

Sanford got help from the home-run hitting of Eddie Bressoud, Orlando Cepeda and Leon Wagner. Bressoud slammed a two-run homer in the first inning; Cepeda, a three-run smash in the third; and Wagner, a solo homer, also in the third.

Griffith Asks Frick to Void Deal on Loes

ORLANDO — (AP) — President Cal Griffith of the Washington Senators Friday said he will ask Baseball Commissioner Ford Frick to void a deal in which the Baltimore Orioles sent sore-armed Billy Loes to the Nats.

Griffith said the Senators' team physician had found Loes, an out-spoken right-hander, to have an incomplete rupture of the right arm near the shoulder. The physician recommended surgery, but said there is only a 50-50 chance of recovery from the ailment.

Griffith added that Lee MacPhail, Orioles' general manager, had told him Loes' arm was sound before the Tuesday swap which gave Baltimore Right-hander Vito Valentinetti.

Loes was sent to Washington for the examination Thursday, after reporting to the Senators and complaining of a sore arm.

Loes, 29, had a 3-9 record with the Orioles last year, his eighth season in the Majors. He broke in with the Brooklyn Dodgers in 1950 and had his top year in '53 with the Brooks with a 14-8 record.

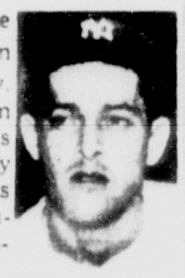
In New York, Frick offered no comment pending an official request from Griffith.

Decision Monday

Miranda Comes In --But Is He Out?

The status of Baltimore Shortstop Willie Miranda is still very much up in the air and will probably remain that way until at least next Monday.

Miranda arrived here Thursday night — 36 days late in reporting to the O's spring training camp. "Just passing through," the little Cuban said cheerfully. "Maybe I room with Loes (Pitcher Billy Loes, who was traded to Washington Wednesday)."



MIRANDA

If Miranda it'll be as an it'll be as an Oriole. Friday Cal Griffith, Washington owner, said he was going to ask Commissioner Ford Frick to void the deal for Loes because Billy has a sore arm.

And Griffith added that his attempts to obtain a shortstop do not include negotiations for Miranda.

Miranda gave no excuses for his tardiness when greeted in a hotel lobby by a group of Oriole players. "Maybe I tell you later after I talk to Paul Richards," he said.

Richards said he talked to Miranda at length, but reported his status would not be determined until the club returns to Baltimore Monday.

Wins Scholarship for Play

Dave Bludworth Sparkles In Gator Spring Grid Fray

GAINESVILLE —(AP)— Dave Bludworth, a 155-pound halfback who enrolled at the University of Florida without a football scholarship, was the star runner of the annual Orange and Blue intrasquad game ending spring practice Friday.

Coach Bob Woodruff said Bludworth, of De Funiak Springs, and Jim Eadons, another halfback from Sarasota, will go on scholarship for the way they played in spring drills.

Bludworth set up the first touchdown for the Orange team — winner of the game 13-8—with a 68-yard run in the second quarter. He was the top runner with 78 yards on four carries.

The Orange team had the best running, best passing and best kicking. Jack Jones, a junior college transfer from Commerce, Okla., turned in the best quarterbacking. He completed 5 of 11 passes, one of them to Gene Page of Tallahassee producing the second Orange touchdown.

Wayne Nalls of Ocala got off a punt that travelled 93 yards, though 20 of them didn't count when the ball trickled into the end zone.

One of Jones' passes that went astray resulted in the only Blue touchdown. Henry Farmer intercepted and ran 51 yards for the score.

The wider goal posts didn't improve the extra point kicking. Bludworth booted one for the Orange. Page tried the other, which was blocked. Paul White's attempted conversion after the Blue score missed.

Because heavy rains interferred with the practice schedule, play was ragged. Coach Woodruff said the layoffs had spoiled the timing but the players hustled and scrapped well.

Most of the senior lettermen were excused from spring practice, so a Tulane scout who appeared didn't get much of a line on what the Gators will do when they open the 1959 season in New Orleans Sept. 19.

'Ailing' Rose Holds AAU Freestyle Title

Reprinted from late Friday editions

NEW HAVEN, Conn. —(AP)— Ailing Murray Rose retained his 1,500-meter freesytle National AAU swimming title Thursday night in the meet. record time of 18:18.4. He was running a 100-degree temperature when he plunged into the pool.

The fabulous Australian star won the metric mile by more than three yards, finishing in front of Alan Somers of Michigan State. George Breen of the Indianapolis A.C. was third.

Breen had held the meet record of 18:20.2 since April 5, 1956, which he registered in this same 50-meter Yale practice pool.

"I feel much better now" he said after the finish. It left a question, however, as to whether he'll be in shape to defend his 220-yard sprint title today.

Rose also holds the 440-yard freestyle crown, which is scheduled for Saturday, the final day of the three day meet.

Rose started to run a temperature this afternoon, but kept it a secret until he arrived at Yale's Payne Whitney gym with his parents. He decided to get into his swim suit about 15 minutes before the race was scheduled to start.

As he took his place on the starting platform, there was a commotion which ended only after he assured his mother, and others that he wanted to swim — and to win. He did.

A mild surprise was the failure of Bill Steuart, Michigan State ace from South Africa, who a week ago won the NCAA metric mile in 18:26.2. His time tonight was 19:24.7.

"I just didn't have it," he said.

'Everybody' Goes to the Masters, A Shrine and Mecca for Golfers

AUGUSTA, Ga.—Bobby Jones was a golf legend while he was playing 30 years ago and his name still is magic down here as perpetuated in the Masters Tournament.

Bobby rides in a cart now, instead of walking, and talks a lot of long ago, like a day he played Scotland's famed St. Andrews course.

Off to one side of the historic layout Jones thought he saw a small tombstone and inquired as to what and why.

"Sir Harry Lauder hit a ball over there once," was the explanation, "and his caddy died looking for it."

It is rather impossible to permanently lose a ball on the Augusta National links, although often possible to lose control of it.

The veteran Chick Evans, playing in only his third Masters and first since 1953, came sorrowfully off the first nine with a 46.

"Oh, those great big greens," he sighed.

"They make you dizzy just looking up and down them. Yes, the years are lengthening and so are the courses."

As of today, this Masters labyrinth is exactly what Jones and chairman Cliff Roberts envisioned 25 years ago. "Everybody comes here," said Dick Metz. "It's a shrine, a mecca for golfers."

Gene Sarazen phrased it: "I'd rather come here than go to the Open. You see more people."

* * *

Big Bugaboo

THERE WAS some rain and wind and muggy heat for the opening round and atop a parking station en route to the club was a prophetic sign: "Golf is a game in which the ball always lies poorly and the player well."

But as Billy Joe Patton said: "You can stand anything for a day or two — heat, rain — but then it becomes a strain."

Wind is the big bugaboo for all golfers. "It creates a terrific mental hazard," said Patton. "You have a game to play and the wind won't let you.

"Then you try to fight it and the shots go haywire and even when it dies down or quits entirely, the pattern can be lost."

Dick Mayer, the former Open champ, ad-libbed: "Bob Rosburg can tell you about the wind," and they both had a laugh.

It was a couple of years ago that Rosburg in the early title running, came to the fourth hole, a 230-yard affair ticketed as a par-three. The wind was blowing a gale into the tee and nobody was reaching the green in one.

Rosburg lashed into his drive just as the wind cut out entirely on him, and the ball cleared a fence behind the green. Bob had to shoot again and take a two-stroke penalty for out of bounds.

* * *

What a Round

YES, THIS is the Masters, the time and place where, four years ago, Patton put together one round of a hole-in-one, an eagle, six birdies, a double-bogey, a bogey and eight pars and finished just one stroke shy of winning the title.

"I rather suspect that was one of the greatest rounds I ever got out of my system," he gagged off the final green.

This can be a tricky tournament as to scores. Par is 288 for 72 holes.

Four times it has been done with 279 or under (Ben Hogan's 274 in '53 is the record) and four times the winner has posted 280. Twice 289, one over par, was sufficient to win.

"There's penalty shots on every hole," said Jim Demaret. "You've got to avoid them to do anything."

Shortstop Worries Marlins

Reprinted from late Friday editions

By EDDIE STORIN
Herald Sports Writer

Although the 28-year-old shortstop was in the lineup Thursday as the Marlins took another drubbing (17-6) at the hands of Indianapolis, he was still favoring his arm more than somewhat.

Manager Pepper Martin, who is beginning to wonder how long "an ordinary sore arm" takes to get well, has been playing Castleman at second base to avoid the long throw from shortstop. But even at that position, he was unable to make a routine throw Thursday.

There were runners on first and second with one out in the sixth inning when Joe Martin of the Indians grounded to Castleman. Foster fielded the ball in time to make a force play at second, but after starting to throw there decided to take the shorter route and flipped to first base.

"No," said Castleman frankly, "I can't say that the arm is showing much improvement. It still hurts like the devil to throw.

"I can't understand it. I've never had any arm or shoulder trouble in my life. Maybe I can shake it in the warmer weather in Puerto Rico," he added hopefully.

"My timing is off," surmised Castleman. "That layoff didn't do me any good. But it should come around okay."

FSU Promotes Perry Moss And Don Veller

Reprinted from late Friday editions

TALLAHASSEE —(AP)— Florida State University has handed its new head football coach, Perry Moss, the added duties of athletic director.

Dr. Don Veller, assistant athletic director since May, 1958, was promoted to associate director of athletics.

President Robert M. Strozier announced Thursday night that the appointments are effective immediately Moss, former University of Miami aide, will hold down the dual jobs of head football coach and athletic director at his present salary of $14,000. Veller's salary will remain at $9,250.

As director of athletics, Moss succeeds Tom Nugent, who held both jobs until he resigned to accept a head coaching position at University of Maryland last January.

"We have taken quite a bit of time in thinking through the responsibilities of an athletic director at Florida State University," Dr. Strozier said.

"Coach Moss' first interest is football. But he also has a broad interest in the entire program of intercollegiate athletics at the university.

"Dr. Veller has wide experience in athletics and the confidence of the staff. We believe the two of them will make an excellent team, assuring the university a well-balanced program in intercollegiate competition."

Moss, 32, came to Florida State from University of Wisconsin, where he had served two years as backfield coach."

"Our ultimate aim is admission into an athletic conference, preferably the Southeastern Conference," Moss said.

Lakers, Celtics Vie In Pro Cage Finals

BOSTON —(AP)— Giant-killer Minneapolis Friday mapped slowdown tactics to atone for 18 straight losses to the Boston Celtics and regain its onetime rating as the royalty of pro basketball.

The setting will be the finals of the National Basketball Association playoffs which open today at Boston Garden in a nationally televised contest (NBC-TV, Channel 7, 3 p.m. EST).

The Lakers, who finished 17 games back of defending world champion St. Louis in the Western Division only to stun the Hawks in the regional playoffs, aren't going to play dead for the Celts.

Boston has crushed the Lakers in a cross-country victory string that extends back to their final meeting of the 1956-57 campaign. The Celts have won on their own court, at the Minneapolis Auditorium and on neutral floors with equal ease.

In addition, it was Minneapolis that Boston victimized in the record-shattering 173-139 triumph late in February. That mathematical marathon was one of 52 triumphs by the Celts which gave them a single season league mark.

But playoffs are a different matter as St. Louis discovered. Led by the scoring magic of rookie-of-the-year Elgin Baylor, the Lakers wiped out the Hawks in six games. Meanwhile, Boston had to go the full seven contests to eliminate Syracuse in a frantic finish.

"The trick is to knock about 10 or 12 points off the 119-point average the Celtics have been scoring at our expense," explained Minneapolis Coach Johnny Kundla. "I think that would beat them.

"We might be able to do a few things to slow down the Celtics," Kundla continued. "What we really have to avoid, though, is being stampeded when they get three or four fast baskets."

"I think the hard series with the Nats will prove beneficial to the boys in the championship series," Boston Coach Red Auerbach countered in discussing the competition which the Celts squeezed out 130-125 Wednesday night.

"They had to work too hard to beat Syracuse and they've found out they can't overrate themselves," Auerbach continued. "Now they'll want to beat the Lakers and win the championship because they've come this far the hard way."

Minneapolis won the world crown in 1949, 1950, 1952, 1953 and 1954 with the likes of George Mikan, Jim Pollard, Vern Mikkelsen, Slater Martin and Bob Harrison. Mikkelesn is the only survivor of that glory group.

The Celtics took the title in 1957.

The series continues in Boston Sunday afternoon before moving west for Tuesday and Thursday dates.

Leafs Stun Bruins, Take Hockey Lead

Reprinted from late Friday editions

BOSTON — (AP) — The Toronto Maple Leafs, aroused to fever pitch, took command of its Stanley Cup hockey playoff series with Boston, 4-1, Thursday night on Johnny Bower's fine goaltending.

Bert Olmstead, Dick Duff, Frank Mahovlich and Bob Pulford registered the goals which gave the Leafs a 3-2 edge, just one victory shy of wrapping up the best-of-seven semi-final series.

Bower, a 33-year-old veteran playing his first Stanley Cup series, lost his bid for a shutout at 11:25 of the final period when Jerry Toppazzini tipped in a Jim Morrison pass from right in front of him. Bower contributed 32 saves to 22 for Boston's Harry Lumley.

Spurred by two straight overtime triumphs after falling behind 2-0 in the competition, Toronto for once found itself in charge from the start with a superior show of speed, stickhandling and aggressiveness.
